THE CONCERN of the town's educators, protective agents, physicians, clergy and administrators focused on the local reflection of the nation-wide problems of use and misuse of drugs among young people. Above at a February WHS meeting, MIT's Jerry Lettvin tells it like it is with drugs. The town-wide CONCERN committee evolved to deal with the problem.

DESTRUCTION BY FIRE was dramatically illustrated when two Fletcher Street homes burned on the night of April 13, the apparent result of barbecue coals setting the porch of one home (left) ablaze and catching to the second. Subsequently one of these homes has been sold to the Town to augment Wyman School land. The second is being rebuilt.

METCO REJECTION. In May the School Committee re-introduced the question of Winchester participation in the Metropolitan Council for Educational Opportunity plan to bus inner city Negro students to town. After favorable hearings, a petitioned July Town Meeting voted 97 to 47 to accept the plan. A subesquent referendum defeated it 2300 to 1922, however. METCO turned down the Winchester application.

TOWARD A NEW WHS. Huge seven-foot pipes were laid during the summer and now carry the Aberjona underground, creating a playing field area for the new high school. Voted February 26 to be erected on Shore Road Field, the school's extensive playing fields are prerequisites for State building assistance aid. An article challenging the vote for the high school was inserted into the November 15 Special Town Meeting warrant. It was defeated 175 to 4. A referendum was threatened but did not materialize.

Town Meeting February 13 On Incinerator

The Board of Selectmen voted Monday night for a special session of the Town Meeting to be held Thursday evening, February 13, to deal with appropriations for the incinerator.

The meeting will ask the Town for $82,215 for the purpose of extensive repairs to its incinerator plant.

It is being called immediately so as to get the seriously needed work done as soon as possible. Four or five weeks will be saved by not waiting for the annual Town Meeting in March.

The repairs will be done according to the recommendations and designs of Fay, Spofford and Thorndike, Engineers, with whom the Town commissioned a recently completed study.

Other articles are being considered for incorporation into the special warrant, which will close next week Monday, January 6.

The Selectmen also voted with pleasure the acceptance of the gift of the Glen Green property of Warren Witherel to the Town. Official action on this will await Town Meeting.

Tunnel Will Be Built

The Board voted approval of the draft of an easement deed by the Boston and Maine Railroad to the Town in connection with the construction of a tunnel under the tracks joining the new high school to its playing fields.

In approving this the Selectmen, following the probing of Paul Amico, noted that the document was written in such a way as to protect to the maximum the interests of the Railroad.

Chairman Charles Doucette chaired the meeting and in addition to Mr. Amico members John Sullivan, Ralph Swanson and Edmund Williams were present.

Town Puts Into Effect Anti-Pigeon Program

The anti-pigeon program voted at the November Special Town Meeting has already been put into effect according to Michael Saraco, director of the Board of Health.

Subsequent to the unanimous vote on the unopposed motion to start such a program, the Health Board recommended and the Selectmen authorized the so-called "Rid-A-Bird" perches which have the dual effect of eliminating roosting habits where they are installed and doing away with those birds which do roost upon them.

The Health Board contracted with the Safety Fumigant Company of Boston and Hingham and the perches were installed just before Christmas.

They are now in place at the five railroad underpass bridges—all favorite nesting places of droves of pigeons: at the two center circle overpasses; at Bacon Street, Waterfield Road and at the Skillings By-Pass.

The metal perches are mounted on the bridge girders. They are filled with a chemical known as Entrex, an organo-phosphate compound. The chemical is drawn up into wicks which protrude on their exposed side and contaminates the feet of the pigeons.

At the Town Meeting which voted the monies for the pigeon control program no discussion or opposition was heard.

Dr. Warren Taylor, chairman of the Board of Health, singled out as better than others two possible ways of pigeon control to the Town Meeting—that of erecting nettings to keep the pigeons from nesting on the overpasses and the Rid-A-Bird program.

Severe Christmas Week Vandalism Discovere At Saint Mary's Church

Vandals desecrated the altar and the sacristy of the oldest Roman Catholic Church in Winchester two days before Christmas in an unexplained act of aggression still under investigation.

Officer John Oliver investigated the break and entry at Saint Mary's on Washington Street after it was reported to Police headquarters at about 6:45 p.m. December 23.

Police reports indicate that intruders, who had gained entry to the church by breaking a window on its north side and unlocking it, ransacked the building.

Vandalism inside the sacristy of the church, included ransacking of the cabinets containing the priests' personal effects. Also, chalices were thrown on the floor and candles were broken.

At the altar the intruders took the crucifix down, threw it on the floor, and they broke the altar candles.

The tabernacle door was pried open and a chalice was knocked over. The Host was also thrown on the floor.

Order was installed in time for all Christmas week services.

First Lighting Contest Prizes Are Awarded

Winners of the first annual Jaycees Christmas lighting contest were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Adams of 22 Hollywood Road. Runner-up home was that of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Maiocco of 18 Wickham Road.

Lee Osburn, Jaycees' president and one of the group's judges, said the entries were good and the decision was tough to make.

"Originality and effective use of existing property in portraying the Christmas spirit," was their guide in the choice.

"Some may be surprised at how simple are the displays of our winners," he reported.

At the Adams home the main feature is the multi-colored light treatment of a deciduous shade tree at the end of the front walk —with multi-candled windows of the home behind it.

At the Maiocco house the front walk also featured, with lighting running down the hedge to the sidewalk. Multi-colored light treatment in front of the big picture window is highlighted by a centered small, blue-lighted evergreen.

The Boston Edison Company presented the prizes, and the Adams won a General Electric chord organ and the Maiocco's received an Oster cutlery (service) center.

Of the several dozen additional entries, the Jaycees have cited three other entries for honorable mention: Mr. and Mrs. Vito Giarrizzo, 20 Sawmill Brook Road; Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wyman, 132 Forest Street; and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Crimmins, 512 South Border Road.

The chairman of the lighting contest, John A. Hackett of 43 Robinhood Road, said the only requirement for entry in the contest was that the individual homeowner send the coupon which was printed in the Star or call his name in to the Jaycees.

At the moment, the group looks to a second contest next year.

Donors Needed January 8 As Flu Strikes At Blood Supply

"Strike back at the flu—come to the Red Cross Bloodmobile January 8 at the Church of the Epiphany."

Local Blood Chairman John Waite is making a special appeal to local donors and those who have never donated before to come to the Epiphany Hall between 2 and 6:45 p.m. Wednesday to help fill the critical need for life-saving blood.

Dr. Joel M. Johnson, blood chairman of the Greater Boston Red Cross, reports that "One of the most critical results of the current influenza epidemic on the total health of our community is its adverse effect on the blood supply. What is needed most—right now—are blood donors, to help prevent a much more serious health problem, a short supply of life-saving blood."

Cancellations of blood donations caused by flu have been a large factor in the critical shortage, according to Dr. Johnson, who stated also that a blood donation would in no way increase the chances of contracting the flu.

Winton Club Asks Big Group For '69 Cabaret

Tryouts for Winton Club's "Once Upon a Time" will be held Sunday afternoon at the Town Hall. A large cast of singers and dancers is needed for the 48th annual cabaret and show. Chairman, Mrs. Richard Brackett, and show director, Lee Daniels of Boston, hope for a big turnout.

Show dates are set for January 28-February 1. Rehearsals will start Monday, January 6.

The Year of the Dragon is beginning for the Club Sunday, for along with numerous well-known literary heroes and villians, this year's show will star a unique and majestic dragon whose personality is a composite of all the favorite dragons of literature—fierce and fiery, yet friendly and lovable.

Senior Cits: Travelled And Tanned

With tropical heat stored in their blood against the bitter weather to which they returned, 32 Winchester members of the Senior Citizen-sponsored winter cruise were back in town last week.

Eight of their 10 days aboard the Nieuw Amsterdam (out of New York) had been outdoor days — most in the 80's and 90's as they cruised the Virgin Islands.

"When and where do we go next year?" was the question on many lips as the bus returned them to Winchester. The answer, according to Recreation Director Donald Spinney, who with his wife Beverly accompanied the group, is probably to Aruba, Barbados, and St. Thomas.

Cellar Fire Evicts Family On Christmas

A Christmas Day fire caused an estimated $2500 damage to a Pond Street home and forced the occupants to spend the night with neighbors.

The fire, confined to the cellar of the Lawson home at 85 Pond Street, was probably caused when ashes from a fireplace were placed in a bag and left with trash in the cellar, according to the Fire Department report.

Loss of heat and heavy smoke caused the occupants to leave the house overnight, according to Fire Chief I. Francis Amico.

Engines 2 and 3, the ladder and rescue trucks and the chief's car responded to the alarm at 6:43 p.m. Auxiliary lighting truck 1 also responded.

Eighteen firefighters, including seven auxiliary men, answered the alarm. Lt. Joseph E. Shea and Chief Amico were in charge. Captain Wilbur C. Otis of the auxiliary also responded.

Power, Phones Knocked Out By Thousands

The freezing rain and ice which hit town Saturday on the heels of the sub-zero weather spell caused widespread power and telephone service loss, severe damage, accidents and even flooding.

Extreme danger from fallen high power electric wires existed for many hours Saturday night and Sunday. Local police were kept busy guarding the danger spots. Area Boston Edison men working out of Woburn were on duty around the clock to repair the damage.

In some places wires were down and broken, in many others arcing low and sparking as they arced.

The storm had great beauty too and sent photographers scurrying in the early Sunday morning hours. Each tiny branch of shrubs all over town were encased in ice. Birches hung low like priceless cut-glass chandeliers. The thawing of iced lawns and trees on Sunday made music with eerie, unfamiliar sounds.

The Boston Edison Company reported Monday that about 1,200 homes had lost their power in Winchester commencing with the storm's onslaught late Saturday noon and continuing for just over 24 hours.

Residents in areas as separated as Forest Street, Jefferson Road, Westland Avenue, Salisbury Street, and Everett Avenue were among many others who suffered the loss. The average time they were without all electrical service was from one to six hours.

Emergency calls on power loss went direct to the Boston Edison lines or came into Police headquarters. The first one recorded by the police was at 7 p.m. Saturday. They continued well into Sunday as tree limbs went on snapping with the ice load, bringing down the wires, or they fell from their own accumulation of ice.

Police lines were jammed. They were a message center for every kind of trouble from accidents to limbs down to power loss. At about 9 p.m. on Saturday they also recorded a flood on Johnson Road, near the Swim Club. All personnel available was out to check on road conditions and reports of wires down.

The New England Telephone Company reported 66 percent of local service out. The problem started Saturday evening and mounted rapidly through Sunday.

The phone wire problems also were all over the town. The Telephone Company pulled in all available repairmen and installers to restore service. By Monday afternoon all but the biggest cable problems were cleared up.

Tree Warden Richard Horn reported his men on round the clock duty with many calls coming direct, others through the police. Some larger trees down involved sawing before road passage could be restored. Many of the limbs, both small and large, had created serious danger from live electrical wires.

The Water Department had no time to recover from the broken pipe siege of the sub-zero freeze before being hit by the ice storm. Harold McKinley, assistant superintendent, reported the "no water" calls to be the most frequent—their causes to be multiple.

The Fire Department reported that the Saturday night storm and ice conditions caused trouble in some fire alarm circuits due to fallen branches. Extra crews went on to keep the systems under constant watch.

Highway Department administrators were appreciative of the public's understanding of their problems. "They probably realized what it was doing out from what was happening on their own sidewalks," said Edward Murphy, assistant superintendent, as he described the losing fight the men had against the freezing rain.

"We would put on salt but it would almost immediately coat with rain and freeze over it," he said. The department tried sand also, but with no lasting results.

The Department started with sanders at 9:30 Friday evening—and worked until 1:30 Saturday.

The full force of man-power under the department, augmented as always in emergencies by Park and Water and Sewer Department personnel was out from 5 a.m. Saturday through to 2 a.m. Sunday. They came back, many of them at 5 a.m. Sunday, and went through to 4. By Monday they were down to spot sanding and a salting.

The storm cost the Town about $23,000. And Monday night saw Highway Superintendent Robert O'Brien before the Selectmen with a request that they transfer $15,000 more from reserves into the 1968 snow and ice budget.

Looking ahead: more of the same.

Xmas Tree Pick-Up Set For Saturday

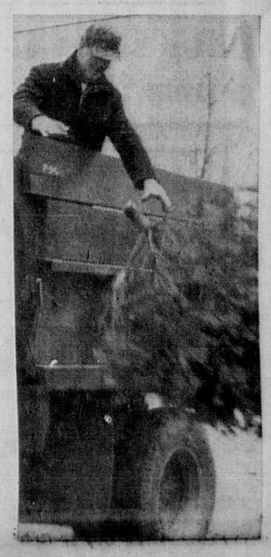

Come snow, rain or cold a hardy group of Winchester Junior Chamber of Commerce men will go out Saturday on their annual Town-wide Christmas tree pick-up.

Seeral trucks have been loaned for the day. The men will start early and keep going until they have covered every street in town.

Householders who would like them to remove the last vestiges of the holiday are asked to leave the trees close to the street. They are also asked to attach a quarter, carefully and visibly, to the tree.

The Jaycees collect the trees as a service to the community. With monies obtained the organization then purchases shrubs or trees as permanent gifts to the Town's lands.

The trees are annually carted off to the incinerator area and control burned.

As we charge ahead into a New Year, we think it is a fine time to thank all our customers for the loyal patronage and good will they have shown us. A happy 1969 to all of you —

Six Accidents During Week; Four Are Related To Storm

Six accidents, including four related to the weekend storm, occurred in Winchester during the past week.

Three of the accidents involved minor personal injuries.

On Thursday, December 26, at 4:23 p.m., a car operated by Robert A. Coviello, 19, of Malden, traveling southeast on Bacon Street, was in collision with a vehicle operated by Gardner Forster Jr. of San Rafael, California.

Mr. Forster was crossing the intersection at Symmes Corner when the collision occurred.

Officers Richard Fisher and Roland Roy investigated.

Later that day, at 8:10 p.m., a car operated by Charles R. Spiewak, 24, of Rockport, collided with one operated by Mrs. Theresa B. MacDonald, 22, of Woburn at the intersection of Main and Swanton Streets.

Officers Angelo Amico, Roger DeMinico and Frank Vozzella investigated.

According to the police report, the brakes on the Spiewak car apparently failed and the car struck the MacDonald car, which was stopped at the traffic light.

Miss Katherine A. Coady, 21, of Needham, a passenger in the car operated by Mr. Spiewak, was taken to Winchester Hospital, where she was treated for minor injuries and released.

During the storm Saturday afternoon and early evening, two people received minor injuries in skidding accidents.

John R. GoodfeHow, 17, of 16 Webster Street was treated at Winchester Hospital for lacerations received when the car he was operating collided with a vehicle operated by Agnes A. Oskoian of 34 Water Street at the intersection of Richardson and Rumford Streets.

Mr. Goodfellow was traveling west on Richardson Street and Mrs. Oskoian was traveling south on Rumford Street when the accident occurred about 3:15 p.m.

Officer Henry Cogan Jr. investigated.

At 3:25 p.m., a car operated by William A. Houle, 18, of 45 Myrtle Street skidded on Main Street and slid into a cement highway sign, according to the police report. Mr. Houle was traveling south on Main Street.

Officer Joseph Perritano investigated.

A car operated by Mark Fitzgerald, 17, of 48 North Border Road collided with a water hydrant on Highland Avenue about 6:30 p.m. Mr. Fitzgerald was traveling north on Highland Avenue when he apparantly skidded and struck the hydrant.

Officer Frank Tranchita investigated.

Paul Doherty, 19, of Arlington was treated at Arlington Symmes Hospital for minor injuries he received when the car in which he was a passenger collided with another vehicle at the intersection of Arlington Street and Manomet Street at 10:40 p.m.

Ronald G. Foley, 18, of Arlington was the operator of the car in which Mr. Doherty was riding. He was driving east on Manomet Street and apparently turned to avoid a tree limb and skidded, according to the police report.

The Foley vehicle skidded into a car operated by John W. Baldwin of 9 Cottage Avenue which was parked.

Officers Frank Vozzella and Anthony Pronski investigated.

Winton Club

She stresses that anyone willing to try a simple dance routine or chorus should come to the Town Hall, hear the show story and music, and sign up for a month of good fun. Singers are invited to come at 4 p.m., dancers at 7 p.m. if possible.

The Winchester Star

Established 1880 By Theodore P. Wilson, Sr.

Serving The Community For 88 Years

Editorials:

AFFAIRS OF TOWN, STATE AND NATION have been joined this past year in the person of Governor John A. Volpe. A resident for 30 years and a voter with Mrs. Volpe (above) at the Vinson-Owen School, the Governor moved from his Everett Avenue home into a Boston apartment on July 1. This month he leaves Boston for another home in Washington, where, as President-elect Nixon's Secretary of the Department of Transportation he will put to work his many years of experience in government and as a construction administrator, most of them notched while working and living in Winchester. (Ryerson photo)

We Look Back At 1968

The elements set an appropriate background for an action-filled 1968 in Winchester—they sent it everything in the book. Schools went into single sessions in early January and stayed there until spring vacation. Heavy snows accumulated throughout February. Severe cold started the year—in January causing about 200 calls in two days to service stations to start stalled cars. It came again in last week's freezes. To welcome spring the town suffered the worst flooding recorded, topping Hurricane Diane in 1955. It settled into a comparatively fine spring and early fall as possible recompense.

Perhaps the most far-reaching local government action of the Winchester year was the completion of the town-wide property valuations at the new full cash value. In the mail in late August, the new values caused a chorus of reaction—with strident notes coming especially from Precinct 6. After weeks of adjustment hearings, the tax rate settled at $37.40 —computed from last year's estimated 72.85 without revaluation.

Town-oriented political action peaked with the September METCO referendum in which citizens voted (in an advisory vote only) against participation in the widely accepted inner city-suburb education plan, 2300 to 1922. The vote followed a 97-47 (also petitioned) Town Meeting acceptance. It led to the Town being the first in the Commonwealth to have so rejected the program. In October the February vote to build the new High School on Shore Road Field was introduced for Town Meeting vote and sustained, 175 to 4. A petition to bring a referendum on the subject did not materialize.

Lively national political action was reflected here throughout the year beginning with the April primaries in which Winchester voted for the first time for 7th District Congressional candidates. November winner Congressman Torbert Macdonald begins officially to serve the town this month. September and November saw hot campaigns across the board on State and National candidates.

The School Department asked for and got its biggest budget in history: $3,959,200. It enrolled the largest number ever—over 6,000—in September. In addition, after two decades of postponing, the Town voted $10,070,000 for a new high school on Shore Road Field (this will add about $5.20 to the tax rate for 20 years beginning next year). It helped 11 other towns lay the cornerstone for a new area vocational school, soon to be taking students here. It voted portable classrooms, remote descendants of the little red school house, to be erected at the Mystic School until additions can handle the population there.

In addition to voting record budgets, the annual Town Meeting bought the Town a Honeywell 110 computer. It is the first town of its size in the State to put one into municipal use. It refused to buy conservation lands across the top of the West Hill. It gave the Police a larger pay boost than that to the Firefighters. And in the fall a special Town Meeting refused a land-owner the zoning changes, which would allow a multi-unit apartment development on Cambridge Street.

Police notes in 1968 reflected the statistics across the State: a heavy increase in breaks and burglaries. "These are giving us much concern, as is the accident increase," says Chief Joseph J. Derro (himself elected as president of the Massachusetts Police Chiefs' Association this year). Fire runs were also record, though not yet statistically separated as to fires, safety runs and services, they totaled 1,070. Chief Francis Amico notes the heavy increase in general services asked of the Department. The April 13 Fletcher Street fire was the most extensive dwelling fire in present memory and left three families homeless. In this and the November Lorena Road fire, the Chief pointed out that the Town was lucky not to lose a life. The town suffered one drowning, that of a five-year-old in the Mill Pond in May. As of noon December 31 it had recorded one fatal accident when a Cambridge woman was killed in an early morning Cambridge Street crash in October.

Sports made a splash here in 1968. Winchester High School went on the books with three Middlesex League titles: tennis, soccer and football. The tennis team came within one game of the State title. The football team was just edged out of a Class B championship tie. At July's end the National League Little League All-stars had gone on the board as winners of the State title. They followed this up by placing third in New England play. The first year in (Little League) Big League won the hometeam and the New England title too. They were stopped there by a New York team. In other sports the biggest event was perhaps the second annual visit of the National Women's Indoor Tennis Championship at the Tennis Center on East Street. We had no marathon runners this year. Joe the Jet Bellino bowed out from the Patriots, ending the most spectacular football career recorded by a Winchester born and bred player.

Not as dramatic but very meaningful was the interagency, year-long action to prevent further misuse of drugs by Winchester young people. Throughout the year student discussions and parent meetings and combined programs focused on the use of drugs. The new CONCERN committee was created to pull together work in this area. It feels it still has a lot to do. The Winchester Council for Community Action (WCCA) also established itself in the community conscience in 1968. Though it failed in its efforts on behalf of METCO, it aided in the fight to save the high school vote and it worked on meaningful information and action in other race relations efforts. Another thrust which missed its immediate objective but appears to have resulted in cultural organizational gains was that of the combined Art Association and music groups to establish a cultural center for the Town. The hope to raise the money to buy the Elks Home on Elmwood Avenue died. But plans are still afoot to get some sort of unifying organization and a central place from which to serve the whole town.

And What Do We Find?

So. What kind of a year has Winchester just tucked away? Looked at against the State, the nation and the world, it could be called a sum of thrusts into and withdrawals from the main stream of political action. To anyone wanting our Town to play its full part in the Greater Boston story, the METCO defeat was the biggest blow. To concerned parents, its head-on facing of the drug issue appears one of its most constructive steps. The revaluation of property was a bitter pill, especially for older persons. But given the bleakness of State finances it was a healthy thing for the Town, a mean, necessary job accomplished and behind us.

As nationally the realities of the Vietnam War, the horrors of the King and Kennedy assassinations and the wonders of the Apollo flight have made us stop and give our own nation and its people a closer look, so in Winchester events in 1968 can give us stock of ourselves. Look close and we can see the many things that we are. In speaking of mankind in eloquent words inspired by the moon flight, Archibald MacLeish last week mused about the man's evolvement from his medieval notion of himself at the center of things to his nuclear notion of his being lost in absurdity and war. He reached for a concept of man beyond, who could finally become himself. "To see the earth as it truly is, small and blue and beautiful in that eternal silence where it floats, is to see ourselves as riders on the earth together, brothers on that bright loveliness in the eternal cold —brothers who know now they are truly brothers." This too can we reach for here.

Homefronters Thank The Town, Begin To Hear From Servicemen

Editor of the Star:

The Winchester Homefronters are especially grateful to an ever-increasing number of Winchester citizens who have this year taken such pleasure in being a part of our Christmas project, which is to mail a Christmas package to every man and woman from Winchester in the armed services. A total of 260 boxes were mailed to as far away as Vietnam and as near as a local address when the serviceman is to be in Winchester for Christmas.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel P. Morse, Jr., have done a wonderful job in tracking down the latest addresses of all these boys. They also were responsible for getting out the very attractive flyers outlining the work of the Homefronters organization. These flyers were distributed townwide in early November by the young people of the Forum at the First Congregational Church.

Contributions to finance the cost of the packages were made by townspeople at the annual Tag Day, as well as by personal checks sent to us by those who wanted to help. All Winchester churches and civic groups have contributed. Several business houses and banks gave an item to be included in each box. Even the heavy boxes and tape used were donated by an interested and generous citizen. Several troops of Girl Scouts made fruitcake cupcakes to be included. The Christmas issue of "Praying Hands" was given by its publisher.

Among the items which we purchased and individually Christmas-wrapped were candy, gum, shampoo, cribbage boards, playing cards, pocket valets, puzzle games, medicated cream, toothpaste and brushes, aspirin, paperback novels, Farmer's Almanacs, foot powder, insect repellent, Wash & Dri towelettes, ballpoint pens, and an air mail stationery kit. Among the items donated were Kool-Aid, sardines, hand cream, sewing kits, calendars, pencils and pens. All in all, about 30 gifts made up the package. A Christmas card completed it.

About 40 packages were sent to Southeast Asia, and in each of these a gift was included for our serviceman to give to a child in his area. This was the idea of one of the women who helped to wrap the gifts, and already we have heard from boys who were so pleased to have something to give someone else.

The letters of thanks from servicemen are a joy to read. One says, "Your wonderful package received today. It's a nice feeling to know that a town cares enough of its servicemen overseas to do this." Still another — "I have been in the service now for over five years and have never heard of any other hometown people bothering to take the time and effort to do what you do every year. It gives a great feeling of pride for Winchester and the people living there." S/Sgt. Ronald P. McArthur, 388th F.M.S., Box 2002, APO 96288, San Francisco, Calif., says he would like to hear from anyone and everyone who graduated from WHS in 1958 or 1959. Let's see what you '58 and '59 graduates can do for Sergeant McArthur.

Contributions have come in sufficient quantity to pay the expenses this year, with very few personal requests needed to keep us in the black. Our thanks go to everyone. We will remind you again next fall for the 1969 boxes. A lot of small donations, rather than a few big ones, are what we like, as it keeps so many more helping with this town-wide project.

In addition to Mr. and Mrs. Morse, those who helped with the actual wrapping and packing were Mrs. Anthony Dileo, Bradford Bentley, Dr. and Mrs. J. J. O'Connor, Mrs. Robert Reynolds, Mrs. Charles Butler, Mrs. H. P. Hood Jr., Mrs. Milton H. Anderson, and Mrs. Richard Schmader. The En Ka Society assumes the cost of the postage, as it has for many years. I am most grateful to everyone.

Sincerely,
Edna T. Bentley

'Things To Be Remembered'

Editor of the Star:

I really don't know how to begin this letter; however, here goes:

The town of Winchester, or rather, some of the organizations and people within the town, took it upon themselves to help bring Christmas closer to me this year. I am an Army officer presently serving in the combat area of Korea. The job I and all uniformed men do here is not on everybody's things-to-be-remembered list. But I do feel that it is one which has great importance and meaning; and I am glad that it is in fact on the things-to-be-remembered list of my home town.

What I really want to say is that the thoughtfulness of these people and organizations in sending me a Christmas package is gratefully accepted and at a time when help for our fighting men overseas is openly demonstrated against within the United States, word of the efforts and work hours put in by these people should be brought to the doorstep of every member of our town.

I am sure I am only one of many that received these Christmas packages. I only want to say thank you all very much. As is the motto of my battalion, "Keep Up the Fire."

Once again, thanks for bringing home closer to me. For I am sure I speak for most of our men in uniform when I say mail of any kind from our home is what we need most.

Rupert Jones: 'He Loved Winchester'

Editor of the Star:

He loved Winchester. But has passed on and he will be missed. We will miss seeing him come up town every day with a bag which he would fill with trash as he passed the athletic field where he would usually pick up half a dozen beer cans and other items. He will be missed for his timely suggestions in the Star offering suggestions to make the town a better place to live in. He will be missed for his friendly remarks as he passed along the way. He had been a citizen of Winchester for over 50 years and left an indelible mark in the history of the town.

So we say "May Rupert Jones rest in peace."

Significant

Editor of the Star:

(The Star received for publication the following letter.)

"Dear Winchester Homefronters:

"Thank you very much for the Christmas package which you sent to me at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Illinois.

"I was quite surprised when it arrived and had some difficulty conserving it until Christmas Day. Fortunately, my recruit training ended on December 19 so I was able to come home for the Christmas and New Year's holidays. The package contained so many varied and useful items that surely will come in handy at my next duty station, Newport, R. I.

"This gesture was greatly appreciated. It only makes me wonder about other Winchester servicemen who were unable to be home for the holidays. To them, a package such as I received would take on added significance at their duty stations throughout the seven continents.

Sincerely,
SN Richard G. Clark, USN

'Prompt . . . And Efficient'

Editor of the Star:

I should like to express my appreciation to the Winchester Fire Department for their prompt and efficient response to what was fortunately a small kitchen fire on Monday, December 23.

The apparatus came very quickly and they handled the situation very efficiently and very helpfully. We are truly grateful to Chief Amico and his department.

Yours very truly,
John M. Harrington Jr.

Little League Ready For Year

Editor of the Star:

Christmas is for children, and we are certain that all Little League homes had an enjoyable holiday.

New Years is for adults, and we hope that 1969 holds great things in store for all Little League adults.

Winchester Little League, Inc., welcomes all officers, directors, managers, coaches, umpires, women's auxiliaries, dads' clubbers and especially Little League parents to our 18th consecutive season.

We look forward to working with you in 1969 as well as with those others who come forward to help us make this the best-ever baseball season for the youth of Winchester.

We hope to see all officers and directors at our first 1969 meeting on January 7 at 7:30 p.m.

For an exciting time in sixty-nine

Sincerely yours,
James R. Stewart, Jr.,
Commissioner

They gave a qualified O.K. to the superintendent of streets for removal of trees within the new high school building site. They, however, requested a letter be sent to the Permanent Building Committee recording their caution that only those trees which absolutely must go be taken.

Planning Board Review

The Board spent a good deal of time discussing in a general way Planning Board warrant articles and plans. The emphasis was on contemplated land takings for schools and on the anticipated Planning Board report on town-wide re-zoning.

Chairman William Chapman reported his Board still aiming at late February for a formal presentation of the re-zoning. He and the Selectmen agreed, however, on the importance of a complete scrutiny of the plan first.

The Board will contact the Town's State legislative representatives to request more information on Medicaid procedures, this in conjunction with the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association.

They signed year-end renewal of common victuallers licenses pertaining to some 15 restaurant and food handlers in town and four applications for renewal of second-hand motors licenses from garages.

They set a hearing for Monday, January 13 on the application of George Whitten for a petroleum license at 783-85 Main Street.

Senior Cits

St. Thomas was the favorite port for shopping and having a whirl on this year's cruise. But every day and evening aboard ship was made festive by the hospitality of the crew and staff of the ship, according to the travellers.

There was only one local cruiser taken with illness, and that minor. One member made the finals of the ship's bridge tournament.

Next planned program for the Citizens is Thursday morning, January 9, at 9:45 at the K of C Hall. The regular monthly meeting will hear Robert Magnusen and Mrs. Barbara Garland of the Community Summer Players present "Dear Liar," the dramatization of the letters between George B. Shaw and Mrs. Patrick Campbell.

Also on the bill that morning is a short film on seeing the world in a week.

Blood

"Anyone from 18 to 60 may donate," reminds Mr. Waite. "Written permission from parents or guardians is required for persons under 21...there are many eligible donors in the area who haven't given recently. We urge them to delay no longer. They will help to save lives."

Contact the Winchester Chapter, American National Red Cross (729-2300) for an appointment January 8, or walk in and give on that day, reminds the chairman.

Only signed letters will be considered for publication in the Star. On rare occasions however, and to avert what might be damaging personal repercussions, the Star will, on request withhold the submitted name.

DEADLINE: Monday, 5 p.m.

All letters must be typed and double spaced for consideration.

BOOK REVIEW

by Ann Anderson
Winchester Public Library

SEWING MADE EASY

by Mary Lynch and Dorothy Shea

We at the library pride ourselves on writing reviews on all kinds of subject matter. We have had literature, philosophy, religion, economics, all kinds of history, all kinds of science, reviews of mystery books and light fiction, humor, fashion — you name it, but I don't think anyone yet has written on a "how to" book. This is too bad because it is a type of material that is asked for frequently, and we would like others who don't ask, to know about it.

The "how to" book, Sewing Made Easy, is strictly for the ladies, or almost strictly — men have been known to dip into it on occasion, here and there, and express wonder at all the kinds of sewing there are.

It is not a new book, having gone through several printings, but this edition has been thoroughly revised and carries a 1969 copyright date.

Anyone who has a high school or college daughter or who has much to do with girls in this age group knows that it is the "in" thing to sew. (Many of them also knit and we have some new books on that.) Some of the clothes they produce are really professionally done. At the high school proms each year, several of the girls have made their own formals. And they don't look "homemade" either.

Sewing Made Easy is a basic book. It is for these girls and also for girls and women who have never done any dressmaking. It starts, basically enough, at buying the pattern. If you are new at the job, there are patterns that are easy to make, and most designers have a good choice of these, so marked, in their pattern books. In this section there is also advice on choosing a style that will be becoming to your particular build. Figure faults can be camouflaged by a judicious choice of a pattern. For example, if you have large hips, "Always wear your skirts slightly flared, smooth fitting from the waist to the fullest part of the hips, where the skirt then spreads out to hide the fact that you are spread out! Have any decorations or trimmings at the top of your dress, so that the hips will not attract attention."

Ther are clear explicit directions for every step of making a garment, placing the pattern, marking it, cutting it, and on through the assembling and stitching. Problems for the unskilled sewer, such as attaching the collar smoothly, keeping armhole seams flat, inserting a zipper, or making professional-looking buttonholes are explained and illustrated with clear-cut step-by-step diagrams. For the more experienced seamstress the author goes into sewing for the home — the making of draperies and slip-covers, etc., hints on how to make over or restyle tired garments, mending, special embroidery stitches. There is a chapter on accessories and gifts to be made with the sewing machine. Several simple hats and bags are illustrated.

The final chapter is entitled "Taking Care of Your Clothes" and starts out with the stern admonition, "You may buy the most beautiful clothes in town, but if you treat them carelessly you still won't look your best wearing them." Directions on pressing techniques of different types of fabrics are given, removal of various kinds of stains is explained, and it is pointed out that mending a garment as soon as possible is as important as keeping it clean and pressed.

As a more or less experienced sewer and as a mother of daughters and aware of the cost of clothing them, I find this book excellent.

Fox – Schmidt

St. Ann Catholic Church, Naples, Florida, was the setting December 28 for the marriage of Miss Anadel C. Schmidt of San Francisco, California, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold R. Schmidt of Naples, and Philip J. Fox of San Francisco, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Fox of New Concord, Ohio, formerly of Winchester.

MRS. PHILIP J. FOX

The Reverend Laurence Conway officiated at the 5:30 p.m. ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Country Club of Naples.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white peau de soie fashioned with an A-line front and high neckline bordered with seed pearl embroidery and a deep seed pearl banded hemline. The back was half-belted with a slight fullness falling into a sweep train and the three-quarter length sleeves were circled with pearl banding. Her bouffant veil of silk illusion was caught to a Camelot cap of peau de soie embroidered with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. Douglas Scarff of Ann Arbor, Michigan, matron of honor, wore an azalea colored empire line floor length gown with back fullness gathered in a bow at midback. She wore pink baby mums in her hair and carried a cascade of pink baby mums and greens.

Identically attired were the bridesmaids, Mrs. Donald Ellsworth of Hartford, Connecticut, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Charles Wilkins of Belleville, Michigan.

Douglas Fox served his brother as best man. Ushers were Donald Ellsworth of Hartford, Connecticut, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Gene Davis of Wausau, Wisconsin.

Mrs. Schmidt chose a pink chiffon sheath with overlay to form a coat effect and embroidery beading at the wrist tapering to the elbow. Mrs. Fox wore a dress and coat of silk dupioni shantung in dull Christmas ribbon gold with beading encircling the neck.

The bride, a graduate of the University of Michigan, class of 1967, teaches special education classes in Marin County, California.

Mr. Fox, a 1959 graduate of Winchester High School, graduated from Lafayette College, Easton, Pennsylvania and received his master's degree in business administration from Harvard University. He is employed with Fry Consultants in San Francisco.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown especially designed for her by Priscilla of Boston of candlelight silk peau de soie with bodice and sleeves of antique hand-run Brussels applique lace with a chapel train. Her veil of antique Irish-point lace belonged to the bridegroom's great-grandmother and has been worn by three generations of brides in the Page family. She carried a bouquet of white roses and gardenias with lace.

Miss Lucy Austin, sister of the bride, of Houston was maid of honor. Her gown, designed by Priscilla, was of pink moire fashioned with long sleeves and an empire waist. Her headpiece was a large camellia tied with pink velvet ribbon. She carried a cascade of shaded pink camellias.

Identically gowned were the bridesmaids, Miss Cathy Austin of Houston, sister of the bride; Mrs. Richard Schwab of Cranston, Rhode Island, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Mary Heard of Belton, Texas, cousin of the bride; Mrs. Hugh Ray of Houston; Mrs. James Scott of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and Miss Kathy Susman of Houston.

A June 21, 1969 wedding is planned.

Why blame the weather for winter traffic accidents and tie-ups, asks Chief of Police Joseph Derro. Smart drivers prepare for winter driving by keeping their cars at their best. This means having snow tires or studded tires mounted for the winter season, rinforced tire chains in the trunk for severe snow and ice conditions, windshield wiper blades of live rubber for streak-free wiping, battery and ignition system up to standard, and all lights working properly.

Pigeons

In the preamble of his discussion he named the local pigeon problem a health nuisance and a potential health menace. He told of the evidence that pigeons carry a meningitis fungus. He noted deaths recorded due to this disease.

Prior to the presentation at Town Meeting, the Board of Health had recommended antinesting construction to the Selectmen and asked for an appropriation to carry out the program.

The Finance Committee, however, objected. And one of the main points expressed by the dissenting members of the Committee was a questioning of the validity of spending Town money to deter nesting from some areas when the same birds would find other roosts in the center.

The refusal of the Finance Committee to recommend for the expenditure deterred the Selectmen from making the authorization at that time and led to the article before the Town Meeting.

At Town Meeting Dr. Taylor listed five possible methods of pigeon control: shooting, trapping (which Winchester attempted in 1965); repelling with sticky substances, mechanical devices or netting; scare devices; and poison bait and perches.

The poison bait idea was not recommended as the bait is dangerous to humans and since birds often die in the area, other animals who might feed on the carcasses are also endangered.

Although the Rid-A-Bird chemical used is injurious to any bird attracted to the perches, the habits of other birds are such that they usually do not nest in proximity to pigeons.

The chemical used was reported by Dr. Taylor not to be injurious to humans unless ingested internally in quantity. Secondary poisoning is not a problem as domestic animals may feed on infected carcasses and not incur injury, his presentation stated.

The Selectmen authorized $2,600 dollars to initiate the Rid-A-Bird program. The perches must be refilled approximately every six months at a cost of about $700.

Library Film Program

Family Film Night starts again on January 3, 1969 at 7:30 p.m. in the Meeting Room of the Public Library with Heritage of the Negro, in which host Ossie Davis examines the civilization and achievements of ancient Africa and their significance to the American Negro today. African history as recorded by white historians has traditionally ignored the old civilizations of Africa below the Sahara. This film explores this little-known past through art, sculpture, and present day pageantry which reflect the old cultures.

HIPPOS — loveable beasts, really! Next to the elephant, they are the largest land animals in the world. And do enjoy themselves if left alone.

MADELINE'S RESCUE surely needs no explanation beside the affirmation that Madeline is Bemelman's heroine on another adventure.

The same program will be shown for school age children on Saturday, January 4, at 10:00 a.m. This is a change of time from the fall series of programs.

Chief of Police Joseph Derro said a major anxiety of winter driving could be greatly lessened if drivers would learn to "get the feel" of the road. Whenever there's any question as to whether the pavement is slippery, Chief Derro urged drivers to accelerate carefully or brake gently when out of the way of other traffic to find out for sure just how much traction there is. Then drive accordingly.

Red Wings Tie Maple Leafs In Youth Hockey

The cold and the heavy ice didn't stop hockey last weekend as another full slate of games was played.

The opening game of the morning was the fastest and best played of the day, with the Red Wings and the Maple Leafs battling to a 3-3 tie. Jimmy Dale paced the Wings' attack with two unassisted goals, while Pete Tello set up Robert King with the other Red Wings' score. Dave Brenton was the big gun in the Maple Leafs' attack with two goals. Jimmy Graham's fine passing set up one of the scores. The final Leafs' goal came off the stick of Paul Whitney with less than a minute remaining, as the Leafs had pulled their goalie in a last desperate effort to salvage a tie.

The high-flying Bruins overpowered the hapless Rangers with a one-sided 7-3 victory. Dave Frongillo and Phil O'Connell led the Bruins onslaught with two goals apiece. Joey Penta, Billy Gannon and Bobby Gill were the other Bruins marksmen, while Gannon and Gill also picked up assists. The Bruins rugged defenseman Tommy Carr received an assist setting up one of Frongillo's scores.

The Rangers snipers were done by three different players, Eddie Pierce and Jim Dillon had unassisted goals, while Richie Jacobs' tally was set up by the fine stickhandling of "Boo" McKenzie.

In the final game of the morning the Black Hawks, backed by the fine goaltending of Rich Maggio, whitewashed the Canadiens 3-0. Dana Peterson led the Hawks offense with a goal and an assist. "Pete" set up Dave Dolan for the first score of the game, while Kevin O'Neil had the other score for the Hawks. Chris McCarthy played a fine game for the Hawks, while defensemen Jimmy McCormack and Mark Siegfriedt received assists on O'Neil's goal and were stalwarts on the blue line for the Hawks.

In action in the small rink the Flyers spread their wings winning both ther games to move into sole possession of first place. The Flyers shut out the North Stars 3-0 in their first game, and took the day's finale with a 2-1 win over the Blues.

Leading the Flyers' surge was their hard-rocked defenseman Willie Paglia, while left wing Mark Milley continually harassed the opponent's goalies with his quick wrist shots from close in. The Blues won their other encounter as they edged the winless Kings 1-0.

Kevin Pronski looks like the man that could lead the Blues to the title, as he was superb in both games. The Blues are only one point out of first place in the tight race.

The Seals and the North Stars are tied for third place with four points apiece, two points out of first. The North Stars split their two games, defeating the Seals before losing to the Flyers. Allyn Stillman is the leading man in the North Stars attack, showing great hustle and team spirit. For the Seals Jay Frongillo played another fine game, while Steve Campbell looks like another budding star for the Seals.

In the two weeks of action so far, the Kings are the only winless team. Although they fought to a scoreless tie with the Seals, the Kings look like they are just starting to roll. With the top stars like Mike Jeanette and Dave Putnam buzzing around the net, it looks like they'll be hard to stop.

In selecting the "Player of the Week," it was agreed that outstanding performances were turned in by two goalies. Rich Maggio in the big rink turned in a good job on the Canadiens. Maggio, who possesses one of the quickest hands in the game, had complete control of the play as he continually frustrated the other scorers.

In the smaller rink Peter Frongillo played his greatest games as he dominated play throughout the entire five games. Frongillo, who donned the pads just two weeks ago, was beaten for only two goals all morning. In the game against the seals, he stopped his own brother on four different occasions on breakaways.

Next week a group from the Bantam and Pee Wee teams will travel to West Point for games on Saturday morning. The teams will return on Saturday night, and the games scheduled for March 2 will be played on January 5, which is an open date on the schedule.

TV: 'Fasten Your Seatbelts'

Remember those interminable delays in plane flight schedules last summer? It looks like more of the same — maybe even worse — for the 1969 tourist season, say the experts.

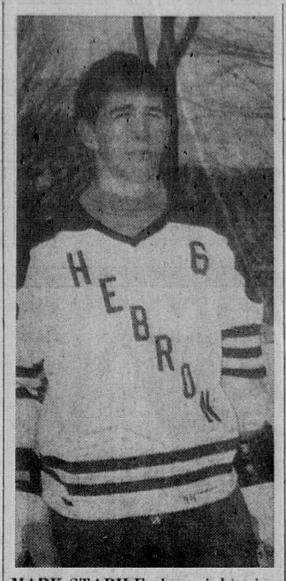

The inside story, carefully researched by a N.E.T. Journal team, will be on Channel 2 Monday, January 13, at 9 a.m. (repeat Wednesday, January 15, at 9 p.m. by Channel 44, and Saturday, January 18, at 9 p.m. by Channel 2). It's called "Fasten Your Seatbelts."

The N.E.T. reporters have no intention of frightening away the air traveler, but they feel the facts of the case should come to light. They put on camera the airport traffic controllers, and let them explain how they handle the crowd in the skies.

It's the controllers themselves who plead for the redesigning of obsolete airports, reduction of the margin for human error, and above all for action in straightening out the problems of plane traffic congestion.

Evidence of the increasing danger emerges from the work of the N.E.T. Journal people who piece together the causes of three fairly recent air crashes. One was caused by improper conditioning of the plane's power controls; another occurred because the plane lacked a cockpit voice recorder. The third crash — everyone aboard was killed — happened because a pilot apparently misread the altimeter.

"Fasten Your Seatbelts" is an hour-long documentary special produced jointly by National Educational Television and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

MARK STABILE plays right wing on the varsity hockey team at Hebron Academy, Hebron, Maine. He is a tireless player with good offensive moves who has already figured in several goals this season, reports his coach. He was also a member of the varsity football team. Mark is the son of Mrs. Harry J. Stabile Jr. of 9 Herrick Street.

In Control Of This One

Belmont Back-A-Way

WINCHESTER'S FAHEY backs up to avoid Belmont's number 10. The game saw the Sachems with a strong first-period lead, cut back in the second and never retrieved. (Ryerson photo.)

Middlesex League Lists Action

by Frank Burns

Stoneham and Belmont clash in the feature game of Saturday's Middlesex League action at North Shore Sports Center, Lynn. The game is scheduled for third ice and will start at 3 o'clock.

Stoneham is off to a fast start with victories over Reading and Wakefield while dark horse Belmont is also unbeaten. They tied Winchester in their opener and then blanked Watertown, 4-0 Monday night. The Spartans have depth to spare with Dick Burns using three lines regularly. Belmont has been stingy on defense, allowing an average of one goal a game.

Concord and Winchester will open the program at 12:30 while Reading plays Lexington in the second game. Melrose and Watertown clash in the fourth game.

The league will swing into action next Tuesday afternoon with Melrose and Wakefield applying the top action in the opener at 12:30. The Red Raiders are the top scoring team in the league but Wakefield usually manages to get "up" for their old rivals.

Concord and Reading will meet at 12:55 while Lexington and Belmont have third ice at 3 o'clock. The fourth game will match Stoneham and Watertown.

Woburn Beats Sachems 53-33 On Indoor Track

WHS trackmen are off to a poor start this year. They hoped to get things going better when they ran against Stoneham Tuesday afternoon on the Lexington indoor track.

Their first two losses were drubbing ones, meted out by Lexington and Melrose respectively.

Saturday saw Woburn beat them 53-33.

Mobbs took the only individual first when he won the 45 yard high hurdles in 6.3, Hill placed third.

The Sachem relay, made up of McHugh, Stevens, Allard and Mallon won that event.

Seconds by Tully (2 mile), Strout (high jump), Fahey (shot put), McHugh (300 yard), and Benshimol (1,000 yard); and thirds by Leland (2 mile), Harms (high jump), Stevens (45 yard dash), and Allard (600 yards) helped the home score.

They are set to meet with Reading Saturday.

Released Time At Secondary Schools January 7

Secondary school students will be dismissed at noon on Tuesday, January 7 for released time meetings.

Secondary teachers will all meet at the Senior High School on a department basis with each department discussing the remaining items on the agenda prepared for the December meetings.

Included on these schedules are such items as the five-year plan, curriculum changes and improvements, and reports from staff members who attended conferences in their subject area during the holiday period.

Must Return '68 Plates For Auto Registration If Not on Road

Owners or persons in charge of motor vehicles registered in 1968 which are not registered for 1969 are required to return the current registration plates forthwith to the nearest Registry Office or Police Station.

They must not be discarded or otherwise disposed of.

Stickmen Down In Two Games: Melrose 0-5, Concord 2-5

WHS hockey stands 0-2-1 in League play, seventh down among the nine area teams.

After their 2-2 tie with Belmont they were taken 5-0 by Melrose a week ago Monday. Saturday Concord beat them 5-2.

Top flying Melrose shut out the local icemen with relative ease. They still stand at the top of the League.

Against Concord Saturday WHS did better, sinking one in the first period, tieing it up in the middle.

The score held until the third period when Concord went in three times, sparked by Carrigan, Chase and Driscoll.

The next game is scheduled Saturday at Lynn at 12:30 against Lexington.

Gym Meets Arlington Here At 3 Tomorrow

The gym team will meet Arlington at 3 tomorrow for the first home meet of the year.

Robert Albright's men beat Winthrop last week but had their Friday meet with Melrose cancelled out.

Blood Donation Thru Red Cross Is Practical

"People who buy insurance are practical. They understand risk. Red Cross blood donors buy insurance with just a pint of blood," reminds the local Red Cross Chapter.

"If you donate a pint of blood at the Red Cross, you and your immediate family are insured for all blood needs for a full year. And if you are part of a group from business, church, synagogue, or civic association whose members regularly donate blood, then your family and the families of all members are covered."

"Isn't this type of insurance worth having? Make an appointment to give blood at the Winchester Bloodmobile, January 8, at the Church of the Epiphany from 2 to 6:45 p.m. Call 729-2300 for an appointment."

In 1920 the War Department established the principle of granting shoulder insignia to all units of division size or higher. In exceptional cases a unit smaller than a division is authorized its own patch.

Hoopsters Beat Arlington 71-64, Then Lose To Belmont 67-74

In their second and third games the Sachem basketball team beat Arlington 71-64 the day before Christmas and lost to Belmont 67-74 on Friday. Both games were played on the home court.

The game against Arlington was tight throughout and the home team let the visitors go out ahead in the fourth quarter. They then took nine straight points to keep the game.

High scorer was Pete Knight with 21, followed by Captain Workman with 18. Papadinis notched 14.

On Friday the Sachem five stepped out in front and had control of the game into the second period, when Belmont began to put on steam and sustained it to the end.

In this game Papadinis notched 26, Workman 17 and Flaherty 11.

Belmont was here Monday night and tomorrow night WHS plays at Wakefield.

Wrestlers To Go Here Saturday, 7 P.M.

The wrestling team topped Malden on the 23rd and lost to Melrose on Friday.

The win over Malden was a strong 55 to 13. Melrose beat them 31-27 on Friday, but the score included two matches forfeited due to two absences (one for illness, one for absence from town).

The first home match is Saturday at 7 p.m. against Billerica.

Afghans Place In Dog Show

At the recent Eastern Dog Club Show held at the War Memorial Auditorium, Boston, Khanda Baron-Ghan and Lshtar of Xanadu, a pair of Afghan Hounds belonging to the Edgell family of 8 Sheffield West, were the only entry in the brace class and won the silver bowl and pink rosette given as a prize in this class by the Colonial Afghan Hound Club.

Naftali's Sajid Khan, owned and handled by Stephen Edgell, won a silver trophy for second place in his first try in the ring, in the puppy dog class, six to nine months, after consideration by the judge, Mrs. Kay Finch.

The Edgell's brace lost out later in the Hound Group Braces, when Lshtar tripped over the mat in the ring, and Mr. Edgell was unable to get her back in balance and stride. This was their third appearance in the ring as a brace, since most shows don't feature this class.

This show marked the first specialty for the Colonial Afghan Hound Club, who invited Mrs. Finch, a famous breeder (Crowncrest Kennels) and judge, from California for the event, giving a big dinner in her honor at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel, the evening before the show.

Dis-tressed?

GOOD, BAD OR IFFY, whatever play which caught the above Sachemette Tumblette at Friday night's WHS-Belmont thriller has her locked into the action. (Ryerson photo)

The class of 1947 had 36 percent of its students attending four-year colleges; 7 percent junior colleges; 7.5 percent technical and other schools; 30 percent in the working group.

The intervening years have seen a rise of 15.8 percent in those astending four-year colleges; 6.5 percent rise junior colleges; 4.1 percent rise technical and other schools.

The most spectacular change has been in the percentage of graduates entering the work forces from WHS. From 30 percent it has dropped to 11.6 — almost two-thirds.

Second Class Mail Rates Up January 1

Postal rates for newspapers and magazines and other material mailed at the second-class rate are increased on January 1, Postmaster Charles R. Hill reminded second-class mailers today.

The increase results from the postage rate law enacted in December 1967, which raised most second-class rates in three annual steps, Postmaster Hill pointed out. The January 1 hike is the second phase of the increase. The first phase took effect January 7, 1968, and the third step will go into effect January 1, 1970.

The second-class rate increase affects general interest, non-profit and classroom publications.

Rates also will go up January 1 for controlled circulation publications. These are primarily trade, technical and industrial Journals which generally do not charge a subscription fee and are not eligible for second-class rates. The 1967 postal rate law called for a three-step raise for controlled circulation publications, to be effective the same dates as the second-class increases.

Except for home-county mailings, postal rates for newspapers and magazines mailed second-class are based on the weight of the publication, the amount of advertising it contains, and the distance it is mailed.

Effective January 1, rates for editorial or non-advertising matter in commercial publications will be increased from 3 to 3.2 cents per pound. Rates for advertising contents depends on the distance the publication is mailed. These zone rates now range from 4.6 to 15 cents per pound of advertising content. The new advertising zone rate range will be 4.9 to 16 cents.

There are special lower second-class rates for classroom publications and publications of non-profit organizations. These rates also will be increased January 1.

Postmaster Hill said that second-class or controlled circulation mailers who need more detailed information on the new rates should contact the Post Office where their publications are mailed.

"When you stop your car for a stop sign or signal on icy or snow-packed streets, be careful how you start out again," advises Police Chief Joseph Derro. "You can't depend on a quick getaway on a slick pavement. So don't try to pull out in front of an approaching car if there's the slightest doubt about making it. Remember: if you have trouble starting, the other fellow may have trouble stopping!"

March Of Dimes Begins Campaign

January will mark the beginning of a happier New Year for countless victims of birth defects if everyone responds to the mail appeals for contributions now being sent out by the March of Dimes during its annual fund-raising campaign.

March of Dimes campaign director for Middlesex County Registrar of Probate John V. Harvey stressed the importance of full support of persons in the Massachusetts Bay Chapter area.

More than 100 March of Dimes Birth Defects Centers with skilled medical specialists are financed, he said.

Research studies also are being conducted in many parts of the country to determine the causes of birth defects and how they may be prevented. During the year, many March of Dimes chapters conduct public education classes in communities throughout the nation on the value of prenatal care and other aspects of birth defects prevention, he said.

These, and other March of Dimes programs require large sums of money, Mr. Harvey explained. "For the sake of our children, and their children, each of us has a stake in the success of this campaign."

Warrant Closed For February 13 Town Meeting

The warrant for the February 13 Special Town Meeting was closed by a vote of the Board of Selectmen Monday night. The Board also heard an informational report by Elementary School Building Committee Chairman Earle Littleton and held an informal hearing on general street lighting.

The warrant will have five articles:

—that asking the Town to appropriate about $80,000 for extensive repairs and services to its eight-year-old incinerator;

—that asking an appropriation (probably of about $1,200) for real estate appraisals;

—one asking the Town to purchase the land at 26 Highland Avenue for use for building additions to the Washington School; and — two articles relating to amending the by-laws so as to allow political pamphleteering closer to elections than as presently authorized (only for 14 days).

Incinerator

The incinerator also figured in a vote of the Board which requested the Finance Committee increase the sanitation - personal services budget by $21,148.00 (a tentative figure). The need for the increase (to be offset to some extent by a reduction in the present overtime budget) would be contingent upon the acceptance of the Town of the plan for incinerator repairs. It is aimed at providing more adequate maintenance of the incinerator after repairs have been made.

Money for the incinerator will be asked in the line of the recommendations of a recent engineering study done by its designers, Fay, Spofford and Thorndike. The study is reportedly missing an analysis on one incinerator item and therefore has not yet been officially accepted by the Town.

Subsequent to its discussion Monday night, attendant Arthur Hewis challenged the Board on its procedure of setting up the wheels for action on a report not yet published.

"You'll wait till the day before Town Meeting to accept the report," said Mr. Hewis.

Yesterday Chairman Charles Doucette told the Star that he expected his Board to be able to make the engineering report official within two or three weeks.

Elementary Troubles

"They're in a jam with the elementary school building space and something's got to be done," said Mr. Littleton at the end of his hearing before the Board.

The Selectmen had asked him to come before them relative to their authority over the warrant articles for Town Meeting.

But his report gave no indication that an overall plan for elementary school additions was any closer.

Mr. Littleton told the Board that he had postponed a meeting of his committee originally scheduled for Tuesday night in order first to talk to the the School Committee.

He said that he had met informally with Superintendent Donald Klemer and Assistant Superintendent William Clark. He did not attribute to them any strong feeling that the middle school idea should be pursued.

Two Breaks At Businesses Net Over $1,000

Under continued investigation by the Police Department are two breaking and enterings which occurred in Winchester businesses during the past week.

On Thursday, January 2 at 7:45 a.m. the Scandia Corporation reported a break at their plant on Lowell Avenue. Stolen in the break, which is believed to have occurred during the night, was $200 in cash and $50 in stamps. Several of the offices in the building were ransacked.

Entry is believed to have been gained by kicking in a plywood panel on a rear freight door.

Officer Richard W. Fisher investigated.

A break at the Embassy Laundry, Park Street, was reported at 6:10 p.m. Sunday, January 5. It is believed the break occurred between 12 a.m. Sunday and 6 p.m. when it was reported.

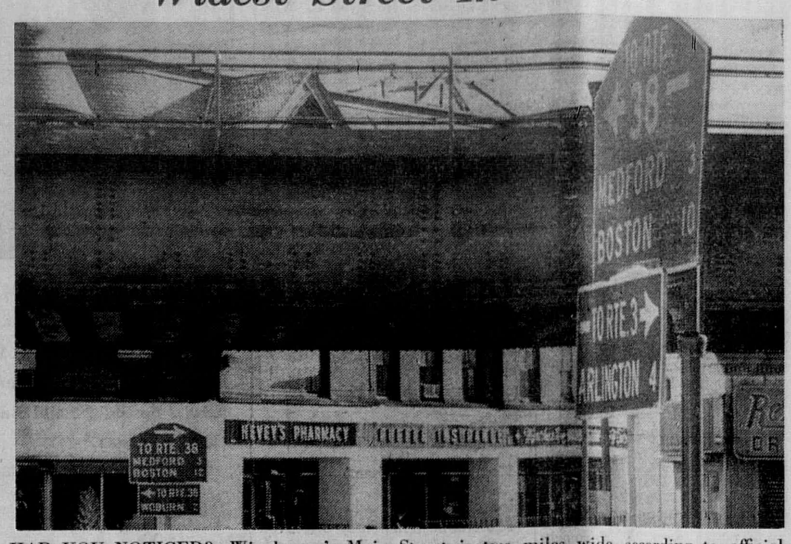

About $800 was taken in the break. According to the police report, entry was gained through a rear window.

Officers John McKinley and Frank Vozzella investigated.

Due to the change over to computer billing the water bills covering water consumption from May to November which are usually mailed out not later than December 31st will be delayed until possibly the end of January.

Widest Street In World?

HAD YOU NOTICED? Winchester's Main Street is two miles wide, according to official markers which have Boston 10 miles away from its west side, 12 from the east. It is a windy, cold spot; and maybe to whomever installed the signs, the trip from one side to the other seemed that way. (Ryerson photo)

Winter Adult Education To Offer New Courses

Ceramics, music, theatre and current events are listed as new courses for the 1969 Winter Semester of adult education sponsored by Winchester Public Schools.

Classes will begin Monday, January 27 with registration scheduled at the Senior High School on Monday, January 20 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Course lists will be available shortly in local stores, schools and the library, by the end of next week according to plan.

Last year's popular antiques course taught by Milton Babcock will be offered this semester in an advanced version on Tuesday nights.

French, Spanish, Bridge, Physical Fitness for Men and Keeping Fit for Women, Anatomy of a Suburb, Photography, Sewing, Investments, Tailoring and Golf will be open to registration in addition to the four new courses. Courses continuing for a second semester but accepting no new registrations are Shorthand, Typing and Slipcovers.

The new survey of music course will be taught by Wendell S. Withington, head of music at WHS on Mondays. It is a cultural course which will survey the field of musical literature from the 16th century to the present.

Lives of composers from Palestrina to Stravinsky will be studied and their music will be played, analyzed, and discussed. Different periods of music will be presented and compared. Good listening habits will be stressed. The main activities of the class will be lectures, listening to recordings, and discussion of the music. No previous knowledge of music is necessary.

On Monday also will be the antique course in which Mr. Babcock, a noted authority on American antiques, will continue the course that was given last year with an entirely new set of color-slides on early American colonials.

Early paintings, Oriental rugs, Tiffany glass, Currier and Ives prints and many other things, all new to the course, will be shown.

Persons taking this course may bring in antiques for appraisal.

In the International Scene course, Mondays, discussions and guest speakers will cover topics such as the "Evolution of Asian Politics," "Problems of the Underdeveloped World" and "The International Monetary Crisis."

Two Accidents Over Holiday

Two accidents occurred in Winchester during the New Year's Eve and New Year's Day period. No personal injuries were involved in either accident.

At 9:40 p.m. New Year's Eve, the first accident occurred at the intersection of Arlington and Manomet Streets.

Richard B. Thompson, 31, of 15 Garfield Avenue was traveling north on Manomet Street when his vehicle was in collision with one operated by Miss Wendy Nelson, 18, of 43 Jefferson Road.

Miss Nelson was traveling east on Arlington and told police that she was unable to stop because of the slippery road conditions, according to official reports.

Officer William O'Neil investigated.

The second, at 1:16 a.m. New Year's Day was on Cambridge Street.

A car operated by Michael Burke, 20, of Woburn, apparently skidded and was in collision with a car, owned by Dominic Butera of Somerville, which was parked in front of 37 Cambridge Street.

Officer John Reardon investigated.

Applications Are Urged By Scholarship Group

"No young person should grow up in this community feeling he can't aspire educationally to what ever his ability will permit him."

Otto E. Schaefer, Winchester Scholarship Foundation chairman, expressed this objective of the Foundation at its annual meeting in December and emphasized the importance of making known the availability of financial assistance to Winchester families.

Mr. Schaefer, of Pond Street, was re-elected to be the Foundation's chairman. Joseph Tansey, of Canal Street, retired dean of Wentworth Institute, was elected chairman of the scholarship committee.

Principal Howard Niblock who reported 87% of last year's graduating class have undertaken further education, underscored the increasing role of the Foundation as financial pressures on colleges mean they are less able to allocate funds for middle income families.

Confidential

The Foundation is aware of the need to keep financial statements of applicants strictly confidential and to insure this has become a member of College Scholarship Service of Princeton, New Jersey.

Through this means financial statements are handled exclusively by CSS and only a statement of need is reported back to the Foundation's scholarship committee.

Mr. Tansey hopes that "all worthy students who feel it necessary to have financial assistance to continue in higher education will apply."

Nominating committee chairman, Bradford Bentley reported out, and the members elected, the following slate for 1969:

A visit to Koko Boodakian's showroom explains why Maksoud is so confused. There are Persians, Indias, Chinese and special order imports to choose from in every imaginable color and size.

He knows, however, that he can rely on Boodakian's expert advice and that Fatima will be pleased with whatever Maksoud selects. Why? Because it came from Koko's, of course.

(P.S. Come on in and let us help you . . . at Koko Boodakian's, the advice you get free, it's the rugs you pay for.)

The first regular monthly meeting of this new year was held this past Monday evening January 6th, with Venerable Bill Fiore starting the meeting at 8:30 p.m. Members are reminded that we are on a semi-annual dues payment schedule, and your dues to the lodge should be paid at this time for the first six months of this year. A new member was installed into the lodge at this meeting and his name is Paul Del'Rossi.

Chairman of the sports committee Moose Bellino reported that the Mid-Season Bowling Banquet will be held on Saturday Evening January 25th. The annual men's sports night will be held this year on Sunday evening February 16th, and the sports committee have been hard at work to make this years affair the best yet. There will be one or two football players from the Harvard team, and they will talk about that recent Harvard-Yale game. The program will have other "Surprise" sports figures as well as plenty of food and other refreshments. The Grand Lodge Sports Banquet will be held at Fantasia Restaurant on the evening of January 24th. Moose would like to see a good group of Winchester members there because both the teams from the mens and womens lodges came in first place and will be receiving awards. If you wish to attend please contact Mel Fiore for your ticket purchases.

Have you filled up a shoe box for the Operation Shoe-Box Drive? If you have not as yet why not get a shoe box and fill it up with small needy items such as: soap, needle and thread, buttons, tooth paste and brushes and many, many other small objects. After you have filled one up wrap it up and put your return address on it and take it to the club quarters and give it to the Venerable or the Stewards in charge. A committee made up of lodge officers will address them and package them and the lodge will pay for the mailing to their proper destination in South Viet Nam. Why not fill one up this week!!!!

Dom Provinzano of the Sick Committee reported that Dom Vespucci is at home recovering from his recent hospital confinement, and that Nicholas Tarquinee died this past Monday and the Officers and members met at the club quarters Wednesday to go to the Wake in a body to pay the respects of the lodge to the family of the deceased member.

Venerable Fiore read a letter which was written by the secretary of the Blood committee, and in it he reminded the members of the critical blood shortage. Dick would like to see as many members as possible that are in good health to go to the nearest Red Cross Blood Mobile and donate a pint of blood which is so urgently needed at this time. When and if you should donate a pint you may credit it to the S.O.I. Blood Bank if you wish.

"Consumer News" Looks At Tax Returns

. . . from Attorney General Elliot Richardson

The new year is upon us and with it comes an old problem — income taxes. The annual burden of filing state and federal tax returns can be considerably lightened through a few simple precautions.

We are fortunate here in Massachusetts that we have had little difficulty with "fly-by-night" income tax consultants. Occasionally, however, a dishonest or incompetent individual hangs out his shingle. The wise consumer and taxpayer therefore will be leary of being victimized. The Criminal Division of my office presently has under investigation cases involving fraudulent tax returns.

It is also important to know the tax consultant with whom you are dealing. Only when you deal with reliable people can you minimize the risk of losing time and pay for a tax audit and the burden of owing additional tax money.

For those who desire assistance in filling out their tax forms, both the state and federal governments provide assistance. Last year, the state tax department alone provided 26,000 man hours of free taxpayers' assistance.

This assistance is available throughout the state. The state tax department has offices in Boston, Brockton, Fall River, Fitchburg, Hyannis, Lowell, Pittsfield, Salem, Springfield and Worcester. In addition, consultants will hold one and two day sessions in other communities for the same purpose. Watch your local newspaper for announcements of these sessions.

In return, you can aid the tax department by using the forms which are mailed to you and by seeking assistance early. Last year, 672,000 state returns were filed on the last filing day.

For consumer complaints, write: Attorney General Elliot Richardson, Consumer Protection Division, State House, Boston, 02133. (727-5520.

MSUEW Holds Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Society for the University Education of Women will be held on Saturday, January 18, at 1:30 p.m. in Boston University's George Sherman Union Conference Auditorium, 775 Commonwealth Avenue, Mrs. Ralph C. Thompson, president, of 7 Perkins Road has announced.

Guest speaker at the meeting will be Mrs. Ruth Purtilo of Boston University's Division of Physical Therapy and her subject will be "Experiences in Physical Therapy Here and Abroad."

MSUEW, now in its 93rd year, has a membership of about 400 women drawn chiefly from the Greater Boston community. Each year it provides scholarship and loan aid to more than fifty women students in Massachusetts colleges and universities.

Among the Winchester women who, with Mrs. Thompson, interest themselves in the work of the Society are Mrs. Warren Carley, Mrs. William H. Carpenter, Mrs. O. W. Dingwell Jr., Mrs. Alexander R. George, Mrs. William M. Hopkins, Mrs. Howard L. Leary, Mrs. Earle F. Littleton, Mrs. Whitney Pedersen, Mrs. Edward C. Richardson, Mrs. Cedric E. Robinson and Miss Margaret Woods Usher.

An aggregate of 48 months of educational assistance is now available to veterans eligible under two or more Veterans Administration programs.

See You Next Year!

ACROSS THE COUNTER

"Nobody gets a chance to load a lot of insurance on me," Jack Stryler, a local businessman, said. "I don't want a survey of my insurance risks and coverages. I'll just tell you what I'm going to buy, whether it's the best or not."

"Suppose you weren't sure about your health." I replied. "Would you take the same attitude towards your doctor? Would you tell him to quit looking for symptoms and just prescribe what you told him to?"

"I doubt it," Jack said.

"Well, Jack," I said. "I can understand why you don't want unnecessary insurance. On the other hand, neither of us, without a professional survey, will know whether certain coverages are unnecessary or not."

"I guess that's right," Jack replied.

"Another thing," I added. "It may not cost you more money to have a much better program. Often duplicate policies are eliminated or combined at substantial savings. But even if it did cost a little more, wouldn't the peace of mind of knowing your insurance program was sound, be worth something?"

"Yes, I believe it would," Jack replied. "Go ahead with your survey."

May we discuss the advantages of Professional Insurance Service with you as well?

Mr. Snow To Speak At Fortnightly

Edward Rowe Snow of Marshfield, writer and lecturer, will speak at the annual guest night of the Fortnightly, the Federated Women's Club of Winchester, January 13 at 7 p.m. in Gifford Hall of Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church.

Mr. Snow, who has published 56 books about pirates, treasure, lighthouses, shipwrecks and ghosts, is working on a new book about Boston.

A native of Winthrop, Mr. Snow graduated from Harvard University in 1932 and received his master's degree from Boston University in 1939.

Mr. Snow, called by the New York Times "the best chronicler of the days of sail alive today, enjoys canoeing and has traveled more than 51,000 miles by canoe.

He has written for the Brockton Enterprise, the Rockland Courier Gazette and the Quincy Patriot Ledger. He has also appeared on many radio and television programs.

Mr. Snow's talk will be preceded by a dinner.

With today's heavy traffic, it's more dangerous than ever to drive with only a small peephole cut through windshield ice and frost. And the practice is just as illegal as it ever was, warn Police Chief Joseph Derro and the International Association of Chiefs of Police, who also suggest that worn and streaking windshield wipers be replaced without delay.

Two Accidents Tuesday; Man Injured In Main Street Crash

Police report two accidents in Winchester on Tuesday.

James Sullivan, 35, of Woburn was taken to Winchester Hospital for treatment of lacerations received when his car collided with a parked car on Main Street at 7:40 p.m.

The parked car, owned by George E. Doherty Jr., was outside the Doherty home at 1037 Main Street, facing south in the northbound lane.

Mr. Sullivan, who was traveling north on Main Street when the accident occurred, told police he was forced off the road into the Doherty car when a third vehicle pulled out of Sheridan Circle.

Investigating officers were Albert Duffy, Anthony Pronski and Roger DeMinico.

In an earlier accident, at 1:20 a.m., a car operated by William Cash, 28, of Dartmouth Street, collided with a small tree at the corner of Robinhood Road and Wildwood Street.

Mr. Cash, the only person in the vehicle, was unhurt. He told police he was traveling east on Wildwood Street when his car went into a skid and he lost control of it.

Officer Anthony Pronski investigated.

In 1920 the War Department established the principle of granting shoulder insignia to all units of division size or higher. In exceptional cases a unit smaller than a division is authorized its own patch.

The Winchester Star

Established 1880 By Theodore P. Wilson, Sr.

Serving The Community For 88 Years

Editorials:

Sailors Beware

"Fresh breeze in the Senate" was the title of the Boston Globe's lead editorial Saturday in which it applauded the victories of Ted Kennedy and Hugh Scott and said, ". . .What is important is that because of Kennedy the forces of liberalism among Senate Democrats have prevailed over the forces of reaction, thus restoring public confidence in the capacity of the political process to adjust to the urgent demands of these parlous times."

Well maybe. But from here it looked like more of a puff than a breeze—more of a hold-on-to-your-hopes than a hold-on-to-your-hats kind of wind stirring. Senator Russell Long of Louisiana, prototype of old-line, wheeling-dealing politics who has consistently fought civil rights legislation and spoken out time and again about the Vietnam war in irresponsible catch phrases, came within six votes of beating Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts. One of Long's votes represented the final disillusionment of hundreds of thousands across the country who this year fought hard for a new look in politics—that of Eugene McCarthy. It was clearly a squeaker and Mr. Kennedy would not have won had not other more powerful and even more entrenched Southern senators than Mr. Long turned against him for reasons hardly reassuring to anyone looking for a change.

Globe columnist Mary McGory spoke the mind of many when, elsewhere in the Globe, she talked about Morris Udall's unsuccessful attempt to unseat another Massachusetts man, House Speaker John McCormack. McCormack, said Mary, "represents the high button-shoe gas-lit era of machine politics, and his vision is as dead as the cigar he always clasps when he sits in the front row down on his spine and scans his charges for signs of party irregularity." McCormack of course won his office back, 178-54, in action which the eloquent Miss McGrory called "a little rumble in the schoolyard, which, at the first sound of the bell, saw the boys settling down quietly at their desks and greeting the teacher as they always have."

Even more inclusively critical of the outlook for the 91st Congress were Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson, also in Sunday's Globe: "Despite the clamor for a change in the country. . .the basic Congressional power structure is almost certain to remain blissfully unperturbed. . . . Congress has become over-age, out-of-date, pompous, negative, corrupt, inefficient and, occassionally, irresponsible. Its procedures are undemocratic, contrary to the speeches that fall so easily from congressional lips. . ." Or, "A course in geriatrics may prove more valuable than a degree in political science (for eager young congressmen)."

Our national law-makers carry fearful responsibilities in the nation and abroad. The 91st Congress will define for us our action on most of the issues. Massachusetts at present has a highly regarded experienced duo in the United States Senate. Senators Edward Brooke and Edward Kennedy are informed and action inclined. Senator Brooke's hand is steadily strengthening and should peak under President—elect Nixon. Senator Kennedy has won himself the number two job in the Senate. He is a sailor of no mean experience. If the organizational changes in the Senate are in fact only puffs, not breezes, if in fact the top legislative body is nearly becalmed the junior man from Massachusetts may know exactly what to do.

Macdonald Now At Bat

Despite quite regular telephone calls and letters-to-the-editor telling us of our error, the Star has stood stubbornly with its researched spring decision to print the name of Bradford Morse as Winchester's Representative in Congress until the convening of the 91st Congress.

This contradicted the actions of both Mr. Morse and our new Representative, Torbert Macdonald, each of whom told constituents that Mr. Macdonald was it after the vote of the Massachusetts Court. But it went along with the opinion of State Elections Division head Norman Gleason, who felt the April and subsequent voting along the newly structured district lines to be votes looking ahead to legal effects as of January 1, 1969.

In a March 28 story, "Who's On 5th?", the Star quoted Mr. Gleason as calling the question "a two sided one with a two-sided answer and reported that he indicated that "no matter how the legislators are cutting up the pie," if he had to hold an election in the event of the death of Mr. Morse, he would have to hold it in within the old 5th district lines.

Mr. Macdonald is starting his eighth term in Congress from the 7th District. His major votes in the past have represented an outlook not dissimilar to those of Congressman Morse. Winchester will watch his future votes with high interest. In a letter last week a correspondent to the Star suggested that the Star keep a box score of the new Congressman's record and of his attendance. This is an excellent idea and we shall try to implement it.

Participation Begins At Home

It's the year for participation politics and one dosen't have to be under 20 to participate in political action in the 1968-69 sense. Recently a Winchester student working on a college political science paper asked our opinion of the local system of government—the Winchester representational Town Meeting. His questions took us back several years to our own German-born political science professor and how completely sold he was on New England Town Meetings—direct or representational—as about the purest form of democracy around. His enthusiasm always gave perspective and appreciation—the kind best expressed by Winston Churchill when he said that democracy is a perfectly awful system of government—except for all those other systems that exist. (As an aside—and applicable this week on Washington Street—is the recollection that our professor also used to use as an example of one of the most irrevocable acts of a town, one most deserving of the vote of every citizen—that of cutting down a tree).

Town meetings and town administration are only as good as the quality and breadth of citizen participation. The system is good. The Winchester government has worked at least adequately over the years. We have a reputation across the State to be proud of. Municipal problems are multiplying fast however. This year three of the elements of Statewide crises are perfectly illustrated here: heavy school building costs; rising service costs; property tax overload. It is imperative that our best minds and most understanding local spirits keep with it in Town government. It will only happen if the citizenry as a whole interests itself on every level—is well informed and then ready and willing to act.

Today's paper announces the first step in the local election process. Some papers have been taken out for major offices. But on the most immediate level of town politics—that of voting for precinct Town Meeting members, as of Tuesday only one man had taken out papers to run for the first time. Last year of 53 candidates for re-election for Town Meeting representative, only three were defeated. Of 37 new candidates, only 14 were elected. These figures point up that campaigning on this level takes work and time. Before January 22 we hope many more interested residents, both men and women, will become involved in the process of managing their town.

Adult Drop-Outs

Self analysis has been forced on us this year from every direction. What kind of a people are we that violence is so prevalent in the land? What kind of a national policy do we have that our men young men can go on dying in an undeclared war so far from home? How much sacrifice do we want to make to educate our children? What is our relationship and responsibility to Boston?

Add another question: what kind of a town are we when out of a population of some 22,000 our student-initiated, student-run Drop-In Center may have to close because it cannot get enough persons over 21 to volunteer as chaperones? What kind of a town are we when there are not enough adult drivers to support an Ecumenical Youth Association inner city aid program?

Week by week our pages are full of meeting notices—political groups; church groups; fraternal groups; parents' groups; etc; etc. These seldom lack for attendance. Week after week we have people come in here and tell us how outrageous are the young people today. They always have plenty of time. Maybe some of the people who meet could do so one afternoon at the Drop-In Center. Maybe some of the people who talk could do their talking at the Drop-In Center or while driving to Boston on Saturday. That way everyone could be happy.

Perspective

When Clark and Lewis, ever Westward bent,
Breasted the back-bone of this Continent
They must have paused, there, in the Lolo Pass
And looked both ways. Behind, the steep crevasse
Which they had battled upward to this height—
Ahead, no end, no Ocean, yet in sight.
They must have doubted, every weary mile,
This wilderness would ever be worth while.

For those of us who follow them by car
On easy graded roads of levelled tar
Perhaps we too should tarry in the Pass
And rest, and have a picnic on the grass—
They could not know what treasures lay concealed
We, too, must wait for much to be revealed.

'Most Parents'

Editor of the Star:

I would like to thank all of the adults who have donated their time chaperoning at the Drop-In Center. It is a hard job calling the adults who volunteered their names and even harder to face the kids who come up to an empty, closed-up Center. It is the adults who donate three or four hours of their time that keep the kids off the street.

Most parents want the best for their children, but aren't willing to help out a worthy cause that is for them.

Just because your children aren't high school aged doesn't mean you can't help. We have many adults who come down who enjoy being with the kids. Don't think you have to forfeit that hockey game on T.V., come on down and watch it on our color set. Is ping-pong your game? Many chaperones even shoot pool with the boys. Why spend a boring night at home? Why not help us out?

Sincerely,
Jan Eschner

Returns East

Editor of the Star:

Almost four years ago Mrs. Damon and I moved to a very beautiful part of the West. We left Winchester sadly and fully expected to find Indians, wolves and coyotes.

However, we found the west coast of the States very beautiful and with wonderful people.

Four hundred miles of beautiful sandy beach, backed by tremendous dunes, and the forest and the fields.

The people there are for the most part of Dutch or German descent and are clean, honest, hard working people. And the community spirit is tremendous.

Having accomplished what I set out to do—bringing a large tannery from great losses to large profits, Mrs. Damon and I decided to return to good old Massachusetts. Not to wonderful Winchester, but to our other love, Chatham on the Cape. Here I will be associated with a top real estate broker. James Grosvenor Pettit of Chatham.

From time to time I will be at Winchester and will call on my many friends.

Best regards,
Harry Damon (formerly

A Credit

Editor of the Star:

On January 3-4, the Winchester Bantam and Pee Wee "A" teams travelled to West Point for a hockey weekend arranged by Bill Cruwys, director of Winchester Youth Hockey.

I thought the citizens in town would be pleased to know that the personnel and management in the restaurants, motel and Army installations that we visited made it a point in every instance to compliment Bill on our well-behaved and gentlemanly young men.

Their behavior and conduct throughout the trip did credit to themselves, their parents, Winchester Youth Hockey and the town of Winchester. The fact that both teams won their games is incidental.

As coach of the Bantam Team, I wish to take this opportunity to thank all of the citizens who helped make the trip possible by contributing to our recent fund drive, and I encourage continued support of the Winchester Youth Hockey program.

Editor of the Star:

I would appreciate it very much if you would print this note of thanks in your newspaper. I would like to thank the "Homefronters" Association of Winchester for sending me a Christmas gift package. Again, many thanks.

'People Care'

Editor of the Star:

We would like to express our thanks through your fine newspaper to Mr. Townley Tilson for his kind act and consideration about our dog Tippy last Friday morning.

Mr. Tilson was waiting for the 9:00 a.m. train to go to his office when Tippy wandered up the ramp and started to walk alongside the tracks. Several people called to him, but the express from Lowell came rushing by and needless to say Tippy was hit and that was the end.

Mr. Tilson missed his train to remove Tippy from the commuters' view; looked for his I.D. tag; reported the accident to the police and through Tippy's rabies tag contacted Dr. Sandler at the Winchester Animal Hospital who identified him.

Mr. Tilson then called us and told us as gently as possible of the accident. He must be a very gentle person as well as a gentleman. This all goes to prove to the contrary there are people who care. Our sincere thanks and appreciation.

Rely Upon The Adults?

Editor of the Star:

There exists in this town, a determined group of High School youth who have shown clearly that a youth Drop-in Center can be built, maintained and operated by the youth themselves. The one thing these people cannot do, is to serve as chaperones. For this service they must rely upon the adult citizenry of Winchester.

The responsibilities of serving as a chaperone are not overwhelming. Men, women, couples, senior citizens all could assist. The chaperone merely picks up the key at the police station, unlocks the center and then stays for the time the center is open that day. The chaperone might talk with students, watch T.V., knit, etc.

The center is open school days from 2:30 to 5; Saturday and Sunday 1 to 5; and Friday and Saturday evening 7:30 to 11. Adults may volunteer for one date, or may serve on a regular basis each month. Perhaps some civic group might decide to be responsible for providing all of the chaperones for one week of each month.

What have you done recently to support our energetic youth? Is three or four hours of your time really such an unreasonable request? I think not.

Right now, before you forget again, call and offer your assistance. Call Janet Eschner 729-6578, Bobby Joyce 729-3634, or Sid Woods 729-3460. The experience of helping could be the most satisfying, meaningful thing you do this week.

Most sincerely,
Mrs. L. Lee Osburn
30 Mt. Pleasant Street

'If You're A Good Listener'

If you're a good listener, the Veterans Administration hospitals need you.

If you can just sit quietly and listen to the other fellow talk, you can qualify as a VA volunteer, and there's a place waiting for you at the VA hospital nearest you.

The VA said there is a great need for volunteers to fill needs in the nursing service, escort service and the letter-writing service for disabled veterans.

"These are very valuable services for our patients," the VA said, "but it's an amazing thing, we also need people who can come in and spend a few hours each week just talking to the patients or, often, just listening.

"Many of our patients are lonely. We need people who can engage in a little friendly conversation. This type of volunteer work does an immense amount of good for many of our patients," VA said.

The purpose of the volunteer program is to "convey to the patient the interest of the community in his progress and welfare, and keep alive his hope and desire to return to his home and community as quickly as possible."

In this way, VA said, the volunteer does a great deal toward helping the hospital medical team in promoting the recovery and rehabilitation of the patient.

The VA hospitals could use quite a few more listeners right now, including housewives who can devote as little as three hours a day once a week.

Retired or senior citizens are particularly welcome, but the patients like young people too.

Interested persons are urged to call and ask for the director of voluntary service at any VA hospital. The telephone number for the Boston VA Hospital is BE 2-9500, ext. 403.

Fatigue Study At Liberty

Picture a man driving down a shadowy, winding road at dusk. He is tired, begins to doze and the car plummets off a cliff at the edge of the road. Normally, this would be a harrowing experience but it happens frequently at Liberty Mutual Insurance Companies' Hopkinton Research Center.

The result, however, is not death for the driver nor demolition for the car. At worst, it is a broken light bulb. At Liberty's Research Center the man may fall asleep at the wheel and get nothing more than just a good rest.

The reason for it all is because the man is not sitting in a real car or driving on a real highway, but he certainly has the feeling that he is when participating in fatigue tests in Liberty's driving simulator.

The simulator is an arrangement that gives a man a total feeling of driving on a curvy road at dusk. The driver is in full control. The car's speed depends on how heavy a foot he puts on the accelerator and the direction depends on how he turns the wheel.

The drivers who use the simulator are subjects in an ergonomics (work study) project directed by Stover H. Snook of Liberty's Hopkinton research team. Mr. Snook hopes to find answers to the fatigue problems which result in highway tragedies and industrial accidents.

The subjects in the simulator project are professional drivers who are tested after they have completed a normal driving day on the highway. They are asked to drive the simulator until they become extremely fatigued, doze off or feel that their driving performance is unsafe.

Basically, the two-fold purpose of the testing is to develop a system to induce fatigue and then to test and evaluate countermeasures.

In the second subjects who work in industrial jobs near the research center are brought in and asked to perform a variety of basic physical tasks in an environmental chamber. Mr. Snook is aided in this experiment by research associates Charles H. Irvine and Samuel F. Bass.

The chamber, which is 14 feet by 10 feet by 10 feet, has a constant temperature of 70 degrees and a controlled humidity of 40 to 50 per cent. Inside are a treadmill, a lifting device and tables. The control area is outside the chamber.

The six basic tasks the men are asked to do are pushing, pulling, lifting, lowering, carrying and walking. These are motions which are basic to almost all manual handling jobs. Physiological, as well as performance measures, are taken.

A total of 30 subjects will be tested in the current experiment during the five eight-week testing periods. The subjects are asked to perform each of the basic tasks with two major variables envolved. The first is the amount of weight to be handled or speed walked. This, the subject must determine for himself. The object is for the man to subjectively determine what weight he can handle without straining or fatiguing. The second variable, controlled by the research team, is the frequency of task operation.

The hope in the environmental chamber testing is to find the maximum acceptable work load, with the accent on acceptable. The results should be men and jobs better matched, more stable production, better employer-employee relationships and far fewer accidents.

The two programs are related though they have very different practical applications. The simulator is being designed to cut down the slaughter on the highway while the environmental chamber is aimed at cutting down the number of crippling accidents that occur in industry each year.

On one hand is the problem of too little stimulation and on the other is the problem of too much work. But in both cases the results which are drawn from Liberty's research tests will help man determine his own capabilities, something he is fearfully poor at now.

The U.S. Army flag, for higher echelons of command, and the Army field flag, for lower echelon organizations, are symbolic of the Army as a whole. The former is white with yellow fringe and the Department of the Army seal in the center in ultramarine blue; the latter is blue with the seal in white.

O'NEILL: SON AND PLAYWRIGHT

by Louis Sheaffer

"I want to be an artist or nothing," were the significant words that Eugene O'Neill wrote in a letter of application to George Peirce Baker's playwriting course at Harvard in 1914. He continued, "If varied experience be a help to the prospective dramatist I may justly claim that asset for I have worked my way around the world as a seaman . . ."

This letter to Baker was to be the end of a long nightmare: to find himself. Born in 1888 in a hotel room, he was the son of the actor, Jame O'Neill. His mother was to become a drug addict soon after his birth. His unsettled home life along with so many other factors made him uncertain, rebellious, and an early adventurer.

Louis Sheaffer's research for this new biography of O'Neill has brought many things to light. One of these is the previously not well-known ambition of young O'Neill: to become a poet. Idling in South America a couple of years before Harvard, it would have seemed that writing was the farthest thing from his mind. "I wanted to be a two-fisted Jack London he-man sailor," he said later, "to knock 'em cold and eat 'em alive."

The author writes ". . . he was consciously absorbing the life around him with poetry in mind. Behind his dissipations in the Tenderloin and Hell's Kitchen, his touching bottom in Buenos Aires, was a drive, among others, to see life whole, unflinchingly. to experience everything, the highest and the lowest, and then to project the essence of himself into enduring verse."

In 1913, O'Neill was a tubercular patient at Gaylord Farm in Connecticut. It was here that he decided to write for the theatre. Coming to this awareness, he achieved an identity that answered to his deepest needs. His convalescence gave him the opportunity to saturate himself in modern drama, fervently admiring August Strindberg. Years later, in 1936, he said to a friend, "I wish immortality were a fact, for then some day I would meet Strindberg." When his friend said this would not be enough to justify immortality, O'Neill replied, "It would be enough for me."

Recovering and returning to his home in New London, he soon wrote his first play, "A Wife for a Life," a tale of prospectors, their wives, one being the other's great love. "What tricks Fate plays with us," says one of the prospectors, a theme which would recur in O'Neill's writings. Before his admission to Harvard, his father financed a volume of his short sea plays, "Thirst."

His stay at Harvard was for one year. In the two years since he turned playwright, he had written eleven one-act plays, a number of film scenarios, three full-length plays, but for all this he had no material success. The newly formed Washington Square Players in New York had accepted none of his plays.

Discouraged, he sought refuge in Greenwich Village. Here he stayed, drinking, in his favorite haunt, Hell Hole, where the crowd was mixed: thugs, artists, sneak thieves, writers, and others. This locale was one of three that lent its environment to the making of Harr Hope's bar in "The Iceman Cometh."

His Village friends extolled to him about the sea at Provincetown, and providentially, he and Terry Carlin arrived at the opening of the Provincetown Players season. His trunk full of plays was soon heard of. Susan Glaspell told Carlin, "Well, tell Mr. O'Neill to come to our house tonight at eight and bring some of his plays." O'Neill was too nervous and shy to read to strangers, but after the script of "Bound East for Cardiff" was read it was accepted. It was produced. Susan Glaspell wrote years later, "I may see it through memories too emotional, but it seems to me I have never sat before a more moving performance . . . when Eugene O'Neill was produced for the first time on any stage."

Louis Scheaffer's book is dramatic biography. This volume ends with O'Neill's first Broadway success, "Beyond the Horizon," which had the tribute of being watched without "a whisper in the house from start to finish, but many in tears." Eugene O'Neill had made it at last.

Press Freedoms In Germany

PUBLICATIONS ARE PLENTIFUL in West Germany today. More than 1,000 newspapers and magazines are available to the reading public providing various shades of opinion and information to suit nearly every taste. Freedom of the press in the Federal Republic is guaranteed by the constitution and is closely watched by Germany's journalists. (Photo by George Speers)

George Speers, general manager of the New England Press Association (NEPA), is chairman of the Journalism Department at Northeastern University. This past summer he spent several weeks in Germany, at the invitation of the German government, studying the press there. This is one of a series of articles written for NEPA members about the trip.

By George Speers

The question is frequently asked whether Does freedom of the press really exist in Germany today?

On paper there is no doubt that press freedoms exist. The Constitution of the Federal Republic contains the important idea in Article V. It states:

"Everyone has the right to freely express and disseminate his opinions by speech, writing, or by picture and the right of free access to generally available sources of information. Press freedom and the freedom to report by radio and film are guaranteed. There is no censorship."

This was accepted and adopted when the Constitution of the Federal Republic of Germany was established in May 1949.

In addition to the national constitution, each of the 11 German states has a freedom of the press clause in their respective constitutions. The state of Hesse was the first to adopt such a law in June of 1949, with additions made in 1958 and 1966.

From 1949 to May 1966 the states debated the matter and one by one they passed press freedom laws. The state of Rhine-Westphalia was the last state to adopt such a law in May 1966. The city-state of Berlin passed its law in June 1965.

The Constitutional Court of Germany, in a landmark decision in 1959, supported by other decisions of the Supreme Court and the Federal High Court, strengthened and affirmed Article V.

But all laws, no matter how good, really meet their test in the work-a-day, everyday world.

In 1964, for instance, a weekly news magazine called "Der Spiegel" was actually closed down for a period of days for publishing information "contrary to national defense policies."

The editor was taken from his home to answer questions, while an assistant editor, vacationing in Spain, was literally brought back to Germany under arrest.

It was a black day for the news magazine, which incidentally has a remarkable resemblence to the U.S. "Time" magazine. It was the blackest day in post war Germany for press freedoms.

The shut-down and rifling of "Der Spiegel" files caused a major crisis in the federal government.

The individual responsible was Defense Minister Franz-Josef Strauss. He was forced to resign amid much embarrassment and many red faces. This event, certainly not forgotten among press and other circles, is referred to as "Der Spiegel Affair."

The seized editor was appointed to a high post in the Federal Press and Information office soon after the "affair." He is in that post now where one may be certain he exerts great influence in preventing any recurrence of another "Der Spiegel Affair."

At the present time another situation is in the making that some regard as a definite encroachment on Article V. Others look at this same situation and applaud it as a defense of freedom of the press.

The matter itself is a study of so called "press concentration" in Germany and the immediate "target" is Axel Springer, publisher of the largest circulated newspaper in the country. He publishes seven newspapers and a number of specialized magazines.

Under the leadership of Dr. Eberhard Gunther, the Bundeskartellamt (equivalent to the U.S. Federal Trade Commission) has prepared a voluminous, statistical compilation that was given to the German Parliament this fall to evoke legislation designed to limit press ownership. The "Gunther Commission," as the study is called, uses Springer circulation figures. Because the figures appear to be large, the Commission makes the assumption that size is automatically "bad" and therefore some kind of law should be passed to prevent further growth of such figures.

This kind of thinking is of concern to editors and publishers in Germany. If a law is passed to limit the size of Axel Springer's circulations at some magic point, then why not a law, or the same law to limit any newspaper? Or any magazine? Or any publication?

Why wouldn't such a law apply to the "Hamburger Anzeigen und Nachrichten," a 20,000 circulation newspaper that has 80% circulation in its own community, a suburb of Hamburg. Or what about the largest newspaper in Frankfurt, the "Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung" with a circulation of 268,000, small compared to Axel Springer's largest newspaper, but yet the largest in Frankfurt? Or the "Suddeutsche Zeitung," "Stuttgarter Zeitung" and others?

Without any question, the German press now has protection against governmental interference. The roots of freedom are beginning to grow. In just a few short years the roots have not yet had an opportunity to grow deep and take hold. This takes time.

The real question is: will enough time be allowed to give the new found press freedoms a chance to mature and grow strong?

Town Meeting

(Reached Tuesday, School Committee Chairman Barbara Walsh agreed that the School Committee does not anticipate discussions on the middle school system but expects to stick with the kindergarten through sixth grades for elementary; seven through nine for junior high; and 10 through 12 for high school. This Committee voted Monday night to go along with the Elementary Building plans in so far as they give Mystic the first priority.)

Mr. Littleton indicated to the Selectmen, as he had at the meeting of the Elementary School Building Committee last month, that the McCall School may be needed as an interim school while repairs are being done on other schools.

Pressed by Selectman Ralph W. Swanson for an overall plan to the Town to precede land takings, Mr. Littleton said his intention was to retain a spot in a warrant article for a report but to ask it be indefinitely postponed should an overall program not be ready.

He said again that the Mystic site must be enlarged for construction.

He felt that the Town should rescind the 1966 vote to take land back from Sylvester Avenue for Noonan, and should instead look to land taking on Hemingway Street.

The Selectmen indicated clearly that they hoped for an overall plan and they would not like to see the Town Meeting vote without one.

Lighting

Robert Murphy of 29 Allen Road had been invited to speak to the Selectmen as a citizen involved in street lighting planning relative to his work with the Boston Redevelopment Authority.

He noted that lighting in Winchester should be uniform throughout, stating that the safety aspects, while perhaps not apparent now in Winchester, had been proven elsewhere.

He called attention to the irregular results when poles are mounted according to alternate of other pole settings.

He emphasized that mercury vapor lighting, partly because the full glass enclosure acts as a form of lens, offers more power for the money than the old-fashioned, open type of lamp.

The Selectmen's discussion was for background. They look to bringing an article on lighting before the 1970 annual Town Meeting.

Drop-In

"It's been a problem all along," reported student president, Robert A. Joyce, "but recently it has been worse."

By-laws necessitate a chaperone over 21 to be present whenever the Center is open. Repeated appeals have been made to the public. There has been a minimal response.

Mr. Joyce and Miss Jan Eschner, chaperone committee chairman, also reported that the intermittent closings were becoming a factor in memberships. Students, anticipating that the area may not be open from time to time, are paying by the visit instead of sustaining memberships.

Beware Of Easy Credit

In a consumer news report Attorney General Elliot Richardson warns that consumers should be cautious with credit buying.

Today, the consumer often does not need to ask whether he has the money for purchase for the growing use of credit and the easy availability of loans have helped to create a cashless society in which individual consumers are encouraged to "buy now and pay later."

Unfortunately, this easy credit frequently leads consumers to overextend themselves financially, by assuming greater financial burdens than they can carry.

What can an individual do when he finds that his debts are greater than his ability to pay? Bankruptcy is distasteful, borrowing from loan sharks an invitation to even more serious difficulties and garnishment of wages, particularly to the wage earner in the lower income groups, frightening.

One answer to this problem is professional credit counseling. Credit counseling is a system which aims at the economic rehabilitation of the debtor, and has worked well in 33 states and Canada.

Joined by a bipartisan group of legislators, the Attorney General has legislation to allow credit counseling in Massachusetts to the 1969 General Court.

Families in debt would go to a credit counseling center, where an experienced counsellor would examine their complete financial situation. The counsellor would then determine which payments should be lowered or adjusted and work out a comprehensive budget for the family. He would then make arrangements to pay off the family's debts through the counseling center.

Credit counseling should not be confused with "debt pooling," which is illegal in Massachusetts. Debt pooling companies promise to pool an individual's debts into one monthly payment and to make arrangements with creditors to receive a portion of the monthly payment until the debt is paid. However, many of these companies charge extremely high rates, some take the first two or three payments as their fee, and others fail to make the promised arrangements with creditors. The result of these practices is that no one is served except the debt pooling company.

Whenever he buys on credit, the wise consumer will not only ask himself how much he must pay per month, but whether he can economically add another monthly payment to those he already has. If the answer is no, the consumer will save himself and his family a great deal of difficulty by passing up the purchase.

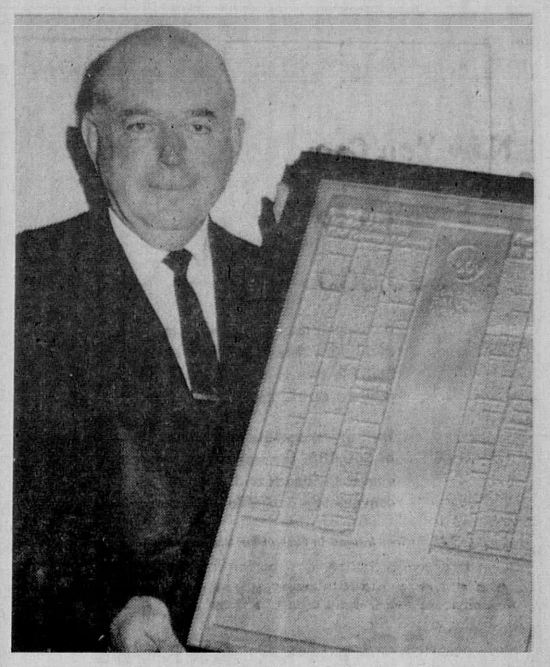

For consuming problems, write: Attorney General Elliot Richardson, Consumer Protection Division, State House, Boston 02133.

Wool Contest

Andrea's junior division honor was won last week when she modelled her oxford-grey, double-breasted winter coat with a coachman's collar at a luncheon at Treasure Island Restaurant in Webster, competing against regional finalists from across the state.

She had earned the chance at the finals at the regional contest held at Danvers High School in the American Wool Council Sewing Competition.

At Danvers five other WHS girls entered and four placed high among the total of 135 in competition.

In the senior division — or age 17 to 19 group — Karen Sorenson placed fourth, Mary Santo sixth, Janet Carlson seventh and Betsy Thoms eighth. Sara Dillon also won the WHS honor of being chosen to compete with a wool garment made, as had been all those in senior competition, in home economics classes under the direction of Miss Harriet E. Nelson, department head, and Mrs. Lucile R. Cavanaugh.

At Danvers all the prize winners were awarded lengths of wool and the Spring-Fall issue of the Butterick Pattern Catalog.

Janet Carlson and Betsy Thoms made suits, and Sara Dillon made a winter coat in a special course given to WHS seniors who have taken no previous high school home ecenomics course. As Home Ec III students, Mary Santo made a navy-blue wool dress and Karen Sorenson a grey wool dress coat.

Early Beginner

This was Miss Mountain's first competition in sewing, but she has been sewing ever since she can remember — beginning on dolls' clothes when she was very young.

The honor came to her from the sponsoring wool-growing and marketing associations. The top state participants were judged at a gay, well-attended luncheon-fashion affair judged by two high school home economics teachers and the head of a woolen mill.

Her state prize in the junior, or 14-to-16 division, was a generous yardage of shocking pink wool which is fast becoming a dressy jumper. Andrea loves to cook, and paints as well as sewing for a hobby.

Until a few years ago Andrea sewed on an old-fashioned pedal-pusher, and until very recently her many creations were done on another old-timer, although electrified. For Christmas she received her own modern multiple-functioning machine.

What does she want to become? At the moment, a home ec teacher.

Many Homes Are Improved During 1968

The amount of money that homeowners in Middlesex County spend for alterations, repairs, improvements and upkeep of their property runs into big figures.

In the past year, an estimated $138,864.000 went for such purposes, based upon government reports showing average outlays per housing unit in the regional area.

It amounted to an average expenditure of $351 per unit.

Some went much higher than this and some much lower. The findings are that less than half of the homeowners go in for sizeable improvements in any given year.

The figures are from the Department of Commerce, the National Association of Real Estate Boards and others.

The major outlay, in most cases, was for additions, alterations and replacements. This accounted for 62 percent of the total in the past year.

The remaining 38 percent was for maintenance and general repairs. Painting was the biggest item in this category, taking nearly half of the amount spent. Next in order were plumbing, roofing, heating and air conditioning. Excluded from these figures were the routine, day-to-day housekeeping expenditures.

The continuing shortage of carpenters, electricians, plumbers and other workmen, combined with the growing availability of easy-to-install equipment, has led many homeowners to tackle many of the repair and alterations jobs themselves.

Their purchase of supplies, from local hardware stores, from paint and wallpaper dealers, from lumber yards and the like add up to an imposing sum.

As to property values, a survey by the National Association of Real Estate Boards shows that dwelling units across the country went up by about $1,000 on average, during 1968.

Taking into account this rate of increase and the value added to Middlesex County homes through improvements, local residential property is worth approximately $534,489,000 more than it was a year ago. (Park Row News Service)

Elementary School Release Time

Elementary school pupils only will be released at noon on Wednesday, January 15 to permit teacher workshops.

Kindergarten teachers will begin an in-service training course at this released time session. The course will explain readiness in kindergarten showing the teachers how to use appropriate early reading instruction with youngsters who show a readiness for such a program.

The course will be conducted at released time meetings through May by Dr. Clare Corcoran, principal of Vinson-Owen School.

Dr. Corcoran and her committee are responsible for the development of an extensive syllabus for kindergarten instruction. The course is given for credit and is entitled "Instructional Techniques in Kindergarten."

Of the other elementary school teachers, liaison personnel to the curriculum councils will meet with the councils and report back to their respective schools at a later date. Members of the new report card committee will meet with the chairman of that group for further discussion of revisions of the elementary school report card.

Remaining teachers will work at such tasks as designated by their principals or use the time to work with students in need of assistance.

Rev. Koen To Speak To Holy Name Group

The men will receive Communion in a body at Mass, and the Holy Name Choir will sing seasonal hymns.

The meeting will feature a discussion by the Rev. Stephen Koen, St. Mary's newest curate, on the Archdiocesan Priests' Senate to which he has been recently re-elected.

The meeting will also be highlighted by a reception for new members, and an awarding of the Catholic Book of the Month. All men of the Parish are cordially invited.

Dartmouth College Alumni To Hear "Two-By-Fours"

The concert program, February 28 at 8:30 p.m., will also include the Dartmouth College Glee Club and the Injunaires.

The glee club presentation will feature a film commemorating two centuries of the College's history.

Sponsored by tthe North Shore Dartmouth Club, the concert will be followed by a party at a North Shore club.

Karl Amalia To Lecture Home, Garden

On January 15, Wednesday, the Winchester Home and Garden Club will present Karl F. Amalia who will speak on "Landscaping."

Mr. Amalia has spent his lifetime studying horticulture in this country and abroad. He has served as president of the National Arborists Association and is a well known lecturer and writer.

Refreshments will be served at 1 p.m. at the Crawford Methodist Church with the business meeting following at 1:30.

GILBERT H. HOOD JR. of 6 Everett Avenue, president of the Greater Boston Y.M.C.A., presented a distinguished youth service award to Donald P. Babson recently. Babson, retiring chairman, has been a member of the Board of Directors of the "Y's" Youth Division for ten years.

Library Film Program

On Friday, January 10, the Family Film Program for children accompanied by adults will include:

Paddle To The Sea

The exciting adventures of Paddle-to-the-sea who came from north of Lake Superior, carried from a cedar log in the blue winter night by an Indian boy who whittled and dreamed in the yellow light of a cabin's lamp. The book has long been a favorite in the Junior Library.

Scruffy

A beautifully animated film story of the kitten who ran away to find a sunbeam. He meets many new animals in the woods and has some hair-raising adventures. When danger appears they are all in trouble until saved by Grandfather Hare who gets them all safely home.

Town Musicians

This is the familiar story about the donkey, cat, dog and rooster who set out for Bremen to become town musicians and successfully, if unintentionally, rout a band of robbers. A color cartoon with excellent music and voice.

There will be the same showings on Saturday, January 11 at 10:00 a.m. for school-age children.

Nurses' Registry Is Closed

One of the oldest (and smallest) businesses in town has discontinued operations effective with the beginning of the year.

Started in 1915 by the late Mrs. Edith B. Larrabee the Winchester Registry for Nurses has served the Winchester Hospital and Winchester and neighboring community residents with private duty nurses continually since that time.

In November 1952, upon Mrs. Larrabee's retirement, the Registry was acquired by Mrs. Elizabeth S. Rozett R. N.

Mrs. Rozett reluctantly announced the closing due to the shortage of available registered nurses and licensed practical nurses. The Winchester Registry was the last of many in the north Boston area to close. Others, all of which at one time were quite active were located in Arlington, Medford, Melrose and other communities.

The following fascinating hand dealt in a friendly little game New Year's Eve. Pretend you're looking over South's shoulder. North-South were vulnerable with South the dealer.

North
♠ 10 8 4 3
♥ K Q 7 6
♦ 8 6 4

West
♠ A K Q 9 7 5
♦ Q
♣ K 8 6 4 2

East
♠ J 6 2
♥ 10 3
♣ A Q J 10 9 5

South
♥ A J 9 8 4 2
♦ A K J 10 9 7 5

South had a problem in how to open the bidding, for North-South were playing two clubs as their strong two-bid, and it's always dangerous to bid artificially with two good suits, for the opposition probably will have interesting distribution too and may bid high before you can name your suits.

South, therefore, opened one heart, West bid one spade, and North raised to two hearts, East passing.

Again South considers. Even if North's raise is minimum, trying to make trouble for East-West, surely there is a slam in hearts, but six or seven? Bidding four no trump asking for Aces won't help, for even if North has two Aces, there are no losers to discard on them. It all hinges on the texture of North's heart suit. And how can South tell? North might even have three small hearts.

So often success in bridge depends on letting the hand which knows about the key cards make the decision. And luckily there is a bid for this situation, — the Grand Slam Force. South bids five no trump which asks partner to bid seven in the agreed suit if he has two of the top three honors in the suit. If not, he signs off at six. With the King and Queen of hearts, North can bid seven which makes easily, despite a combined high point count of eighteen.

At our table the early bidding was as above, but sitting South I bid four no trump from force of habit, received a five spade bid from West and then bid six hearts. West, however, bid six spades as a sacrifice, giving me a chance to come back into the bidding with seven diamonds which my partner corrected to seven hearts. (Seven spades, incidentally, is an excellent sacrifice; even doubled, down 300 or 500 depending on the defense is preferable to being minus 2210.)

Moral: If you can't remember the right convention, it helps to have "a little bit o' luck."

Pee Wee Hockey Defeats Acton

The Winchester Pee Wee B hockey team rebounded from two holiday shut-out losses to defeat Acton-Boxboro 3 to 2 this past Sunday at Bedford.

The team, comprised primarily of first-year players in organized hockey, continues to show improvement weekly. The previous week's action saw Winchester battling the league-leading Arlington team on even terms for most of the game before finally losing 4-0.

Against Acton the local team scored first with Larry O'Grady getting credit for the tally out of a scramble in front of the net.

Acton tied the score in the second period on a play on which goalie Dan Whitney was shaken up and had to leave the game.

Allyn Stillman broke the deadlock early in the third period on a solo dash when he knocked in his own rebound.

An insurance tally, which turned out to be the game winner, was notched by Frank Ryan on a pass from Kevin O'Neill.

The play of "Boo" McKenzie was again conspicious for its hustle as was the goaltending of Pete Frongillo.

Next week's opponent is Billerica at 5 p.m. Sunday.

Sachem Winter Schedules Look To Full Weeks Ahead

John F. Parrell

With the ending of school vacation the athletes of Winchester High find themselves deep into the season and full schedules will be in effect for the next seven weeks. Basketball, hockey, track, gymnastics, and wrestling hold the stage and in the first three competition is almost totally restricted to the Middlesex League. The grapplers perform in a somewhat more elastic schedule since all league members do not sponsor wrestling. A similar situation will probably prevail in gymnastics since Melrose has decided to forgo this sport for this year at least.

All winter sports are bound to refrain from practice until the Monday after Thanksgiving which makes any realistic scheduling before the holiday season almost impossible. Therefore, the time between the resumption of classes and February 22 must be used to the maximum in order to fit in all qualifying games for the annual state tournaments.

Basketball games are held Tuesday afternoons and Friday evenings, the track meets take place weekly at the Lexington Field House, hockey games are at the Lynn Arena and wrestling and gymnastics fit in wherever the gymnasiums are not otherwise in use.

Including all of these activities through last Saturday the Sachems have enjoyed reasonable success.

The gymnasts have beaten both Winthrop and Arlington to remain undefeated although hampered by injuries.

The wrestlers have won over Malden and Billerica and led Melrose by a good margin but lost in the final tally when three matches were forfeited due to illness.

The track team underwent two horrendous defeats and then did better in their third meet to lead up to last week's victory over Reading. Absence of several key performers due to family vacations, work and illness contributed to their early lack of success.

Basketball

The hoopsters started off well with wins over Woburn and Arlington and built up a good lead against Belmont in the early stages.

At the quarter of the Belmont game they led 19-11 and this dwindled to 35-35 as the half ended. But the officials detected a foul on the last play which called for two shots and the visitors made one to take the edge 36-35. From this point on it was a hard battle but Belmont finally came out on top. Last Friday at Wakefield it was much the same, the offense scored well enough to win but errors on defense and in rebounding enabled the home team to emerge victorious by 73-64.

In both of these losses the Sachems were above the 60 point mark which is usually sufficient to win.

Stickmen 1-2-1

The puck chasers beat Lexington last Saturday for their first win after a tie with Belmont and defeats at the hands of Melrose and Concord.

All games were hard played and close except that Melrose which looms as the League powerhouse maintained an edge throughout.

The Concord loss was in reality an aftermath of the Melrose affair since one of the key local operatives was benched by the rules for the Concord game as a result of an altercation against Melrose.

The Lexington win came on a goal made while the Minuteman goalie was skating back to his net after being taken off in error for a supposed penalty. However, an equally legitimate Winchester goal was disallowed so things evened off in the final 2-1 tally.

Looking Ahead

From the results of early action Lexington appears to have too many guns and too much classy ball handling for the rest of the League.

In 6 foot 2 inch Ron Lee they have an outstanding freshman prospect who has all of the class showed by his brothers in the Boston City Leagues. He has an able helper in Robin Bond and barring some major upsets Lexington should be among the early qualifiers for the Tech Tourney.

Coach John Killilea of Melrose has worked out a tricky defense to compensate for his lack of scoring punch and new mentor Kevin Thomas of Wakefield has that team showing the same style of basketball that was so successful during his years as assistant to Ronnie Perry at Catholic Memorial.

Dolloff Best In State

As pointed out above the hockey picture is dominated by Melrose which has the League's leading scorer, and also the state leader, in Steve Dolloff rated by most authorities as the best hockey player in the state.

They have dented opposing nets for 36 goals in five games while allowing the opposition only seven. It is difficult to see how such an offense can be contained and unless the defense slips, it looks like another visit for the Red Raiders to the state tournament where they have been perennial competitors.

B.A.A. Saturday

The Middlesex track situation boils down to Wakefield undefeated in 23 consecutive dual meets and state title holders and Melrose which has exceptional balance and outstanding performers.

This week's Saturday meet at the Boston Garden may help to clarify the picture, but based on past performances by the Melrose stars led by speedy Richard Comeau, who was such a bright spot in the football game last fall, it is felt that Melrose will shatter the long Wakefield streak.

Lexington also has some speedy boys but would seem to fall behind the two leaders.

Any Titles?

Wrestling and gymnastic are not so adaptable to appraisal since conditions vary in such competitions.

However, it would seem safe to say that in these two sports the Sachems should enjoy good success but it is next to impossible to rate their title chances at this early date.

This week Tuesday, the basketeers journeyed to Stoneham and tomorrow they play at Reading for their games.

The ice men squared off with Stoneham on Tuesday and Saturday there will be an outside contest with Milton Academy. The tracksters will be in action at Boston Garden on Saturday but only hope for a few individual point scorers.

There has been a fair turnout at some of the games but it is hoped that more Sachem supporters will be on hand for the upcoming contests. It is much easier to play your best game when you have a goodly number of people on the sidelines urging the team on to victory.

Track Clinic At Madison Tomorrow

Coaches, athletes and fans are invited to attend a free track and field clinic featuring some of the country's top coaches and Olympians.

Sponsored by H. P. Hood & Sons' Physical Fitness Program in conjunction with the Knights of Columbus Meet, the clinic will be held Friday (January 10) at 8 p.m. in the Madison Room of the Hotel Madison, adjoining Boston Garden.

Headline speakers will include Boston University's Billy Smith (middle-distance running and hurdles), MIT's Art Farnham (long-distance running), U-Conn's Bob Kennedy (field events), former Olympian and many-time national champion Bob Backus (special weight training programs) and Mexico City Bronze Medal winner George Young (distance training methods).

Discussions will cover all major track and field events and training at both high school and collegiate levels.

SACHEMS TOP STONEHAM

Tuesday afternoon at Stoneham the Sachems won their first Middlesex League basketball game, defeating the Spartans 70 to 67 in a fine game which saw Vic Papadinis high scorer with 19 points.

Bantams Now 2-1-0 In League Play

The Winchester Bantam "A" Team stands 2 victories and 1 loss in league play at Hockeytown USA.

It lost to powerful Arlington 4-1 earlier, with the game tied 1-1 five minutes into the third period. Hustling third-line center Jim Dale scored the lone goal for Winchester, while Ed Pierce and Bob Gill were outstanding on defense.

Winchester met Charlestown on December 24 and won 11-1. Charlestown was without four regulars but it was felt that their presence would not have changed the outcome.

Ricky Murphy led the scoring with 3 goals and 3 assists. Dave Frongillo had 2 goals and 2 assists, Bobby Carroll 2 goals and 1 assist, and Steve Troiano 1 goal and 3 assists. Tom Belden and George Evans played outstandingly both ways.

In a fast-moving and exciting game on December 28, Winchester defeated Peabody 4-1. Steve Troiano lit the lamp twice, while Joe Penta and Bobby Carroll had the other two. Steve Spang, Jim Dale, Chris McCarthy, Tom Belden, George Evans and Jackie Brennan received assists.

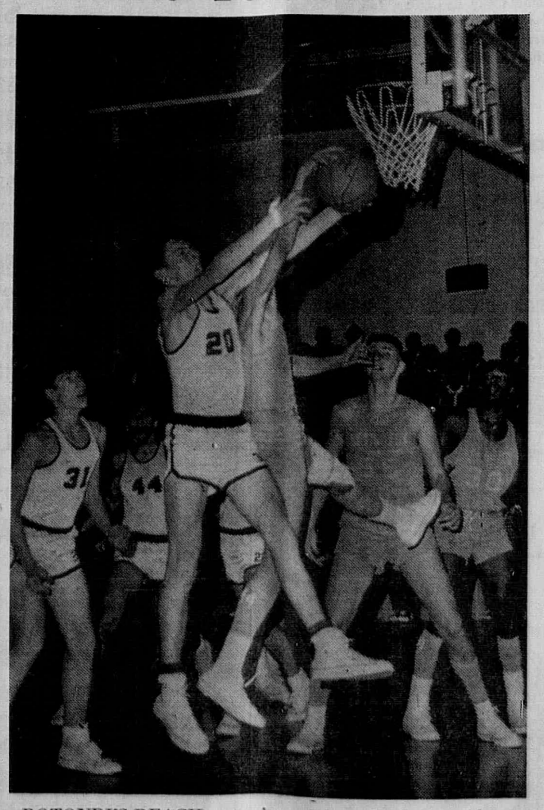

Both goalies, Jim Grenier and Richie Coakley, have been superb, and the team as a whole has played excellent position, two-way hockey that has impressed the large number of spectators.

The next league game is on Saturday, January 11, at 7:40 p.m. vs. Stoneham.

Bruins Take First Place In Youth Hockey

The rough and tough Bruins held on to first place as they knocked off the previously undefeated Red Wings 6-5 last Sunday morning in the feature game.

Leading the Bruins offensive was their hard-rocked defenseman Billy Gannon, who had two goals. Jim Beck, Bobby Gill, Dave Frongillo and Phil O'Connell had the other scores for the B's.

Joe Penta, Peter Martini and Phil O'Connell picked up assists in leading the league's most powerful offense to its third straight victory.

The Red Wings put up a gallant fight despite having five regulars out of their lineup. Jimmy Dale was easily the outstanding player on the ice for the Wings with two goals and two assists, sometimes taking double shifts for the tired Wings.

The Wings were trailing 6-2 with 90 seconds to go in the game when they struck for three quick goals, two by Bobby Ungaretti and one by Dave Craven, another outstanding Wing in defeat, who had two assists to go along with his goal.

The Wings' offense was given a big lift by the presence of Dennis O'Donnell, who was called up in an emergency role. He played goalie the game before and made a hurried change that almost gave the Wings enough spark to pull out the game.

The opening game of the morning saw the Rangers score their first victory of the season as they defeated the hapless Canadiens 2-1. Steve Murphy set up Chris MacKenzie for the first Rangers score, while five minutes later Eddie Pierce tallied what proved to be the game winner with Jerry Granfield picking up an assist.

Dan Martignetti had the Canadiens' only score set up by the fine playmaking of Tommy Brennan.

The Black Hawks handed the Maple Leafs their first loss of the season 3-1 and jumped into sole possession of second place. The Hawks completely dominated the play from start to finish, outskating the Leafs, who appeared to be very sluggish.

Dana Peterson set up Billy Harris for the Hawks' first score, but Steve Troiano sent Paul Whitney in all alone for the Leafs a minute later to tie it up 1-1.

After that it was all Hawks, as they constantly peppered the Leafs' goalie Dennis O'Donnell the rest of the game. Jeff Wilbur and Chris McCarthy finally were able to beat the Leafs' tired netminder. Down the other end of the rink Rich Maggio was equal to every occasion as he shut the door on the Leafs' scorers.

Some special praise should go to the boys who probably have one of the most difficult jobs in the game, tending the goal.

In his first year as a goalie is Jim Grenier, an outstanding skater among the goalies. Jim is coming along very well and also tends the net for the freshmen.

Cliff Falla and Mike O'Leary, who are the backbone on the undefeated Pee Wee "A" team, are leaving many a forward talking to himself with their outstanding play thus far.

Among the missing last Sunday was Richie Coakley, a youngster in age but a veteran in leauge play. Rich, who was outstanding for the Bantams in their victory the day before at West Point, was home resting some jangled nerves after the long road trip.

In the Pee Wee rink the Flyers moved into first place as they won both games, both by 3-0 over the Seals and the Kings. The Blues are right on the heels of the Flyers as they whipped the North Stars 3-0 and battled the Seals to a 0-0 tie.

The North Stars also came away with a victory by edging the Kings 2-0.

There were five shutouts recorded, which shows the great goaltending being turned in by Danny Whitney and Peter Frongillo, who play every game in the small rink.

Jimmy Dale and Tom Romeo were chosen "Players of the Week" in their respective divisions. Dale took over the scoring lead in the Bantam Division and had a hand in four of the first Red Wings' goals as they almost upset the powerful Bruins. Tom Romeo earned "Star of the Week" for his hat trick in leading the first-place Flyers to a 3-0 win over the Seals.

Winton Club Casts Show And Opens Ticket Sales

The Town Hall burst with activity Sunday afternoon and evening as the cast for Winton Club's "Once Upon a Time" was assembled, auditioned, and measured for costumes.

Mrs. Edwin Nelson, talent chairman, and the entire cabaret committee welcomed the large group of singers and dancers from Winchester and neighboring communities who will perform at the Town Hall five nights, January 28 through February 1, for the benefit of the Winchester Hospital.

Auditioning singers for the roles of literary heroes and heroines ranging from Ali Baba to Goldilocks to the Wicked Witch to the Mightiest of Dragons was Lee Daniels of Boston.

Mr. Daniels is the director of this year's show and is no stranger to Winchester or Winton Club, having directed the 1967 Cabaret "School Daze."

A well know arranger and composer, he has been producing shows in New England for the past 20 years. Among these are the Seaton Guild Show in Lowell, the Lynn Jr. Aide Show and the Paint and Powder Revue.

He is director and conductor of many supper club groups. Among these is "The Show Toppers" for whom he wrote the music "Dansero" which was recorded by Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops last spring. A former staff member of the New England Conservatory, he now is director of the Lee Daniels School of Music.

Choreographer for Mr. Daniels and "Once Upon a Time" is Miss Shirley Finkel who was in charge of Winton Club's 1967 Cabaret dancing as well. Having studied under Gene Kelley, and directed her own shows before working for Mr. Daniels on most of nis productions in the last several years, she is well experienced in leading the dancers into most polished performances.

One of the dancing features of "Once Upon a Time" will be the "Backalamoova"—an original combination of samba and rock devised by Mr. Daniels and Miss Finkel. It was greeted most enthusiastically by those at the tryouts.

Measurements Too

As cast members were assigned their numbers, they were measured for costumes by co-chairmen, Mrs. Robert Joyce and Mrs. Lawrence Lougee.

Stage crew chairmen, Theodore von Rosenvinge and Frank Kelley finalized plans with Mrs. Theodore Burleigh, set designer. Mr. and Mrs. Merton Ober manned the refreshment booth for the cast and committees, and the day spelled success for the start of the show.

Rehearsals began on Monday, and will continue Monday through Thursday, mornings and evenings until show week.

Meanwhile, program chairmen, Mrs. Courtenay Crandall and Mrs. John Harrison are sending the last few pages of this year's program to the printer and Mrs. Prescott Keyes and her ticket committee have announced the sale of tickets for Children's Night, Tuesday, January 28; Theatre Night, Wednesday, January 29; and Informal Cabaret Night, Thursday, January 30; as well as the traditional Friday and Saturday Cabaret Nights to be held on Jaunary 31 and February 1.

In this year's show, in the land of "Once Upon a Time," singers will dance, dancers will sing, and the Winton Club Dragon may learn to dance the Backalamoova along with the rest of the cast. Old friendships are being renewed and new ones are being made as Winchesterites and their neighbors get together for fun for a good cause — helping Winton Club achieve its goal of continued support of the Winchester Hospital.

Casting For "Once Upon A Time"

WINTON CABARET DIRECTOR Lee Daniels was at the Town Hall piano Sunday afternoon and evening for casting for the January 28-through-February-1 "Once Upon a Time" show. Singing behind him are Mrs. Ruth Tunnicliffe, Mrs. Diane Dube Cooper and Fred Lee. Also among those featured in the show will be the familiar voices of Jane Olivadoti, Lynda Nanry Cowles, and Vincent Carr. Featured but new to the cabaret are Diana Bruno of Woburn and George Vissell of Wellesley. (Don Young photo)

New Book Is Published By Residents

The Cambridge University Press has published a new book entitled "Arrays of Cylindrical Dipoles" by R. W. P. King, R. B. Mack, and S. S. Sandler.

In eight chapters the book develops a new theory of the behavior of rod-shaped antennas and arrays. Such antennas are used to achieve directive transmission and reception of radio waves in communication between points on the earth, between the earth and a space vehicle, or in radio astronomy.

Dr. R. W. P. King of 92 Hillcrest Parkway is Gordon McKay Professor of applied physics at Harvard University. He is the author of numerous other books and many scientific papers.

Dr. R. B. Mack is research physicist of the Air Force Cambridge Research Laboratories in Bedford. His home is at 35 Kenwin Road.

Dr. S. S. Sandler, associate professor of electrical engineering at Northeastern University, lives in Lexington.

Drs. Mack and Sandler are former students of Professor King and important parts of the new book are based on their doctoral dissertations.

Dever Elected Board Chairman

John F. Dever, Jr., a member of the Middlesex County Board of Commissions since 1962, was elected chairman of the three-man county board recently.

Dever, 33, who lives at 9 Canterbury Road, Woburn, accepted the post of chairman for the fifth time.

The unanimous vote for Dever came from his fellow County Commissioners Frederick J. Connors of Somerville and John L. Danehy of Cambridge.

Dever, a Cambridge native, also was recently re-elected to a second term as president of the Massachusetts Sheriffs and County Commissioners Association.

Does Medicare Owe You Money?

John E. Lonergan Jr., Social Security district manager in Cambridge, has urged everyone who signed up for the doctor bill insurance part of Medicare to spend some time between now and the end of the year in reviewing whether the program owes him some money.

He said that this is most important for those older people who incurred expenses for covered medical services between October 1, 1966, and September 30, 1967. If a claim is not made for reimbursement of these expenses by December 31, 1968, it will not be possible to make a payment.

Mr. Lonergan pointed out that, in the past, some Medicare beneficiaries postponed making a claim because they thought that if the doctor declined to take an assignment the patient had to submit a receipted bill with his application.

Unable to supply evidence of having paid the doctor or the medical supplier, they failed to file a claim, he added.

"These people are in danger of shortchanging themselves," Mr. Lonergan said. "The 1967 amendments to the Medicare law eliminated the requirement that a bill submitted with a claim must be receipted to show that it was paid in full or part. Starting in 1968, an itemized bill showing the services or medical goods received and the charges for these, even if unpaid, became sufficient."

Mr. Lonergan reminded those older persons in the area who have signed up for voluntary medical insurance that Medicare pays for 80 percent of the reasonable charges of the covered services and medical goods, less an annual $50 deductible that the patient must pay.

If the expenses of the last 3 months in any year do not come up to the amount of the deductible, they can be carried over to the following year to reduce the deductible for that year.

Anyone wishing speedy and efficient service on one of thes claims should bring evidence of the services received, either in the form of an itemized bill from the doctor or the supplier of medical goods, or the same information on the "Request for Medicare Payment" form supplied by the Social Security Adminstration. Another "must" is the older person's Medicare card or other official document showing his health insurance claim number.

For more information, get in touch with the Cambridge Social Security Office at 625 Mount Auburn Street (telephone 491-0700). The Cambridge office is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Wednesday evenings until 8 p.m. or contact the Social Security representative at the Woburn Library any Tuesday between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

College Club To Hear Dr. Read

Dr. Kenneth R. H. Read, biologist and underwater photographer, will be the guest speaker at the opening of the 40th season of the Winchester College Club evening study group to be held Monday evening, January 13 at the Unitarian Church.

DR. KENNETH R. H. READ

Dr. Read will speak on "Marine Life of New England and the Tropics." His talk will be illustrated with movies taken in the waters of New England, the Caribbean and the Gulf of Panama on the Pacific Coast.

An associate professor of biology at Boston University and research director of the New England Aquarium, Dr. Read was born in Wales and received his B.S. degree from McGill University. He also holds S.B. and S.M. degrees from M.I.T. He received his Ph.D. degree from Harvard University and continued his post doctoral work at Harvard University and Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Read is a member of the American Society of Zoologists, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the International Association of Professional Diving Scientists. He was elected president of the Boston Malacological Club for the years 1966-1968.

Dr. Read's research experience in underwater time lapse photography in marine ecology and his diving experience off the coast of England, the east coast of America, the Gulf of Mexico, Puerto Rico, the Bahamas, Hawaii and the Gulf of Panama lead to a first prize and an honorable mention at the nation's Capital Underwater Exposition in Washington D.C. in 1966, and the Medalist Awards in 1966 and 1967 for the best series of color slides from the Academy of Underwater Photographers, Santa Monica, California.

Northeastern University Underwater Society awarded the Boutan Trophy in 1967 to Dr. Read for excellence in photography.

The underwater photograhy on the recent television special of Rachel Carson's "The Sense of Wonder" was photographed by Dr. Read. His movie credits include Beneath New England Waves, 1967, and Fishes of the New England Coast, 1968.

Following a brief business meeting conducted by Mrs. Nolan T. Jones, club president, the evening study group program for 1969 will be introduced by the group chairman, Mrs. Colin Wheeler. The interest groups; bridge, drama, gourmet supper, music, play-reading and travel, are open both to members and non-members.

The College Club welcomes to membership all women of Winchester who have completed at least two years in a college accredited by the American Association of University Women. Applications for further information may be obtained from Mrs. John Maulbetsch at 438-4034.

Not True About Nero

Fascinating and little-known facts about life in Rome are revealed in a new National Geographic Society book, "Greece and Rome: Builders of Our World."

Emperor Nero is notorious for fiddling while Rome burned. "In fact, however," the book points out, "Nero was at the sea resort of Antium (Anzio) and hastened back to fight the fire."

Romans sometimes carried political heckling to extremes. In Republican days Senate meetings touched off great debates, even battles. Rioters ripped apart benches, awnings, and documents to feed bonfires, while politicians fled for their lives.

The glamor of Imperial Rome around 100 A.D. lured thousands and thousands of outlanders into the overcrowded capital.

Speculators hurriedly built "high rise" tenements, which sometimes collapsed. Housewives threw garbage out windows. Crime on the streets was so bad at night that one citizen warned, "You will be a fool to go out without making a will."

Splendor as well as squalor marked everyday life in ancient times, reports "Greece and Rome: Builders of Our World."

"Y" Has Class Openings

The winter session of adult and children's classes at the Burlington Y.W.C.A. began recently.

There are a few openings left both in morning and evening classes, including art, bridge and investments. Call or write the Burlington Y.W.C.A., 6 Spruce Hill Road, Burlington, for further information.

Everyone loves an auction, including the "Y" Wives. An old-fashioned country auction will be the program at 8 p.m. January 15. Members will bring articles they no longer need and these will be auctioned off at reasonable rates.

All interested ladies from Burlington and surrounding towns are cordially invited to attend.

Hills are traffic traps when the roads are slick because of ice and snow, according to Chief of Police Joseph J. Derro and the International Assn. of Chiefs of Police. "Pace yourself with other traffic so you can get up enough momentum to carry you to the top of the hill without stopping if possible," advises Chief Derro. "But ease-up as you get to the crest and before you start on the downgrade. There may be stalled or skidding cars ahead."

Pack 511 Holds Meeting

Last Friday Pack 511 held its first pack meeting of the new year.

Of primary interest was the demonstration the Webelos gave of the Olympic walking relay race.

Den Three had a craft exhibit of candlesticks they had made.

David Callahan received an assistant denner award and Vincent Fantasia was presented his Webelos badge colors.

The yearly scout show of the Musket District, which includes Arlington, Stoneham, Winchester and Woburn, will be held at the Armory in Woburn on the 8th of February. There the scouts will be given the opportunity to display a project of interest or present a demonstration of a particular activity in which they are engaged.

The donations for this show are divided between the central scout organization and the individual scout units. It is the main source of revenue for the cub scout operation and the boys are hoping for much public support.

The modern tank was developed by Great Britain and first appeared in action on September 15, 1916 in the Battle of the Somme. Although 49 were committed to action, only nine of them fulfilled their missions. Nevertheless, it was apparent they had imparted impetus to the attack and all major powers began building them.

Cancer Society Offers Fellowship

The Massachusetts Division of the American Cancer Society reminds all college students that the deadline for applications for the 1969 Alvan T. and Viola D. Fuller American Cancer Society Junior Research Fellowships is January 15th.

This summer fellowship program for undergraduates is open to all residents of Massachusetts who are enrolled in a college or university (not necessarily located in Massachusetts) at the time of application.

The 10-week program is designed to give students from schools that are not associated with a medical school, teaching hospital or medical research facility an opportunity for first-hand research experience at leading Massachusetts research laboratories, hospitals and research institutes under the supervision of senior cancer investigators. Interest in research and a familiarity with chemical, biochemical and/or physiological principles and laboratory techniques is a basic requirement. Preference will be given students with superior academic standing who will have attained junior, senior or graduate status in the fall of 1969.

Students interested in applying should write to: Lewis L. Engel, Ph.D., Chairman Research Committee, American Cancer Society (Massachusetts Division), Inc., 138 Newbury Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02116. Applicants should give as reference the names of at least two science instructors familiar with their student's work.

S. S. News

Beginning in January, an older person who goes to the hospital under Medicare will be responsible for the first $44.00 of his hospital bill (now running about $600.00 for the average hospital stay by a Medicare beneficiary), John E. Lonergan Jr., manager of the Social Security District Office in Cambridge, said.

The $4.00 increase (from the present $40.00 deductible) results from a provision in the law requiring an annual review of the deductible amount.

The first such review the law provided was to be made in 1968. The law specifies that if this annual review shows that hospital costs have changed significantly, the hospital deductible amount must be adjusted for the following year. Necessary increases in the deductible amount are to be made in $4.00 steps to avoid small annual changes.

Following the formula in the law, and figuring the ratio of inpatient hospital costs under Medicare in 1966, with those in 1967, the deductible amount for 1969 worked out to $45.36. Rounded to the nearest multiple of $4.00, this will make the deductible $44.00 for 1969.

The results of the annual review of the inpatient hospital deductible also apply to the dollar amounts a Medicare beneficiary pays toward a hospital stay of more than 60 days, or a post-hospital extended care stay of more than 20 days.

These amounts, therefore, will also increase by 10 percent, effective January 1, 1969—to $11.00 a day for the 61st through the 90th day of a hospital stay; to $5.50 for the 20th to the 100th day of a stay in a posthospital extended care facility; and to $22.00 a day for each day of the "lifetime reserve" of 60 days, the reserve account a beneficiary can draw upon if he ever needs more than 90 days of hospital care in the same benefit period.

The changes in these amounts apply only to the hospital insurance part of Medicare and do not affect the financing of the supplementary medical insurance (the voluntary program which covers doctor bills and a wide variety of other medical services).

More information may be had from the Cambridge Social Security District Office at 625 Mount Auburn Street (telephone 491-0700), which is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Wednesday evenings until 8.

You may also contact the Social Security representative at the Woburn Library any Tuesday between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The worship service will be led by Mrs. Baaron Pittinger.

Marine Writes Poem About Corps

A poem about the Marine Corps, written by a Winchester Marine, was recently submitted to the Star,

PFC. JOHN OLIVADOTI

Pfc. John J. Olivadoti wrote the poem while in boot camp at Parris Island, South Carolina, in the fall of 1967.

A member of the class of 1968 at Winchester High School, Pfc. Olivadoti joined the Marines in October 1967. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Olivadoti of 41 Richardson Street.

After further training at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina. Pfc. Olivadoti was sent to Camp Pendleton, California. From there he went to Okinawa, where he is presently stationed.

The poem is as follows:

U. S. MARINE

You can have the Army khaki
You can keep the Navy blue
Here is another man
I'll introduce you to
His uniform is different
Like none you've ever seen
The Germans call him Devil Dog
His real name is Marine
He trained at Parris Island
The land that God forgot
The sand was inches deep
The sun scorching hot
He's peeled a million onions
And twice as many spuds
You'll find him at the slop shoot
Soaking up the suds
He is a rifle expert
He knows his weapon well
When he encounters the enemy
He'll send their souls to Hell
He can conquer any enemy on any land,
He doesn't know what fear is
For he's a fighting man.
Now listen all you ladies
A tip I'll pass to you,
Find yourself a young Marine,
There's nothing he can't do.
And when he dies to St. Peter he'll tell:
"Another Marine reporting, Sir,
I've served my time in Hell."

Peace Corps Placement Test January 18

Winchester residents interested in putting their skills to use in developing nations around the world are invited to take the Peace Corps placement test at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, January 18 at Brighton High School, 25 Warren Street, Brighton.

The Peace Corps uses the placement test to determine how an applicant can best be utilized overseas. The test measures general aptitude and the ability to learn a language, not education or achievement. The test requires no preparation and is non-copetitive; an applicant can neither pass nor fail.

Persons interested in serving with the Peace Corps must fill out an applicantion, if they have not already done so, and present it to the tester before the test. Application forms are available from post offices or from the Peace Corps in Washington, D.C. 20525.

Fifteen thousand volunteers are currently serving in Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Pacific Islands, working with the people of those nations in self-help projects ranging from food production to health to education. More volunteers are needed for programs which will begin this spring and summer.

The Winchester Auxiliary of MSPCA will hold its seventh consecutive annual Silent Auction on Monday, January 13th at the home of Mrs. Henry R. Delaney, 72 Wedgemere Avenue.

The proceeds of the event will benefit the Auxiliary's aid to injured and strayed pets.

Members donate very choice articles that they have received, and purchase others by writing their bid on a paper placed under the articles. Superlative bargains are obtained and the shopping is a great deal of fun.

The event will get under way at 1:30 p.m. with a brief business meeting. Members and their guests as well as friends of the MSPCA are invited to "bring one, buy one" and then linger to enjoy the tea which will be served following the program.

School Builders Are Under Pressure For Winter Action

The eye of the Town is on the current planning of two of the subcommittees of the Permanent Building Committee: the Elementary School Building Committee and the Secondary School Building Committee. Each is charged with important educational planning. Each will be spending a large chunk of taxpayers money.

The High School planners met Thursday night and were told by architect Frank Crimp that he was not certain when the job would be ready to go out for bids. Projection at the Town Meeting vote of February, 1968 was for the fall of 1968 for the contract.

This Committee meets again a week from tonight at the McCall School lounge.

The Elementary School Building Committee meets tonight at 7:30 in the McCall Library. Joining them for discussion for the overall elementary school building planning will be their parent committee and the School Committee and administration.

The Elementary Committee met for the first time in over a year at McCall on December 10.

Chairman Earle Littleton at this time presented a progress report pointing to 1969 Town Meeting action.

Subsequently, pressed for specifics, he has appeared before the Selectmen.

Last Thursday night the landscaping plan for the high school proposed by Moriece and Gary, designers, was accepted.

The accepted plan calls for no parking spaces in front of the building and for retaining the line of willow trees along Skillings Path. Retaining the trees is in accordance with a request from the Board of Selectmen that the trees be saved.

In the accepted plan, visitors parking will be on the east side of the building. It includes the same number of parking spaces as in the first considered architects' plan, however.

Concern On Delay

After Mr. Crimp's statement of uncertainty about a date for WHS bids, Frederick LaTorella, representing the Finance Committee, spoke urging speed. He said that construction on the school is nearly a year behind schedule.

He told the Committee building costs were rising each year and that he would dread going before the Town for more money for the project. "The situation is too dangerous," he said.

Skating Rink

SSBC Chairman Arthur Dunbar, reporting on a recent meeting he had with the Skating Rink Committee said that this group has two sites it wishes to consider for the indoor rink: on the Aberjona where the outdoor rink is presently located; and on the proposed tennis courts on the corner of the proposed high school site.

The Committee was generally against the high school site for the rink.

Sergeant Ronald P. Zenga Killed In Vietnam Air Crash

The Air Force this week officially announced the death in Vietnam of Sgt. Ronald Paul Zenga of 209 Cambridge Street. Sgt. Zenga, 23, the holder of an Air Force Commendation medal, was killed while flying in a combat mission out of the Nha Trang Air Base. His plane was reported crashed after being hit by enemy fire.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Zenga, had been earlier notified that he was reported missing in action and presumed dead. They received official notice of his death on Monday.

Arrangements for a funeral Mass for the sergeant are still incomplete and will be announced in the press as soon as final.

Sgt. Zenga was an aerial gunner, but had also trained as a helicopter mechanic. He was graduated from the Air Force Technical School at Sheppard Air Force Base in Texas this summer. He had been in Vietnam since early August.

The sergeant was born in Medford on June 9, 1945. He moved to Winchester when 13 and attended schools here, graduating from the High School with the class of 1963. Subsequently he attended the Maine Central Institute and studied also at Northeastern University before enlisting.

Sergeant Zenga was well known and well liked in High School. He was a varsity letterman in football. He played also at MCI and Northeastern. He was also an intra-mural wrestler.

In Vietnam, he had interested himself and volunteered to work with and teach South Vietnamese children. Two nights a week he would walk five miles back and forth from the nearest hamlet to the air base to do this. In November his family had collected and sent to him a large bundle of primers to help with this objective.

SERGEANT RONALD P. ZENGA

In addition to his parents the sergeant is survived by one brother, Daniel W. Jr., 25, of Arlington and by a sister, Susan Ann, 18, a student at the Mount Auburn Hospital School of Nursing in Cambridge.

The Town's flags will be at half mast in honor of the sergeant, who is the third Winchester serviceman to be killed in Vietnam.

The first two Winchester boys to die fighting the North Vietnamese were both Marine corporals, both 21 years old.

Corporal Richard W. Bond, son of Mrs. William J. Miller of 7 Governor's Avenue was killed on March 9, 1966 while on night patrol duty near Da-Nang.

Corporal Francis J. Muraco, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Muraco of 8 Irving Street was killed on November 23, 1967, Thanksgiving Day, while patrolling in the Province of Quang Tri.

Two Police Appointed; Petroleum Is Opposed

The Selectmen on Monday night appointed two men to be regular members of the Police Department.

They also held a hearing in which a request for a petroleum license at 783 Main Street was opposed by residents and representatives of neighboring business.

Richard Fisher and John Guarente were named as Police officers. Both have been serving the Department since May as special officers. There were two other candidates for the job.

Officer Fisher, 26 next month, has lived in Winchester since 1956 and is a 1961 graduate of the High School. From 1961 to 1965 he served in the United States Navy as an aviation electronics technician at Quonset Point, Rhode Island. He has also worked in construction and as an employee of the Postal Department. He is unmarried and lives here at 144 Highland Avenue.

Officer Guarente grew up in Winchester, moved to Medford and attended high school there, graduating in 1962. He joined the Air Force in 1963 and served until 1967.

He was a member of the police department in 1967 for six months as a temporary officer.

Opposition

The Selectmen deferred their decision on the request of George Whitten to install gasoline pumps at the Scotch Car Wash on Main Street.

Mr. Whitten appeared alone to make his request to sell gas, stating his desire to do so as a stimulant to the business at the Car Wash.

Opposing him were several neighboring residents and businessmen, including the proprietors of two nearby service stations.

Opposition centered on the heavy traffic already caused by the Whitten business.

Deeb Homsi stated that on Saturday he had reported to the Police that a woman customer, blocking the driveway of his adjacent gas station, had refused to move when asked.

The opposition also stated they were against the license because the new business would mean additional competition for them.

The Selectmen have asked the Police Department to make a seven-day survey of the area and report in before they make a decision.

All Town Offices Appear To Be Going With No Contest

Next Wednesday at 5 p.m. is the last hour to obtain papers to run for office in the annual Town election of March 3 and as of noon yesterday there is no contest in sight in any office.

At noon yesterday Frederick LaTorella was the only candidate for Selectman. Harrison Chadwick is the only one in sight for the office of moderator. Richard Lawrance and George Whitten were the only men to have papers in circulation for School Committee.

John A Dolan, completing only one term as School Committeeman, has stated that he will not be a candidate for a second term.

Marshall M. Kincaid has given no indication he intends to run to succeed himself as the Town's representative on the board of the area Regional Vocational School. No other candidate has taken out papers.

Windsor S. Carpenter is still alone looking to the one vacancy on the Assessors' Board. Otto E. Schaefer Jr. has taken the papers which would allow him to succeed himself on the Planning Board in its one opening.

Dr. Warren J. Taylor, present chairman, will run for re-election on the Board of Health.

Both Chairman Albert A. MacDonnell and Mrs. Stella M. Aitken plan to be candidates for continuing terms on the board of Park Commissioners.

Andrew L. Nichols and Robert Whitman will run to fill second terms as Library Trustees if their papers are filed.

Charles W. Butler has papers out for the job of Commissioner of Trust Funds and William T. Ryerson for that of Constable. Parker N. Blanchard will run for the Water and Sewer Board.

There is one opening on the Cemetery Commission. James E. Haley intends to be a candidate for that office.

Sixty-six places, or 11 in each precinct, are up for grabs each election for the three-year term of Town Meeting.

So far:

In Precinct 1 four have said they would run again, two have indicated they would try a first run. (This precinct has one opening for a one-year term also.)

Crackdown Due On Use Of Liquor By Minors

The Woburn Court on Monday fined two local young men $50 each for the possession of liquor.

"It's a very bad situation here and it's not lessening," said Chief of Police Joseph J. Derro.

"The number of beer cans and booze bottles that are thrown out around town (from autos driven by young people here) is a disgrace."

The Chief served notice that he has instructed his officers to knuckle down on this situation.

"We are going to prosecute them for this," he said, noting there are several juvenile cases pending.

The police have indicated that in addition to seeing that the young offenders lose their licenses, they will seek to punish, through the Registry of Vehicles, the owners of the cars which the young people are driving.

Exodus Of Republicans Reflected Here

Republicans here are feeling the impact of the about-to-be new administration in Washington—politically and personally.

They clearly expect their political action in the state to be affected by the departure of Governor Volpe and Attorney General Richardson.

Personally, many will head to Washington to take part in inauguration festivities.

"The appointments of Volpe and Richardson will leave a void within the party," said Winchester's Republican Committee chairman, Sherman Saltmarsh.

"We've had three of the top four constitutional officers serving four year terms. Now there will be one... True the Governor's place will be taken by a Republican. But there will be no lieutenant governor and today in government there's a need for one.

Unity Octave Starts Sunday In Churches

The Winchester Ecumenical Association is sponsoring for the second year a Church Unity Octave to begin January 19 and run through January 26.

The community is invited to attend the celebration in observance of "the essential oneness underlying the witness and ministry of our churches." Similar observances are being held throughout the nation as an expression of the growing movement of ecumenism.

The Reverend John J. Bishop of the Church of the Epiphany is president of the Ecumenical Association and announces the following events and extends a warm invitation to the people of Winchester to participate.

The observance begins this Sunday with an exchange of pulpits among the clergy of the Winchester churches at morning services as follows:

CONCERN Plans Answers To Drug Questions

Parents and students are asking many questions of members of CONCERN, and at the January meeting the group focussed on effective ways publicly to answer these questions.

CONCERN is the town's Committee on New Concepts of Educational and Therapeutic Needs.

It reports that most of the queries coming to it are of common interest to all and although they are primarily directed to the subject of drug abuse, many other related problems are being critically examined.

"It is the feeling of the members of CONCERN, that the value of these questions and answers being discussed in small group meetings throughout Winchester can be significantly useful to our community if more people have access to them," a spokesman for the committee reports.

Blood Donors Answer Call At Collection

The Winchester Chapter, American Red Cross, reports a very successful day's collection last week Wednesday at the Bloodmobile stationed at the Epiphany Church: 120 pints.

"The Chapter particularly appreciated the patience of the many who came and had to wait for an unusual length of time," said a spokesman.

The next scheduled visit of the Bloodmobile is Monday, March 31, at a place later to be designated.

Town Budgets Awaited By Finance Committee

The Town's 15-man appointed Finance Committee has opened its annual pre-Town Meeting push. It is meeting every Monday night in the Welfare Room of the Town Hall.

This year's Committee is under the chairmanship of Ormond M. Hessler of 30 Winslow Road. Robert J. Grenzeback of 16 Mason Street is vice chairman. Charles D. Began of 18 Pine Grove Park is permanent secretary.

ORMOND M. HESSLER

The Committee is concerned at the slow pace at which it is receiving the departmental budgets which it must review before Town Meeting. Of 59 due in, only 11 have been turned in complete.

Six budget items are done under collective bargaining handled by the Personnel Board, chaired by Robert Erickson. They are that of the Town Employees Association, the Firefighters Local, the Police and under schools the teachers, cafeteria and custodial services and principals.

On Monday night the budgets passed on by the Board of Selectmen and sent down to the Committee were those of the Cemetery Commissioners, Building Commissioner, street lights and elections and registration.

Chairman Hessler is in his third year on Finance. A resident for 21 years he is the general manager of sales and marketing for B. F. Goodrich Footwear Division, with which he has been associated since 1947.

He was born in Philadelphia and grew up in Bayside, Long Island and was graduated from Cornell in 1942. An infantry officer in World War II, he was captured by the Germans and served 26 months as prisoner of war. The husband of Constance (Bond) he is the father of Peter, a senior at St. Lawrence College and Terry Elizabeth, in her last year at Colby Junior College.

Also serving their third year as members are William T. Bird, Bertram H. Dube, Frederick LaTorella and Rogers Welles.

The Committee's vice chairman is the president of Systems Resources Corporation in Medford.

In their second year, as is Mr. Grenzeback, are Richard Cantillon, William Leighton, Joseph Saylor and Harry Williams.

Completing their first year as Fin Com members are Vito Giarrizzo, Raymond Kenney, Merton Ober, Stephen Parkhurst and Charles Pyne.

The Town's budgets are assigned to the Finance Committee members as sub-committee work. Individually they are currently meeting with their respective Boards in the effort to finish compilation.

Robert Froehlke Named Asst. Defense Secretary

The Robert F. Froehlke family moved into a new home at 89 Thornberry Road in August. Mr. Froehlke is already in Washington, D.C., and will move there immediately. He has just been named assistant secretary of defense for administration.

"We all went to high school together," reports Mrs. Froehlke, who like her husband and defense secretary-designate Melvin R. Laird, who chose him, grew up in the small Wisconsin town of Neenah.

Mrs. Froehlke and the children will stay out the school year in Winchester, where Jane is a junior at high school, and Anne and Scott are at the Lynch Junior High School. Son Bruce is a student at Haverford College, in Pennsylvania.

ROBERT F. FROEHLKE

Mr. Froehlke, 46, is New England regional vice president of the Sentry Insurance Company. About his appointment he was quoted as saying, "I was drafted. I didn't volunteer, but because of our close relationship for 40 years and my respect for him (Laird) I decided to take the position."

His wife reports that it will be his first venture into anything resembling government service.

She allowed, however, that in Wisconsin he did head the Laird for Congress Club with the responsibility of seeing that Mr. Laird would have no financial worries while running.

Mr. Froehlke is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, where he studied law and at one time was on the faculty. In World War II he commanded an infantry company in Europe.

In 1951 he joined the Hardware Mutual Insurance Company, which later became the Sentry Company.

Service Clubs Invite Mrs. Hicks To Speak Here

Mrs. Louise Day Hicks, controversial former member of the Boston School Committee and defeated candidate for mayor of Boston, will speak at the S.O.I. Hall next Wednesady evening.

Mrs. Hicks was invited by an intergroup committee representing the Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary Club.

She will speak at an intergroup supper, to begin at 6:30, open to the club memberships and guests. The supper is a revival of a formerly annual custom that the groups meet once a year together.

"We just thought she'd be good," said William Holland, Kiwanis representative on the inter-group program committee which chose Mrs. Hicks. "We felt we wanted a name speaker to get things off to a good start... Personally I think she is going to be involved in bigger things."

Serving with Mr. Holland on the committee that invited Mrs. Hicks were Nicholas J. Tierno of the hosting Lions Club and Charles Koch of the Rotary.

Breaks Reported Two Gas Stations

Thefts occurred at two Winchester gas stations on Saturday, according to the Police Department.

The Tulsa Gas Station, Main Street, reported to police that two men in a blue car had pulled into the station to buy gas and while the attendent was operating the pump, the operator of the vehicle entered the garage.

The incident was reported at 6:40 p.m. Officer John McKinley investigated.

At 11:37 p.m. Saturday night, police received a report that a breaking and entering was in progress at Binding's Mobil Station at Forest and Washington Streets.

Officers Daniel Pigott, William O'Neill, Frank Vozzella, Albert Duffy and John McKinley were sent to the scene.

Upon their arrival, they found the intruders had fled. Entry was presumed to be gained by breaking a section of glass on an overhead door. The office was ransacked but nothing was missing, according to the police report.

Mrs. John Merritt of 102 Wildwood Street, secretary to Fire Chief I. Francis Amico, is a patient at the Winchester Hospital. Mrs. Merritt entered the hospital on Monday, January 13.

Cancer Detection Clinic Planned At. N.E. Memorial

"A Cancer Detection Clinic was the topic under discussion at a recent meeting of the New England Memorial Hospital (Stoneham) Auxiliary," reports Mrs. Bette McCormack, Auxiliary president.

The Auxilary members met with three representatives of the American Cancer Society to make plans for a free examination and demonstration of breast self-examination which is set for April 29 and 30 at the hospital.

The American Cancer Society claims that four out of every five women with breast cancer may be saved through early detection and treatment.

Cancer of the breast, the most prevalent form of cancer in American women is actually one of the "easiest" cancer types to detect, and in its early stages, can often be cured.

The New England Memorial Hospital Auxiliary is planning a program whereby women are instructed in self-examination, and also given a free breast examination by a physician.

Registration forms are available from the hospital's Health Education Department or from membe-s of the Auxiliary.

Collection For Cerebral Palsy To Be Sunday

The Cerebral Palsy Association of Greater Boston begins its 1969 campaign with a house-to-house march in most Greater Boston communities this coming Sunday, January 19th.

In addition this Association hopes to conduct a building fund campaign for the establishment of a rehabilitation and educational center. According to the Association president Michael Connolly.

Cerebral palsy is the result of damage to the brain's motor control centers and it usually occurs before birth. Those afflicted may be unable to walk or talk or to use their arms. They may, in addition, have defective hearing, sight or speech. Mr. Connolly cited the urgent need for volunteer workers to carry out their assignments on time and to make their returns as promptly as possible. Persons in the Greater Boston area may obtain additional information about cerebral palsy by calling the Greater Boston office at 969-3214.

"We are looking forward to the active cooperation of the entire community."

"The lack of a cabinet-type government such as other states have and the size of the workload is going to make it hard (for Sargent).

"As for Richardson's office, he, too, was the first four-year attorney general. This had given him a chance to spend two years organizing his staff and material for his fight against crime... Now there is a big question...."

A spokesman for the Winchester Democratic Committee agreed. "With Volpe leaving the Commonwealth with a wealth of problems, after a year of travel and politicking, any Republican for statewide office will suffer," said John Sullivan, a member of the Board of Selectmen. "Much can happen in the next two years. But the Democrats must come up with an exciting candidate for Governor... if they expect to take over in 1970."

To Washington

The Saltmarshes, though invited, will not attend the inauguration. Expected to head to Washington soon, however, are Dr. and Mrs. William Barone, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Blackham Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bonnell, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schiffmacher and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Woodward.

The Massachusetts guests will attend the Inaugural Ball at the Statler-Hilton, believed to be the Ball which Nixon will attend. They will be housed at the America Hotel.

On Saturday afternoon the women will be among those honored at the reception for distinguished ladies to be held at the National Gallery of Art.

Other festivities which the group will attend include Governor Volpe's reception on Saturday night, a party to be given by Senator Edward Brooke and the Vice-President's reception on Sunday.

Hills are traffic traps when the roads are slick because of ice and snow, according to Chief of Police Joseph J. Derro and the International Assn. of Chiefs of Police. "Pace yourself with other traffic so you can get up enough momentum to carry you to the top of the hill without stopping if possible," advises Chief Derro. "But ease-up as you get to the crest and before you start on the downgrade. There may be stalled or skidding cars ahead."

The Winchester Star

Established 1880 By Theodore P. Wilson, Sr.

Serving The Community For 88 Years

Editorials:

In Vietnam

This week brings the news that another son of Winchester—the third—has lost his life in the Southeast Asian war. The aggregate heart of the town goes out to the Zenga family on Cambridge Street, for whom the far away, amorphous conflict has brought immediate and everlasting grief. The young man's name in gold will record for Winchester his death in the service of his country.

Sergeant Ronald Zenga was an outgoing and giving young man who had written home many times about his satisfaction in working to teach English to the children of Nha Trang and in playing softball with his small Asiatic friends. The young Air Force medal winner loved to fly, and he died doing a job in which he deeply believed.

Building Committee Woes

There is no area in which it is more important that the Town's money is more carefully spent than that of school building and it is everyone's business how well the volunteer committees are progressing in their respective areas of responsibility: the Secondary School Building Subcommittee in readying for bids the plans for the new high school (Its parent group the Permanent Building Commitee takes up the job from there); and the Elementary School Building Commitee planning for the additions, renovations and other contingencies necessary to fit the Town's school population into its present eight sites or make other accommodations.

The SSBC has functioned at top efficiency and has earned the high regard of anyone close to its programming for the Town. Last week it heard the bad news that architect Frank Crimp could not give a firm date for the bids to go out. Sickness and lack of help were cited; it was also easy to infer that given the November threat to the school, the Winchester project was not kept at the top of the firm's list. Chairman Arthur Dunbar promised to visit the Crimp, Brown and Fisher offices once a week until things are ready to go. More than that one cannot ask.

A month ago we complimented the Elementary Committee on its projections toward Town Meeting, uncertainties notwithstanding. At that time there appeared to be some question as to what the School Committee and School administration want in the way of grade grouping. Since then the Star has been able to find no evidence that this is a current issue. We were told yesterday by the superintendent that "about a month ago the School administration reaffirmed to the ESBC chairman that the school districting should be maintained with the kindergarten through sixth grade, three year junior high and three year high school structure." The highly capable ESBC chairman appears to have been working hard recently. But his commitee seems not to have been called together for some time. Perhaps there is good reason for this but on the surface one would think that at this moment every informed mind should be used to get this important program before Town Meeting. We look to a clearing of the decks at tonight's meeting that will lead to Committee action in time for something concrete at Town Meeting.

Is There A New Mrs. Hicks?

The name Louise Day Hicks has stood for intransigeance in the area of race relations in Boston and across the nation. Her person has been a rallying point for all those who have felt outrage at what they consider out of proportion demands of, and consideration for, the ghetto blacks. She has become a heroine for the openly racist.

Next week Mrs. Hicks will speak here, invited by a committee of three representing the Kiwanis, Lions and Rotary Clubs. It will be interesting to know what she has to tell the men; for two weeks ago there was a new Mrs. Hicks on view.

Those who heard the show could better report it. But the Boston press carried some stories and the January 13 Newsweek has a review of what took place the night Mrs. Hicks and eight others chosen from the Boston school officialdom and the black community were shut into a small WBZ radio studio together for 2 consecutive hours as part of a "sensitivity training" or "insight training" project.

Producer Jerry Wishnow had asked 151 persons to take part; 142 refused him. Clearly Mrs. Hicks deserves the credit for jumping into something unknown. WBZ initiated the project under the guidance of psychologist Dr. Malcolm Knowles of Boston University. "We have discovered that if we can keep people together for just a day, they will begin to get out of their stereotypes and begin to communicate," explained Dr. Knowles to the Star. His kind of behavioral project is similar to one practiced with success by Winchester's psychologist Dr. Leo Lieberman.

The WBZ effort fascinated hundreds of listeners who responded with calls which the participants were gracious enough to answer shortly after their marathon meeting. "These people that are traditionally adversaries," said Dr. Knowles, "spent about three hours just shouting at each other. This was followed by about five to six hours of fact getting. Then for four or five they began to get to know each other as people—where had they grown up, what were their parents like, etc. By Saturday morning (they had come together on Friday) they moved into a let's pretend stage. They imagined the kind of city they could build and discovered they wanted the same kind. . . They ended on a 'where do we go from here?' note."

The breakthrough had evidently come when a young negro teacher gave a long, moving, explanation of what it felt like to be black. "No one ever told me," responded Mrs. Hicks. And, "I just didn't understand before."

Utopia is not around the corner. But this WBZ show tells that theoretically, understanding could be. Could one coop up LBJ and Ho Chi Minh? William Clayton Powell and Billy Graham? Kenneth Galbraith and Richard Nixon? What possibilities! The Winchester club men will find out next week if Mrs. Hicks has changed. Dr. Knowles informs that WBZ is making a video tape for an hour's Channel 4 show to be shown probably on January 27. Both presentations merit close attention.

Editorial Comments

After last week's pictures about the rescue of a collie dog from the Aberjona ice appeared, it came to our attention that the dog has been barking for some time before anyone in the vicinity—meaning particularly the ice skating rink— responded. Two young ladies, the Misses Marguerite Laurenti and Kitty Smith, aged nine, were bothered by the situation. Finally, when no one older did anything, they took themselves over to the firehouse and reported the incident. Apathy is learned early.

More reassuring to report is the response of the community to the Red Cross Bloodmobile last week. The 120 pints collected was a sum well over the usual mid-winter receipts. Many donors waited patiently and good naturedly for a much longer than average time to give. Many others giving for the first time learned that it is a simple but completely satisfying act.

The available printed fare by news analysts is large and varied in the Boston area. It is appreciated particularly at a time like this when looking ahead to National policy is as consuming a subject as looking back. Also on the not-to-be-missed list as information and opinion challenging presentations are the superb Channel 2 special news programs. The New York Times-sponsored News in Perspective (most usually including Tom Wicker and Max Frankel, last week moderated by Clifton Daniels) comes bi-monthly Wednesday nights with a Sunday repeat. World Press with direct reports of how England, France, Germany and usually two or three other countries are seeing America in the world is fast-paced and full. It is on Saturdays. The Public Broadcasting Laboratory specials have been outstanding. They go on Sunday evenings.

Recently Phil Wallwork, Jefferson Road resident who heads the public relations at the Automobile Legal Association, reported from his New England area an increase in accidents purportedly caused by the relatively new yellow plastic-strip street divider markers and called to caution his co-residents. His report included a small skid of his own on Main Street here which he felt could be attributed to the strips. "The material used does not absorb the heat in the same way that the street surface does and therefore the strips will sometimes hold islands of iciness which are unsuspected by the driver," Mr. Wallwork theorized. Highway and Police officials here have yet had no complaints on this score. But it is clearly in order to call attention to this potential hazard.

We have reserved and still do reserve judgement on how much fault accrues to the Boston Edison for the multiple service interruptions which followed the recent ice storm—how to assess their attempt to get things going again against the fact that there are a lot of tree limbs which should have come down before. But it does seem fair to report a correction in the number of hours the service was out here. Gene Rotondi told the Star that on Forest Street and its environs service was out up to 20 hours, considerably longer than the company's estimate of six as a high. Elsewhere in the paper today is an important review of what should be done to repair shrubs and trees, prepared by the Nurserymen's Association, submitted by Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm.

Proprietors of yard goods stores have known it for some time; along with skirts very short and the hair very long (or very short) it is now the "in" thing to make your own clothes. Two weeks ago the Star book review looked at "Sewing Made Easy," a primer for the uninitiated. Last week a State Make-It-Yourself-in-Wool contest was reported. Next Monday is registration night for the winter term adult education classes of which one is sewing. There is no time like the present to get with it, girls.

Some Parents Do Care

Editor of the Star:

I would like to express my personal opinion on the problem that exists at the Drop-In Center: no chaperones.

Both my husband and I have been called upon on several occasions to chaperone and we have obliged. In fact on one occasion I was called at 7:15 p.m. to relieve at 9:30 p.m., another chaperone who had a meeting to attend. I obliged again, only this time I had no choice but to take my two elementary school children along. It was that important to me to know where my teen-age son was going to be from 9:30-11 p.m. and had I refused the Drop-In Center would have been closed for the evening and the many other teenagers that were there that evening would have been sent to the streets and corners to hang-out.

Let's face it—what teenager is going home at 9:30 on a Friday evening?

Many parents may think I have all kinds of time to donate, but believe me in order to help I have to re-arrange my many other commitments.

A lot of parents may think it's a boring way to spend an evening. But look at it this way—it's such a small price to pay to keep your son or daughter off the streets and out of trouble. But then, maybe some parents just don't care.

The youth of this town has been great and it would be a terrible let-down to have to close the Drop-In Center after all the work, time and money the kids have put into it. Let's help the kids out.

If I have reached only one parent who is willing to chaperone, I will have self satisfaction in writting this letter. You may sign up for any afternoon or evening at your own convenience. Just call Jan Eschner 729-6578 any evening.

Most sincerely,
Mrs. Thomas O'Conner

Couldn't Care Less?

Editor of the Star:

Regarding the route signs in Winchester Center:

They were installed by the Massachusetts Department of Public Works. The date—8th month, 1967 — is marked on the back of the signs, and the cement poles have a State seal imbedded in the cement.

The Department was told of this two-mile difference after their installation. But it has not been corrected.

Respectfully,
John (Jake) Horn
Winchester Highway Dept.

'Grateful'

Editor of the Star:

As parents of Seaman Daniel J. Martin, U.S. Navy, we wish to express our grateful thanks for the many prayers offered for Danny's recovery from a serious injury. Also we appreciated the many cards, letters and remembrances that he received at the Naval Hospital, Portsmouth, Virginia.

Alert On Hickel

Editor of the Star:

In the interests of conservation, I strongly urge every person who cares about the future of our nation's natural resources and wildlife to write Senators Brooke and Kennedy immediately, asking them to vote against the confirmation of Walter Hickel as the next Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. Hickel, who is "against conservation for conservation's sake," who has such a poor record in dealing with the problems of water pollution in just his own state (Alaska) while governor, who is so obviously sympathetic to special interest groups seeking to exploit our natural resources, is certainly not the man for this increasingly critical position.

It might also be a good idea to write to Prisident-elect Nixon, urging him to withdraw Mr. Hickel's name as Secretary of the Interior.

Sincerely yours,
Ronald Clayton

Gift Appreciated

Editor of the Star:

I would like the following letter made public in the Star. Thank you.

Dear Homefronters:

I would like to thank you for the wonderful Christmas package you sent to me. I am an airman in the United States Air Force and it's a wonderful feeling to know that someone has taken the time to bring a little cheer into the lives of the servicemen in my town.

Although I was not able to be home for the holidays I want to thank you for bringing the season closer. You are all doing fine work and I'm sure I speak for all the servicemen of Winchester when I say that your gift was well appreciated. Thank you once again and may God Bless You.

Sincerely,

Zoo-Aid

Editor of the Star:

I would like to call to the attention of your readers their chance to improve the two zoos serving our area: the Stoneham Zoo and the Franklin Park Zoo in Boston.

An imaginative, educational facility has been designed for Franklin Park to replace the shoddy, haphazard so-called zoo that exists now. A private organization, the Boston Zoological Society, has instigated this reform and is pressing to see that the children of the Boston area be educated to standards of health and care as they view animal exhibits.

The BZS is not new, but it is young and vital, with a membership of 700, presing toward a needed membership goal of 2,500.

If you are not already a member, but like children, animals and/or Boston, please let me know if you would like more details.

Membership is five dollars a year. (Not much if you like children, animals and/or Boston.) You're needed!

Sincerely,
Lenore Frazier

Unemployment Hits New Low

The year 1968 had the lowest level of unemployment recorded in Massachusetts in the past 12 years, according to a statement from Herman V. LaMark, director of the Division of Employment Security.

Using as an index the ratio of "insured unemployment," the average for 1968 was 2.8%, as compared to 3.0% for 1967 and 2.9% for 1966. Insured unemployed are those members of the work force who are filing claims for unemployment insurance.

The average ratio of insured unemployment of 2.8% for 1968 is the lowest since 1956, when it was 2.7%. The highest ratio during this 12-year period was in 1958, when it was 6.2%.

Mr. LaMark explained that the index of insured unemployment is used by many economists because it is possible to obtain actual figures on a weekly basis from the number of claims being made for unemployment insurance. Another index used is the estimated total unemployment rate, which in both 1968 and 1967 was also at the lowest rate since 1956.

The average number of insured unemployed during 1968 was 47,000. The majority of these were short-term unemployed out of work for seasonal or similar reason. The majority of longer-term unemployed were older workers who find it more difficult to obtain work if they lose their jobs because of technological advances, plant closings, or movings.

In November 1968, 59% of the insured unemployed were 45 years of age or older. Of all the insured unemployed who had been out of work 15 weeks or more, 73.6% were workers in this upper age bracket.

Director LaMark pointed out that while the average number of insured unemployed was about 47,000 during the year, another estimated 45,000 to 55,000 were unemployed but either not eligible for unemployment insurance or had exhausted their claims.

One program highlighted by Mr. LaMark was MDTA training. Since the start of the Manpower Development and Training Act in late 1962, more than 21,000 unemployed or underemployed have graduated from such courses in Massachusetts and more than 83% found employment in the field of work for which they had received training or in allied fields. In addition to those who graduated from their courses there are another 2,600 still in training.

Skilled training has been given in more than 100 different occupations. Through the training of these thousands of men and women, the employers of the Commonwealth have been able to cope, to a great degree, with the manpower shortage which have gone hand in hand with the low level of unemployment.

Only signed letters will be considered for publication in the Star. On rare occasions however, and to avert what might be damaging personal repercussions, the Star will, on request withhold the submitted name.

DEADLINE: Monday, 5 p.m.

All letters must be typed and double spaced for consideration.

BOOK REVIEW

Winchester Public Library

GREENSLEEVES

by Eloise Jarvis McGraw

Greensleeves is a book for young adults — a diary written by Shannon Lightley at the age of twenty about events which occurred when she was 18. However, the writing is so mature, the emotional content so expertly handled and the plot so absorbing, that it may be enjoyed by almost any age group — certainly by mothers of young adults.

Shannon's mother is a famous English actress, her father a well-known news commentator, both are divorced and remarried. Shannon has never had a real home, except briefly with relatives in rural Oregon when she was much younger. Educated in Europe and shifted all over the continent at a moment's notice, she persuades her father to let her return to Oregon for her senior year in high school. This is a complete failure since her background betrays her and her classmates will not accept her.

Upon graduation, she decides to return to Europe. As she is about to board the plane, an overwhelming desire to establish her own identity comes over her and she turns back. A trusted friend of the father's, and even more so of Shannon's, is waiting for her and persuades her to take on a temporary assignment for him to investigate the provisions of a very curious will. She occupies the room of the old lady who made the will, among the group of legatees. She gets a job as a waitress and tries to look like one — puts her red hair into a beehive, chews gum, uses the vernacular — and is sure her disguise is complete.

Shannon is too distinctive a personality to avoid causing speculation. Two young men, both legatees, take a profound interest in her — Sherry, a dreamy college student, who falls in love with her, and Dave Kulka, a violent young artist for whom Shannon feels an overpowering chemical attraction. Sherry nicknames her "Greensleeves" and so she is called by everyone, and manages to bring her back into normal relationships with young people.

Shannon's problem now increases. Is either of the two young men the answer to her quest for self, or does it lie elsewhere? Her dilemma is one many an 18-year-old must face, and this she does with unusual maturity. He conflicting emotions are tenderly but realistically handled (I have this on the word of a college freshman). Her relations with the other legatees and discovery of the reasons for the strange bequests, all have an effect on her expanding view of life.

Any mature young adult can, or will wish she could empathize with Shannon, and her decision about her future should be a guidepost to many. As an added attraction, it points to a happy ending.

March Of Dimes Appeals For Return Of Mailers

John Williams of 18 Mystic Avenue, chairman of the 1969 March of Dimes campaign, asked today that those who have not already returned their mailers received from The National Foundation-March of Dimes to do so at their earliest convenience

"Progress through research has done so much in recent years to uncover the causes of birth defects, yet so much more must be done," Mr. Williams said.

The March of Dimes supports more than 100 Birth Defects Centers across the nation to help these infants. Throughout this network are outstanding medical teams who are treating and rehabilitating young victims of birth defects.

Many other March of Dimes-supported scientists are carrying on research which, hopefully, one day will prevent these tragedies.

"Don't let the hour grow any later," Mr. Williams appealed, "Return your contribution to the March of Dimes in the next mail."

Fear Not

By Frances I. Hathaway

And it came to pass in the 1960's that there went out a pledge from the President of the nation that American men would go to the moon in that decade.

And so it was, that, in December of 1968, the days were accomplished that they should travel there.

And three wise men were brought forth, and were placed in a space capsule, high atop a giant rocket.

And suddenly, there came a blazing light in the east. And it streaked into the heavens.

And, lo, the word was brought to the people that the three men were indeed hurtling toward the moon. The noise of the rocket thundered about those on the ground, and they were proud, and yet afraid.

And the astronauts sent word to them: Fear not. For unto us this day is born a new era, which is that of interplanetary travel.

And there were in the same country engineers watching over their computers by day and night, and they were glad.

And the men and women who had made the rocket rise spoke their thanks. For they had given much of themselves to meet this challenge—yea, this dream.

And the astronauts made known the wondrous things they saw, and sent back magnificent gifts of knowledge and description.

And the people below came to understand that these gifts were but a few of the glories which were yet to come in future ages and they were filled with awe.

And they looked at one another as the astronauts circled in the heavens and they said, Surely, let us now go even into space, and see those things which shall be made known to us.

And they felt it was good.

And the moon beamed down around them, as it surely lighted men's paths two thousand years ago.

And the peoples of the earth, gazing up were filled with wonder.

And behold, there came into their hearts a feeling of great joy and gratitude. For they understood then, that if man could circle the moon with courage he could encircle the earth with understanding.

And many thought they heard a distant echo from another calm and wondrous night: On earth peace, good will toward men...

And they knew in their hearts that it must come to pass.

HAROLD H. McKINLEY JR.

Lt. Cdr. McKinley received a master's degree in management at the U. S. Naval Postgraduate School at Monterey, California, in December 1967.

Since January 1968 he has been assigned to the staff at the Atlantic Fleet Anti-Submarine Warfare Tactical School in Norfolk, Virginia, as an instructor.

The mission of the school is to provide formal training to individuals, ranging from enlisted rank to admiral, and team training to anti-submarine units.

Lt. Cdr. McKinley is a 1954 graduate of Winchester High School and a 1959 graduate of Kings Point, U. S. Merchant Marine Academy. He is presently residing with his wife, Elaine, and three sons in Virginia Beach, Virginia. They spent a week of their vacation in Winchester last August.

Otis Brown To Speak On Box Project

Otis Brown of Sunflower, Mississippi, never completed a formal education. At 22, his personal inspiration and hard work has brought a brightness to the deeply depressed, poverty ridden, hungry and frustrated area of Sunflower County, Mississippi.

Through his Mississippi Box Project hundreds of families across the country have "adopted" less fortunate families in the South. The relationship is a personal family-to-family one.

Mrs. Mary Laflamme, Eastern Massachusetts coordinator for the MBP has announced that Mr. Brown is making one of his rare trips north.

Mr. Brown will speak at an open meeting in Stoneham at the All Saints' Parish Hall, 79 Central Street, on Sunday, January 19th at 3 p.m. The meeting is sponsored by the Stoneham Council of Churches.

Many "helper" families from the area will be on hand and all interested are urged to attend.

Crittenton To Hear Of Urban Problems

Problems of the urban family, primarily the black family, will be described to Jr. Circle of Florence Crittenton Tuesday evening by Frances Hill Gelber of the Roxbury Multi-Service Center.

Mrs. Gelber, who is supervisor of social services at the Center, will tell how urban families are affected by systems such as welfare, police and housing. The Roxbury Multi-Service Center where she works is a United Fund Agency providing counseling, guidance and action on employment, housing, legal, family and other problems.

Mrs. Gelber was born and brought up in Roxbury. She earned a degree in psychology from Boston University. After graduating from Simmons College School of Social Work in 1956 she worked at New England Home for Little Wanderers and became a senior case worker.

She joined the Roxbury Multi-Service Center in September 1965 as child welfare worker, acting as liaison with the Boston Child Placing Executives Committee.

The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Robert McNamara, 14 Dix Street.

Art Classes Begin Term

The adult art classes, sponsored by the Winchester Art Association and under the direction of King Coffin, begin the second term of the academic year on Monday, January 27, at the Winchester High School art classrooms. Registration is at 7 p.m. with classes beginning at 7:30.

There will be groups for beginners, intermediate and advanced students. The choice of medium is the student's and for those interested in portraits, a model is available.

Mr. Coffin is a member of the faculty at the Museum School, where he not only teaches drawing, but is also coordinator for all the drawing courses offered by the school.

According to Mr. Coffin, "The beginners' group stresses the elements of drawing and design, and how fast the individual students progresses is up to him.

"Everyone has some spark of creativity that can be developed, and in the process a great deal of pleasuse can be derived," he said.

Additional information about the Winchester Art Association classes may be obtained by telephoning Mrs. Herman Sweet, education committee chairman, after 6 p.m. at 395-6062.

Between 1821 and 1832, U.S. Army captains and lieutenants, as well as noncommissioned officers wore chevrons. However, since 1832 only noncoms have worn chevrons in the U.S. Army, except at West Point, where they are still used to designate the rank of cadet officers.

Youth Hockey Wins Two Against West Point Teams

A group of coaches and players from the Winchester Youth Hockey Association led by Director Bill Cruwys left in two buses on Friday, January 3rd to play the Pee Wee and Bantam teams from West Point. The Pee Wee team coached by Jim Murphy outskated the West Point Pee Wees 2-1 while Coach Nick Troiano's Bantams soared to a 5-1 victory.

The Pee Wees started out as though they would blow West Point right out of their own rink. They kept the pressure right on the Pointers from the opening whistle and most of the play was in the West Point zone for the first two minutes. West Point finally broke away and caught the Winchester defense up ice with a 3 on 1 break and scored to take a quick 1-0 lead.

Murphy's high flying sextet kept the pressure on the West Pointer's goalie who was phenomenal in the nets and finally the Pee Wee's outstanding defenseman Kevin Pierce led a rush up the ice that led to the first Winchester score. Pierce took the puck behind the West Point net where he passed out to John "Whitney" Murphy who was left uncovered in front of the net and Murphy's quick shot to the far corner was true.

The period ended deadlocked at 1-1.

Winchester kept the pressure on West Point all through the final period and finally with 43 seconds left on the clock Tommy Brennan sent Richie Jacobs in all alone on the West Point goalie and Jacobs didn't miss and Winchester had a 2-1 lead that looked very secure.

The Sachems drew a minor penalty and with 2 seconds left on the clock a West Point player got off a quick hard shot to the corner that looked labeled only to have the quick cat like move of goalie Mike O'Leary kick it into the corner as the buzzer went off. The Pee Wee's other goalie Cliff Falla played the first half of the game also was outstanding, and both goalies seem to come up with the big save.

In League competition, the Pee Wees are 6-0-1 and play their games Saturday afternoons at Hockey Town, USA.

Coach Nick Troiano's Bantams controlled the game from the outset as they won their game 5-1.

Winchester's dynamite line of Rick Murphy, Dave Frongillo and Steve Troiano scored four of the five goals. With George Evans and Bobby Carroll home with the flu, team trainer Paul Whitney dressed in an emergency role and scored the Bantams first goal with Steve Troiano and Bruising Billy Gannon getting assists. Tommy Belden playing another one of his fine games set up Rick Murphy for the second goal of the game that also proved to be the winner, and Winchester had the lead 2-0 as the period ended.

Big Line Pays

With two minutes gone in the second period, Dave Frongillo stole the puck from a West Point defenseman in the corner, skated right out in front and beat the goalie with a quick backhander to the near side. A little of a minute later West Point scored their lone goal catching the Winchester defense out of position. Goalie Richie Coakley made two fine saves and was at the mercy of the West Point scorer as he finally put it behind the Bantams great little goalie.

Winchester upped the count to 4-1 late in the second period with their big line of the day scoring. The agressive Frongillo tried to swing the West Point defense, was dragged to the ice but managed to get it to Murphy who fed the uncovered Troiano as he flicked it into the twine. Steve Troiano also scored the final goal of the game combining with linemates Dave Frongillo and Rick Murphy.

Although one line did most of the scoring, the team on a whole is a very well balanced club. Each line seems to come with a big game and has contributed so far to their success. With a little more luck the team could have had a couple more goals. Tommy Belden had the toughest luck as he hit the post once and the crossbar once. Tommy Brennan and Kevin Pierce dressed for the shorthanded Bantams and did a fine job playing with faster company. Defensemen Bill Gannon and Eddie Pierce were also outstanding especially Pierce who kept the West Point goalie hopping with his booming shot from the point.

The Bantams next game is Saturday night against Charlestown at 8:50 p.m. at Hockeytown USA.

Pee Wees Down Billerica

The Winchester Pee-Wee B hockey team continued to show improvement as it downed Billerica 3-2 in a hard-fought game this Sunday at Bedford.

After a scoreless first period the local team tallied first with newcomer Mike Donnellan tucking home a rebound.

Mike Jeannette and Phil Neergaard assisted.

Billerica tied the score late in the period while Winchester was short-handed.

Early in the third period center Dave Dolan won a face-off at center-ice, stick-handled into the Billerica end and scored on a fine shot into the upper corner of the net. Billerica again tied the score midway through the third period.

With just seconds remaining in the game, Dave Dolan won a face-off just outside the Billerica zone and knocked the puck ahead to Allyn Stillman who then slid it over to Will Paglia breaking in on the left wing and he slammed it home under the sprawling goalie.

This was a hard-hitting contest all the way with a good deal of spirited checking, but a well deserved victory for the B's who have now won two in succession.

Defensemen Tom Allyn, Dave Putnam, Charley Derro and Mark Milley turned in some good defensive play with Mark, a recent switch from wing showing some good hockey savvy.

Next week's opponent is the Wakefield entry, a first division club since its belated start in league play. Game time is 5 p.m.

Sachem Icemen Drop A Pair Of Close Ones

The Sachem hockey team continues to play fine hockey, but still missed out by the closest possible margin.

This past week saw two more heartbreakers as the team fell before a capable Stoneham sextet 2-1; and on Saturday they played at Milton Academy, dropping a 3-2 decision.

The Stoneham game was always close, and up to the final whistle the result was in doubt. The rival sextet is runner-up to Melrose in the Middlesex League, with its only defeat coming at the hands of the Ell Ponders by 8-5.

At Milton the Winchester team enjoyed a wide territorial advantage, but superb play by Perry in the Milton goal thwarted its efforts.

The Sachems outshot the home sextet by a wide margin, but the only shots to get by Perry were widely spaced, one in the first period and the other in the last.

Winchester hopes to get back on the right side of the ledger and to climb a few notches in the standings by besting Watertown in its game Tuesday.

Saturday the team goes against Reading at 3 p.m. All games are at the Lynn Arena.

Grapplers Having Successful Season

The Winchester High wrestlers coached by Tom Kline have been doing well in all meets to date.

As a matter of fact, they have beaten Malden, Billerica, Reading and Weston. The latter two victories came last week and both were contested away from home. Reading fell 37-24, and the margin at Weston was 52-13.

Their only defeat was at the hands of Melrose when three matches were lost by forfeit due to absence of key performers.

The outstanding local boys at Reading were Jim Barry and Don D'Andria, and the most improved wrestler has been named as Ralph Tullberg. Don D'Andria has the fastest win of the season, pinning his Billerica opponent in 35 seconds.

The strong Chelmsford group was met here Tuesday, and Lexington will be here tomorrow, followed by Concord next week on Tuesday. After that the season will be all on the road, with visits to Brookline, Wakefield and Newton South.

Grutchfield Out As Hoop Coach At Belmont

Doug Grutchfield, basketball coach at Belmont, has resigned his berth and taken a position in a business enterprise in Arlington.

The rangy North Quincy High and later University of Massachusetts captain has decided to end his coaching career, which found him producing scrappy and well-drilled teams which broke just about even during his years at the helm.

He was always on his toes and had built up a very good junior high organization which was just beginning to get results.

Besides his work with the cage game he had coached the cross country group, and last season he was assistant during the football campaign.

The decision to make the change came as a surprise to players, school officials and coaches of the league. Only a couple of weeks back when his team played on a local court he told of his plans for a good season and spurred his team to a 74-67 comeback effort after a first period which saw them badly outclassed by the Sachem hoopsters.

CYO Skiers Head To Vermont

Skiing on Okemo Mountain in Vermont this weekend will be 45 members of the Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) of St. Eulalia's Church.

The group will leave the church at 6 p.m. Friday on a chartered bus and return at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Heading the arrangements committee is Leslie Baerenwald of 55 Johnson Road. Chaperones include the Reverend Paul Fahey and Deacon Jack Burke of St. Eulalia's, Buddy D'Andraia of 5 Taft Circle, and Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Fox of Arlington.

The CYO plans another ski weekend in February.

Bruins Tie Maple Leafs 3-3

The Bruins held on to first place and remained undefeated as they tied the spirited Maple Leafs 3-3 last Sunday morning. The Rangers and the Black Hawks battled to a 4-4 tie, while the Canadiens picked up their first win of the season as they upset the Red Wings 5-2.

While Coaches Bevan O'Callaghan of the Canadiens and Brian McCormack of the Red Wings failed to make the game. Chris MacKenzie took over the helm for the Habs and outfoxed the old master Duane Belden in guiding the Canadiens to their first win of the season. George Evans got the Wings on the board first with Jimmy Dale picking up an assist, but then it was all Canadiens.

The Brennan brothers broke loose with Jack tieing it up two minutes later, and then younger brother Tommy proceeded to score three unassisted goals and the Canadiens had a 4-1 lead.

Dave Craven closed the gap to 4-2 on a set-up by George Evans, but 30 seconds later Bobby Carroll made the final score of the day with Dan Martignetti drawing an assist.

Rangers Paul Troisi and Black Hawks' Dana Peterson exchanged unassisted goals early in the game before Richie Jacobs got two quick goals for the Rangers to give them a 3-1 lead late in the first period. Jerry Granfield set up Jacobs for his first score, while Steve Murphy assisted on the second score.

The Black Hawks finally got rolling early in the final period as their Billy Harris pumped in two goals withing a minute, bot set up by Paul McCormack, their hard-working defenseman.

Dave Dolan put the Hawks out in front late in the period, combining with Jeff Wilbur; but with less than three minutes left in the game Rick Murphy fed to Chris MacKenzie for the final Ranger score and a 4-4 tie.

The final game of the morning saw a hard-hitting affair as the Bruins and the Maple Leafs played to a 3-3 tie. The hard-hitting and high-scoring Bruins built up a 3-0 lead and looked as if they were going to blow the Leafs right out of the rink.

Joey Penta put in Jimmy Beck's rebound for the first B's score, and Bobby Gill had an unassisted one for the second. Joey Penta had his second goal of the game, with Dave Frongillo and Bobby Gill picking up assists, and the Bruins had a 3-0 lead as the first period ended.

Although outmuscled, the Leafs got their second wind and their potent offense moing. The Leafs hard-rocked defenseman Mike Sandford got the Leafs moving as he led a rink-length dash for the first score, with Steve Troiano and Jimmy Graham receiving assists.

Paul Whitney scored the other two goals for the Maple Leafs, with Mike Sandford setting up his first score and the final one an unassisted effort by Whitney.

Both goalies, Rich Maggio and Richie Coakley, were outstanding.

The Flyers extended their lead in the Pee Wee Division to six points as they won both of their games 1-0 over the Blues and 4-0 over the North Stars. The Kings and the Seals fought to a 1-1 draw in game two.

The Kings finally made their first win of the season 1-0 over the Blue in the fourth game of the morning. The North Stars closed out the morning's action with a 1-0 triumph over the hard-skating Seals.

The players chosen this week for their outstanding performances were Tommy Brennan in the big rink and Goalies Pete Frongillo and Danny Whitney in the small rink.

Brennan had the hat trick for the Canadiens in leading them to their initial victory of the season. All of Brennan's goals came unassisted and, all were consecutive, which was ag reat feat for the hustling little center.

In the small rink it seems to be a goalies' world. Both Pete Frongillo and Danny Whitney have been tremendous. Both boys are in their first year at this tough position. Frongillo had four shutouts in the five games he played, while Whitney gave up one goal in four of his five games.

Hoopsters Beat Stoneham, Reading; Play Concord-Carlisle Tomorrow

John F. Parrell

The Sachem basketball team, coached by Vandy French, had a very successful week, winning two games by beating Stoneham a week ago Tuesday 70-67 and following up with a 67-61 defeat of Reading on Friday evening.

Both of these games were played away from home, and the Winchester team showed an improved brand of ball, particularly at the defensive end of the floor, where miscues played a large part in their three-game losing streak in the opening Middlesex League games.

These victories bring the Sachems' season's record to date (before last Tuesday's game) to four wins against three defeats; and if they can continue their improvement the team could be quite well up in the standings before the second round of play begins.

Games this week with Melrose on Tuesday and Concord-Carlisle at home tomorrow evening will complete the action for the first half.

Lexington continues to lead the parade and has yet to lose. Its only close game to date was with the Sachems, which it won by the narrow margin of four points.

Winchester was off to a fast start at Reading and built up a 19-12 margin at the end of the first quarter. It held this advantage through a deadlocked second period, with both teams hanging up 16 points.

The home team came roaring back after the intermission to tally 20 points and take the lead by a single point, 48-47, as the third period came to a close. The locals rallied in a nip-and-tuck final quarter and finally pulled away to their 67-61 victory by limiting the Reading quintet to a mere 13 points in the final eight minutes.

Vic Papadinis with 22 points and Capt. Tom Workman with 16 led the attack for Winchester, while Kenney and Yeo of the home team combined for 43 points.

The Winchester junior varsity group won its first game of the campaign after six futile attempts by beating their Reading counterparts 52-44, led by Peter DeNatale and Bob Bigelow with 16 points

The presentation was made by Major General Joseph J. Cody Jr., ESD's commander at Hanscom Field, Bedford.

CAPT. PHILLIP A. VULTAGGIO

The citation accompanying the award read in part: "Captain Vultaggio's personal stamp was placed on virtually all of the efforts of the military-civilian staff and his initiative and creativity served to forge new directions and accomplishments for the Information."

Captain Vultaggio, who is departing from the active military service, was also presented an ESD plaque by General Cody at a ceremony last week.

A 1956 graduate of Everett High School, Captain Vultaggio earned his B.A. degree in economics at Harvard University and his M.B.A. degree in public relations administration at Syracuse University.

Captain Vultaggio entered the Air Force eight years ago and has headed the ESD Information program since April 1966.

Students Receive Awards From 'Operation Kindness'

Eighty-seven students from Winchester High School have been commended by public and voluntary health, welfare and education officials for their participation in the Operation Kindness community service program.

Certificates of commendation have been presented to the students on behalf of Operation Kindness by the program sponsors, United Community Services of Metropolitan Boston and the Bureau of Civic Education, Massachusetts Department of Education and the health and welfare agencies and instutions they served in a wide range of volunteer service activities.

As a program of youth service to help meet the needs of more than 340 Massachusetts Bay Area health and welfare agencies, Operation Kindness places volunteer college and high school youth in more than 150 types of job assignments with among others, hospitals, day care centers, settlements, recreation agencies, libraries and mental and penal institutions, museums and tutorial programs.

Since its inception 12 years ago, the program has provided nearly .5 million service hours to health and welfare agencies and hospitals, and has recruited and placed more than 45,000 youths in meaningful volunteer service, as well as thousands of adults of all ages.

In addition to the valuable contribution participants make in terms of service, the assignments they undertake affirm the awareness, appreciation and capacity young volunteers have for needed community service.

Moreover, and as UCS, Bureau of Civic Education and agency and hospital officials are quick to point out, Operation Kindness is a constructive pre-career experience in the health, education and social welfare fields, one which actually increases the effectiveness of health, social welfare and educational porgrams by permitting professional staff people to concentrate on higher priority duties.

Religious Group Holds Convention

Paul Genaris, presiding minister of the Burlington congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses recently told the congregation what could be expected at the up-coming assembly at Arlington High School, Massachusetts Avenue, January 17 to 19.

Mr. Genaris said, "While it is sponsored by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of Brooklyn, New York, most of the program will be presented by qualified representatives from 17 congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses from eastern Massachusetts. The theme of the three day convention will be "Sharing Fully in Preaching The Good News."

Mr. Genaris further indicated, "A clarification will be made of the ministry of Jehovah's Witnesses, that emphasis will be put on teaching as well as preaching. This is because a good portion of the time spent by them in their worship is in the Home Bible Study activity. The program will offer instruction and demonstration on the most effective methods of teaching the Bible."

The Burlington congregation is awaiting the suggestions this program has prepared for them. Not only is it offered free to Jehovah's Witnesses but is open to anyone who is interested in how a Christian can best use his life to please God and help his fellow man.

The feature lecture to be delivered on Sunday at 3:00 p.m. is "God's Way is Love" and will be presented by H. A. Fetzik, a traveling representative of the Watchtower Society of Brooklyn, New York.

Bridge Party Is Planned By Guild

The first social event of the season presented by the Winchester Chapter Guild of the Infant Saviour will be a snowflake dessert bridge on Wednesday January 22nd.

The K of C Hall, Mt. Vernon Street is the place, and Mrs. Jeremiah J. McCarron, vice president, is the chairman. Mrs. C. Philip O'Rourke is co-chairman.

All proceeds are designated for the Infant and Maternity Department of the Catholic Charitable Bureau of Boston.

Duplicate Bridge Club

Wednesday, January 8, brought forth a varied field of players, ranging from a three-man partnership training for an upcoming tournament as well as a life master ringed by kibitzers to the normal quota of newish players still happily learning the nuances of the game and most of us middle-of-the-roaders in between. In my opinion this rich blend is an excellent diet for the health and improvement of the Club.

In Section A's ten tables the ladies were tops North-South, namely Ruth Hagan and Elodie Flewelling, with gentlemen Gerry Barrett and Sam Burwen taking the honors

The Terrific Trio, Dave Littleton, Steve Root and Harvey Vine, headed the North-South list in Section B's eleven-and-one-half tables. East-West Peter Cullen and Don Delgrego, a partnership matched up at the door, had a big game to win.

Darrell Root contributes our hand this week.

"Although defense is reputed to be the most difficult part of a bridge game because you have to communicate and cooperate with your partner in order to produce the maximum effort by your team, many times you must congratulate the declarer for circumventing the efforts of the defense and producing a top result for his team. Alas, this is what happened to this defender on Board 4 of Section B on January 8. The board has been rotated for the convenience of the reader. My partner East opened with a pass, South bid one club and after a heart raise from North, South ended up as declarer at three no trump. Sitting in the West position looking at

♥ 10 4 2
♣ 10 8 6 3

I decided to lead the spade eight, hoping to set up my spade suit. After all, the opponents had bid both of the other suits I held. Dummy spread

♠ K
♥ A J 8 5 3
♣ Q 7 4

So the singleton king of spades won the trick. After studying the dummy, declarer called for a small heart, East played the six, declarer the nine, and I won with the ten. It is obvious now that the only chance we have to set the contract is to knock out the spade stopper in South's hand and hope my partner can get in to lead a spade. So I lead the nine of spades. South wins with the queen and follows with the king of hearts and a diamond to the Ace in dummy. I must now decide to throw a possible spade winner or possible club winner. Choosing the latter I throw a small club. The ace of hearts drops all outstanding hearts. So South plays his good hearts. The complete deal is as follows:

North
♠ K
♥ A J 8 5 3
♦ A 9 8 4
♣ Q 7 4

West
♠ A 10 9 8 3 2
♥ 10 4 2
♣ 10 8 6 3

East
♠ J 7 6
♥ Q 7 6
♦ Q J 10 7 6
♣ K 9

South
♠ Q 5 4
♥ K 9
♦ K 5 3 2
♣ A J 5 2

My discard of the clubs gives South the picture of that suit, so he plays low from the board, finessing the jack. His ace then drops the King, and his remaining clubs and the king of diamonds gives him twelve tricks.

An examination of the traveling score sheet indicates that of the eleven contracts nine were at three no trump by North, with only three successful, one making six, one making four, and one making three. Six were set, three down one trick, two down two, and one down three. The other two contracts were four hearts by South down one, and four spades doubled by East down two.

An inspection of all the hands reveals that from declarer's point of view, the only line of play to make the game, after a low spade lead, is to finesse the heart into the West hand, hoping that West must play the queen or that the hearts are split evenly. A spade continuation from that side cannot hurt you and will give you the queen. Any shift will help you.

Either I have to improve my defense or arrange not to play against such good declarers.

Editor's note: The shoe was on the other foot at our table. I was sitting South, also the declarer at three no trump. West, however, led the ace of spades, picking up my king in dummy, and continued a spade. The key here is to hold off with the Queen until the third spade and then finesse the heart the other way, hoping that East has no spades. It worked, also the club finesse, a real cliffhanger of a hand, but one that should be made, no matter what the lead.

Stop Smoking Plan To Start

Smokers who want to stop will have their chance January 19 through 23, 7:30 p.m., under a special five-day plan to be conducted at the New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham.

At the five-day plan smokers are surrounded by people with the same problem—a desire to stop, but a lack of will power sufficient to conquer the habit without the help of others.

Many smokers subconsciously believe that they are endangering their lives by smoking, but it somehow seems more believable when medical evidence is presented to back up this theory.

The five-day program includes talks by those in the medical profesion, comments by the director, and films pointing out the results of smoking.

Participants find encouragement in their endeavor to give up the smoking habit as well as suggestions concerning diet, etc., for the trying first days of the program. Those attempting to kick the habit will know that the many others who started on the program with them are going through the same agony elsewhere, trying to control their urge to reach for a cigarette.

The meetings are informal, with no pressure brought to bear by those conducting the program.

Curiosity seekers are also invited just to listen, even if they don't feel that smoking is a habit they wish to give up. Also being encouraged to attend are those who have already given up cigarette smoking for the cigar or pipe.

SECOND GENERATION Winton Club Cabaret drill member, Mrs. Joseph Knight, whose mother, Mrs. George Marks, has performed in many previous Cabaret drill numbers, is pictured being measured for her costume by Mrs. Percival Metcalf, who is again donating the drill costumes for the show, "Once Upon a Time." Assisting are young George Knight and his sister, Elizabeth, who is next in line for Winton Club. (Donald Young photo)

'Once Upon A Time' Has Winton Looking Back And Then Ahead

Once upon a time in 1911, young women of Winchester gathered to mend sheets for the then very small Winchester Hospital. They called themselves the Winton Club, choosing "Winton" as its name as it is the ecclesiastical signature of the Bishop of Winchester, England who had recently visited this town to participate in the laying of the cornerstone of the Episcopal Church here.

As the hospital and its needs grew, so did Winton Club and its work for the hospital. In 1921, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Merton Grush, its first cabaret was held, resulting very happily, in $320.40 which could be used for the maintenance of the hospital linen supply.

Today as the cast for 1969's "Once Upon a Time" completes its second week of rehearsal, the air is full of anticipatory success for Winton Club's continuing major goal of supplying all the linen for Winchester Hospital.

All reserved seats for the Saturday evening performance of the Winton Club cabaret are sold and tickets for Friday evening are growing scarce.

The "Once Upon a Time" Dragon who will be seen at the Town Hall January 28—February 1, has begun to leave his footprints on cars and windows throughout Winchester. The Town Hall is being transformed into storyland by hard working scenery, stage crew and decorating committees.

Reserved seats are still available for Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday evening performances, each with its particular atmosphere.

Informal Night

Thursday night, January 30, is the informal cabaret night, an innovation first added to show week in 1967. Seating is by tables and the audience is invited to dance during intermission and after the show. Light refreshments are available and, as is true every night, door prizes will be given to those whose program holds the lucky number.

Theater Night on Wednesday, January 29, will find the Town Hall seats arranged on riser platforms so that all may see every bit of the performance. Winton Club's wall drapery and technical acoustical improvements combine to guarantee that the lovely voices of the singers can be heard. The audience is invited to partake of refreshment at Winton Club's punch table which will be hostessed by Mrs. Austin Broadhurst, president of Winton Club.

Opening Night on Tuesday, January 28, is no longer a dress rehearsal, but is a full fledged performance designated as children's night although adults are welcome as well. The door prizes and refreshments are particularly suited to the younger generation.

Dr. Miller On Committee At Lesley College

Dr. George Miller of 22 Thornberry Road is a member of the Lesley College campus planning committee whose work recently received acclaim in a national report on urban colleges and universities.

The 20 page report, entitled "Campus in the City," urged higher education in cities to "build neighborhoods, not campuses." It was prepared by Educational Facilities Laboratories of New York, a non-profit corporation established by the Ford Foundation.

Dr. Miller and other members of the committee have been working closely with the college's architect to determine ways in which Lesley, a teacher's college for women, can completely rebuild its campus on the college's four acres of land in the heart of Cambridge.

Results of a four-year study call for the replacement of the college's renovated frame houses with a self-contained "urban academic village," that will integrate college housing, learning facilities and administration and faculty areas in a closely-knit education community.

Dr. Miller is Dean of teacher education at Lesley College.

Seven hundred babies are born with birth defects in the U.S. every day, says the March of Dimes.

Rt. Rev. Manion Leaves St. Mary's; Rev. Garrity Named

Monsignor Manion has retired from the pastorate at Saint Mary's Church, concluding over 16 years of service to this community.

Richard Cardinal Cushing has officially announced the retirement of the Right Reverend John M. Manion effective January 18. The parish heard the news at Masses on Sunday, and also that Father Manion has moved to the Regina Cleri in Boston where he plans to make his home.

In the same announcement statement, Cardinal Cushing named the Reverend James A. Garrity to be St. Mary's new pastor. Father Garrity comes here from Lynnfield where he has been parish priest at the St. Maria Goretti Church.

Elevated Here

Father Manion came to Winchester in November of 1952. He was elevated to be a domestic prelate with the title of Right Reverend Monsignor seven years later.

Born in Plymouth May 28, 1895, Father Manion studied at St. John's Seminary in Brighton and was ordained in May, 1921 by Cardinal O'Connell.

He served parishes in Lowell and Somerville as assistant; Keith Academy in Lowell as chaplain; and as director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau in Lowell before becoming a parish priest. From November, 1945 until his arrival in Winchester, he served parishes in Rockland and in Walpole.

New Pastor Known

The Reverend Garrity was born in Roxbury September 21, 1906. He, too, was ordained by Cardinal O'Connell in the Holy Cross Cathedral after completing studies at St. John's.

His first appointment after his 1934 ordination was to Saint Charles Church in Woburn; and Father Garrity is well known by many here through his sustained associations in Winchester's mother town.

In 1953 the new pastor was a parish assistant in Saint Ann's Church in Gloucester, from 1954 to 1960 he held the same title at St. Mary's in Cambridge. He has been parish priest in Lynnfield since February, of that year. He is expected to say his first Mass here this week.

SSBC Looks To Spring Bids For High School

The Secondary School Building Subcommittee meets tonight in the McCall School: Meeting with it will be the Skating Rink Committee.

The suggestions of the Rink Committee that a rink be included on the Shore Road site of the new High School will be discussed. At its January 9 meeting the SSBC reported that an adequate indoor rink would require more footage than could be accommodated on the WHS site.

William Kimball of Ginn Road is chairman of the rink committee. Serving with his are William Cruwys, Barbara Joslin, James Russo and Arthur Carr representing Recreation.

WHS Outlook

Chairman Arthur Dunbar reports this week that the SSBC now anticipates bids for the High School to go out sometime in April.

In amplifying the report of the last meeting of the SSBC he noted that initial plans had been for the contracts for the site preparation—"scalping" of the Shore Road field, etc.,—to be separated from those of the superstructure, with the site work to have been done in the fall and the foundation work to have started this month.

Present plans, according to Mr. Dunbar, are to contract for the whole thing this spring.

Mr. Dunbar is still confident that his committee can keep the price of the High School within the approved budget.

A memorial fund in his honor has been established under the aegis of the Winchester Scholarship Foundation. Gifts may be made in care of the Winchester Trust Company.

Report On Incinerator Due Monday For Selectmen

The Board of Selectmen will consider accepting the "Report on Municipal Incinerator" by Fay, Spofford and Thorndike, Inc., consulting engineers, at its regular meeting of January 27. Acceptance of the report is contingent upon receipt of more detailed information on the need and extent of overhauling the existing crane at the incinerator, according to a spokesman for the Board.

At the Special Town Meeting called for February 13, an article asking action upon a report of the Board of Selectmen relating to the Town incinerator will be considered.

As a result of frequent breakdowns and the generally unsatisfactory operation of the incinerator, the firm of Fay, Spofford and Thorndike, Inc., were retained by the Board of Selectmen in September, 1968, to make a general survey and study of the conditions and operation of existing equipment to determine what had to be done to bring it up to its designed operating efficiency and reliability.

In addition, the engineering firm was to recommend modifications to increase the refuse storage capacity and to facilitate material handling.

Cost estimates on carrying out any recommendations were to be included as part of this report. The fee for the report was to be between $4,000 and $6,000.

The consultant's report was forwarded to members of the Board of Selectmen on December 3. It indicated that the consultant had retained Robert Abel & Co., Inc., the manufacturer of the existing crane at the incinerator, to have their factory expert examine it and determine the extent of the work necessary to overhaul the crane.

The findings of this factory expert were to be made available to the Board of Selectmen. The crane was not examined until January 9. The consulting engineers have indicated that the results of this examination with cost estimates, the last portion of the overall study, will be available some time this week to allow for formal acceptance of the completed report by the Board of Selectmen.

The engineering consultant has billed the Town for $3,615.61 for the report as originally submitted. Payment has been withheld pending receipt of that section of the report relating to the crane and formal acceptance of the entire report by the Board of Selectmen.

Government Committee Asks For Public Works Department

A department of Public Works which could centralize administration of seven Town departments was recommended to the Town Tuesday night and will be the subject of an article before the March Town Meeting.

This was the first public recommendation of the Town Government Study Committee, itself created by the 1968 Town Meeting. The official presentation of its recommendations was made at its regular meeting held at the Town Hall.

Reported invited were elected heads of department boards concerned and other officials.

Present in addition to the Committee were Moderator Harrison Chadwick; Town Counsel Leonard Mullen, Finance Committee Vice Chairman Robert Grenzeback and member Frederick LaTorella; Personnel Board Chairman Robert Erickson; Comptroller James Costello; Park Commission Chairman Albert MacDonnell and member Chandler Parkhurst; Cemetery Commission Chairman Ralph Hatch; Recreation Department Director Donald Spinney.

Government Study Committee Chairman Robert Armstrong made the presentation, which is printed in entirety below.

This is the first concerted push in the direction of a DPW for Winchester in several years.

Opposition

The strongest opposition to the recommendations came from Mr. MacDonnell and Mr. Parkhurst who stressed the value of the informed, interested citizen on the smaller boards.

"They won't get the attention of men who really know what's what," said Mr. Parkhurst, speaking for the little commissions, such as that of Cemetery.

In the suggested plan the Board of Selectmen would serve as the Board of Public Works and appoint its overall director.

Support

A strong back-up of the Committee suggestion, which had been made unanimously, came from Mr. Chadwick who, taking note of the objections, pushed for the values of co-ordinated administration.

"It's hard to see how anyone can feel you won't gain in strength by (this)," he told the group, pointing out the present "vertical" structure of administration and saying it needs to be restructured along the lines of activities so as to obviate duplication of effort.

"You have to keep restructuring government," said Mr. Chadwick, citing the effort of the just resigned Governor Volpe to do the same thing for the Commonwealth in the lines of a cabinet government.

He pointed to the effectiveness of a DPW in both Brookline and Wellesley.

Mr. Erickson challenged the DPW concept on the basis of the difficulties a director would have in planning and administrating at the same time.

The Study Committee had met previously with several department heads and chairmen. It has been at work since last spring.

Present, in addition to Chairman Armstrong were members David Ashton, Calvin Bowker, Clarence Feldmann, Barbara Hankins, Edward Hicks and Sherman Saltmarsh.

Recommended:

"At its meeting January 7, the Town Government Study Committee completed plans for a special article to be presented at the Annual Town Meeting, recommending creation of a Department of Public Works, with the Board of Selectmen serving as the Board of Public Works, and appointing a director of Public Works.

"Present departments that would be included in the Public Works Department are the Highway Department, Sanitation Department, Forestry, Water and Sewer, Cemetery, and Park Departments, and the Custodians of the Town Hall. This would include about 110 permanent employees, plus well over 30 temporary summer employees.

"Years ago such activities as street construction and maintenance, water and sewer services, garbage disposal, park services, and cemetery care and maintenance were not supplied by the Town. As needs for these services developed, Town Meetings often created a new entity to assume the responsibility, rather than give it to an existing official or board.

"As the job grew bigger, or if one official were assuming undue importance, some duties would be divided and given to another new official or board. This resulted in a greater number of officials and boards created with limited duties, answerable only to the Town Meeting which was responsible for their creation or election. One obvious weakness of this method of growing was the apparent lack of any built-in means for securing coordination and cooperation between departments performing related functions and using similar equipment.

"Since 1900, this lack of coordination has become increasingly evident to those communities which have separate departments such as street, water and sewer, park, cemetery, etc. In Winchester, in the past, we have followed the above-mentioned pattern of taking care of our services, and because of the many public-spirited citizens working with many boards doing a good and, many times, inspiring job. As far as I know, there never have been any actions but those motivated by what is good for Winchester. Our proposal is being put forward, not because what has been done by the individual boards has not been A-1, but for other reasons.

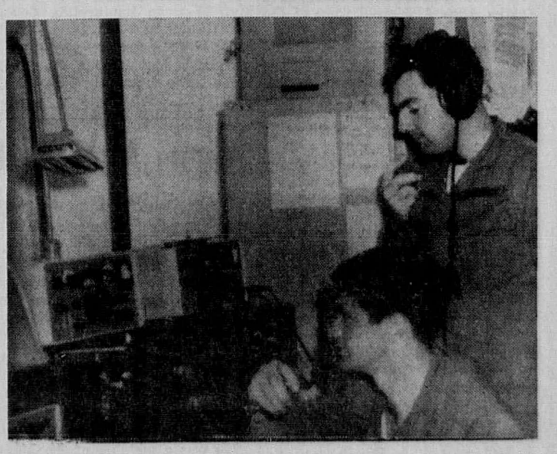

"Winchester has been growing rapidly, and there has been an increasing demand among the citizenry for better services. Furthermore, the budgets of the departments providing these services have been increasing slowly and steadily each year, so that their total has become a sizable figure. In 1968, these departments and boards were allocated $1,326,742. With annual budgets of this size, we sincerely think there can be sizable savings by centralization. We feet that this is where the biggest impact can be made at the present time to help check the ever-mounting tax rate in Winchester.

"The Town government Study Committee has met regularly since it was formed last spring, and has conferred at length with all the various boards and officials involved. We feel that under the Public Works concept it will be possible to obtain more efficient operation by utilizing Town employees' skills and Town equipment on any related Town projects, scheduling the work of the various departments so that maximum use of Town equipment can be obtained, and centralizing the purchasing of supplies and equipment used by all departments.

"We feel that there are many other advantages which will be realized as time goes on, such as better long-range planning, better maintenance of equipment, and better maintenance of Town property (the Town has been acquiring substantial real estate) while the centralization of responsibility for all public works functions will reduce the frustration on the part of residents in determining where inquiries and complaints should be made. We also foresee centralization of maintenance and repairs for Town motor equipment and, last but not least, more opportunity for advancement for talented and industrious employees.

Miniatures From Rajput, Pahart At Boston Museum

The exotic beauty of three hundred years of life in India unfolds in an exhibition of 115 miniature paintings at the Museum of Fine Arts, January 16 through February 25 in galleries DD.

Drawn from the extensive collection of Edwin Binney 3rd, the paintings are the work of Rajput and Pahari artists of northern India from the 16th through 19th centuries. The Boston showing is the only East Coast exhibition of the paintings, many of which have never been exhibited before.

Brilliant in color and detail, the miniatures depict princes, courtiers and Hindu deities against rich backgrounds of palaces and gardens filled with birds and animals. Several stone sculptures and a selection of weapons are also included in the exhibition.

The paintings come from three major areas of northern India—Rajasthan, Central India and the Panjab Hills—which were divided into feudal states ruled by Rajput and Pahari princes. The Rajput was a warrior, disciplined to a rigorous code of honor and chivalry which set him apart from the men of his time, and Rajput art expresses the courage, independence and romantic freedom which these warriors valued.

The march of Dimes reports that many disabilities of congential origin can be successfully treated or overcome if detected early enough.

The best defense against skidding on snow and ice, according to Chief of Police Joseph J. Derro and the International Association of Chiefs of Police is plan all maneuvers well in advance and make them gradually. If the car should skid, steer in the direction the rear-end is skidding. But beware of over-correcting. It may cause the car to skid to the opposite direction and not be able to control it.

"We have two departments cutting grass and doing landscaping work and, in that the Highway Department also plants grass when building sidewalks, one might say, three departments. We have two departments digging up the streets, and we can all appreciate how important coordination is in this area. We have four departments doing purchasing, and many other examples could be cited.

The combined budgets for the Highway, Forestry, Water and Sewer, Park and Cemetery Departments, total as follows:

Personnel	$ 865,000
Other Expenses	388,000
Equipment	65,000
Outlays	7,500
	($1,326.742)

"A 10% saving in Personnel and Other Expenses would mean $125,300 per year; 5% would be $62,650. We sincerely think that such savings are very possible after the Department of Public Works has been in operation for a brief time. We know there have been glaring examples of duplication of purchases for different departments at widely differing prices caused, perhaps, by lack of information or because of a failure to take advantage of quantity discounts.

"Here are some interesting developments which could come about through a Department of Public Works:

"1. The Selectmen have many buildings under their control, and would have more with the consolidation of these departments. This could be the nucleus of a Buildings and Grounds Department under Public Works management. This would save many outside contractual expenses at later dates, for some of this work could be done by Public Works personnel when seasonal factors reduce their regular work loads.

"2. The existing garages and equipment maintenance facilities are inadequate and will have to be improved eventually. This should be done on an integrated basis, and could include taking care of police cars, and possibly, fire equipment.

"3. This would be a first step towards centralizing purchases.

"4. This could also be a first long step toward more efficient and better personnel recruitment.

"In the past, a large part of various board meetings was concerned with policy-making, but with the Town fairly well developed now, the time of the boards is spent more on administrative detail, rather than on policy-making. A professional administration can better perform these managerial functions.

"The Town Government Study Committee has been concerned, and it is particularly true this year, about the lack of candidates running for the various boards. All present candidates are unopposed as there is no competition for the Water and Sewer Board, Park Department, Cemetery Commission, and up to the present time, for the Board of Selectmen. This is quite a change from past times, and it is not a healthy trend. Hopefully, with more power centralized under the Board of Selectmen, there will be more candidates, and the able candidates will be less diffused among the many boards.

Collective Bargaining

"There is another new dimension in Town Government today, and that is collective bargaining. The Selectmen have the responsibility to carry on collective bargaining with the Town employees' group, but after the collective bargaining is over, under the present organization, the Selectmen have no real authority to enforce the rules and regulations as worked out in collective bargaining.

"Therefore, even though the Selectmen work out the details of collective bargaining, the provisions are administered by the independent boards, and this has caused confusion. The groups which would be centralized under the Department of Public Works would include nearly all the members of the Town Employees' Association which bargains with the Selectmen on wages and conditions of employment. This is another reason why it makes sense to centralize the administrative management of these services.

"If the Town Meeting votes favorably on this special article, it then goes to the Massachusetts Legislature for action, and then would be placed on the ballot for the citizens to give their final approval. Shortly thereafter the Selectmen would assume the duties of the Department of Public Works and appoint a Director of Public Works who would be responsible to the Selectmen for the operation of this department.

By Attrition Only

"It should be stressed that all present employees would be retained, and only as efficiency develops would the labor force be reduced, and then only by attrition.

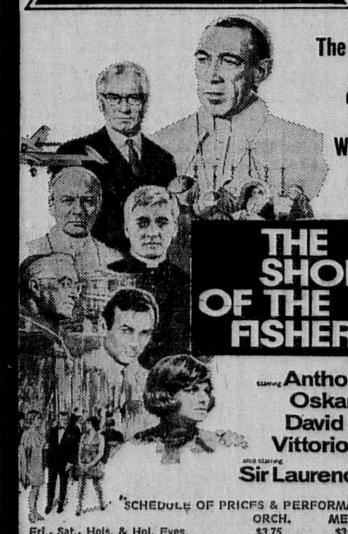

The key, of course, to the success of the centralization concept is a competent professional for Director of Public Works. We have every confidence that the Selectmen would recruit a top notch man for this job and that the Personnel Board would set a salary range which would attract qualified candidates.

"The Town Government Study Committee sincerely feels that Winchester has reached the point now where a Department of Public Works will give the citizens of the town a more responsive and efficient operation."

Respectfully submitted,

Massachusetts Heart Association Defines Spectrum Of Diseases

The following discourse on heart diseases was prepared by the greater Boston Chapter, Massachusetts Heart Association.

Disease of the heart and blood vessels—far from being a remote and distant abstraction—constitute what must be considered essentially a local problem.

Physicians, nurses and members of bereaved families can testify that this is true. So can newsmen, who write the obituaries so often containing the words "heart disease," "heart attack" and "stroke."

Here in Greater Boston, as elsewhere in the nation, the heart diseases and stroke exact a frightening toll. No one, no family is immune. Grandparents, fathers, mothers, young adults and children could be—and frequently are—among the victims.

Nationally, deaths from the heart and blood vessel diseases occur in what has come to be a reasonably predictable pattern—one which varies but little from year-to-year.

Breakdown

With figures rounded, the breakdown within the cardiovascular spectrum is as follows: Of each 1000 deaths, about 559 are from coronary artery disease, chiefly heart attack; about 201 are from stroke, 67 from hypertension and hypertensive heart disease, 10 from congenital heart disease, 15 from rheumatic heart disease, and 148 from all other forms of heart disease.

The most recent figures indicate the cardiovascular diseases were responsible for about 56 per cent of the total deaths in Greater Boston. In the nation there are 54 cardiovascular deaths for each 46 from all other diseases and causes.

A different picture emerges, however, when we consider the prevalence of cardiovascular disease. Nationally, of 200 million Americans, about 25 million (12½ percent) are living with some form of heart and blood vessel disease that may be diagnosed as such. And of them, nearly half (45.7 percent) have hypertensive heart disease, and nearly a third (32.2 percent) have high blood pressure without heart involvement.

Checkups Important

All of this puts a high premium on the desirability of periodic medical checkups, which enable your physician to begin immediate treatment of any disorder the examination may disclose, thus bringing to you the benfits of the great fund of new knowledge that has been accumulated over the past several years.

An excellent case in point is hypertension and hypertensive heart disease, which afflict about 78 of each 100 living Americans suffering from some form of cardiovascular disease. If high blood pressure is found, the chances are excellent that after appropriate diagnostic studies the physician can bring it under control by prescribing drugs.

Physicians also are in a better position than ever before to identify coronary-prone individuals. For the high-risk person, a program to reduce the risk of heart attack is vital; for all of us, it is highly desirable. The recommended steps may include maintenance of normal weight, avoidance of cigarettes, less saturated fat and fewer cholesterol-rich foods, meaningful physical activity, and, of course, control of any high blood pressure that might be found.

Regular physical checkups also may disclose either inborn or acquired heart defects in children and young adults. If the young person has suffered rheumatic fever, the doctor can almost always guard against repeat attacks. thus lessening the chance of further heart damage. And if a child has an acutely sore throat, get him to the physician right away. It may be "strep" throat, frequent forerunner of rheumatic fever, and, if so, the doctor can take prompt and effective steps to reduce the damage.

Another way to reduce the risk of heart disease is by generously supporting the 1969 Heart Fund Campaign, being conducted here and throughout America during February.

Crittenton Dessert-Bridge

The Winchester Sr. Circle of the Florence Crittenton League's first social event for 1969 is its winter dessert-bridge on January 29, Hadley Hall, Church of the Epiphany, at 1 p.m.

The Circle invites its neighbors to this fund-raising event for our favorite charity. There will be door prizes.

Special Programs For Men, Youth Conclude Octave Of Unity Week

Two activities concerning youth wrap up the special program of the Winchester Ecumencial Association in its observance of the Octave of Christian Unity on Friday and Saturday. A supper program for the men of the town is scheduled tonight.

"Technical Frontiers and Moral Dilemnas" tonight opens at St. Eulalia's Church with a social hour at 6:30 and supper at 7. The Reverend John Bryan, a methodist chaplain in industrial relations; Professor Joseph O'Donnell of the Harvard Business School and John Ingalls, director of industrial relations, make up the panel which will lead a discussion.

On Friday evening at 8 in the Unitarian Church the Ecumenical Youth Council will lead an experimental worship service "A Sensitive Service," designed for all members of the community, adults and young people.

The service takes on a "McLuhanesque" quality as an attempt is made to invole all of the senses in worship. It follows a traditional pattern of call to worship, lesson, offertory, confession, and agape, but the content of each of these is different.

The call to worship organized by members of the Parish of the Epiphany is based on certain self-sensitizing touch techniques developed by Bernard Gunther of the Esalen Institute in California. This is preceded by an explanation from Dr. Robert A. Storer. Pastor of the Unitarian Church and some selections from Marshall McLuhan's The Medium is the Message.

The lesson led by the Ecumenical Youth Council Board is a film "Neighbors" and a participation activity following. St. Eulalia's young people lead the offertory while youth of the First Congregational Church lead the Confession.

The Confession will be a multimedia presentation, as is the McLuhan Explanation, using three screens, slides and tape. The Agape Meal under the direction of young people from the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church will utilize fruit shared by all participants and folk music.

Other music will include James Sauber playing trumpet for the prelude and Robert Ross leading some "soft rock" numbers as Postludes and music during the Offertory.

Hippies, Suburbia

Sunday evening, the Ecumenical Association and CONCERN sponsor a program at the Church of the Epiphany at 7:30 p.m. entitled "Hippiedom and Suburbia."

The Rev. William E. Alberts from the West End Ecumenical Ministries will speak. Dr. Alberts spent much of his time last summer wearing the clothes of the people and moving through Boston Common attempting to understand these young people and act as mediator between them and the Boston authorities.

After he shares his learnings, the audience will have the opportunity to break into small groups, raise questions, and come back for a question and answer period with Dr. Alberts.

Just preceding Dr. Alberts speech there will be, an old fashion gospel sing led by five men from the Episcopal Theological School calling themselves "The Post-exilic Hermeneutical Gospel Singers." They will use electric and folk guitars, organ and harp to lead the group in some new renditions of old gospel songs.

Troop 506 Promotes Scouts

Parents of boy scouts in Troop 506 saw 13 of their sons promoted in rank last week.

Nine tenderfeet, two second class and two first class scouts received their badges on January 13. The combined Court of Honor and Parents' Night was held in the Windsor Room of the Unitarian Church under the leadership of Scoutmaster Richard B. Lawrance.

Seven merit badges were awarded also.

The troop, 27 strong, capped the week Sunday with a two-hour swim at the Tufts University pool. Four fathers and three guests joined the boys and Scoutmaster Lawrance in the swim.

The new tenderfoot Scouts are David Burns, Richard Grabiec, Daniel Jaffee, Robert Kerr, Carl Nelson, Donald O'Brien, John Parkhurst, Robert Quine, and Martin Kent. Second Class rank was conferred on David Bower and on Moss Thuma, who was unable to attend.

The first Class badges went to David Allen and Chase Rozelle, who also were awarded seven merit badges. David was given life saving, swimming, rowing and canoeing badges, and Chase received the swimming, rowing and leatherwork badges.

Landscaping Is Topic At Home & Garden

The Winchester Home and Garden Club held a lecture on landscaping for their January 15 meeting.

Mr. K. F. Amalia advised the members on the three areas of landscaping: public, service and living. He offered many helpful suggestions such as the correct use of fertilizers and insecticides and ideas on planning a small garden. He ended the lecture with a short, informative question-and-answer session.

In keeping with the landscaping theme Mrs. Gardy Yagjian created a miniature scene consisting of a house with tiny walks, fence and growing plants to decorate a tea table.

Mrs. Steven Moore gave a short talk to members about the newly formed Winchester Trails organization during the business meeting.

Women Voters' League Prepares Candidate Questionnaires

The League of Women Voters of Winchester sends questionnaires this week to candidates for office in the March 3rd town elections.

The results are expected to be published before the election.

The purpose of the League of Women Voters is to promote active and informed citizen participation in government. To do this it operates in two areas, program and voter service.

In program, selected issues are studied on the local, state and national level. After intensive study and general agreement among the membership the League acts as a citizens' lobby to support or oppose specific legislation on any of these levels.

In voters' service, the League strives to provide information on the mechanics of voting and nonpartisan information about questions at issue on the ballot and about candidates for office.

The questionnaires being sent are part of this Voters' Service effort. The answers to these questions will help provide the voter with a basis for making his choice on election day. The Star, as a public service, provides the community forum in which this information is disseminated.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

"What does adequate auto insurance cost?" Ron Coolmer asked as we sat next to each other at a civic meeting recently.

"That's a broad question and it deserves a broad answer," I replied. 'As a matter of fact, our Auto Insurance policies are flexibly priced."

"Flexibly priced?" he said with surprise.

"Yes," I answered, "our auto insurance policies are flexibly priced. Here's what I mean. Many factors must be considered in choosing the proper kinds and amounts of coverages of an adequate auto insurance policy for a particular family. Such things as the ages of the drivers, their driving history, the number of vehicles and their use, and the exposure to large lawsuits. These are personal factors, and therefore the cost varies from family to family. That's what I mean by flexibly priced policies."

"That's an excellent answer," Ron replied.

May we discuss our flexibly priced Auto Insurance policies with YOU?

The Winchester Star

Established 1880 By Theodore P. Wilson, Sr.

Serving The Community For 88 Years

Editorial Comments

The Right Reverend John M. Manion last week retired from his pastorate at Saint Mary's Church. It was typical of the pastor that he slipped away quickly and quietly. It is indicative also of his habit of working here unobtrusively that the Star could unearth no photograph of him either from its files or from the parsonage or from the offices of the "Pilot." Father Manion's name graces the hall at St. Eulalia's Church. It graces the hearts and minds of his parishoners even more. He will be much missed.

Recently we reminded of "Ranch Under the Rimrock," the story of an Easterner's new life in unsettled Oregon by Dorothy Lawson McCall of the Winchester Lawsons and Winchester McCalls. "Oregonians seemed to count her among the state's natural resources forests and rivers," says Stuart E. Jones in the magnificently illustrated "The Many Faces of Oregon" in the current issue of the "National Geographic." Her story about her calling President Johnson on the telephone rings a particular bell this week. "Well," she told him, "I was reading the newspapers one rainy day in my apartment in Portland, where I spend the winter months. I am a loyal Republican, of course, but it seemed to me that Lyndon Johnson was having more than a reasonable share of problems and that he was being unfairly abused. I decided he needed cheering up. . ." May President Nixon have his Mrs. McCalls!

The perplexed and frustrated observer of the modern scene of dissent and conquer had much to identify with on an editorial page of the Boston Herald January 16. Next to Winchester's Jim Dobbins' "Woman of the Year" cartoon about the Brandeis mother who went physically to remove her son from Ford Hall, was Russell Baker, with a column called "Reactionaries Anonymous." Baker says to his desperate candidate for R. A., Shumlin: ". . . And nowadays, Shumlin, young and loud are the real goodguy things. If we wanted segregated colleges it would be bad. Understand. It's Jim Crow when we want it. When they want it, it isn't Jim Crow any more. . . "Segregation is segregation whether you call it Jim Crow or James Eagle," retorts Shumlin "Keep talking like that, Shumlin, and you'll start blaming criminals for crime," retorts Baker.

Theology vs. Humanism: Part Of The Dilemma

Last week Pope Paul termed the current worldwide thrust for changes in the Roman Catholic Church a contemporary Reformation. He took note of what he called the tendency of modern man to pay more attention to man than to God.

In the fall one of John Ciardi's "Manner of Speaking" columns in the "Saturday Review" came to grips with the theme, "Birth Control: Theology vs. Humanism."

We feel Mr. Ciardi's article to point up in a graphic manner the dilemma faced by much of the Catholic priesthood in this controversy. With the permision of the magazine we excerpt it here:

Mr. Ciardi starts by suggesting that the Pope's recent encyclical has settled nothing but the lines of a continuing conflict one side of which may be labelled that of the "humanistic priesthood," the other that of the "theological priesthood."

"Love must find its means," he says. "So it is that the priest who is especially drawn to giving family assistance may be drawn away — be modified away — from purest doctrine. If one of the family's problems is the presence of too many children, the priest may well be given a humanistic nudge toward thinking birth control might help his people. Doctrine, of course, tells him to preach abstinence, or at least to insist on the rhythm method which he has long since had categorized for him as a dangerous game called 'Vatican roulette' . . .

Coming home after giving a lecture at a Catholic college, Mr. Ciardi tells of a night's conversation with a young priest.

"'Let's say Bill Smith comes to me,' the (young priest) said. 'Five years ago I married him. Today he has five children. That's already more than he can buy shoes for, and he is, let's say a garage mechanic. If he can manage five somehow, what will he do in five more years at this rate? I don't have to ask these questions: He comes and asks them of me. "Father," he says, "What should I do? Not just now. I mean night after night. We're young. We love one another. We get into bed together. There she is and there I am, and we don't dare touch one another. Maybe a saint could say no, and God knows I try, but I'm not a saint. And what are we going to eat if we keep having kids? Do I pass out bread and water and say I'm sorry but I had to do it this way because I am a good Catholic?"'

"My priest had taken another man's devil to wrestle as his own," says John Ciardi "and his priestly doctrine was clear on one point—that the greatest of graces is charity, which is to say caritas, the active and outgoing love of others. I liked him not simply for caring but for caring much. 'What do you tell such a man?' I said."

"'What can I tell him?' he said. 'I tell him to pray for guidance and then to obey his conscience.'

"Clearly my priest was of the humanistic priesthood. 'That's the answer I would have given,' I said, 'assuming I were qualified to guide anyone else's conscience. But—and I mean no sarcasm—when did you become a Protestant and decide that conscience, when prayed for, is a better guide than doctrine?' . . .

"In some ways my priest-more-humanist-than-theologian is an American phenomenon. It is hard for a spiritual young man to grow up in the United States without a social worker's concern for the kind of life people live on this earth. If such a man becomes a priest, that priest must tend at times to think of earthly welfare before Heaven's waiting bliss . . . Such a priest would be a decent person of a sort Americans would approve, but if he has not fallen into heresy, he is certainly walking a tightrope across a theological abyss.

"It is for the theological priesthood that Pope Paul has spoken. And though any given priest will exist within himself on both sides of the line at once, that line between the theological and the humanistic priesthood can still be drawn.

"The basic view of the theological priesthood is that God has set down rules for man's behavior on earth, and that what a man suffers in observing those rules, though it does matter . . . is trivial in the face of eternity, and that suffering is in fact a blessing if in bearing it a man may win to Heaven. The quesiton must be scaled against the enormity of damnation. Life is a moment; Hell, an eternity, any moment of which is infinitely more painful than all a man could suffer in a lifetime of torture . . .

"Such a priest would have told the young man who was tortured by desire that God's will was clear and clearly greater than his own, and that he must bow to it in prayer, bearing his soul's burden gracefully . . .

"The humanist priest would not, in conscience, be able to drive from his mind a sense of the futility of edging a swollen family into such marginal existence. He loves his children now as well as toward eternity and would rejoice in their present happiness. The theological priest still in conscience, would not be able to drive from his mind the thought that he would be endangering the souls of his people were he to counsel them out of false pity, to act against the laws of God . . ." (itals ours)

In this provocative article Mr. Ciardi went on to discuss the fundamental anti-sexual bias of all Christianity, its contrast with its predecessor Greek theology, the concept of God as sexless. He concludes, "Pope Paul has, in effect, put off to his own successors the challenge of world statesmanship that must be met if the voice of the Vatican is to remain relevant to the needs of American Catholics."

COLD BUT NAVIGABLE. The weather looks to be going to hold good until the February 14 vacation. If so, these Noonan pupils and all others will not go on double session this year. (Ryerson photo)

The Revolution Of The Young: Mr. Albiani Has Some Suggestions

Editor of the Star:

Many people are upset and uncertain about the current wave of revolt that seems to be sweeping through the current younger generation. May I say that at present only a small number of activists are involved but I think things will get worse unless something is done.

The problem comes down basically to the schools. Although the country has changed drastically in every other respect our schools are almost exactly as they were 100 years ago.

When people think of a modern school all they think about is the physical plant. But a new building with better lighting doesn't begin to solve the problem.

We have seen in America an abdication by parents. They have left the throne of authority so that they could be buddies with their children. In poorer families this has been brought about because of the need for both parents to work and because of the rather low levels of morality. In wealthier communities social commitments many times take parents away from the children and the end result is that the only authority that the child is constantly exposed to is the school authorities.

The unfortunate part of this is that the school authorities don't want the responsibility. They also abdicate and you end up with the anarchistic generation which is looming on America's horizon. The blame for the current state of affairs rests upon the parents, for not encouraging the schools to do more, and upon the school departments, for not demanding more.

Education must include the practical aspects of how to live in modern society as well as how to conjugate a verb. Our educational institutions are failing miserably although there is still time left. I would like to suggest a few steps that I believe would help to create the type of school which would help growing children.

1) At the high school level, first year, a series of lectures by competent medical people on sex education. This is an absolute must.

2) At the same level a series of lectures on drug addiction. This is a serious problem and ignoring it is not going to make it go away. There should be talks by police, doctors and addicts.

3) Speed reading courses should be offered. One of the main reasons many students don't read is because it takes them too long.

4) Memory courses should be offered. The students potential would be enlarged and archaic courses such as Latin could be made electives instead of compulsive.

5) Involvement in such things as political campaigns to get the students to be more civic minded.

6) Perhaps most importantly, U.S. history should be taught for four years instead of one .One of the main reasons the students of today (some of them) are so apathetic towards the United States is because they don't know anything about it. With knowledge comes pride.

I could go on and on but I hope I have made myself clear. Our schools are not meeting our needs and we must act now if we ever expect to have our way of life continue. (School Committee please copy).

Sincerely yours,
Joseph G. Albiani

'Procedure' For Toastmistresses

"Parliamentary procedure" was the topic of the January 13 meeting of the Winchester Toastmistress Club.

Mrs. Alfred J. Quimby led members in a practical, informal drill on the proper way to conduct a meeting. Sample motions were proposed and the procedure for adoption explained.

Table topics were presented by Mrs. Harold Gibson and included discussions of New Year's resolutions, Monday holidays, and the 1970 census, and airplane hijacking.

Members will travel to Holiday Inn, South Attleboro, for the meeting of Council No. 3, Colonial Region, International Toastmistress Clubs. Mrs. Mavine Duda, regional supervisor, will be the speaker this Saturday.

Asking For Better Service

Editor of the Star:

I wish to back up Mr. Gene Rotondi's statement to the extent that service in this area was out from 8:12 Saturday evening until 2:45 p.m. Sunday afteroon.

This can be checked out by the police blotter. I called the police, being unable to reach Editon Saturday evening and again on Sunday afternoon.

Loss of service was caused by a bare wire on Forest Circle shorting out the fuses on the pole outside my house, a job that took the Edison men five minutes to repair.

This has happened three times in two years.

Isn't it about time this wire is replaced?

'Sad Commentary'

Editor of the Star:

We were residents of Winchester for 11 years. We always were very proud of our town and certainly missed it when we were transferred. I have continued receiving the Star, feeling it would keep me in touch, and it certainly has.

I was upset, and a little disgusted with parents, when I read of the plight of the Drop-In Center. I raised three girls in Winchester, worked with the P.T.A., Parents of the Band, and Youth Fellowship at Church, without feeling compelled to do so.

We certainly needed a center in those days. When we moved it was being developed, and as I read of its completion, I felt at last the young folks had a place to go and meet.

We lived in Ft. Madison, Iowa, prior to our residence in Winchester.

They had just such a place, run by the youth, and chaperoned by parents. It was never in need of chaperones. A schedule was set-up and followed, parents feeling the deep responsibility. It is certainly disappointing to read of the lack of interest and cooperation of Winchester parents.

Parents seem to want the youth to have a good meeting place, well run, but chaperoned by a few parents, so others may go their merry way, feeling their teenagers are all o.k. A sad commentary on Winchester and the parents of the teenagers.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. Robert E. Durfee

Conservation Is Inter-Community

Is It Aberjona Or Odorjona? Asks The League Of Women Voters

The Winchester League of Women Voters is preparing to work together with the Leagues of neighboring towns in the interests of clean water here.

Following the example set by the Leagues of the Charles River Valley communities, the Winchester League has contacted those of Woburn, Arlington, Medford and other towns in the Mystic River basin for the purpose of forming an inter-League committee.

It is hoped that this group will be effective in keeping the general public informed on such matters as ownership and land use along the banks of the Aberjona and Mystic rivers and their associated wetlands as well as the Mystic lakes, on conservation legislation and available Federal and state assistance programs, as well as the general condition of the river waters.

For some time the local group has studied the variety of problems that beset the river as it reaches town, i.e., organic and chemical pollution of its water, thermal pollution, debris and weed growth in the river, and its chronic low flow condition.

Some of these problems, such as littering of the stream bed and excessive weed growth, can be and should be alleviated on a local basis by proper policing and maintenance of the river.

Regional Outlook

In the December study units, however, the League dealt with the Aberjona in a regional rather than a local context, for the simple reason that pollution of a stream starts upstream and in its tributaries. Planning of water pollution control measures has to be done in terms of entire river basins or watersheds.

One such example of regional planning, the League learned, is the combined effort of the City of Woburn and the Town of Winchester to apply for Federal funds for the purpose of flow augmentation of the Aberjona.

A pilot project will test the feasibility of drawing water, by means of deep wells along the river, from the buried preglacial valley of the Merrimack River. This water will be pumped into the Aberjona at times of low flow.

The Aberjona watershed is an integral part of the Mystic River basin, which—together with the Charles and Neponset River basins —can provide a great variety of recreational resources for the Boston metropolitan area.

Once these rivers are rehabilitated, and their banks publicly owned or protected they could serve as green corridors of open space in some of our most densely populated communities. In order to keep up with the ever-increasing demand for water-oriented recreational facilities, the League feels that our region must invest now in the provision of such facilities.

BOOK REVIEW

by Enid Houlding
Winchcester Public Library

LONG BEFORE FORTY

by C. S. Forester

C. S. Forester was the fifth and youngest child of his family, and his recollections of his early childhood, adolescence and youth give a picture of the middle-class in England at the beginning of the 20th century. They were not perhaps entirely typical, because his father had very down-to-earth ideas on the subject of education and sent all his children to the local secondary school on the strict understanding that they would work hard enough and be briliant enough to win scholarships to take care of their higher education. None of them disappointed him.

It is interesting to note that among the games played by young Cecil with his much older brothers were "Long battles with lead soldiers on the playroom floor . . . or still more complicated naval campaigns with highly conventionalized paper ships . . . representing battleships and frigates of Nelson's time."

He followed the pattern laid down by his father and the example of his brothers until at 18 he was rejected by the Army for service in the first World War because of a heart condition. He entered hospital as a medical student but was desperately unhappy. In some ways the pattern is familiar — the clever young man who pursues the goal suggested by other members of the family having blazed the trail, the self-doubts, the gradual lessening of achievement and then the striking out on an entirely different career. His family received the news of his desire to become a writer in the way which has become familiar to many of today's young rebels.

"The practice of literature was a quite unknown profession to the Family, despite the fact that every member of it was a voracious reader . . . No one in the family knew any authors, or publishers or reviewers . . . and that made the respectability of the profession of literature extremely suspect . . . to have an author as a son or brother or nephew was asking too much of their forbearance, it would incarcerate a skeleton in the family cupboard, and family cupboards are flimsy places of concealment."

"I had the bit between my teeth now, and I broke away rejoicing in my hard-won freedom . . . if their sadness was somewhat relieved by the thought that inevitable failure would soon bring me back under control, submissive to rein and spur . . . they could not be expected to realize that I would genuinely much sooner prefer to die than to admit failure now that I had won my point."

Knowing nothing of the procedures to be followed in putting a novel together and presenting it to a publisher, Forester started to write.

"For me to take pen and paper at that time and try to write a novel was comparable with my ordering a truckload of bricks now and trying to build a house without stopping to think."

He completed his first novel and sent it off to a publisher whom he had selected; then for two weeks he endured exhausted inactivity while he recovered from the effort. Rejection of his manuscript by the first publisher chosen was followed by rejections from those next on his list, but in spite of his disappointment he pressed on with another novel. For years as he learned his trade in this way he suffered poverty and privation.

"Even bills were not quite as worrying as the infernal shoe question. I believe the most degrading sensation on earth . . . is the feeling of icy, filthy water leaking in and out of one's shoes at every step."

The first part of the book ends with the acceptance of Forester's first novels and his establishment as an author. It continues with notes written thirty years afterwards when his Hornblower novels had brought him fame. In some cases these sound more like a man remembering a previous existence than an author composing a story, and Hornblower and his doings have such an authentic ring that one is almost ready to believe them an actual chronicle of one man's endeavors in history. However, Forester points out —

"I can be quite conscienceless about history if it is necessary . . . Relative to this subject I might mention . . . in the writing of that book (The Commodore) I imperilled — almost ended — a valued friendship. For an eminent historian — a friend for years — wrote to me . . .

"I knew there were British forces engaged at the siege of Riga, but I have never been able to find out much about them. What were your sources?" I could only reply lamely that I had no sources, that I had decided that Riga could not have been besieged without British forces arriving to help, and Hornblower (as usual) had been handy."

Forester says that he had great fun and enjoyment from writing these novels, so this is an account of a rebel overcoming difficulties, justifying his rebellion, and ending up with fame, money and contentment. What more could be desired?

WHS Council Begins Program On Drug Use

The WHS Student Council Drug Committee began their program last week.

After meeting a number of times with Dr. Donald McLean and Herbert Ostrach, students within the committee were able to organize the specifics of the program.

The program dealt with marijuana in relation to four main subject areas: its harmfulness in relation to tobacco and alcohol; whether or not it is a narcotic; its legality, and whether or not it is addictive.

The program operated through the sophomore English classes. Teachers were not present at the time of the discussion. The day before the discussion was held, articles and pamphlets were passed out to all students in the class.

The day on which the discussion took place, two students from the drug committee were present in the class. One served as the student discussion leader; the other as evaluator. The former not only led the discussion, but supplemented facts and answered questions.

The program was designed to allow students to evaluate information and draw their own conclusions.

The Council was pleased with the overall participation in the classroom discussions and the requests for a follow-up program. The Drug Committee will hold an open meeting today.

Judging the contest in the categories in which the Star placed were the board of directors of the Idaho Press Association; officers of the Minnesota Newspaper Association; Boston area university administrators (for community service) and, in photography, representatives of the A.P., U.P.I. and Wide World Photos.

Photographic awards to the Star were won by photos taken by William Ryerson.

Accompanying Mr. Hakanson to the 11-panel study conference were advertising manager, William Taylor; editor Mrs. Barbara Powers and assistant to the editor Mrs. Nancy Bishop.

An eligible veteran can take flight training under the Veterans Administration assistance program if it is for the attainment of an approved vocational objective in aviation.

Schools Initiate Conference Days; Will Close Early

Elementary school pupils will be dismissed from school at noon on Tuesday, January 28; Wednesday, January 29; and Tuesday, February 4 to permit parent-teacher conferences.

These dates do not appear in the original school calender since they are the result of first recommendations from the Report Card Study Committee recently set up to study the Winchester system of reporting to parents at the elementary level.

Parents will have an opportunity for interviews with their children's elementary teachers in the Winchester Public Schools as a result of this plan recently approved by the School Committee.

When report cards are issued this month parents will be contacted to set up dates and times on these three afternoons for conferences with teachers. These talks will encourage discussion of the progress of the student and an exchange of views between parents and individual teachers.

School Superintendent Donald A. Klemer made the recommendation that the conference half days be provided after receiving the comments of the Study Committee. Investigation has shown that provision of half days for parent conferences is a normal part of current reporting procedures in comparative communities.

Business Courses Are Planned On Channel 4

Many business and industrial organizations are taking advantage of management courses scheduled to begin in February on WGBX-TV, Channel 44, the Education Division of WGBH.

Some of the courses are designed to train top executives, others are for middle and lower management personnel and still others are for employees at any level who wish to improve reading efficiency.

Much can be gained from simply watching the telecasts, but for maximum value students should obtain the study materials WGBX is supplying to all who enroll. There are special enrollment rates for both groups and individuals.

Already used with great success in several major cities, the courses will each be aired twice, once during the day for those companies that prefer to have their employees watch on the job, and again at night for the benefit of people who may not be able to take time during business hours.

The courses are "Management by Objectives," "Supervisory Leadership," "Efficient Reading," "Modern Managment Methods and Decision Making Techniques," "Psychological Aspects of Supervision" and "Success Through Word Power."

Individuals or representatives of organizations who wish further information are asked to contact John A. Rogers at WGBH (Tel: 868-3800).

Mrs. Priscilla M. Morse of Lloyd Street who has been employed at the Winchester Savings Bank for the past seventeen years was the guest of honor at a surprise retirement party held at the banking rooms on Tuesday. She is married to Carl E. Morse who retired three years ago from the local Post Office after 42 years of service. They are planning to drive to Florida this weekend for the remainder of the winter.

Young Men Appeal Sentence For Shooting

Two Winchester youths will appear in Middlesex Superior Court on appeal of a sentence given recently in Woburn District Court in connection with a shooting incident at Greene's Diner, Woburn, last month.

The young men were sentenced to six months each in the House of Correction and both were fined by Judge Francis P. Cullen.

Judge Cullen also heard a cross complaint by one of the defendents against the night manager of the diner. The manager, however, was found innocent.

The young men, 18 and 20 years old, were charged by Woburn Police with firing a shotgun at the diner on December 20 at about 1 a.m.

Witnesses testified the two young men entered the diner about 12:30 a.m., ordered food to take out and began using language about which the manager warned them. They argued and the manager gave them their orders, received payment and ordered them out of the diner.

According to the testimony in court, the young men drove away and returned later after the diner had closed. The manager then observed their car driving by slowly, heard shots, and saw two windows in the diner break.

Parents Receive Questionnaires

Parents are receiving questionnaires from the School Department this week relative to their place of employment. Results of this survey determine the amount of Federal aid money Winchester receives based on the number of parents employed on Federal property.

The Federal Government has supplied a list of eligible properties in the event that a parent is unaware that he is employed on Federal land.

Therefore, all parents are urged to complete the form and return it to the School Department as soon as possible whether or not he feels that he works for the Federal Government.

This information is now required by law once a year and cooperation of all parents will be appreciated.

Library Film Program

January 24, Family Film Night Program at 7:30 p.m. for children accompanied by adults:

Trailride

Learning to understand and appreciate other people is an important part of growing up, and this film makes the point while appealing to the viewer in an irresistible manner. Young city boys spend two weeks riding, roping, branding and camping with Indian boys from a reservation. Makes you want to be along with them.

Loon's Necklace

The Indian legend of how the loon received his distinguishing neckband. Ceremonial masks, from the National Museum of Canada, carved by Indians of British Columbia, establish the characters of the story. The masks are slightly scary but they are expressive and beautiful.

Lions at Home

Filmed on location in Africa, this film introduces us to the lion's hunting habits, his favorite prey, his enemies, and his family life. The big kittens are affectionate and playful — among other things.

The same films will be shown Saturday at 10 a.m. for school-age children.

Mrs. Erb To Speak To Wheaton Group

The Wheaton College Group in the Lexington-Winchester area will hold a special program on Tuesday, January 28 at the home of Mrs. William B. Budd of 34 Wedgemere Avenue.

Mothers' March Begins January 26

During the week beginning January 26, the March of Dimes winter tradition will be renewed as mothers of Winchester seek contributons for the 1969 campaign.

"We are concerned with a happier new year for every child," said Mrs. John A. Hackett of 43 Robbin Hood Road, Mothers' March chairman. "During the week beginning January 26, we intend to share our concern with others in the Massachusetts Bay Chapter area. We feel certain that everyone who answers our ring will respond with contributions to the March of Dimes.

"If only everyone could visit one of the more than 100 Birth Defects Centers supported by March of Dimes contributions, he would see how children suffering from mental and physical abnormalities are receiving the finest possible medical attention."

The March of Dimes is looking for an answer day and night. It is doing something about birth defects through its treatment centers across the nation, two of which are in Boston. It answers by financing research in medical schools across America and by providing educational centers for the relay of new knowledge to physicians and nurses, scientists and students.

How much more the March of Dimes can do to prevent the tragedies of birth defects will depend on response to the mothers when they call sometime between January 26 and February 2.

Hamilton Club Defeats Montreal For Top Trophy In WCC Bonspiel

Winchester Country Club's fourday invitational mixed bonspiel came to an exciting close on Sunday, January 19. All three events were decided by the last stone in the last end.

For the Farnsworth Trophy in the championship division, the Royal Montreal Club of Canada, last year's winners, were defeated by the Hamilton Thistle Club, also from Canada.

Royal Montreal was again skipped by Lloyd Whitten, with his wife and Mrs. Gordon Symons comprising the rest of the rink.

The winning skip was Ross Fischer with his wife as vice skip, and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Husband as lead and number two.

Mrs. Harold V. Farnsworth of Winchester presented the Farnsworth Trophy to the winners.

In the second event the Neiley Trophy was won by Braeburn II, skipped by Bud Chandler who defeated the Toronto Cricket Club skipped by Geoff Boone. Will Askew skipped the North Shore Club of Chicago to victory over Schenectady I to win the Barton Trophy.

The two Winchester rinks competing in this bonspiel were comprised of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roundey, Mrs. Ronald Davis and Mr. William Adams, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry P. Hood Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reeves.

Little League Managers, Special Projects Named

by James R. Stewart Jr.

James R. Stewart Jr., commissioner in the new Winchester Little League alignment, has announced budding plans for the 1969 edition of Winchester's version of baseball expansion, following up the initial notice last fall.

The second year of Big Leauge will have as its president, Charles A. Koch. This league will again operate for the 16, 17 and 18-year-olds, with George Tello stepping in as the new manager of the Tigers, contending with the Cardinals under Hal Mullen, the Pirates under Joe Keating, and the Twins under Bob Haggerty. The excellent material graduating from the Senior League from 1968 makes the Big League appear to have some fine baseball in store this year.

In the Senior Division, a new team will be added in each league. In the American League, the Expos will make their debut, with a manager still to be selected, whereas in the National League, the new Browns will see Richard M. Hines stepping up from the Minor League Beavers, as the manager.

The Phillies will have a new manager in Nick Troiano, replacing Joe Keating who will devote full time to his Big League Pirates. In the American Senior League, two new managers will be making their debuts, this year. Thomas Magoun, former manager of the Major League Mets will guide the Giants, replacing Hal Mullen, and Richard Kramer will manage the Senators. The White Sox will have a new man at the helm, also, but his name is not yet known.

The National Major League will have the new Royals in their competition, with the manager to be announced later, while the American Major League will see the new Astros compete with Phil Stackpole as manager.

Changes in the Minor Leagues includes the name of Joe Julian as manager of the American League expansion Foxes and Bob Paridy as manager of the National League Bobcats. Paul McIsaac takes over the managership of the Braves and the Greyhounds are still casting about for a new pilot. All other managers are expected to be returning to the baseball "wars" for the coming season.

Men Needed

From this initial run-down, it will be seen that there are a few openings for men who would like to get into this exciting and rewarding avocation. Anyone who could assist the League is urged to get in touch with George Tello, manager representative, at 729-0884, at the earliest possible. Needed, are a few managers, coaches and umpires. If you are interested in umpiring one game a week, call Mal Leslie at 729-6239 or Chet McGrath, 729-4763 for information.

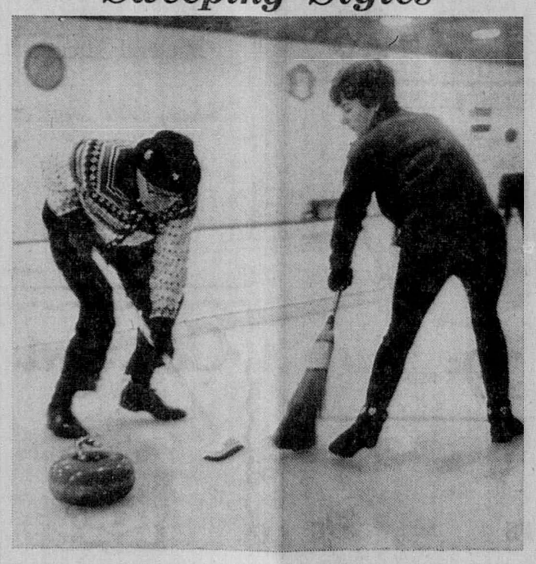

Other additions and changes in the Little League set-up are as follows: vice president, National Minor League—John P. Conneaughton, 44 Robin Hood Road. Umpire-InChief, American League—Malcolm B. Leslie, 2 Cabot Street. Umpire-In-Chief, National League—Chester J. McGrath, 12 Bradford Road. Fund Drive Chairman—James Frongillo, 5 West Chardon Road. Sponsor Chairman—Edward R. Ball Jr., 3 Wickham Road. Publicity Chairman—James R. Stewart Jr., 7 Winslow Road. Cap League Coordinator—Roger A. Stillman, 224 Ridge Street.

Guide books are being prepared for all League personnel, and it is anticipated that this will be another banner year for Little League in Winchester.

More Boys Can Play

The new expansion plan will provide the opportunity to play organized baseball to at least 100 more boys than were able to be accomodated in 1968. With the help of those who have already indicated their willingness to share in this yearly venture, and the help of additional men and women who come forward for positions of leadership, Winchester will remain at the top of the towns who are doing their utmost to provide useful recreation for young men from the ages of 7 or 8 (Our Cap League program) through 18.

Sweeping Styles

SWEEPING THEIR STONE down the ice in an early end which they lost against WCC were Dick Fisher and rink-mate Rita Comte of the Milwaukee Curling Club. In the WCC weekend invitational bonspiel they bested the Robert Roundeys and Muriel Davis and Bill Adams. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher are former residents of Emerson Road. (Ryerson photo)

Wrestlers Win Over Lexington

Coach Tom Kline's wrestling team rebounded from its early-week defeat at the hands of Chelmsford to best the strong Lexington group Friday afternoon at the local gym. The Sachems, led by Capt. Don D'Andria, bested the visitors 33-27.

Mike Dooley, who performs in the 105-lb. class, was picked as the best performer as he pinned his opponent after an exciting exhibition. Bob Thomas, who met Silva, Lexington sectional champion of the past two years, lost by only two points and was adjudged the most improved grappler.

Capt. D'Andria, who has lost only one match this season and that by a single point, was again in top form and pinned his man. He was the only Winchester matman to pin an opponent against Chelmsford.

Other matches resulted as follows:

97-lb. class—Ralph Tullberg lost by decision

105-lb. class—Mike Dooley won by a pin

112-lb. class—Pete Barry lost by pin

117-lb. class—Bob Thomas lost by decision

122-lb. class—Steve Grace won by decision

129-lb. class—Billy McGrath lost by decision

135-lb class—Mike Kelleher won by pin

140-lb. class—Criff Pierce won by pin

147-lb. class—Chris Osgood lost by decision

154-lb. class—Chris Penta won by pin

182-lb. class—Don D'Andria won by pin

Unlimited class—Noel Webb won by pin

Billy McGrath and Chris Osgood turned in good performances in their first varsity meet. In pinning his man in 45 seconds, Cliff Pierce recorded the fastest fall against Lexington. Steve Grace and Noel Webb also scored in the Chelmsford contest by gaining decisions.

After entertaining Concord-Carlisle Tuesday the Kline proteges will journey to Brookline tomorrow, to Wakefield next Tuesday, and to Newton South a week from tomorrow.

John Wisbach Wins Numerals At Hobart

John N. Wisbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wisbach of 10 Harrison Street, a Hobart College student, has been awarded frosh numerals for winning a place on the 1968 freshman soccer team, according to William C. Stiles, director of athletics.

Coached by Lawrence E. Fitch Jr., the team this year had a 2-6-0 record.

John graduated from Winchester High School, where he played soccer, football, hockey and wrestling.

He was co-captain of the lacrosse team and was a member of the traffic squad, student council, and the varsity club.

60-57 Win; 2-3 Loss

Basketeers Top Concord, 60-57 But Reading Edges Icemen

John F. Parrell

Coach Vandy French's hoop team built up an early lead Friday night and held on for the victory over a good Concord-Carlisle team at the local court. Coach Kelley's hockey team also went to the front and led most of the way, only to drop the verdict 3-2 in the last 13 seconds of the game.

Games this week see the basketball team away for two contests, with visits to Belmont on Tuesday and against undefeated Lexington on Friday. The puck chasers will face off against Belmont Saturday afternoon at 1 p.m. at the Lynn Arena.

The ice action opens the second half of the Middlesex League season and finds Melrose undefeated and Stoneham with only a single loss. The Sachems have played much better than their record indicates but have been unable to score many goals. As a matter of fact, their eight-game league record finds them just above one goal per game. On defense they have limited the opposition to two per game, but their inability to cage the puck has resulted in two ties and three one-goal setbacks.

GOAL FAMINE

The pattern for the first half was set in the opening game with Belmon, which should have been won except that one of the opposing skaters was left uncovered on a faceoff and slammed home the equalizer. The Sachems played better than most teams against Melrose, but the Ell Ponders still came out on top 5-0. The goal famine persisted through the next six games and reached a low against Watertown in a scoreless tie.

Winchester took a single goal lead in the first period Saturday on a nicely set-up play by sophomore Jim Beck, who was assisted by Ben Dolan and Capt. Doug Dalton. The team kept the pressure on Reading and peppered their goalie with 52 shots, some of which required almost impossible saves.

Another Winchester goal came in the second stanza with Dolan again setting up the tally by another sophomore, Billy Harris.

This lead held up until the third period was four minutes old when a pass from behind the net was converted by Jeff Wells. About two minutes later Ron Hill wound up from about 50 feet out and popped one into the Winchester nets to even the count.

Then came the crusher when with only 13 seconds left Mike Sweeney was left uncovered on a faceoff and lit the red light to clinch the victory for Reading.

If the Sachems can shake their scoring slump and avoid lapses they figure to do much better the next time around. Except for the two front runners the rest of the league is well bunched, and a couple of victories could rocket the Kelleymen into the upper brackets of the standings.

Back Strong

The basketball team came back strong after its 57-49 setback at the hands of Coach Killilea's Melrose quintet and hustled to an impressive first-half lead against the visitors from Concord with the scoreboard showing a 37-18 margin at half-time. The visitors were held to a meagre total of eight points in the second period.

Both teams had cool hands in the third quarter, with the Sachems getting only 11 and the Concord crew just two more points. Thus, it was that going into the final eight minutes the home team had a rather comfortable cushion of 18.

However, it continued to have trouble dropping the ball through the hoop, and the visitors caught fire and pumped in 26 to make the final score 60-57. They never did succeed in catching up with Winchester, but the action was fast and furious to the end.

Capt. Tom Warkman led the home team with 19 markers, and Gilfeather of Concord bettered him by a single point.

Belmont Outruns Sachems To Win League Meet, 53-33

The Winchester track team continues to show improvement after a shaky start due to illnesses and vacations and put up a good fight before losing to Belmont last Saturday at the Lexington Field House.

The final tally was 53-33; and winners for the Sachems were Ronnie Allard, Neal Benshimol, Les Fabuss and John McHugh.

Allard's win was in the 600-yard run and came as he bested Belmont's Joe Holland by a matter of inches after a gruelling race.

This week's round of meets saw Lexington smash Wakefield's string of 23 dual meet victories, while Melrose also remained undefeated.

The league championship will be at stake when the Minutemen collide with the B.A.A. champions from Melrose and the Lexington distance strength may prove sufficient to outweigh the superiority of the Red and White in the dashes and high jump.

The summary:

Two-Mile — 1, McGinty (B); 2, Tully (W); 3, Allen (B). Time 10:13.4.

High Jump — 1, Mosca (B); 2, Hartman (B); 3, Pitts (B). Height 5ft., 8in.

Sachem Girls Down Belmont

After a disappointing season's opener, which the Winchester girls' basketball team lost to Stoneham, Belmont met the Sachems last Tuesday and were defeated by a score of 52-27.

With a height advantage as well as quick, accurate passing and shooting, the Winchester girls outscored and outplayed Belmont in every quarter.

Although Cheryl Bohigian of Belmont was the outstanding scorer with a total of 12 points, Sachem Sue Kent scored more points (a total of eight) in the third quarter alone than Cheryl managed in either half.

Sue, Cathy Niles and Lynn Anderson each scored high for Winchester with 10 points, most of which came toward the end of the game.

Throughout the first two quarters Junior Sue Kent really hustled the ball down to Cathy and Marcia, who scored 16 of the first half's 24 points. The half ended with a score of 24-16 and high hopes for the Sachems!

In the third quarter, while the Belmont girls were held to only two baskets and two foul shots, Sue exploded with eight points to hold the strong Winchester lead.

With a 13-point margin going into the fourth quarter the Sachems still scored a high 16 points over Belmont's five. The final quarter, held together by Sue Swanson's six points and Lynn Anderson's seven, was an exciting climax to a well-earned victory.

The junior varsity team not only won its game by a score of 20-9, but helped contribute to the varsity victory. Juniors Janet Peterson, who scored one point, Kit Bigelow with two, Merily Ober, Ann Blackham and Alicia Paulsen played during the final quarter.

Second Round Starts This Week For League Skaters

by Frank Burns

The Middlesex Hockey League will have a split schedule with a pair of games Wednesday afternoon. Reading and Watertown met in the opener with Concord and Belmont facing off later. This ended the first half.

The second round starts Saturday as Watertown and Wakefield open the bill at 12:30 with Belmont and Winchester clashing in the second game. In their opening game, these teams played to a 2 to 2 tie.

The feature will be the Stoneham-Reading game, scheduled to start at 3 o'clock. In their opener, Stoneham scored in the final minute of play to defeat the Rockets, 1 to 0. Reading has been hit with injuries and the flu bug but they are back on the beam and should be tough in the second half.

Melrose and Concord will clash in the last game. Melrose bombed the Patriots 10 to 1, in their opener but the Patriots have improved vastly since then and it should be a more even battle.

Steve Dolloff of Melrose is making a runaway of the individual scoring race with 29 points for seven games, a 12-point bulge over teammate Joe White, who won the scoring title a year ago. Melrose and Stoneham dominate the scoring race with seven of the top nine players.

Steve Dolloff, Melrose	11	18	29

Bantams Win Two More

In a fast moving game the Winchester Bantam "A" team nosed out Stoneham 4-3 on January 11th. Continual action marked this game with play moving from one end of the rink to the other with very few whistles.

Left winger Dave Frongillo led the scoring with two goals and an assist. Steve Troiano had a goal and an assist while Rick Murphy chipped in with two assists.

On January 18th, six different players scored in a 7-1 victory over Charlestown. Steve Troiano scored twice while Bob Carroll, Ricky Murphy, Chris McCarthy, Jim Dale and Joe Penta each made it once.

Tom Belden had two assists as did Bill Gannon, Joe Penta, Jack Brennan, Steve Spang, Rick Murphy, Dave Frongillo, Mike Sandford, Jim Dale and Chris McCarthy.

In this victory the whole team played an excellent game with standout action by the defensemen. The backline did an outstanding job in clearing the puck from their zone and in several cases led the charge from their end.

The next game is Saturday evening February 1st at 6:30 p.m. when the Bantams will try to avenge an earlier setback by Arlington. All bantams games are played at Hockey Town, USA.

Winchester Youth Hockey

The Bruins and the Flyers continued their winning ways in their respective divisions. The Bruins, undefeated in the Bantam division, are four points in front of their nearest rival, while the Flyers are seven points in front of the second-place Blues.

The Flyers didn't give up a goal in either one of their games. They shut out the North Stars 1-0 in the first game and battled the second-place Blues to a 0-0 tie. The Blues couldn't put a win on the board, and they were tied by the Kings 1-1.

The Kings also tied the Seals 1-1, while Paul Tello's close-in shot gave the Seals a well-deserved 1-0 win over the North Stars for the only other win in the five games played.

Dave Pattee has played outstanding hockey for the first-place Flyers, along with Willie Paglia. The North Stars have come to life in recent weeks, thanks to the fine play of Paul Austin, Allyn Stillman and Mike Donellan.

The Kings seemed to show the most improvement in recent weeks. They are led by Dave Putnam and Art DiNatale. The Seals expect Paul Tello and Dan Salani to make a run for the title against the powerful Flyers.

In the opening game of the morning in the big rink, the Rangers shut out the listless Maple Leafs 3-0. Eddie Pierce sent Rick Murphy in for the first Rangers score.

Later Maggio, filling in for the undermanned Rangers, set up Chris MacKenzie with a pass from about 10 feet in front.

Richie Jacobs tallied the final goal for the Rangers as he put in a rebound from MacKenzie's shot from the points which the Leafs goalie Cliff Falla had stopped.

The Canadiens jumped off to a quick 2-0 lead over the Bruins before the mighty offense finally pulled off a 4-2 win to remain undefeated. Dan Martignetti scored first for the Habs with an assist going to Jack Brennan, and four minutes later Peter O'Leary sent Don Carey in alone for the 2-0 lead, but from there on it was all Bruins.

Dave Frongillo took personal charge of the Bruins offense and proceeded to score the next three goals for the B's with all-around great play.

Doug Parkhill, Phil O'Connell and Billy Gannon received assists on Frongillo's scoring heroics, while O'Connell set up Billy Cannon for the final tally of the game.

The Red Wings moved into a second-place tie with the Black Hawks and the Rangers, as they edged out the Hawks 4-3. Tommy Belden got the Wings off on the right foot, converting Jimmy Dale's pass for the first score of the game.

Mark Siegfriedt tied it up for the Hawks with the prettiest goal of the day as he soloed in from the red line to beat Rich Maggio with a quick shot to the lower corner.

The Red Wings came right back as Steve Spang scored unassisted and two minutes later set up Charlie Evans for the Wings' 3-1 lead. A minute later Chris McCarthy cut the lead by one as he took Paul McCormack's pass and scored.

The Red Wings wasted little time in getting the goal back, as Dale and Belden combined once again. This time Dale got the score with Belden receiving the assist.

Mike Siegfriedt scored the final goal of the game for the Black Hawks with a setup by the great Dennis O'Donnell.

The players chosen this week for their outstanding performances were Bruins Dave Frongillo and their goalie for the day, Dennis O'Donnell. Frongillo has seven for the season and is in second place in the scoring race. O'Donnell was fantastic for the Bruins in the nets as time and time again he proceeded to rob the poor Canadiens blind.

During the game O'Donnell stopped the Canucks on breakaways on three different occasions; and then to show his great all-round hockey ability, he played the forward position for the Black Hawks in the next game and picked up an assist.

Dragon's Riddle Key To Cabaret

"In marble walls as white as milk,
Lined with skin as soft as silk,
Within, a pool so crystal clear
A golden apple doth appear.
No doors there are to this stronghold,
Yet thieves break in and steal the gold."

These are the words of the riddle the Winton Club dragon will be speaking and singing at the Town Hall January 28-February 1 as a featured member of the cast of "Once Upon a Time," this year's 48th annual Winton Club Cabaret to benefit Winchester Hospital.

In the show, the dragon is befriended by Melissa, a young girl of storyland who is searching for how to live happily ever after. In return for her kindness and to help her on her way, the dragon gives Melissa his riddle to solve.

It is Melissa's search for the riddle's answer among well known storyland characters that is the story of "Once Upon a Time."

In addition to the show itself, audiences for the Cabaret have always enjoyed the program for the show.

This year, under the co-chairmanship of Mrs. John Harrison and Mrs. Courtenay Crandall, the program contains pictures and artwork done by Mrs. Frank B. Kelley, chairman of last year's Cabaret. Each program will carry an insert containing the lyrics to the original scores by Lee Daniels.

In addition, each program carries a ticket for the nightly drawing of doorprizes which include the following: a man's Shetland sweater donated by the Winchester Knit Shop; a rug cleaning gift ceritficate donated by Koko Boodakian of Winchester; four dolls donated by the Vogue Doll Company; Kimrick Knitting Mills of Nashua, New Hampshire's gift certificate; and a gift certificate from Louis' Men's Shop on Boylston Street in Boston.

Mr. Jenks To Speak At Fortnightly

"The Jenks at Oxford" will be the title of the program for the Fortnightly, the Federated Women's Clubs of Winchester meeting at 2 o'clock on Monday, January 27, at the Methodist Church auditorium, when James L. Jenks Jr. of 12 Myopia Hill Road will tell of the course which he and Mrs. Jenks studied at Oxford University last July.

The talk will be illustrated with colored slides which he took during that period.

Mr. Jenks, a retired business executive, was formerly president of Sanborn Company, now a division of Hewlett-Packard. He is the publisher of a bi-monthly magazine "Praying Hands" which goes to business men and women all over the country and to some areas abroad.

A graduate of Brown University, Mr. Jenks is interested in the New England Baptist Hospital, Museum of Science and Morgan Memorial where he serves as an active trustee. Mr. Jenks' office is at 28 Church Street.

Tea will be served at 1 p.m. by social hostesses, Mrs. Walter Stone and Mrs. Arthur Haines.

'Mother's Morning Out'

"Mother's Morning Out" will be sponsored by the Winchester Mental Health Associattion Thursday, February 6, from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Crawford Memorial Church.

Because of domestic demands and lack of help, many mothers have difficulty leaving home for a change of pace, and are lonely for diversion and adult feminine companionship. This program is being offered as an opportunity for young mothers in Winchester to get together informally, to communicate with each other, and to share common pleasures and problems on a woman to woman basis.

Unstructured discussion groups will be followed by a summation period of general discussion.

Child care will be provided free of charge. For transportation call Mrs. Maxwell McCreery at 729-2036. All are welcome.

Mrs. H. Kimball Archibald is president of the Winchester Branch of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association. The program has been arranged by Mrs. Herman P. Meissner and Dr. Robert A. Storer.

"Lord, who shall abide in thy tabernacle? Who shall dwell in thy holy hill? He that walketh uprightly, and worketh righteousness, and speaketh the truth in his heart." This verse, which is part of the Christian Science Lesson-Sermon titled "truth," will be read in all Christian Science churches this Sunday.
From the denomination's textbook Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, one of the related passages to be read is the following: "The question, What is Truth, is answered by demonstration, —by healing both disease and sin; and this demonstration shows that Christian healing confers the most health and makes the best men."

Laymen's Sunday At First Church

Laymen of the First Congregational Church will conduct the regular worship service at 10:00 a.m. Sunday, January 26th. "The Local Church in God's Mission" will be the theme of the service.

In place of the usual sermon, three lay people will present their reflections on this subject. Charles P. Harris will present an introduction, followed by discussions by Mrs. Robert F. Johnson, Frank M. Gunby Jr., and Frederick C. Rozelle Jr.

Lawrence E. Beckley will offer the pastoral prayer, and Miles R. Weaver will serve as liturgist.

"The Local Church in God's Mission" is the theme of an effort being made by congregations of the United Church of Christ throughout the country to sharpen their understanding of their essential purpose and function.

Through a greater clarification of its identity and a clearer understanding of the world in which it is called to witness, the Church will be enabled to plan for responsible action and evaluate its mission in the light of clearly defined goals.

Religious Group Has Convention

Jehovah's Witnesses took over Arlington High School this past weekend for their semi-annual circuit assembly in Lowe Auditorium.

Harry Fetzik, district supervisor of Jehovah's Witnesses in New England, delivered the talk, "God's Way is Love."

In his talk he explained, "For mankind to live in perfect peace and happiness under God's heavenly kingdom rule, all the wicked must be permanently removed from this earth. This, God promises to do in his own set way."

Mr. Fetzik, in explaining the role of true Christians today as living examples to others said, "Humans initiating God's way of love are a powerful force in assisting others to see it is the only practical way for man, and one with the only possible prospect of a lasting future."

Love was the motivating force which caused 36 candidates to present themselves publicly for baptism, the official ceremony of Jehovah's Witnesses that constitutes each person's ordination.

The program, which began Friday evening and continued through Sunday, carried the theme, "Sharing Fully in Preaching the Good News," was a great aid in the house-to-house ministry that was engaged around Arlington during the three-day assembly and is regularly carried on by the Burlington Congregation.

Saturday evening's program emphasized the theme, "Teaching with a Sense of Urgency in the Time Remaining." It was explained that because the end of these turbulent times is near, those who would benefit from God's promises of a new order or system of things must act upon His written Word now.

Jehovah's Witnesses offer a six-month Bible course free of charge to all people.

Hockey School Meets In Lynn

The All-Star Hockey School will conduct classes at the North Shore Sports Center in Lynn for the first time next summer.

The school, providing individual instruction for boys 10 through 18 years of age will be directed by long-time National Hockey League stars Doug Mohns and Don McKenney. It is an addition to a school program which will also include classes in Falmouth and Weymouth.

The classes will be held on a Monday-through-Friday schedule in the two-week period beginning June 16 and ending June 27, with three classes held daily. A 3:15 p.m. class for younger boys will be followed by classes on the basis of age, experience and size. No experience in organized hockey is required.

Mohns, a 16-year NHL veteran, is one of very few players to be named all-star at two positions, as a defenseman with the Boston Bruins and as a left wing with the Chicago Black Hawks. He is rated one of the finest skaters and hardest shooters in hockey history.

McKenney, also a 16-year professional, has scored 256 NHL goals as a forward in a career interrupted last season by serious knee surgery while he was with the St. Louis Blues.

The former Bruins captain and Lady Byng Trophy (for sportsmanship) winner has been showing comeback form this season by Leading the Providence Reds in scoring.

All-Star classes will be limited strictly in size to insure the maximum of individual instruction for students.

Illustrated brochures and enrollment may be requested at the Sports Center or by writing All-Star Hockey School, 685 Union Street, Braintree 02184.

Widows and children of veterans with service after August 4, 1964, are eligible for pensions on the same basis as those of veterans of World War I, World War II, and the Korean Conflict.

Duplicate Bridge Club

There must have been a lodestone attuned to bridge players on Wednesday, January 15th, at the Club, for some magnetic pull drew twenty-six tables strong for the evening's game.

One of the Club's young partnerships captured the honors North-South in Section A,—home-grown Jim Bradley and guest Bob Fiske. East-West two strong regular players,—Ruth Hagan and Sam Burwen, were first.

North-South

James Bradley and Robert Fiske	125½
Joyce Wolfe and Robert Haskell	124
William Wheelock and Tom Young	116
Ellen Schofield and Guy Mingolelli	112½
Dr. and Mrs. Robert Blackler	111½
Elizabeth Slade and Don Dalrymple	111

East-West

Ruth Hagan and Sam Burwen	135
Elodie Flewelling and James Byrne	127½
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mansfield	124
Fredna Perkins and Clarence Woodward	118
Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cade	113
Everett Knox and Waldron Smith	113

It was good to see Dolly Pasquale again and in a blaze of glory too,—posting the highest score in both fields of Section B's fifteen tables, partnered with guest Gay Schreiber.

North-South

Stephan Chiotellis and Charles Richardson	135
Norman Houlding and Leo Gonsalves	128
John Mitchell and David Bauer	124
Mr. and Mrs. John Davis	123
Martha Joslin and John Reardon	116
Alan Friot and Robert Galante	116
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Johnson	114½
Nancy Atkinson and John Washburn	112½
Barbara Shea and Margaret Jackson	111

East-West

Dolly Pasquale and Gay Schreiber	141½
Mrs. Harold Brown and Irving Brown	120½
Pat Elms and David Scheffer	120
Alice Kimball and Stephan Haseltine	119½
Don Delgrego and Stan Berehulka	118½
Rose Hickey and Lillian Sheridan	117½
Mr. and Mrs. Victor	112
Enid Houlding and Lee Salani	111½
Anne Murray and Gladys O'Leary	111

Board 15 in Section B was typical of most of the North-South hands,—difficult to bid as well as to play. North-South were vulnerable with South dealing.

After two passes North probably opened the bidding with a forcing bid of one club, two clubs, or two diamonds, depending upon the system. East can muddy the waters with an unusual two no trumph bid which asks his partner to bid the best minor. This must have happened at least once, since one final contract was three clubs doubled by West.

The only slam that can be made is six hearts, but only three tables out of eleven arrived at this contract. The problem of course is to find the four-four fit. At our table sitting North and playing with a new partner, I opened the bidding with two clubs (our only forcing strong bid), heard two spades from my partner, and then bid three diamonds (showing a diamond suit). My partner South then bid three no trump which I understood to deny a holding of four hearts since spades were bid in response to clubs, and then three no trump after the diamonds. It appeared then that my partner had two or three diamonds, and therefore with the Queen of spades and a heart honor we could make six diamonds which I bid. Partner then bid six no trumps which was doomed to defeat with the two-four diamond split, as was the six diamonds.

The play for six hearts, probably by South, evidently depends upon the play of the hearts. By assuming that hearts are split two-three, the most usual, and that diamonds are split two-four or three-three which takes care of 84% of the splits, the play is as follows: assuming a club lead,—the best defensive lead—you should win the opening lead on the board with a trump, lead a low heart to the King, a low heart to the Ace, and follow with the Ace, King and a small diamond which is ruffed in hand. Since diamonds do not break, West can make his trump now or later. In any event you establish your diamonds by one more ruff, returning to the board via spades to make the slam, losing only one heart trick.

The travelling score sheet indicates three six-heart bids, two of which make the slam; three six no-trump bids all being set; one seven diamond bid down two; one five no-trump down one; one five spades making five (very well played); one four spades making four; and one three clubs doubled by West, down three (theoretically an excellent sacrifice) for North-South have a vulnerable game, but in this instance giving North-South an above average score because of all the North-South contracts which were defeated.

'If You Were President'

"If You Were President..." how would you resolve today's critical issues?

Monday nights at 8:30 on Channel 2 starting February 3 experts with sharply opposing viewpoints will be asked what action they think President Richard Nixon should take on a key national problem.

Then a neutral examiner will question the two "witnesses" in detail so their divergent opinions will become crystal clear.

Telecast live and in color, "If You Were President..." is a sequel to last year's highly successful "Opinion in Conflict."

To begin, host Lyman Kirkpatrick asks "If You Were President ... Would You Use Tax Credits to Spur Ghetto Industry?" Answering with an emphatic "no" is former Treasury Department legislative Counsel Jerome Kurtz. "Yes," says Mortimer Zuckerman, vice-president for Finance with Cabot, Cabot & Forbes. They'll be questioned by Lester Thurow, associate professor of economics at M.I.T.

Girl Scout Diary

Skating, on ice and roller skates, is being enjoyed by Girl Scouts this winter. On December 27th about 100 Winchester Scouts spent the morning roller skating at the Wal-Lex rink in Waltham, and two-thirds of the Junior Scouts of Troop 544, Parkhurst School, will be working on ice during January and February for the skater badge, under the direction of Emily Holt.

Troops 501 and 485, Wyman School, were guests at Channel 2's "Mixed Bag" program on January 15th. The featured performers were a trio of jazz artists who treated the audience to a jam session.

Junior Troops 492 and 487 of the Immaculate Conception School walked to the Winchester Bowladrome on Wednesday, January 8, for a bowling meeting. High scorers were Mary Ann Cullen with an 87, Cheryl Doherty with 63, and Denise Hennelly with 62. High scoring team for the day consisted of Louise McMahon, Nancy McHugh, Gail O'Donnell, Carol McElhinney and Mary Ann Cullen.

Girl Scout cookie time is just around the corner. The girls will be ringing doorbells from January 31 to February 10th to take orders.

Mistick Side Council neighborhood cookie managers met at Carroll's Colonial Restaurant in Medford on Monday, January 13th to receive instructions from Mr. Sousa of the Burry Biscuit Company. On Thursday, January 16th, Mrs. Faubert, neighborhood cookie chairman for the Aberjona Neighborhood held a meeting of her troop cookie chairmen at which cookie materials were distributed.

The day after Christmas Junior troop 503 of the Mystic School caroled at two nursing homes, Mystic Manor and Brooks Manor. Accompanying them were their leaders, Mrs. William H. Wells and Mrs. James Kent. Afterwards the girls played charades at Mrs. Kent's home.

THE MOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERY YOUR CHILD CAN MAKE
Children are natural "discoverers." They love to learn about, and to use new ideas. They like to solve problems. They want action.
This is why children love Christian Science. It involves action. It also involves discovery, the most important discovery of all: the nature of God and man's relationship to Him.
In our Sunday School children learn how to search for Truth, and to find it: how to act on these discoveries, and to prove their worth.
Your child will enjoy being with the "discoverers" in our Sunday School classes. They are welcome, any time.

Smoke Damages Four Businesses In Center Fire

A stubborn cellar fire thwarted Winchester Firefighters for about an hour and caused smoke damage to four businesses in Winchester Center on Tuesday night.

The first alarm for the fire was called in at 9:45 when a staff member of the Richard Donovan electrical engineering firm located in the second story of the Locatelli building alerted Harold Allen, building superintendent.

The smell of smoke caused the call and by the time the apparatus arrived smoke could be seen seeping from below the building at its apex, where Thompson Street adjoins Main.

Damage from the smoke was suffered largely at the Gift Boutique shop at the corner, but also at Peck and Peck's, the Barber Shop and the Handcraft Shop.

Estimates of damage had not been made yesterday morning when the Star went to press. The cause of the fire was still under investigation.

On their arrival Winchester Firefighters found a fire in the basement, confined to the cement room under the Boutique.

According to Chief Francis Amico, who arrived when the second alarm was rung at 10:05, the superior construction of the building prevented the fire from travelling.

The confined quarters, however, contained the heavy smoke and made it difficult for the men to get at the source and to the area to eject the smoke.

The second alarm was called for extra manpower and as a precaution. Just after the second alarm, smoke was still pouring from in front of the Boutique and alongside the Peck and Peck west entrance.

Fire trucks and police cars filled the Center and the second alarm doubled the spectator crowd to close to 300 citizens who arrived on foot and in cars—all bundled against the 12 degree weather.

Sport Shop Too

The fire was the second this week in the business center. Monday morning at 11:25 a call came into Fire Headquarters from the Sport Shop at 43 Church Street where proprietor Charles Koch had found blue flames and smoke billowing out from behind an electric clock.

Firefighters, under the direction of Lt. Joseph Connolly arrived and found a window trim and sill and wastebasket still on fire.

They brought things under control and were back at the station at 11:56.

Damage in this fire was minimal.

Across the Street

Tuesday's fire brought to three since early November calls to Fire Headquarters for multiple apparatus in the business center.

In early November the Winchester Firefighters converged at the same spot as Tuesday night to investigate heavy smoke in the basement of the Winchester News Store.

In this case cause was presumed to be a back-up in a heating plant.

Noticed Tuesday

The dense smoke caused Capt. David Dalton, officer in charge, to call in the second alarm at 10:05 p.m. According to Fire Chief I. Francis Amico who responded to the second alarm, the call was sounded to bring in extra men rather than additional equipment, more men were necessary to get the smoke out, the Chief said.

Asked by the Star to comment on these statistics, Police Chief Joseph J. Derro and Safety Officer Roland J. Roy had this to say:

"Again this year the same prevalent causes of motor vehicle accidents were failure to yield right of way at intersections, and following another vehicle too closely, also not obeying stop signs and traffic signals.

"We would like to appeal to all operators of motor vehicles to use the utmost courtesy at intersections. Angle collisions are the most common type of accidents that occur in most cities and towns.

"If we exercise caution we can cut down on this type of accident, and as a result, thousands of dollars will be saved on property damage, and much suffering, through personal injury involved in these accidents, can be avoided."

Many Do Not File By Deadline

Two File For Selectman; Five For School Committee

After an outlook for five candidates for one berth on the Board of Selectmen, the number who filed nomination papers Monday was only two: Frederick LaTorella and Sherman Saltmarsh. Potential candidates James Blackham Jr., Clara Hewis and Eugene Rotondi did not file.

For School Committee's two open places, however, five men are still in the running. They are John Carroll, Paul DelRossi, David Kline, Richard Lawrance and George Whitten.

February 4 is the last day for a candidate to withdraw his or her name from the March 3 ballot.

The only other contest coming up appears to be for Library trustee where Edward F. O'Connell will challenge incumbents Andrew Nichols and Robert Whitman.

Arthur J. Hewis Jr. did not file papers for Winchester's representative on the Northeast Regional Vocational School Committee, leaving Edward Sharkey as good as elected.

James Haley, who had taken out papers for Cemetery Commission did not file, leaving that job uncontested with incumbent Lowell Smith remaining.

Windsor Carpenter is as good as re-elected to the Board of Assessors, a job which was in contention last year.

Otto Schaefer will return to the Planning Board and Stella Aiken and Albert MacDonnell to Park Commission with Bruce Hanes in as a new member to fill out an unexpired term.

Two Natives

The Selectman's race will pit two natives one against the other:

Frederick LaTorella was born here 57 years ago and lives here now at 74 Irving Street. In public office he has been voted in a Town Meeting Member for over 25 years. He is completing three years as an appointed member of the Finance Committee.

In business Mr. LaTorella is associated as an electronics technician with Baldwin, Limaa and Hamilton of Cambridge.

Mr. Saltmarsh was born in Winchester 40 years ago and makes his home at 155 Mt. Vernon Street. He has been a Town Meeting Member since 1956. He served on the Board of Selectmen from 1959 to 1962 and chaired it his last year. Subsequently he has been a member of the Department of Public Works Study Committee; Town Transportation Committee; Police study Committee and the Town's representative on the MBTA Advissory Council to the executive committee of which he was elected last spring.

Mr. Saltmarsh is in the insurance business. He shares an office with his father at 18 Tremont Street, Boston.

Competing for School Committee are:

—Mr. Carroll, 50, a Malden teacher. He has lived in Winchester 12 years and has not yet held public office;

—Mr. DelRossi, 26, a consultant for the Arthur D. Little Company, who grew up and went through school in Winchester and has just returned to live here. This is his first run for election;

—Mr. Kline, 36, a teacher at the Stoneham High School and is IBM coordinator for the Stoneham school system. He has lived here five years and not yet held office;

—Mr. Lawrance, 49, a physicist and electronics engineer who is a department manager for Honeywell Incorporated and has served over 10 years as a Town Meeting member; and —Mr. Whitten, who has lived here since his senior year in high school; is 45; a former Town Meeting member and treasurer of the Assembled Homes in Winchester among his numerous other business interests.

Crittenton Hears From Roxbury On Problems

What do black people in Boston really want? "We want to control our own community," Frances Hill Gelber of Roxbury told members of Winchester Jr. Circle of Florence Crittenton at its meeting January 21.

"It's not that we don't want to be involved with the white community," said Mrs. Gelber, who is supervisor of social services at Roxbury Multi-Service Center. "We just don't want to be told what to do." She said that they want more blacks in jobs such as teachers, social workers, policemen.

The Multi-Service Agency was started four years ago. It provides advice and legal aid, especially in domestic and landlord-tenant cases, employment, mental health, neighborhood service, and help with family and individual problems.

The Agency works on areas of community concern, such as housing, clean streets, recreation.

Mrs. Gelber says that many blacks are suspicious of gifts and help, even from other blacks. She said that at a community Christmas party, a black Santa gave out candy to the children. "Before the evening was over, someone had torn down the Christmas tree," she said. She felt it was because many of her people mistrust gifts.

Housing is one of the biggest problems for urban families. "The program urging families to purchase homes is good," she said.

Since the Crittenton League helps support Crittenton-Hastings House in Brighton for unwed mothers, Mrs. Gelber touched on the illegitimacy problem.

"Black unwed mothers differ very little from white unwed mothers," she said. She feels that the enforced vacation caused by the closing of Martin Luther King School could contribute to more illegitimacy. "The majority of youngsters have been out of school for several months," she said "What are they doing with their time?"

Mrs. Gelber said that many black unwed mothers go to work as soon as they can find day-care for the baby, but that adequate day-care is a major problem.

Warrant Signed For March; New Lights To Be Asked

A warrant for a 35-article Town Meeting was signed by the Selectmen at their meeting Monday night.

The warrant, 15 articles shorter than the 1968 Meeting, is expected to include a request for a start on new street lighting. This subject was under discussion Monday just after the signing.

Robert Murphy of Allen Road, a director of transportation planning for the Boston Redevelopment Authority, presented a traffic analysis and a priority list for requests of changes to newer, stronger lighting.

His recommendations were accepted by the Board, which also listened to his counsel that the new lights be attached to new, concrete (or aluminum) poles which could accommodate wires from below the ground, if the Edison Company should make a future changeover to underground wiring.

Change In Released Time

The next released time dates for the junior and senior high schools have been changed to Tuesday, February 11 due to the unavailability of the speaker arranged for the date published on the schedule (February 5).

Classes in McCall, Lynch and WHS will be dismissed at noon on the 11th so that teachers may hear Dr. Douglas Heath of Haverford College, chairman of the department of psychology.

Police Report Three Breaks On Monday; Two In Homes

A business and two homes in Winchester were broken into on Monday, according to police reports.

At 7:42 a.m. Olsen Cadillac, 632 Main Street, reported a break. Nothing was reported missing; however, a desk was ransacked.

Entry was gained by breaking a window on the south side of the building, according to the report. Officer Frank DeAmato was the investigating officer.

At 5:05 p.m. a break at a Wildwood Street home was reported to police.

According to the police report, entry was gained by breaking a window in a side door on the east side of the house. The door was then opened.

Once inside, the intruders ransacked two bedrooms. Nothing was reported missing, however.

Officer Donald Jackson investigated.

Intruders at a Lockwan Road home gained entry by forcing a screen door on a porch on the south side of the house, entering the porch and breaking a cellar window and then forcing a door between the cellar and the main part of the house, according to the report.

Officer Robert Baird and Sgt. Mario Buzzotta investigated the break which was reported at 6:18 p.m.

Two bedrooms were ransacked and watches and jewelry were reported missing.

Residents of both homes were away all day.

Leo Beranek Heads TV 5 Take-Over Group

Dr. Leo L. Beranek of 7 Ledgewood Road is president of the Boston Broadcasters Incorporated, the group to which the Federal Communications Commission last week awarded the license to operate Channel 5.

Since 1957 Channel 5 has been operating on a temporary license by the Boston Herald Traveler Corporation. Action last week was another in a series of multiple legal rulings and steps which started in 1954.

The FCC ruling is expected to be appealed.

Dr. Beranek heads a corporation, now know as the BBI, which includes nearly 30 Boston area leaders in business, the arts and sciences.

In an interview granted this week to the Boston Globe, he was reported as being a "man appalled at the quality of America's commercial television programming." But he indicated that it would be some time before programming could be "upgraded."

Well known here as a patron of the Boston Opera Group and as head of the world's best-known acoustic firm, Bolt Beranek and Newman in Cambridge, Dr. Beranek was quoted as saying:

"I feel that much of the feeling of dissatisfaction in today's young people is caused by so much going on in the world that does not seem related to national and local social needs. So they protest. We (BBI) would like to establish that relationship through our programming."

An Iowan educated at Cornell College there and at Harvard for graduate degrees, Dr. Beranek directed Harvard's electro acoustic laboratory during World War II and helped develop a soundproofing system for bombers that reduced noise fatigue of crews and a communications system used by crews of high-altitude planes.

Since then he has been on the MIT staff, lecturing there and all over the world in acoustics.

Conservation Pays Town, Looks Ahead

Conservation Commission officers Stephen Moore and David Turnquist Monday night handed the Selectmen a check from the Commonwealth for $2,749 toward the Smith Pond land purchase authorized by the 1967 Town Meeting.

The Commission still hopes for Federal aid in addition.

The men also presented to the Selectmen a request for consideration of a $1,000 land option asked them by William Maley of Woburn who now wishes to sell his approximately five acres of land which adjoin the Woburn-Winchester boundary west of Cambridge Street and abutting the James Cullen property in that area.

The Commissioners noted that Mr. Maley feels forced to sell as a result of the land re-evaluation and that his asking price is the same as his new value—or somewhat under $20,000. They did not press for this action by the Selectmen, but noted its value if the Town is to keep open the possibility of asking the land purchase at Town Meeting.

Subsequently the Selectmen voted, three to two, to insert a Special Town Meeting within the 1969 Meeting for this purpose.

They authorized no option money, but voted that a verbal indication of their plans be conveyed to Mr. Maley.

Look At Curriculum Planned For Parents

The Lincoln School Parents Association is sponsoring in the next few weeks a series of meetings titled "Curriculum Workshop" designed to tell of the changes and advances that are taking place in the curriculum of the Winchester school system.

All parents and interested persons are invited to attend on Tuesday, February 4; Tuesday, February 11 and Thursday, March 6 at 7:45 p.m. in the Lincoln School Auditorium.

The first two sessions will deal directly with Winchester.

The program Tuesday, February 4 will cover math and social studies and speakers will be members of the Winchester Cirriculum Councils.

Discussing math will be John Waite of WHS, head of the department, as coordinator; Mrs. Janet Greeno, Wyman School will cover the primary level and George Greer, Vinson-Owen School, at the intermediate level.

The Social Studies Council will be represented by Miss May Milliken, department head, coordinator; of the primary level Mrs. Marjorie Berger, Washington School and Miss Mary Regan of McCall Junior High School.

Session two of the Workshop will cover the areas of science and English and once again the speakers will be Curriculum Council members.

Session III on March 6 will provide an opportunity to broaden our view and relate the developments we see in Winchester to the entire field of education.

The speaker will be Mrs. Adeline Naiman, editor-in-chief, Elementary Science Group, Education Development Center, Newton. Mrs. Naiman will speak on "New Trends in Elementary Education." A question and answer period will follow all sessions and coffee will be served.

Report On Incinerator Is Accepted

The Board of Selectmen Monday night voted formal acceptance of the report and recommendations on the Town Incinerator made for them by the engineering firm of Fay, Spofford and Thorndike.

The report is now publicly available at that office so that any interested citizen may study it.

The articles for the Special Town Meeting of February 13 are based on its recommendations and before that date a summary is expected to be available.

Final bill for the study has not yet been submitted by the consulting engineers. Monies voted for it were estimated earlier to be between four and six thousand. A spokesman for the Board noted their guess is for a final bill in the vicinity of five.

Now being built at the incinerator site is the construction of an enclosure over the conveyor. This is being financed from available funds.

Looking ahead from the recommendations of the engineers there are several categories of improvements and repairs, the bill for which the Town will be asked to foot.

At the February 13 meeting the cost of immediate repairs should be the subject of one article, with an appropriation of about $91,000.

Monies for a second shift of personnel, the better to operate the structure—or about $21,148—are to appear in the regular Town Meeting warrant.

In the future will be extensive reconstruction — including that of a storage pit—which could come to about $194,000; and the construction of a second crane, estimated at about $62,500.

DeVries Replies

In answer to the Town's request that he maintain in a better and safer way the platform and ramps in Winchester center, owner George DeVries of 25 Waterfield Road referred the Town to the Boston and Maine.

His counsel, he noted, had verified that his responsibility was solely that of snow and ice removal.

Businessmen Elect Officers

The Winchester Business and Professional Association met Tuesday afternoon in the Peck and Peck store to elect officers for the year to come.

Chosen were Jack Chitel of Chitel's, president; George Kean of Kean Flower Design, vice president; and Abe Curwin of the Homestead Shops, secretary.

Directors for the group will be retiring president, Clay Spector of Hillside Paint and Wallpaper; Bettie Donald of the shop bearing her name; Joe De Giacimo of Gift Boutique; Joe Levesque of F. W. Woolworth; and Jack Kean, also of Kean Flower Designs.

Questions For CONCERN

CONCERN, Winchester's Committee on New Concepts of Educational and Therapeutic Needs, is currently answering under this heading questions mailed to its mailbox, Winchester Post Office Box 93 (signed or anonymous); or questions put to any one of its members.

Today's question is:

"What do the Police do when they know that a young person here is a drug user?"

The answer was prepared for CONCERN by one of its members, Police Juvenile Officer Richard Beaton. It reads:

"The first step in dealing with a known drug user is to try to set up a meeting with him and his parents. If, after our discussion, said user decides that he wants help, then we make arrangements with a treatment center, or physician, to render such help.

"If, on the other hand, a known drug user denies that he is taking drugs, and does not cooperate, then it becomes the duty of the police to keep the user under surveillance.

"If sufficient evidence is obtained, it becomes the duty of the police to take legal action."

Next Thing To A Hayride

IT LOOKS LIKE A LARK and a modern skating version of old-time ski-joring. But the men of the Park Department and Rec. Director Don Spinney are lending their aggregate weight better to plane the ice on the outdoor rink. In front are Dick Tofuri and Joe Knowles. On skates in the rear are Mr. Spinney and Joe McGrath. The old-time planer being pulled by a Town Bronco tractor, is one loan from the North Shore Sports Arena. It worked well and skaters have been making good use of the area, including under the night lights. (Ryerson photo)

Area Mental Health Association Hears Bad News At State House

A discouraging note was heard last week by Winchester participants in the Leadership Conference sponsored by the Massachusetts Association of Mental Health in Boston.

Winchester MHA President Mrs. H. Kimball Archibald and Neil H. Borden of the local Association, who is this year's president of the the Mystic Valley Mental Health parent group, heard that the Department of Mental Health's budget for 1970 has received drastic cuts which will adversely affect both community-based programs and State hospital programs.

The cut, the MVMHA representatives felt, would have an effect on the area group's recent request for additional staff for the Mystic Valley Children's Clinic which it sponsors.

Together with volunteer leaders and staff of the Massachusetts MHA and its 24 chapters, Mrs. Archibald and Mr. Borden shared a two-day look at developments currently under way in the State Department of Mental Health's plan to provide comprehensive mental health services and the role that the mental health association has and will have during this period of hoped-for major growth.

More Positive

A more positive note was added at the Saturday sessions, where the groundwork was laid for the State Association and its chapters to continue to work together toward the provision of better services to the mentally ill, and the enactment of more humane laws governing the civil and criminal commitment of patients to institutions.

Key bills in the 1969 Legislative Session can bring long-overdue changes in the commitment laws which will insure patients' rights from commitment to release.

In a look at major Chapter programs, Mrs. Archibald joined Mrs. Barbara Good, executive director of MVMHA, in describing the Case Aide Program at Metropolitan State Hospital, which is jointly sponsored by the MVMHA. Mrs. Archibald gave a lively account of her participation in the program as a volunteer case aide.

New Advances Could Cut Heart Toll Here

A closer look at the heart disease situation in Winchester is in order just now because next month will be Heart Disease Month.

The latest government figures, detailing the 33 principal causes of death in each community, show that heart disease continues to rank first in the local area.

It represents the greatest threat to human life, more so than cancer, accidents, pneumonia and all other diseases combined.

The report, released by the U.S. Public Health Service, reveals that fully 57.0 percent of all deaths in Winchester are due to some form of heart disease. This includes all ailments of the cardiovascular system.

Nationally, by way of comparison, the disease accounts for 54.8 percent of the total mortality. The average is 56.9 percent in the New England States and 56.6 percent in the State of Massachusetts.

What is baffling to medical researchers is the fact that heart disease is considerably greater in some sections of the country than in others. Also, that it is more prevalent among men than among women.

Smoking Cited

In a study of 50,000 men and women, conducted by the National Heart Institute, high blood pressure, excess weight and cigarette smoking were listed as causative agents in the development of heart disease.

Smoking 10 or more cigarettes a day, it found, increased the risk by 62 percent. High blood pressure raised it 58 percent and obesity, 33 percent.

Among residents of Winchester, out of a total of 193 deaths from all causes, 110 were the result of heartailments, according to the Public Health Service. This includes all deaths of local people, wherever they may have occurred. It excludes, however, local deaths of non-residents.

And, for every one who dies from heart disease, there are some 22 others who are suffering from it or who have a heart abnormality, the American Heart Association states.

Progress is being made, however, in the war on the disease. During the past year the number of heart deaths dropped 3.3 percent below the 1967 total. (Park Row News Service)

Starting in January 1969, flight training students receiving Veterans Administration educational assistance will receive checks monthly, rather than quarterly.

Nurserymen Give Points On Ice-Damage Repairs

Many local landscapes have been damaged by one of the worst ice storms in recent years. The Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association suggests that home owners have an opportunity now to help their outdoor plants recover from storm damage by taking the following few simple steps:

Trees receiving the greatest damage from broken branches have been the soft-wooded Chinese elm, silver maple, swamp red maple, linden, willow, flowering dogwood, and the clumps of birch and lilac. Several of these trees were planted for their rapid growth and their ability to provide shade and privacy. The MNA does not condemn the use of these trees for these reasons, but it does recommend that they be planted safely away from homes, streets, and utility wires.

The greatest damage from broken branches and cracked bark will be infection from decay which can eventually destroy the tree. Branch stubs and jagged wounds should be cut smooth and flush with the trunk, or with the next largest branches. These wounds should be protected from infection by covering them properly with tree-healing paint.

Tying Helps

Many branches which have been bent or cracked can be saved if they are tied securly and positioned properly and if exposed wood along the cracks is painted. Large branches which have been cracked slightly should be pruned so there will be less weight to support during the years needed for complete healing.

Evergreens with weak or multiple trunks have shown the usual bending and breaking. Arborvitae, juniper, and columnar yews are most often injured by ice or snow. Most of these injured branches will be saved by tying them to each other, to a stick, or to a building after the ice and the branches have thawed. Frozen or ice-covered branches may be damaged if handled carelessly before thawing. Serious injury can also result from pouring water on frozen evergreens and shrubs.

Heart Assn. Reviews Progress

Progress is a funny thing: at once, it is relevant; often, it is fickle.

Take, for instance, the gradual betterment the Heart Association has achieved against heart and blood vessel diseases in 20 years of concerted effort to know and conquer these enemies:

—Since 1950, the rate of deaths from all cardiovascular diseases has decreased 16.5 percent among persons between the ages of 45 and 64.

—Great strides have been made against heart diseases afflicting children, assisted by refined diagnostic methods, improved open heart surgery procedures, and implantable pacemakers.

—Medications have been developed to dissolve blood clots, reduce high blood pressure, and prevent rheumatic fever. Mechanical innovations—the hyperbaric chamber, the heart-lung machine, heart action monitors, facilitate patient care.

That's a rough capsule of how two decades of Heart Fund dollars have been spent, through Heart Association programs of research, education, and community service.

That's progress, but...heart and related diseases still stand as this nation's worst crippler and killer.

However, based on, and coupled with, the progress already made in this battle, here's what the Heart Association — granted continuing support—envisions over the horizon:

Octave Of Unity Programs End; Group Formed To Continue Study

About 270 men turned out for the men's dinner program held at St. Eulalia's Church last Thursday as part of the Octave of Unity—and as a result, a group has been formed to further study the program topic "Technical Frontiers and Moral Dilemmas."

According to the Rt. Rev. Joseph W. Lyons, pastor of St. Eulalia's, the evening's discussion centered on the depersonalization of the individual in a computerized society. The men discussed how the individual was "swallowed up" in an industrial complex and what was being done in industry to prevent it.

Almost all the members of the Winchester Ecumenical Association, sponsors of the Octave, attended the meeting.

Panelists for the meeting were the Rev. John Bryan, a Methodist chaplain involved in industrial relations; Prof. Joseph O'Donnell of the Harvard Business School and John Ingalls, a director of industrial relations.

A capacity audience in the Church of the Epiphany hall Sunday night heard the Rev. William E. Alberts of the West End Ecumenical Ministries speak on "Hippiedom and Suburbia," in the final program of the Octave of Unity.

The meeting was sponsored by the Ecumenical Association and by CONCERN.

Dr. Alberts, who spent much of his time last summer in the Boston Common with the hippies, gave a detailed insight into the hippie philosophy.

He told the group too many people were turned off by the hippie clothes and actions, especially the drug problem, and do not look into their philosophy deeply enough.

Veterans Receive Added Benefits

Increased benefits are on the way for Middlesex County veterans and their dependents.

Their monthly compensation and pension checks will be bigger than ever, thanks to two laws passed by Congress during the past year.

In addition, for those who are veterans of World Wars I and II and hold G.I. insurance policies, there will be an increase in dividend payments.

One of the laws provides for a new schedule of compensation payments to veterans who were disabled while in active service.

It increases, by $235 million, the annual amount to be paid to the 1,952,000 veterans now getting such aid. They had been receiving $2 billion a year, which averaged out to $1,025 per person. The new average will be $1,145.

Just how much any particular veteran will receive will depend upon the extent of his disability. Those with 100 percent disability will now get $4,800 a year, as compared with $3,600 previously. For those with 20 percent disability, on the other hand, the compensation will be $516.

Approximately 14,830 of Middlesex County's veterans will be getting bigger compensation checks as a result. Payment to them will total $16,980,000 this year, it is estimated.

The increased rates will show up in the checks for January, which will be arriving in February. The Veterans Administration states that recipients will get the increases automatically, without application.

The second action taken by Congress will boost payments to other Middlesex County veterans who are getting pensions for total disability that was not incurred while in active service.

The average increase, for the 1,100,000 throughout the country who are getting such pensions, will be $110 a year.

Their increase will be based upon a new formula that relates the amount they will get to other income they are receiving.

$140,000 Raised By WEEI For Biafra

WEEI Radio's annual "Penny-a-Month" campaign has raised a total of $140,000 for the starving children of Biafra.

The money will be divided equally between the Catholic Relief Services and the Church World Service, the overseas agencies of the Catholic and Protestant churches in the United States.

Contributions to the 1968 "Penny-a-Month" came from all six New England states. In addition to the thousands of individual contributions, special campaigns were conducted by school children, clubs and fraternal organizations, business and industry, and religious groups of every persuasion.

The money collected will be used by Catholic Relief Services and the Church World Service to purchase desperately needed food and medicine and to help defray the cost of nightly mercy flights from the island of Soa Tome to Biafra.

Massachusetts Senator Edward M. Kennedy said a short time ago that without emergency relief, an estimated 25,000 Biafrans will die each day.

Father Joseph McHugh, an Irish Holy Ghost missionary who spent over seven years in Biafra, said on WEEI, "Biafra is the catastrophe of the century. They (the Biafrans) are totally dependent on help from the outside world."

According to Father McHugh, twenty flights per night carrying two hundred tons of food and medicine leave Sao Tome Island for Biafra, a distance of about three hundred miles. As soon as it arrives in Biafra, it is loaded into cars and trucks and sent out to the areas where it's most needed.

WEEI has conducted its "Penny-a-Month" campaign since 1965. The amount collected in this year's campaign is almost six times the total raised in last year's drive, and more than twice the total collected in all previous campaigns combined. It is believed that the amount of $140,000 sets a record for charitable campaigns conducted by a radio station over a four-week period.

FATIMA MAKES A DISCOVERY . . .

Leave it to Fatima, she'll give Maksoud the jitters one of these days. It seems she walked into Koko Boodakian's showroom when Mike was opening a few bales of Oriental Rugs that had just arrived from New York.

She was just admiring a rug ordered for one of Boodakian's customers when lo and behold, her eyes fell upon a beautiful 9 x 12 Bulgarian Rug with the prettiest blues on the most stunning ivory background she had ever seen.

It was love at first sight!

Now she's haunting Maksoud to rush over and buy it for her. Maksoud's hoping that someone sees it first and beats her to the punch, because it is that kind of rug . . . a buyer's dream.

Contest Count

Filed for contest are the names of two men for one office of Selectman and five men for two offices of School Committee and three for two places on the Board of Trustees of the Library. That's something.

The last minute failure to file on the part of candidates Blackham, Hewis and Rotondi left the field in the Selectmen's race to early entry candidate Fred LaTorella of the Finance Committee and former chairman of the Board, Sherm Saltmarsh—two experienced men.

The School Committee race looks to be an interesting one with two teachers and three businessmen, ranging in age from 26 to 50, after the two places.

In the ensuing weeks it will be the job of the Star to tell more about these candidates as well as to give information about the three men out for Library Board. Another avenue of information will be the voters' service group of the League of Women voters which will sponsor questionnaires, and, on February 25, a candidates night.

May the best men win!

Something To Think About; Something To Watch

"Reading took a positive step toward a municipally owned and operated package store. . .with the unveiling of a plan to create a five-man Municipal Package Store Board to be elected by Town Meeting.

"The plan, submitted to Reading Selectmen by Representative Nils L. Nordberg, already has the tentative blessing of the Attorney General's office. . .

"Creation of such a board would make Reading unique among the 351 cities and towns of the Commonwealth—the only community to sell packaged liquor and reap the harvest, however great or small, therefrom. . .(The plan) calls for an elected board to oversee the establishment of a municipal store, the stocking of it, and regulation of the sale of liquor.

"The board would be elected by Town Meeting. The Moderator would appoint a nominating committee to submit a slate of officers. Town Meeting would then elect the five-man board. . ."

The Reading Chronicle reported the above in an issue early this month. At the moment Reading's Town Counsel is preparing two articles to effect this plan for the Town's March Town Meeting and awaiting a written opinion from the Attorney General's office.

All this activity has ensued after, to the apparent surprise of its citizenry, Reading voted itself wet in the November State election. The Town will have package stores anyway. The idea of the Town running them was initiated by two citizens and has been acted on by its State Representative.

And Winchester? Estimates on what this could mean in municipal revenue have been vague and it may well be that as a business proposition for a town the plan has no merit at all. However, the state is broke; the Town is heading in that direction; Property taxes are at an all-time high and expenses are mounting. What goes on in Reading is worth watching and worth thinking about.

Editorial Comments

"We cannot learn from one another until we stop shouting at one another." "We cannot expect to make everyone our friend. But we can strive to make no one our enemy." "Our youth—I know them—are more passionately driven by a conscience than any other generation (before them)." Generalities? Of course. But welcome in the inaugural address of the country's 37th President, Richard M. Nixon.

Vietnam veteran Donald Graham, a former editor of the Harvard Crimson and the son of the president of the Washington Post (which also publishes Newsweek magazine) has spurned many easy opportunities in the family business and instead chosen to go into recruit training for service in the Washington D.C. Police Department. Police everywhere are short handed and the young army dischargee is to be commended. As in the Roman Catholic Church, the Police Associations might consider a nation wide delayed vocation training program for men whose previous experience in other fields would make their contribution to one of added depth and perspective.

"Owens unveils boating's lap of luxury" read a headline this week over a story of the National Boat Show opening here next week. Last week it was wall-to-wall camping trailers. This week it is cruisers with "cabins" if that is still the word, the decor of which look like swank apartments. Autos; boats; tents. What is it in us that makes Americans ache to dress them up to be sleek and suave and "luxurious?" What a curious civilization we are.

It has been pointed out here that the County road-marking authorities have narrowed Main Street at the circle back from two miles wide to its normal footage. Unmindful earlier of the curious discrepancy in the directions to Boston, the Star acknowledges that it was Jim Cullen who pointed it out to us. The so-called power of the press seems pretty diluted these days. But maybe in this instance one photograph was worth a hundred letters to one's county big-wigs.

In answer to queries, the Star's recent New England Newspaper award for community service was won for its treatment of the drug education program last year—including editorials and letters as well as stories. At the judges' round table discussion, attention was called to the fact that in its effort to show the whole picture the paper published criticisms of the program in letter and meeting coverage form. The second place news story was for a report of the WCCA panel meeting on "Racism and Riots: Implications for Winchester. The honorable mention for editorial was for "Second Knock" an effort (which failed) to get the town to vote in METCO as an opportunity. The editorial page which won notice was that submitted including a photo and editorial against police hot pursuit; a notice of the Volpe's leaving us and one of the changes in the business center; plus some fine letters on a good variety of subjects by our correspondents and a book review by Eleanor Sirrine of the Library staff.

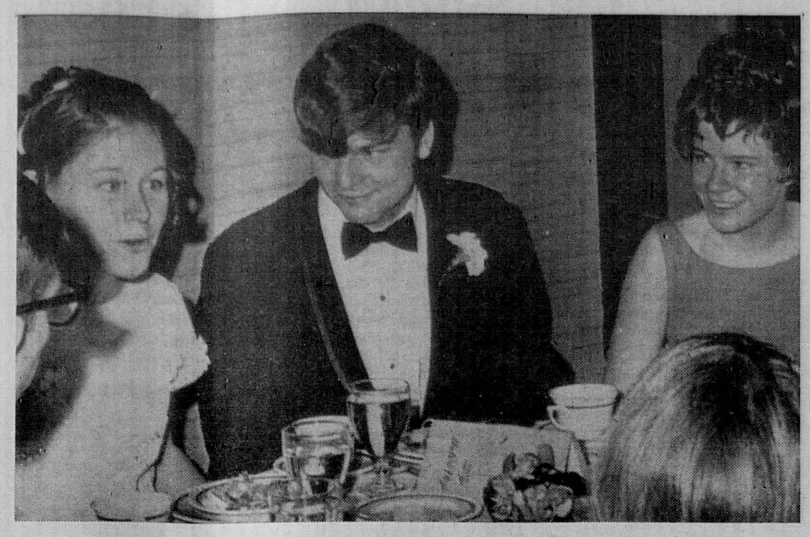

Partial Star observers felt that Bill Ryerson's third place Fletcher Street fire photo and honorable mention shot of the barrel jumping contest winner at the February '68 carnival deserved even higher awards from the NEPA contest judges.

And still looking back at the NEPA contest, we would like to compliment Winchester on its well-attended, exemplary Town Meetings. First prize for New England editorials went to the New Canaan (Connecticut) Advertiser for an editorial entitled, "Junk the Town Meeting" in which it recorded four town officers and a handful of representatives turning up for a meeting at which about $13,000 was voted for incinerator repairs. Second prize was won by the Natick (Mass.) Suburban Press and Recorder for one entitled "A Shabby Town Meeting Performance." It cited 111 of 240 Meeting members on hand to vote an important warrant including METCO and eminent domain land takings. Maybe we're not so bad after all.

"SHOWED GREAT CONCERN for a dog in distress and were in fact instrumental in saving the dog's life . . . It is not often that we at the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals hear of youngsters your age acting meritoriously where animal welfare is concerned . . ." Letters of commendation from the president of the MSPCA and replicas of its symbol were awarded last week to Kirsten Smith of 6 Meadowcroft Road (left) and Marguerite Laurenti of 16 Ginn Road (right), both 10 years old, by Don Materson (left) and Frank Bush (right) of the Society in the Winchester Fire Headquarters. A recent front-page Star picture story of the rescue of a collie had elicited the information that the two girls were responsible for the alert to Fire Headquarters which started the rescue in motion. The picture was taken in the firehouse. (Kelley photo)

Massachusetts CPA Society Offers Some Timely Aid To Harried Tax Payers

(This is the first of a series of articles prepared by the Massachusetts Society of CPAs on money-saving tax "tips" in the preparation of the 1040 Federal Individual Income Tax Return.)

Did you goof in figuring your tax last year and end up paying the Government more than necessary?

Did you overlook the sick-pay exclusion you were entitled to? Did Aunt Hattie finally turn out to be a bona fide dependent, entitling you to a $600 exemption which you didn't claim?

Not Too Late

It's not too late to ask for a refund. Under the three-year statute of limitations, you can file an amended return for any overpayment on the 1967 tax year, as well as for overpayments on the 1966 and 1965 tax years, according to Robert Boyer, CPA, president of the Massachusetts Society of CPAs.

Ask the Internal Reveune Service for Form 1040x. It's short and sweet, and even provides three-quarters of a page of blank space for explanation of the changes in income, deductions and credits for which a refund is claimed.

Surcharge

New on this year's return is the ten percent surcharge which went into effect last April 1st. Since it was in effect for only three-quarters of the 1968 tax year, the actual surchange rate is 7.5 percent additional on the tax normally due on or before April 15. Many taxpayers will probably find that their withholding was not enough to cover the additional surcharge, however, and will have to make an additional payment with their return.

Generally, married couples filing a joint return will pay a smaller tax than if they file separately because of the lower tax rate used in figuring the tax due. This isn't always true, however. If both husband and wife had approximately the same income and sold stock or other property which they owned jointly at a loss in 1968, they can deduct up to $2,000 ($1,000 each) as a capital loss from income by filing separate returns. On a joint return, the maximum capital loss allowable would be $1,000 for them both.

In the event that either husband or wife had extraordinary medical expenses in 1968, it might also be to their advantage to file separate returns.

A Break?

Widows and widowers with a dependent child or children are given a tax break which is sometimes overlooked. If the death occurred in 1968, the surviving spouse is entitled to file a joint return for the 1968 tax year. This not only results in a lower tax, but in the event the child or children remain dependents, entitles the survivor to use the joint return tax table in figuring his tax for two additional years, in this instance for the 1969 and 1970 tax years.

Tests for determining dependency exemptions are tricky and frequently cause confusion in the minds of taxpayers.

According to the IRS, a dependent entitling you to a $600 exemption must meet the following requirements:

(a) receive more than half his support—food, lodging, clothes, etc. —from you;

(b) have less than $600 in income during the year, unless he is under 19 or is a full-time student attending school or college at least five months during the year;

(c) be related to you by blood (or to your wife in the event you file a joint return) or be a member of the household for the entire taxable year; and

(d) be a citizen of the United States or a resident alien.

Social Security benefit payments are not included in determining whether a dependent had an income of $600 or more. They are included, however, in establishing whether he was dependent on you for more than half his support.

Full-Time Students

In determining whether you provide more than half the support of a child who is a full-time student, disregard funds and other assistance provided by scholarships. A child who goes to school at night and works full-time during the day does not qualify as a student to entitle you to a dependency exemption. Neither does enrollment in a correspondence school or employee-training program.

As a general rule, in the absence of a specific agreement to the contrary, a divorced parent who has custody of a child for the greater part of the year can claim the exemption even though the other parent contributes more than half the child's support. However, if the non-custodial parent contributes $1,200 or more of support, the parent with custody of the child must prove payment of a greater amount for support in order to claim the deduction.

Returns must be filed for minor children in the event they had incomes of $600 or more.

Interest credited to a minor child's savings account is considered income. However, if the parent opened the account in his own name "in trust for" the child, interest must be included in the parent's return, and not the child's.

BOOK REVIEW

THE ENGLISH SENSE OF HUMOR AND OTHER ESSAYS

by Harold Nicolson

The Dropmore Press of London originally published this small but distinguished volume in 1946, comprising lectures and essays by the well-known British writer, diplomat and statesman. Perhaps because of the success of Mr. Nicolson's "Diaries & Letters" published in 1967 the American publishers have now brought out these brief essays. Time magazine has said "he is one of the last of a vanishing species of Englishmen and a master of English prose." And now since his death early this year, these essays are a welcome addition to his works. Regardless of the lapse of time the subject matter is timeless and the style particularly readable.

The title essay takes up the greatest proportion of the book. The author concerns himself with the occasions which seem laughable to Englishmen but not necessarily to men of other races. In discussing the physiology of laughter of savages as compared to that of civilized man he relates from personal knowledge "I met a Dinka once in Malakal who, being entranced by the spectacle of a white man falling prone upon the sand from the step-ladder of an aeroplane, emitted a low hoot, raised his hinds on high so that his bracelets rattled down his arms like rings upon a wooden curtain rod, and then unsmilingly resumed his heron-like pose." All who laugh do not necessarily do so in the same way.

Mr. Nicolson describes the English sense of humor as kindly, sentimental, reasonable and fanciful. Whether it is true that the English above all other races have the ability to laugh at themselves, as he seems to believe, can be argued. Certainly their national love of nonsense cannot be denied. Who else has produced an Edward Lear, Lewis Carroll or A. A. Milne.

Lord Chesterfield, who must have been a very dour individual claimed that "frequent laughter is the characteristic of folly and ill manners." He confessed "that since I have had the full use of my reason, nobody has ever heard me laugh." The author does not in any way share this distaste and regards the English sense of humor as a "charming attribute and one which serves as a valuable lubricant in a machine of society." Taine, the French historian and thoroughly familiar with the English temperament, wrote of British humor as "the irruption of violent joviality, buried under a heap of melancholy, to which are added flashes of unexpected imagination."

The title of the essay, "The health of authors" sounds innocuous enough but is really an amusing account of the behavior and temperament of various writers, their phobias and often self deluded insistence that they were mentally deranged. We learn that Milton could only write well between October and March. Schiller found it necessary to stimulate the unconscious by keeping rotten apples in the drawer of his writing-table. William Cowper was sometimes sadly confused in the head. Samuel Johnson suffered from strange delusions such as the belief that he would get drunk if he ate an apple.

Mr. Nicolson was a great observer of human nature and evidently a most amiable entertainer as these essays attest.

Letters To The Editor

Asks For More On Public Works

Editor of the Star:

As a member of the Finance Board I ask the chairman of the Government Committee for a complete report of what took place on January 21, 1969 at approximately 8 p.m., or shortly thereafter, and of the meeting that continued after the department heads and invited personnel left the Welfare Room.

According to the Winchester Star, dated January 23, 1969, "Government Study Committee Chairman Robert Armstrong made the presentation, which is printed in entirety below," is in error. The presentation is not reported in its entirety.

I am requesting a direct and complete text of what took place that evening, referring in particular to the presentation as submitted and unanimously approved by the Committee for a Department of Public Works.

Very truly yours,
Frederick LaTorella
Finance Committee

Astronaut: Former Resident?

Editor of the Star:

I am a former resident of 5 Arthur Street presently living in Andover and I have a note of interest I would like to share with Star readers.

In October 1961, I was soliciting on behalf of the MIT Alumni Fund. Among the names on my list was that of Russell L. Schweikert (or Sehweikart) of Cross Street. When I arrived there, I was informed that he had moved out shortly before.

Among the three astronauts scheduled to take off February 28 aboard a giant Saturn 5 rocket is Russell L. Schweikert (or Schweikart), a 33-year-old civilian who will be the outside man and principal performer in a "celestial three ring circus" that will pave the way for a lunar landing.

I would be very interested if any reader can shed light on this subject one way or another.

Sincerely,
Joseph E. O'Brien
198 Chandler Road
Andover

Only signed letters will be considered for publication in the Star. On rare occasions however, and to avert what might be damaging personal repercussions, the Star will, on request withhold the submitted name.

DEADLINE: Monday, 5 p.m.

All letters must be typed and double spaced for consideration.

Mr. Wyman Receives Degree

Richard H. Wyman of 132 Forest Street was among the 329 students to receive degrees from the University of Maine at its midwinter commencement exercises January 25.

Mr. Wyman, a 1964 graduate of Winchester High School, received his bachelor's degree in mathematics. He plans to go into computer work.

He is the son of Mrs. Wayne W. Wyman and the late Mr. Wyman.

Appreciation For An Animal Rescue

The men worked as a team in the recent rescue of an icy wet and exhausted collie from the Aberjona after an alert by two young Wyman School students. (Kelley photo)

Heart Assn. To Campaign During February

It is quite possible that the Heart Fund, totaling about 416 million dollars over the past 19 years, has already yielded one of the greatest investment returns ever realized by the American people.

Although diseases of the heart and circulation continue to be our number-one killer, accounting for more deaths than all other causes combined, there has been a decline of 18.4 per cent in the cardiovascular death rate for persons below 65 since the year 1950.

This is no coincidence. The year 1950 also marked the start of a planned, massive assault upon the heart and blood vessel diseases.

What has happened since 1950 falls into sharper focus for persons below 65 when we compare the present-day toll of about 251,000 deaths with the 301,000 we would be experiencing if the 1950 mortality rates had persisted.

The people of Greater Boston participated in the last 19 Heart Fund campaigns, and thus are entitled to share the credit for a health achievement of dramatic dimensions.

The Heart Fund, which is to be conducted here and throughout the nation through February, underwrites research, professional and public education and community heart programs of the Heart Association.

The 18.4 per cent decline is a combined figure applying to persons of both sexes under 65.

Among men aged 45-64, the overall decline since 1950 has been about 8.4 per cent, despite an increase of about 5 per cent in the death rate from heart attack.

Beyond 65, the outlook is less encouraging. It is among the elderly that the cardiovascular diseases always take their greatest toll.

Behind statistics which indicate a far brighter picture for those aged below 65 are many tangible achievements. For example:

- Rheumatic fever, once more prevalent than polio at its worst, now is on its way to becoming a rare disease. By knocking out the "strep" infection which precedes it, the door can be closed on rheumatic fever and at the same time on rheumatic heart disease.
- Most inborn heart defects yield to surgical correction, made possible by development in the 1950's of the heart-lung machine, which has enabled surgeons to cross what once was thought to be an ultimate frontier—heart transplantation, now in clinical trials.
- Artificial heart valves, synthetic artery grafts and implanted pacemakers to sustain heart rhythm are increasingly successful.
- Coronary care units improve by as much as 30 per cent the survival rate among hospitalized heart attack victims.

Accompanying these new developments are a host of others — drugs for correction of high blood pressure, vastly improved techniques of diagnosis, external massage for restarting a stopped heart, an artificial kidney to purify the blood of toxic substances when natural kidneys fail, pressure-raising drugs to treat shock, and new methods of treating strokes and rehabilitating stroke patients, to mention only a few.

The 1969 Heart Fund Campaign is being conducted here, and in 8500 other communities, through February.

Mrs. Gelber feels that very little is shown of the good, constructive side of Roxbury, Dorchester and the South End. She emphasized that all blacks are not alike. "All blacks in Roxbury are not poor," she said. "Some even own summer homes."

Mrs. Gelber said that there will continue to be riots and stress if people continue to lump Negroes together and consider men such as Ralph Bunche, Roy Wilkins, etc., as mutations, not typical of the black man. She finds that whites often generalize that all blacks are poor or uneducated. Mrs. Gelber herself has degrees from Boston University and Simmons College.

What can people in Winchester do? "You can work at attitudes in yourself to develop a realistic view of black people," said Mrs. Gelber. "You can help other people deal with their prejudices. Perhaps you could involve your community in a summer learning program such as Operation Exodus."

The meeting at which Mrs. Gelber spoke was held at the home of Mrs. Robert McNamara, 14 Dix Street.

Widows and children of veterans with service after August 4, 1964, are eligible for pensions on the same basis as those of veterans of World War I, World War II, and the Korean Conflict.

Fire

About 300 Winchester residents —including the cast of the Winton Club Cabaret, still in stage makeup—turned out in the 12 degree weather to view the fire. At one point, the spectator crowd on Thompson Street was so close to an engine that the Firefighters were unable to reach their equipment.

Over a dozen of the Fire Department's oxygen masks were used to enable Firefighters to enter the building through the dense smoke. No one was disabled by the smoke, however.

Main Street was made treacherous for Firefighters and spectators as water from leaking hose rapidly froze in the chill air. The numbing cold drove most of the spectators back to their homes by 10:30 p.m. The all out was called 20 minutes later.

The largest recent local job of his firm was that of designing the acoustics for the War Memorial Auditorium in Boston.

Dr. Beranek has served the Boston Symphony and the Cambridge Society for Early Music in leading capacities as well as the Opera Company.

The scientist lives here with his wife, Phyllis, and two sons, one in college, the other in the seventh grade.

WINNER, AAA TRAFFIC SAFETY POSTER CONTEST

Four-Year Sales Rise In County

The Middlesex County economy moved ahead in sturdy fashion in the four-year period since 1964, in line with advances made at the national level.

The progress was especially evident in the increased volume of business done by local retail stores. Their sales rose 20.5 percent in the period, according to figures released by the Standard Rate and Data Service.

The overriding credit for the gain goes to the local consumer and to his ability and his willingness to spend freely.

Neither the talk of a possible recession, nor the hike in Federal taxes, nor the various national problems at home and abroad deterred him.

He spent confidently, with the feeling that he had a job he could count on, an income that was steadily rising and a future that was financially protected, thanks to pensions, health insurance and personal savings.

In the four years, as a result, the sales volume in Middlesex County retail stores rose from $1,723,221,000 to a total of $2,081,631,000. Part of this increase is attributed, of course, to higher prices for merchandise.

Related to the local population, the retail sales were equivalent to spending at the rate of $5,475 per family, which was well over the $5,290 per family elsewhere in the United States.

Nearly every branch of retail business shared in this growth. People bought more cars, more and better clothing, finer furniture, food, cosmetics, household equipment and electrical gadgets.

Directly affected were the 5,883 retail stores in the local area and the 73,475 people employed by them. Their payroll rose from $217,048,000 a year to $274,228,000 in the period.

With the beginning of the new year, the consensus among economists is that the American economy will continue on its upward course in 1969, as it has for the last eight years, but at a somewhat slower rate during the first few months.

Much depends upon the progress made in settling the Vietnam situation and upon putting the brakes on inflation, they say.

The National Industrial Conference Board expects the gross national product to reach $915 billion this year, as against $860 billion in 1968.

Statewide Competition For Queen Lynn Stites

MELANIE M. ROONEY of 247 Highland Avenue is a recent graduate of the Northeast Airlines Stewardess Training Center at the Logan International Airport. Miss Rooney is presently based in Boston and will fly Northeast's East Coast routes stretching from Montreal to Miami and the Bahamas.

Chief of Police Joseph Derro reported that latest tests by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards show that the new studded snow tires offer appreciably more traction on icy pavements than regular snow tires. For emergencies, reinforced tire chains provide the ultimate in traction.

Lynn Stites of 74 Oxford Street goes to Hyannis this weekend to compete with 15 other local winners from across the state for the Massachusetts Junior Miss of 1969 title.

Lynn was chosen the Arlington Jaycees' Junior Miss of 1969 in December. The Winchester Jaycees are at work planning their local spring contest for Miss Winchester, senior corollary to the Junior Miss Contest.

MC will be Gene Rayburn of the T.V. show "Match Game." The winner of the Saturday pageant will travel to Mobile, Alabama this spring to compete in the United States Junior Miss Pageant. She will also receive a scholarship.

Lynn is a 17-year old, blonde WHS student, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron M. Stites. She has many outside activities which include varsity field hockey and basketball, Pep Squad, and varsity debater.

She is portrait editor of the Yearbook, photography editor of the Red and Black, chairman of the WHS chapter of the National Honor Society. She earned a letter of commendation from the National Merit Scholarship Foundation.

Lynn hopes to attend Stanford University next year and eventually become a lawyer. Her artistic talent is dancing and choreography.

Junior Miss Judging Saturday is based on the judge's interview, scholastic achievement, physical fitness, poise and appearance, and creative and performing arts.

Lena Enterprises have been in operation since 1945.

Opening day, free potato chips will be given to customers with their sandwiches.

Mr. Brophy, a graduate of Malden High School, has been in the food business for two years. Prior to that, he was a salesman. This is his first venture with his own business.

He and his wife, Sherri, residents of Salem, have a daughter, Tina 3.

The shop will be open Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.; Thursday and Friday from 8 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 11:30 p.m.

Demonstration Of Framing Methods At Art Assn.

The meeting of the Winchester Art Association Tuesday, February 4, in the Winchester Public Library at 7:45 p.m. will feature a demonstration of picture framing.

Richard Clancy, an art dealer in Newton, and his partner, George Atkinson, proprietors of The Frame Hut in Belmont, will demonstrate the complete process used in framing a picture.

The special equipment used in each step will be demonstrated. The importance of choosing the right frame for each individual painting will be stressed.

Merit Tests To Be Given February 15

Winchester High School students who expect to complete their secondary school requirements and to enter college in 1970 can register now to participate in the 1969-70 National Merit Scholarship Program, Principal W. Howard Niblock has announced.

The first step for all students who wish to enter the nation-wide competition is to take the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (NMSQT). The test will be given in the school at 9 a.m., Saturday, February 15.

Participating students pay a small fee. If an unusually promising student is unable to pay the test fee, it will be paid by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) at the request of his school.

When the NMSQT scores are reported, each participating student will receive a handbook to help evaluate scores and compare performance with that of other high school students across the country.

The handbook also contains information about choosing a college and financing college education. The handbook and other interpretive materials are furnished as a part of reporting the test results.

The highest scoring students in each state will be named semi-finalists and will be eligible for Merit Scholarship consideration. In addition to the National Merit Scholarships financed by NMSC, more than 370 business corporations, foundations, colleges, professional associations, unions, trusts, other organizations, and individuals offer scholarships through the Merit Program.

Courses Started By Church Of Open Bible

An opportunity in adult religious education is being offered by a new Evening School of the Bible, currently sponsored by the Church of the Open Bible in Burlington.

The object of the Evening School is to present in a simplified manner subjects which, though vital to our understanding of God, are usually relegated to an elite group of seminarians.

Two factors prompted the inauguration of this non-denominational program. One is the contemporary assault on the credibility of the Bible. The other is the need for the average Christian layman to learn to interpret the Bible for himself to be able personally to relate its truths to everyday life.

During the past fall semester, there were 32 people from many walks of life, including housewives, salesmen, and a Ph.D. candidate. This semester the courses are: "Bible Introduction," and historical survey of th origin and preservation of the Bible; and "Philippians," a systematic study of St. Paul's prison epistle noted for its divine principles of psychology.

Classes will be held on Mondays, February 3 through April 14, at 7:30 p.m. The public is welcome to enroll, and visitors may come to any sessions.

Family "Adopts" Korean Child

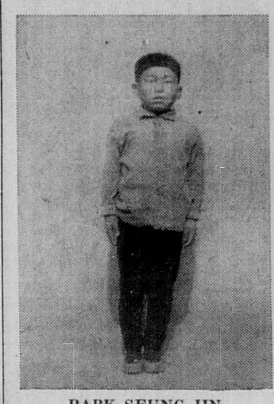

January 26 was a special day for a young Korean boy living in the slums of Seoul, Korea: it was his 10th birthday and this year his birthday was made a little bit more happy by the Foster Parents Plan, Inc. and the generosity of a Winchester resident.

In August, Mrs. George F. Winterson of 11 Forest Street financially adopted Park Seung Jin through the Foster Parents Plan, Inc.

Under the Plan, the adopting parent provides financial help for the child and his family while the child continues to live in his home country. The Plan operates in Greece, Hong Kong, Korea, The Philippines, Viet Nam, Brazil, Colombia, Ecuador and Peru.

For $16 a month (or $192 a year) the Plan provides a monthly cash grant, supplementary new clothing and household goods carefully selected to meet the needs in the child's area. In addition the Plan offers medical care when called for, primary school education and in some cases vocational training.

The family receives guidance and counseling from the North American director and a staff of trained local case workers.

PARK SEUNG JIN

The Plan's purpose is to help the child and family to become self-supporting through improved health, nutrition, and educational opportunities.

Seung Jin and his family live in a little wooden shanty on the top of a hill, in the slums of Seoul. They have electricity in this shack, but little else. They pay $3.80 a month for rent.

Seung Jin lives with his widowed mother, his 10-year-old brother, Seung Chul, and their 5-year old sister, Bo Keun.

Both boys go to school. Their mother supports them because their father is dead. He used to deal in used clothing, and the parents lived in Pusan in the early years of their marriage, both working in this second-hand goods business. They fared meagerly, and decided to come to Seoul, sure they could do better in this capital city of South Korea. However, uneducated and unskilled, they found earning a living just as hard.

The father got work in a radio shop and managed to keep his family from hunger. He was stricken with high blood pressure, and died, very suddenly in 1964.

The mother became a lanudress, and earns an average 56c a day.

The adopted parents and the child exchange letters approximately once a month. Mrs. Winterson has had three letters from Seung Jin.

Anyone who is interested in obtaining further information about the Plan should write to Foster Parents Plan, Inc., 352 Park Avenue South, New York 10010 or call Mrs. Winterson.

Dads' Club Starts New Bridge Club

The Dads' Club of the George Washington School is interested in forming a new bridge club and is hopeful that enough enthusiasm can be created to enable a schedule of regular monthly meetings.

If possible, tentative plans are to program bridge parties on the first Friday of each month during the school year, excluding December.

Paul Terpko is coordinating arrangements, and asks that any interested couples call him at 729-5863 before January 31.

Miss Roberts Named Homemaker Of Tomorrow

Miss Jane Gayl Roberts has been named 1969 Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow for Winchester Senior High School.

Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell D. Roberts of 14 Fairview Terrace, received this honor on the basis of her score in a written knowledge and attitude test on homemaking given December 3.

This achievement has made Jane eligible for state and national scholarships. A senior at WHS, she also has been awarded a specially designed silver charm from General Mills, sponsor of the Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow.

A state Homemaker of Tomorrow and runner-up will be selected from the winners of the schools in Massachusetts. If Jane becomes the state winner she will go on an expense paid educational tour of Washington, D.C., and colonial Williamsburg, Virginia in the spring.

This is the 15th year of the Betty Crocker Search, initiated in 1954-55 by General Mills to emphasize the importance of homemaking as a career.

Dragon Ladies

NOW PLAYING at Winchester Town Hall through Saturday, February 1: "Once Upon a Time," Winton Club's 48th annual Cabaret. Pictured at rehearsal are some of the 16 members of the Winton Club Drill costumed as All the King's Men in gold and white brocade, carrying the colors of the show's Dragon. Photographed front to back are: Mrs. Philip Parsons, Mrs. Walter Stockwood, Mrs. Edward Higgins, Mrs. Alexander Samoiloff, Mrs. Prescott Keyes, and Mrs. Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. (Donald Young photo)

Once Upon A Time Giants

Like the astronauts, the cast of Winton Club's "Once Upon a Time," this week receiving highly deserved applause at the Town Hall, are "standing on the shoulders of giants."

In this instance, the giants are not part of the cast of storybook characters brought to life on stage for five nights, but are real, hard-working human beings, without whom there would be no Winton Club Cabaret or successful fund raising for linens for Winchester Hospital.

Directly behind the actors and stage curtains, stands a crew of 20 Winchester business and professional men headed by Ted von Rosenvinge and Frank Kelley.

These men of the stage crew each year devote countless hours to building and manipulating the superb scenery used in Winton Club shows. In addition, they rig all the stage curtains and do such diverse tasks as painting Town Hall dressing rooms and learning to "fly" actresses through the air across the stage.

In recent years they have created a bigger-than-life-size Trojan Horse, a school bus, and a replica of the Parkview Apartments, along with a dingy which was actually rowed across the stage last year. This year's creations are equally superb.

Other giants supporting the cast are the many hard-working committees headed by Winton Club members.

Contributing directly to the staging of the show each night are the Makeup Committee headed by Mrs. Ralph Swanson, the Costume Committee of Mrs. Lawrence Lougee and Mrs. Robert Joyce, and the Properties Committee of Mrs. George Pacetti.

Also giants, whose contributions are directed more toward the audience, are Mrs. Joseph Vitka's Decorations Committee responsible for excellent acoustics as well as decor, and the Floor Committee of Mrs. Philip Parsons and Mrs. Thomas Raleigh, to whom must be credited the ability to see from every seat.

A Year's Work

Co-editors of the program, Mrs. John Harrison and Mrs. Courtenay Crandall, have worked with their large committee for almost a year on the seventy-page publicantion so vital to the show.

Praises for services rendered go to Mrs. Edward Higgins and her large and lovely group of high school girls who serve as flower and cigarette vendors; to Mrs. Richard Carr and Winton Club husbands serving as ushers; to Mrs. Richard Norris and her Bar Committee; and to Mrs. Merton Ober and her helpers responsible for refreshments for the cast during rehearsal weeks as well as backstage during the show.

The cooperation and assistance of spouses and children of cast and committee members along with the aid of the Winchester retailers in countless ways marks each as giants contributing to the success on stage.

The grandest giant of them all is petite Show Chairman Mrs. Richard Brackett, who with her general committee of Mrs. Theodore von Rosenvinge, Mrs. Paul Gilpatric, Mrs. Edwin Nelson, Mrs. Theodore Burleigh, Mrs. Seymour Niles, Mrs. Malcolm Leslie, Mrs. Earle Spencer and Mrs. George Whitten has been planning the show with Director Lee Daniels since last spring.

With two successful, warmly received performances behind them, and three more to go tonight, (Thursday), Friday, and Saturday, the cast, committees, and audiences who have all involved themselves in Winton Club's show business for Winchester Hospital must feel justly proud.

Jazz Festival Opens Friday

The fourth annual Boston Globe Jazz Festival will be held tomorrow and Saturday at Boston's War Memorial Auditorium.

All proceeds will be used for scholarships for deserving students as in previous years.

The Friday 8 p.m. concert will include the "cool" period of the 50's to be represented by pianist Dave Brubeck and bariton saxophonist Gerry Mulligan; the modern sounds of the 60's from Roland Kirk, the multi-reed man; jazz rock, a heavy-beat electronic improvisation, is the mode of The Mothers of Invention; the Newport Jazz Festival All-Stars will provide a Dixieland beat.

Saturday at 8 p.m. will present Hugh Masekela as Afro-American projects its voice through his hard-driving trumpet sounds; rock-bottom blues provided by B. B. King, the Mississippi mudcat; and the swinging songs of Nina Simone; the space-oriented sounds of Sun Ra and his 15-piece "Solar Orkestra."

The Saturday "Jazz for Youth" matinee at 2 features Gerry Mulligan, the Newport All-Stars and Gene DiStasio's Brass Menagerie.

Marycliff Has Film On Grape Workers

On Wednesday, February 5, at Marycliff Academy, High Street, students will hear a talk by Marcus Munos, who represents the United Farm Workers Association of Delano, California.

Director of the grape boycott movement, Mr. Munos hopes to involve the people of Massachusetts in helping the grape workers by refusing to buy California grapes until owners agree to their demands.

The grape workers are seeking to obtain the State minimum wages, some unemployment insurance and health benefits.

Parents, friends and students from other schools are invited to hear Mr. Munos and to see a film showing the whole situation in Delano, California.

Library Film Program

January 31, Family Film Night Program at 7:30 p.m. for children accompanied by adult.

How We Know The Earth's Shape

We use a globe as a model to represent the shape of the earth. But how do we know what the earth's shape really is? The film shows how during the centuries, man has changed his ideas about what the earth really looks like, from flat to curved to round, to flattened and bulging to pear shaped. Yet a perfectly round, globe is still the best model of the shape of the earth.

Otto Meets A Puppet

Otto and a puppet teach children to "Look Each Way Before Crossing."

Rivers Of Time

A beautifully photographed and scared re-creation of the beginnings of civilization in the Tigris-Euphrates Valley. Meseum pieces, a penetrating commentary and live action photography, blend to emphasize the immense debt Western Civilizations owes to this period.

The same films will be shown Saturday at 10:00 a.m. for school age children.

Fireman's Assn. Elects Directors

At the annual meeting of the Winchester Firemen's Relief Association recently the Association elected directors for the coming year.

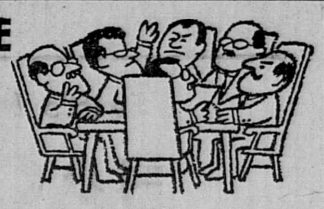

The directors are Douglas S. Rae, Norman J. Delorey, James T. Callahan and John Regan.

21 stocks we didn't know we'd be recommending this year.

As soon as the elections were over, we had some thinking to do:

Which stocks should we recommend for 1969?

Dominick & Dominick drew up a profile for the coming year, based on new personnel, new philosophies and new emphases. (Same as we'd do if a corporation changed hands.)

You've probably begun thinking this way yourselves:

For instance, you've read on the front pages of your newspaper about the expected cut in action in Vietnam. So you've already tried to consider what a new defense budget could mean.

And remember the talk about new corporate freedoms? That had to be considered, too.

Then, there's all that discussion about higher interest rates, reduced monetary expansion and increasing personal incomes to be taken into account.

And questions like: "Will the new civil rights movements cause an upsurge in housing?"

And: "How will energetic building affect the prices of steel, etc.?"

From our research, we decided there were 21 stocks we would like to recommend for 1969.

You can have a free copy of our "Stocks to Buy for 1969," if you'll write Dominick & Dominick, Incorporated.

GOP Reports On Inaugural; Makes Plans For Speakers

"I don't believe any Republican Town Committee in the State had as much representation at the Inauguration as did ours," stated Chairman Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh at a Town Committee meeting last Thursday evening.

The statement was made after four women present at the meeting gave individual observations of Inaugural highlights. They were Cynthia Barone, Ann Blackham, Jean Schiffmacher and Sally Woodward each of whom had taken in most of the Inaugural activities together with their husbands.

Nixon's inaugural speech was lauded both by those attending and those watching at home on T.V. The prayer by Billy Graham also came in for its share of praise.

The sweeping disorder of the hippies and yippies was mentioned at the local meeting, but it was affirmatively noted that the attractive and orderly young people participating in the bands and floats of the inaugural parade more than outnumbered the other element.

Most of the Massachusetts Republicans attended the Inaugural Ball at the Statler Hilton along with Senator and Mrs. Brooke and Governor and Mrs. Volpe.

After the inaugural observations, Chairman Saltmarsh opened the meeting for an informal round-table discussion of possible objectives and programs for the coming year. Members James Denton, Vincent Celia and Lawrence Smith contributed ideas and motions as did most of the members present. The Committee stated it is a hope that a few popular young political speakers will make an appearance at future meetings.

The date for the next meeting was set for Thursday, February 27.

Association For Mental Health Proposes Bill

Legislative action this year to alleviate glaring inequities in State pay scales for all levels of professionals working in State mental institutions has been called for by the Massachusetts Association for Mental Health.

Results of a salary survey undertaken by the Association show that mental health professionals in State service are woefully underpaid in comparison with other states.

Positions and top salaries paid by other states in comparison with Massachusetts follow:

Hospital Supt. — New York $31,000, Mass. $17,160 (14th)

Director of Nursing — California $13,200, Mass $15,777 (15th)

Director of Psychological Research — New York $17,370, Mass. $10,169 (9th)

Head Psychiatric Social Worker — New York $13,355, Mass. $7,392 (15th)

Head Occupational Therapist — Indiana $8,820, Mass. $7,392 (15th)

Similar disparities exist among middle and low-level positions.

For example, attendant nurse, the person on the ward with front-line responsibility for the care and welfare of the patients, top salary is California, $5,760, and Massachusetts is $4,449 (7th). Assistant psychiatric social worker in New York receives $8,220 and in Massachusetts $5,242.

"There is a nation-wide shortage of personnel in all these professional categories," Association President Irving Chase wrote Senate and House Ways and Means Committee Chairman James Burke (D-Brockton) and Anthony Scibelle (D-Springfield). "If Massachusetts public facilities are to attract their share they must be able to compete in compensation."

The Association has been pressing for higher pay scales to help implement the Community Mental Health Services Act passed by the Legislature in 1966. The act called for a vast expansion of community services requiring a large increase of the professional manpower pool in all categories.

Special VA assistance is given to veterans with limited education.

Music Group Hears Miss Loudon

The Music Group of the Winchester College Club met on the evening of January 22 at the home of Mrs. Joseph S. Paulson of 211 Forest Street.

Miss Jeanne Loudon, supervisor of music for the elementary schools of Winchester, was the featured speaker. She described the teaching method used in the schools.

Based upon the concepts of composers Carl Orff and Zoltan Kodaly, the program provides children with an actual musical experience through the use of articulated rhythms—hand clapping, rhythmic speech and the playing of simple mallet and percussion instruments.

College Club members played the instruments with Miss Loudon's guidance.

Boston Stake To Hold Church Meeting

Elder Sterling W. Sill, an assistant to the Quorum of Twelve Apostles of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, will be the presiding authority and special guest speaker at the Boston Stake Conference of the Church Saturday and Sunday, January 25 and 26.

The quarterly conference is to be held in the Boston Stake Center in Weston.

Elder Sill is an insurance executive in the western states. Active in civic groups, he has served as a member of the board of regents at the University of Utah.

Recognized by many Sunday morning radio audiences, Elder Sill is heard each week as he delivers a nation-wide message.

Saturday evening Elder Sill will give counsel and instruction to all the priesthood holders and auxiliary leaders. The general session of this two-day conference begins at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

More than nine million hours in volunteer services were contributed by over 100,000 individuals at Veterans Administration hospitals last year.

VNA Holds Annual Meeting

Dr. Norman Goldstein, chief psychologist of the Children's Clinic, Mystic Valley Mental Health Association, was the guest speaker at the 69th annual meeting of the Winchester Visiting Nursing Association recently at the Unitarian Church.

Dr. Goldstein told the group the Children's Clinic now evaluates and treats school age children and hopes to provide adult services in the near future.

The Clinic is sponsored by the State Board of Health, by the community through a per capita tax assessment, and by fees which are charged on a sliding scale based on income and size of family.

Children are referred to the Clinic by schools, physicians, hospitals, visiting nursing associations, legal agencies, and families who come on their own.

Visiting nurses have an excellent opportunity to spot problems before the child is of school age and even before the parents may realize there is a problem, Dr. Goldstein said.

Mrs. Charles L. Moore, president of the W.V.N.A., expressed great appreciation for the years of service contributed by three members of the board whose terms of office had expired: Mrs. Thornton Stearns, recording secretary, Mrs. Robert M. Mulford, education, and Mrs. Leslie J. Scott, finance.

Trust Company Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the Winchester Trust Company was held in the Church Street office on Monday, January 20.

The annual report to the shareholders, presented by the President, was indicative of greater activity in all phases of the bank's operations.

New high levels were achieved in total deposits, total loans, and net operating earnings during the 1968 year, according to the report.

Examinations of the bank were conducted during the 12-month period by examiners from the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston and the office of the Commissioner of Banks for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Supplementing these examinations, a complete audit of the bank was made, independently, by an outside accounting firm. These examination and audit reports, submitted to the Board of Directors, showed the bank to be in a highly satisfactory condition.

Ernest B. Dade, Vice-President
Charles W. Butler, Treasurer

March of Dimes Volunteers Are Urged To Return Kits

Mrs. John A. Hackett of 43 Robin Hood Road, Mothers' March chairman in Winchester, today said that although many of the volunteers have completed their assignments, she urged those who have not to do so by February 2.

The volunteers were also asked to return their kits to the ward or precinct leader, or the location named, when the calls have been completed.

The National Foundation-March of Dimes wishes to thank the volunteers for the dedication shown and the energy expended in the 1969 March of Dimes Mothers' March, a prime source of funds to carry on the research program against birth defects.

Learning Program Is Planned

"Excel—Experiences for Children in Learning" will be the topic of a meeting for parents on learning disabilities to be held on Wednesday, February 12 at 8 p.m. in McCall Junior High School Library.

The coauthor of the book of the same title, Mrs. Polly Behrmann, will be the speaker at the program to which the public is invited.

Parents of children in the Winchester Public Schools who have been identified as having learning disabilities will be specially invited. The book contains suggestions for helping these children at home.

Mr. Sawyer Given Citation At Dartmouth

Dartmouth College sophomore Richard A. Sawyer Jr. has been cited by a professor of classics for outstanding academic achievement during the past term.

Mr. Sawyer was commended by Mr. Stephen V. F. Waite for "consistently good work, and a thoroughly original term paper..."

In a letter from Thaddeus Seymour, dean of the College, Mr. Sawyer was told that faculty citations are sparingly given, and that they become a part of each man's permanent record at Dartmouth.

Mr. Sawyer is a 1967 graduate of the Winchester High School, and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Sawyer of 282 Main Street.

ALA Against Expo In Boston

The Automobile Legal Association said today that the Massachusetts taxpayer can "ill-afford the luxury of paying for Expo Boston '76."

"The ALA agrees that Boston is the logical site for any bicentennial celebration of the birth of America however, the overburdened Massachusetts' taxpayer must not be asked to pay the expected millions of dollars necessary to bring the World's Fair here," said ALA General Manager David Thibodeau.

"The last thing Massachusetts can afford is an expensive, unnecessary luxury. If a new method of financing the celebration can be found which excludes Massachusetts citizens, we're all for it," he said.

The Expo Boston '76 committee hopes that the federal government will pick up 50 percent of the Fair's cost with the remainder falling on the state and the city of Boston.

"When money appropriation bills for the Fair are presented to the Massachusetts legislature, it must ask itself if this is the best possible use to which additional tax monies can be put," Mr. Thibodeau said.

Miss Taylor Elected Queen At Vermont Coll.

Miss Leigh Taylor of 10 Edgehill Road will reign as queen of the annual Vermont College Winter Carnival this weekend, January 31.

MISS LEIGH TAYLOR

She was elected queen by the student body at a recent election.

Leigh, a senior liberal arts major, is president of the Vermont College chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, the national scholastic honorary society for junior colleges; vice president of the Vermont College Student Government Association; a member of the Blue and White Guides, the campus senior honorary society, and the honors colloquium in history.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Warren J. Taylor.

Her maid of honor will be Caroline Davin, also a senior, from Newton Highlands.

Elected members of the court for the carnival were six students —three first-year and three seniors.

GOP Women Hold Meeting

Mrs. James W. Blackham Jr. of 33 Canterbury Road, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Republican Women's Clubs, presided at a meeting of the Federation on January 23 in Cohasset.

Mrs. Francis W. Sargent, wife of the Governor, was the guest speaker. She outlined her plans to make frequent visits to the state's old people's homes, hospitals and institutions.

The Federation is planning community involvement workshops on environment, conservation and pollution, consumer problems, crime, drug problems and several other topics.

Others attending the meeting from Winchester included Mrs. Maxwell McCreery, president of the Winchester Women's Republican Club; Mrs. Henry DeLaney; Mrs. Jack Babakian; Mrs. Victor H. Soucek and Mrs. Philip Woodward, a member of the executive board of the Federation.

Mr. Gold To Talk On Count Rumford

The winter meeting of the Winchester Historical Society will be held on Saturday, February 8, at 2:30 p.m. in the meeting room at the Winchester Public Library.

The meeting will be presided over by Wellington L. Caldwell, president and curator. Harold K. Gold, director of the Society, will speak on "Count Rumford—Scientist and Adventurer." Mr. Gold is associated with the American Meteorological Society.

Count Rumford was a contemporary of Benjamin Franklin, and was born in Woburn as Benjamin Thompson. His early upbringing as a farm boy gave no indication of the fame and power that he would achieve. He was a close boyhood friend of Liammi Baldwin, also of Woburn, who later was the engineer in charge of the construction of the Middlesex Canal.

Benjamin Thompson chose to remain a Tory during the American Revolution, becoming at an early age British Under-Secretary of State; a general of the Bavarian army, an inventor and scientist, and a count of the Holy Roman Empire.

He was one of the greatest physicists ever born in America. An account of his private life reads like fiction.

The public is invited and admission is free. Members of the Thompson and Baldwin families are particularly welcome and asked to make themselves known to the speaker.

Mrs. Robert Meisel of 34 Leslie Road, a member of the Ladies Visiting Committee of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, will entertain at a sherry party in February to acquaint Winchester women with the work of the Infirmary. The Infirmary recently announced a $21 million expansion program that will nearly triple the hospital's capacity.

On January 22 the Aquamarines were in last place bowling the seventh-place team, the Rubies. The Rubies must have been tired because they gave up seven points and let the Aquamarines move into their seventh place. Luckily for the Rubies, however, they were able to keep one point for themselves and not go into last place.

Maria Dulchinos, Ann Redmond, and Adele Metrick of the Hillbillies worked together nicely to hand a 4 point defeat to the Impossible Dreams. Ann Redmond had a nice 102 game for the Hillibillies.

High games of the morning were Anna Pierce and Jo Simms with 103, with Anna Pierce having the morning high series of 271.

The Deadwoods, with Jane Coates having a good morning, defeated the Alley Kats 3-1.

The Yellow Birds flew off with a much needed 3-1 win over first place Candoliers. Evelyn Piazza, Diane Cormier, and Sandy Stillman improved their averages, with Captain Lee Arsenian's reliable bowling, to give the Yellow Birds this important win.

Winchester Youth Hockey

The Bruins remained undefeated and held on to their four-point lead in the Bantam Division, while the onrushing Blues are starting to spurt and closed the Flyers' lead to four points in the Pee Wee Division in action last week at the MDC rink.

The Bruins won their fifth game in six tries as they whipped the Red Wings 4-1. The secret of the Bruins' success seems to be their well-balanced attack, as four different players did the scoring. Jim Beck got the first B's score late in the first period as he combined with Bill Gannon and Bob Gill. Two minutes later Dave Frongillo tallied the second goal for the Bruins and what later proved to be the winner with a big assist going to Tom Carr.

Bob Murray's agressive force kept the pressure on the Wings and put two more in late in the final period. Phil O'Connell had the third score, with Jack Cleary picking up an assist, while Bob Gill had the final marker for the Bruins, with Joey Penta assisting.

With less than two minutes left in the game Bobby Ungaretti averted a shutout for the Wings as he lit the lamp with Rich Maggio assisting on the play. With the Red Wings in a slump, Coach Brian McCormack is thinking of going to his farm system and bringing up some new faces.

Coach Ted Cammon's Rangers, who are the hottest team in the League next to the Bruins, whitewashed Coach Claude O'Callaghan's Canadiens 3-0. Paul Troisi scored the first goal for the Rangers, with Eddie Pierce drawing an assist. Rick Murphy took care of the rest of the goals for the day as had the other two. The Rangers' tricky little center "Boo" McKenzie had an assist on the first score by Murphy, while their fine defenseman Eddie Pierce picked up his second assist of the day on Murphy's other tally.

The final game of the series saw fine goaltending by Rich Maggio and Dennis O'Donnell as the Maple Leafs and the Black Hawks fought to a 1-1 tie. Mike Sandford sent Steve Troiano in for the Maple Leafs' score, while Player-Coach Billy Harris converted Paul McCormack's pass for the Hawks' lone tally.

HIGHLIGHTS

The highlight of the week was probably the performance of a couple of players on the Maple Leafs. With the Leafs short on manpower, they dug into their lucrative farm system and called up Jay Frongillo from the Seals and Willie Paglia from the first-place Flyers. Paglia, who is normally a defenseman, split the left-wing duties in the first line with Frongillo and played a fine game. Frongillo, a center man for the Seals, also looked as though he may be ready for the big time, playing a fine aggressive game and showing he likes to hit. He had the Black Hawk forwards skating with their heads up.

The Blues and the Kings made the biggest moves of the week and are ready to battle the first-place Flyers for the top spot. The Blues moved to within four points of the top spot by winning both of their games, 1-0 over the Seals and 3-1 over the North Stars. The Kings threw up a great defense as they won both of their games by scores of 1-0 over the North Stars and the first-place Flyers. In the other game the Seals and the Flyers battled to a scoreless tie.

Al Milley, who's in charge of the small rink, sees great progress being made by the younger set. Playing outstanding hockey were Jack McInnis and Joe Whitney, who were instrumental in leading the Kings to their two victories for the day, while Bob Galante and Ray Stockwood were stickouts for the North Stars. Paul Tello had another fine game for the Seals, while Kevin Avakian is starting to come along very fast and could make the Seals a contender for the title yet.

Little League Asking For Adult Volunteers

by James R. Stewart Jr.

Last week's January thaw would have seen many Little Leaguers out on Ginn Field and West Side Field limbering up their throwing arms and batting balls to each other — would have if the snow and ice and mud had not been there! But to many, the season is fast approaching. This year's tryouts will be held in less than three months, and talk of baseball is already being heard in town.

This year, there are to be six new teams in the Winchester Little League — two each in the Senior, Major and Minor Leagues. At least 90 more boys will be playing in these leagues than were able to be accommodated in 1968.

With the addition of new opportunities, there also comes the adult opportunity to participate and assist in directing these boys and young men in the rudiments of playing baseball. Expert knowledge of the game is not a prerequisite to being a manager or coach. If a man wants to help boys become better citizens, one of the earliest opportunities is to work with Little League. The objectives of Little League are fair play, teamwork, discipline and good citizenship.

Openings

There are a few openings still to be filled as managers and coaches in the Winchester Little League. We are also seeking men who would be willing to umpire one game a week. The season runs through the months of May and June, only, so there is little burden on anyone. If a man feels he cannot devote two hours an evening—six to eight—for, at the most, four days a week, for two months to building character in the youth of Winchester, perhaps he could join the Dad's Club whose members fill in at odd jobs to help Little League function to the best advantage of boys and young men. Women, too, are cordially invited to participate through the excellent activities of the Women's Auxiliary. These exceptional citizens help with the refreshment stands, design a float for the ENKA parade, and do many other worthwhile things for our youngsters.

Little League will function in 1969. We have a strong nucleus of personnel who devote many hours to the administration and operation of our organization.

It isn't necessary to have a boy eligible to participate. Many of our men and women have boys well beyond the Little League ages—some have never had a boy in the program. But these men and women are interested in helping mold the character of young men beginning at an early age. Little League in Winchester is devoted to that principle "to help and voluntarily assist boys in developing qualities of citizenship, sportsmanship and manhood."

Any Winchesterite from 18 and up who would like to contribute his services should call either George Tello at 729-0884, or Joe Julian, 729-2987. If you do not reach either of them, call James R. Stewart Jr., League Commissioner, 729-3598. Interested ladies should call Mrs. Robert Carroll at 729-4557.

Duplicate Bridge Club

As the Club enters its tenth year with the Knights of Columbus Hall filled to near capacity each Wednesday evening, it is tempting to try to grasp at and seek an understanding of some of those elusive and intangible elements that make duplicate bridge so popular.

Perhaps some insight can be gained by studying the following assortment of cards which was displayed at the January 22nd game as board 13 in Section A. The dealer was East and both sides were vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ Q J
♥ K Q 7
♦ A J 2
♣ K 10 7 6 5

WEST
♠ 8 6 5 3
♥ J 8 3
♦ 10 8 5 4

EAST
♠ 10
♥ 10 9 2
♦ K Q 9 7 6 3
♣ Q 4 3

SOUTH
♠ A K 9 7 4 2
♥ A 6 5 4

At almost any reasonable contract in rubber bridge, North-South would reap a generous harvest of points while East-West would likely shake their heads and reflect sadly on their inability to hold good cards. The duplicate bridge traveling score slip, however, revealed that this board was played at 11 tables and produced TEN DIFFERENT RESULTS! A key feature of duplicate, of course, is that EW are fighting for a share of just as many match points as NS, no matter how weak or strong the respective hands may be.

The least enterprising NS pair bid 4 spades, making 6, for 680 points. Other scores were 690 points for 3NT making 6; 710 for 4 spades making 7; 1,440 points for 6 NT making 6; 1,460 points for 6 spades making 7; 1,470 points for 6 NT making 7; 2,210 points for 7 spades making 7; and 2,220 points for 7 NT bid and made.

One unlucky pair tried the reasonable contract of 7 clubs and were down one when they misguessed the finesse. I'm sure that many eyebrows were raised as to the contract at our table. My partner (East) opened with a limit bid of 2 diamonds, South cue bid his power with a call of 3-diamonds, I jammed up the bidding with a jump to 5 diamonds, and North closed out the bidding with the leer of a hungry tiger and a lusty double. Down five cost us 1,400 points, but gave us a better score than all those pairs defending against the successful slam contracts.

So there is part of the mystique. Every ten minutes or so, all evening long, the duplicate player completes a board, opens the traveling slip, and discovers what up to 50 or so other players did with the same assortment of cards.

In Section A's eleven tables on Wednesday, January 22nd, Jim Bradley and Bob Fiske made it a second week in a row with their North-South win while East-West Lolly and Dick Smith, always pleasant but formidable opponents, were in first place as they have been so many times in their years of play at the Club.

Hockey League This Week

by Frank Burns

Melrose will try to regain their winning ways Wednesday afternoon when they play Lexington in the first of two games at North Shore Sports Center, Lynn, starting at 5:15. Because of the odd setup with a nine team league, this will be their first meeting, although the second half of the schedule has started. Winchester and Wakefield will meet in the other game at 5:35.

Concord, the upset kids of the league, will play Lexington in the opening game of next Saturday's session, starting at 12:30. Concord gave the league a shot in the arm with their 3 to 1 win over defending champions Melrose. The Red Raiders had bombed them, 10 to 1, in their first meeting.

Melrose and Winchester will have second ice at 1:55. Stoneham and Wakefield will provide third game action at 3 o'clock while Belmont and Watertown wind it up in the fourth game.

The high flying Melrose front line was blanked last week but they still have three among the leaders. Steve Dolloff has a commanding lead with 29 points, 12 more than runner-up in the individual race.

The scoring leaders:

Steve Dolloff, Melrose	11	18	29
Joe White, Melrose	11	6	17
Jackie Zurek, Stoneham	10	7	17
Phil Carrigan, Concord	10	6	16

Two Winchester Track Men Qualify For States

The Middlesex League track program was run early last week coming on Tuesday instead of Saturday to allow the boys to compete in the trials for the State Meet which were held at Harvard and M.I.T. Lexington is placed in Class A with the larger schools, Melrose and Wakefield are rivals in Class B and all other members are Class C.

Melrose led all qualifiers with 12 men placed and is a top heavy favorite to win its division with Wakefield which placed six due to take its share of points.

Winchester had runners qualify for the state wide competition at Boston Garden on Saturday afternoon. Wearing Sachem colors will be Rick Mobbs in the 45 yard hurdles and Capt. Neal Benshimol who should be up among the Class C leaders in his specialty the 1,000 yard run.

Arlington Takes WHS Girls 54-19; It's Woburn Today

In their third game this season the WHS girls' basketball team was handed a disappointing but not altogether unexpected defeat by Arlington last Thursday.

Playing on their home court, the Winchester girls had very few advantages over the Arlington team which has been practicing as a unit since ninth grade. The Arlington girls performed like a well-oiled machine, combining skillful shooting and a very effective defense to drop the Sachems by a score of 54-19.

Debbi Getrost of Arlington led all scorers with a high total of 21 points.

Scoring nine baskets and three foul shots, she managed more points on her own than the Sachems could as a team. Although the Arlington shooters had no height advantage, close team co-ordination and a number of well-executed offensive plays sufficiently opened-up the Winchester defense. The only disappointment for the Arlington girls was that they were unable to top their season's high score of 55 points!

The Sachems had little trouble moving with the ball. Their dribbling and passing was, however, only effective to a point—and unfortunately that point was the shooting area, where careful Arlington zoning thwarted nearly all of Winchester's scoring attempts. All too often a possible Sachem basket was intercepted by Arlington guards and relayed down the floor to score a point for the opposition.

Marcia Barrow, Winchester's top scorer, scored 8 points in the second half and carried the final quarter. However, none of Winchesters' main scorers were able to break-up the tight Arlington defense.

At Woburn

With five more games ahead, the Sachems still expect a victorious season.

Today they go against the Woburn girls and hope to bring home a clear victory.

The junior varsity team which has won all of its games added another victory to its record as the girls defeated their opponents 26-23. (by Leslie King)

Belmont Edges Puck Chasers 3-2; Lexington Whips Sachem Quintet

John F. Parrell

Belmont's hockey team started off as though it would rout Coach Ed Kelley's Winchesterites as the red light glowed twice during the first minute of action but the Sachems fought back to deadlock the game before the first period ended. Action was fast throughout the balance of the contest but with Winchester short handed Bob Locke came up with a goal as only 2:35 remained to play in the game.

The first goal for Belmont was tallied by the same Bob Locke and was followed almost immediately by another by John Healey. Winchester then moved to the attack and Ben Dolan scored with Capt. Doug Dalton getting the equalizer.

The game was the closest of the entire afternoon action which was featured by Concord-Carlisle's upset of the Melrose goal scoring machine to the tune of 3-1.

It was the first time that Concord had ever beaten the Red Raiders during six years in the league and more remarkable since the Hughes coached group had previously massacred them by 10-1. The total scoring record over the years had been 100-6.

It was a bad week end for hockey leaders everywhere as last place North Quincy deadlocked unbeaten Malden 2-2 in the Metropolitan circuit and Brookline toppled Medford out of first place in the Greater Boston League. The defeat of Melrose skyrocketed Stoneham to the top in the Middlesex League.

The first clash between Winchester and Wakefield came Wednesday evening and Saturday at 1 p.m. they face off against Melrose. A continuation of their improved play might well result in a major upset by the Sachems.

Hoopsters Drop Pair

The Winchester basketball warriors had a bad week dropping both games away from home with Belmont on the top end of a 76-59 tally on Tuesday and Lexington continuing its unbeaten sweep on Friday by 60-43.

In the Belmont affair the Sachems were shooting about as well as usual but defensive slipups and some real sharp shooting caused the margin of defeat to mount.

The high powered Lexington quintet which had been given its only close battle of the season by the Sachems in the first round winning by only 51-47 won quite decisively by limiting the local scoring to 12 points in all periods but the third when they allowed only seven markers to slip through the hoop. Capt. Tom Workman and Mondano of the home team were high men with seventeen points each but there were three other starters in double figures to push the size of the winning score. The half time margin was only a single point but a 19-7 third period built an insurmountable lead.

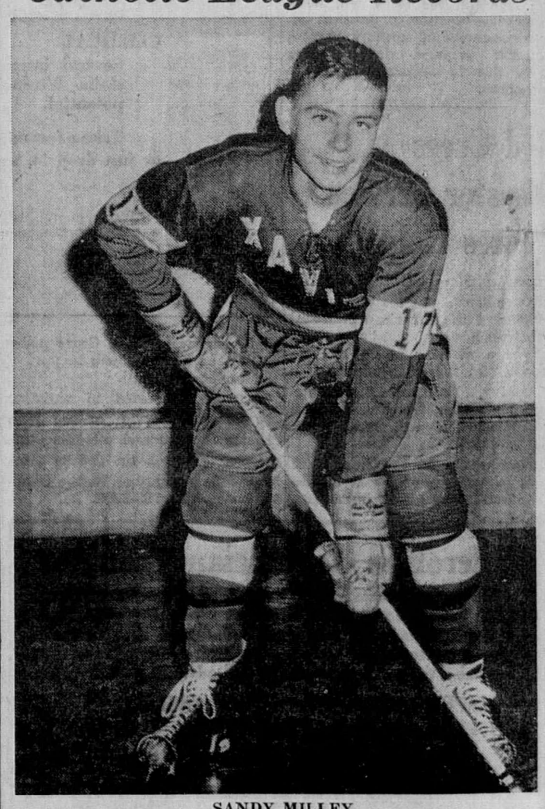

Both games this week are carded for the home court with Wakefield providing the afternoon opposition on Tuesday and Coach Henry McCarthy's interesting team headed by Dan Barbo high scorer and All Scholastic football player. Local fans have had only one home game this month to date and a good turnout is expected for these games.

Hockey Expert Making Catholic League Records

SANDY MILLEY

A product of Winchester exported to Xavier High School in Concord has been making schoolboy hockey news. Sandy Milley of 58 Hemingway Street is among the top scorers in the state and holds the Catholic League tournament record. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Milley.

Recently against Marian of Framingham the junior center netted a record 6 points in a 9-3 win for the undefeated team.

"He's one of the best forwards in the state and besides that a real good boy all around," says one of his biggest boosters, Xavier's assistant hockey coach Dave Boyle, himself Winchester born, bred and educated.

Teammate Jay Conners has played a key role in Sandy's record-breaking efforts with six assists in the Marian game. Teammate Jake Horn of Arlington is right behind his in state-wide scoring.

Little League fans know Sandy too. He has played locally since he was eight. This year he was shortstop for the champion All-Stars.

On the ice the now five-foot ten, 170 pound expert played here in Winchester Youth Hockey and in CYO hockey.

Sandy went through the Immaculate Conception School and then right on to Xavier, where he is one of the top students, always on the honor roll.

There are a considerable number of colleges interested in Sandy. At the moment he is reported casting eyes toward the Ivy League.

Coach Boyle, son of former Winchester Police Officer the late John Boyle and himself a former officer, is presently also in sales with Spector Freight System in Needham. He works at Xavier with Jack Cunard, B.C.5s former all-American.

Sachem Matmen Drop Pair Of Matches

Last week's wrestling resulted in a pair of defeats for the Winchester grapplers, but there were several fine individual performances as encouraging progress by the entire team. Concord edged the local boys in a close contest by 32-27, and Brookline prevailed by a 38-14 count.

Noel Webb was picked as the outstanding Sachem in the Concord meet, with Pete Barry given this honor against Brookline. The most-improved-wrestler award was gained by Chris Osgood in the action on Tuesday, while Bill McGrath and Bob Thomas divided the honor in Brookline.

This week finds the Klinemen on the road with trips to Wakefield on Tuesday and to Newton South tomorrow afternoon. Preparations are being made for the district, and hopefully the State Meet, which will be coming up soon.

Winchester winners with Concord were:

95-lb. class—Ralph Tullberg
105-lb. class—Mike Dooley
115-lb. class—Peter Majahad
145-lb. class—Chris Osgood
Unlimited class—Noel Webb

These victories came on pins, with Dooley equalling Capt. Don D'Andria's season's speed record of 35 seconds. Don also won his eighth match in nine attempts by a decision. His victories to date now total 5 pins and 3 decisions.

Brookline results included:
105-lb. class—Mike Dooley
115-lb. class—Bob Thomas
182-lb. class—Don D'Andria

All these were the result of decisions, and the lone pine won by the Winchester crew was made by Pete Barry in the 110-lb. class.

Hockey "B's" Tie Chelmsford

The Winchester Pee Wee B hockey team rebounded from the previous week's loss to Wakefield for an impressive 3-3 tie with powerful Chelmsford.

The Chelmsford team has climbed near the league lead by losing only once in their last eight games, but had to come from behind to tie Winchester late in the game.

Winchester started fast in this contest with the newly elevated first-line trio of "Boo" McKenzie, Will Paglia and Allyn Stillman peppering the Chelmsford goal in their first turn. Tom Allyn, who did double duty as defenseman with the first unit and wing on the second, opened the scoring on a fine shot after a pass from Larry O'Grady.

Chelmsford scored late in the first period and went ahead in the second frame.

Late in the second period the first line again started to swarm in the Chelmsford end, but was denied by the goalie.

Allyn Stillman was shaken up when he crashed into the goal attempting to knock in a rebound, but returned in the third period to spark a rally. Allyn broke in on the right wing and centered a pass to Will Paglia, who made a fine move and flipped it home.

A moment later "Boo" McKenzie moved the puck around the boards to Will Paglia behind the net and Will put a perfect pass on the stick of Allyn Stillman in front of the goal.

Allyn found the far corner with his shot to put Winchester in front. Chelmsford managed to tie the score on a breakaway late in the final period, but some fine goaltending by Dan Whitney preserved the tie as Chelmsford pressed in the final minutes.

Fine defense was turned in by Kevin Pronski and Mark Milley as well as Tom Allyn.

The team has just passed the halfway mark of the season and continues to show improvement as it has climbed from the cellar to the middle of the league standings.

Team scoring is as follows:

	G	A	Pts.
Allyn Stillman	4	7	11
Will Paglia	4	4	8
Boo McKenzie	3	4	7
Larry O'Grady	3	4	7
Frank Ryan	4	1	5

Soccer League Is Formed

The newly formed Boston Area Youth Soccer League will hold its pre-season meeting at the Bates School in Wellesley at 8 p.m. on February 14.

The object of the League is to provide the opportunity and training for boys to learn the game of soccer; the League is open to teams from all towns, parishes or schools in the Boston area.

The playing season will be from April 1 to June 30 with weekly games on Sunday afternoons. For the first season teams will be made up from boys who were 14 or younger on January 1. In the following year it is planned to enlarge the League to three divisions covering age groups from eight to 16.

Any person interested in the League or wishing to enter a team is invited to attend the meeting or to obtain further information from Joe Dente in Holbrook (963-1408) or Rai Copland in Wellesley (235-6402).

Troop 525 Versus Polar Bear Ice

Vinson-Owen Boy Scout Troop 525 met the elements head on during their Polar Bear Campout December 28th and 29th. That was the weekend of the big ice storm and Scouts Scott Howard, Steve Spencer, Scott Wilson and Dale Wilson check the ice above.

Scoutmaster Jack Wilson led six 525 Scouts on the first outing of the winter and encountered subfreezing temperatures for both days of the outing at Camp Acton. Activities included both tracking and trailing. Scouts participating with the above were: Danny Mooney and Richard Tezian.

The next Troop 525 Outing will be a three day Deep Freeze beginning tomorrow. About 12 Scouts are expected to participate. For further information on Troop 525 activities call Jack Wilson (729-7204) or Committee Chairman Richard Spencer (729-0751).

Boat Show Queen At War Memorial

A sleek 38-ft. convertible Hatteras yacht will reign as Queen of the mammoth 1969 International Boat Show which docks in Boston's War Memorial Auditorium on Saturday, February 8, and continues through Sunday, February 16.

This $60,000 Queen will be brought direct from the big New York Boat Show along with more than 300 other boats of all kinds as well as all types of nautical accessories.

Equipped with twin diesel engines, air conditioning with reverse cycle heating, ice cube maker, and a 6000 watt diesel generator to operate all the accessories, this Hatteras is truly a luxury craft.

This beautiful craft sleeps six in three separate staterooms and even includes wall-to-wall carpeting.

Sponsored by New England Marine Trades Association, and affiliate of National Association of Boat Manufacturers, all the leading manufactures will be represented in this huge spectacle.

Frank Farrell, executive director of New England Marine Trades Assn., has indicated that this will be the largest show of leading boat manufacturers in New England. The entire two floors of the auditorium will be utilized for exhibits, and the high ceilings in the main hall make it possible to show some of the tallest sailboats as well as some of the largest inboards.

Some of the big cruisers will include 35 ft. Owens, 31 ft. Uniflite, 30 ft. Tolly craft, 28 ft. Trojan, 27 ft. Owen, 25 ft. Chris Craft, and 25 ft. Bertram.

One of the biggest arrays of sailboats will be unveiled at the show and will include such top names as 30-ft. Jensen-Cal fiberglass sloop, the 33-footer Chris Craft Cherokee, the famed O'Day line, Gemico, Sea Sprite, Venture, Chrysler, Alcort, Coast Catamaran, American Fiberglass and others.

The huge fleet of runabouts and canoes will include Penn Yan, Classtron, Glassmaster, Aluma-Craft, Renken, Finback, Duo, Smoker, Hurricaine, Viking, Duratech, Carver, Bertram, Chris Craft, Lancer, Grady-White, Boston Whaler, Carlson, Aero-Craft, Rivers & Gilman, and others.

National exhibts of foremost engine companies will be featured including Mercury, Evinrude, Chrysler, Sea Gull, Bear Cat-Homelite, Gale, Palmer and others.

One of the fastest segments of boating is houseboats, and three of leading makers will have many units in the show. These include Kayot, Nauta-Line and Trojan. Many families are acquiring house boats for family fun.

Completing the show will be a tremendous variety of nautical accessories including anchors, pumps, clothing, cordage, docks, piers, flags, electric systems, furniture and horns.

Swanton St. Rental Center Opens; You Name It, They'll Rent It

If the business at the new Taylor Rental Center at 20 Swanton Street is any indication, Winchester residents are becoming exercise conscious.

In the two weeks the Center has been open, the most popular items rented have been vibrators and exer-cycles. According to Earl Peck, store manager, only one of the 11 vibrators stocked by the Center was in the store on Tuesday.

The seore, which will have its grand opening in April, is a company store of the Taylor Rental Centers of New England. Their main offices are in Springfield and the stores are nationwide.

Mr. Peck, a resident of 10 Chesterford Road, is assisted by Thomas Joslin of 2 Wildwood Terrace.

The Center rents everything from dishes to contracting equipment. Among the popular items in the Winchester store are the shampoo machines for rugs. The Center has four, and, according to Mr. Peck, all four are usually out of the store.

Items in the store range from a 29-cent wallpaper scraper, which is rented with a wallpaper steamer, to a backhoe and bucket (front end) loader which many be rented for $60 a day plus gas.

Wedding Tents

For those planning outdoor wedding receptions or for children who want an authentic backyard circus this summer, the Center has a real circus tent for rent.

Along with the wallpaper steamer, household handymen will find small cement mixers (now there's no excuse not to build that patio this summer!), posthole diggers and a diagnostic analyzer to check what's wrong with the car.

According to Mr. Peck, renting equipment has become increasingly popular as people have less room, especially in apartments, for storage. Little used items, such as good china, silver, and fondue dishes may now be rented for entertaining.

The Center in open Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Mr. Peck, who is originally from Woodbridge, Connecticut, was previously in the real estate business. He also had experience in the rental business in New Haven, Connecticut.

Interested in flying, Mr. Peck has held his pilot's license since 1938. He is the Deputy Wing Commander of the Civil Air Patrol in Massachusetts and holds the rank of lieutenant colonel.

He and his wife, Grace, have two daughters, Mrs. Cynthia (Cindy) Yetton, 21, of Hudson, and Pamela, 19, a Winchester High School graduate now attending Chandler School for Women, Boston. Pam, who seems to share her father's love of flying, wants to become an airline stewardess. Cindy, who graduated from the Silvermine School of Horsemastership in New Canaan, Connecticut, is a licensed instructor and second class trainer.

Mr. Joslin and his wife, Martha, have two children, Barbara, 4, and Jimmy, 2. Before joining the Taylor Rental Centers, he was employed with Medford Chrysler, Medford, for seven years. He is a member of the Auxiliary Fire Department.

Incinerator Tops Bill For Town Meeting

Town Meeting members convene Thursday night, February 13 for their second special meeting since the 1968 regular session. Heading the list of articles is that for which the meeting was initiated—the request of the Board of Selectmen for a $91,140 appropriation and authority to repair and improve the Town's nine-year-old incinerator.

There are four other articles, all also sponsored by the Selectmen:

—Article 2 asking for $3,000 to be expended by the Board of Selectmen for real estate appraisals;

—Articles 3 and 4 asking amendment of the Town by-laws which restrict political pamphleteering to no closer to election than two weeks; and —Article 5 asking $24,000 and the authority to purchase for the Town the land and house at 26 Highland Avenue—this for expected use for Washington School enlargement purposes.

The Selectmen Monday night unanimously and officially accepted the report made for the Town by the consulting engineering firm of Fay, Spofford and Thorndike of Boston.

The repairs for which the Board is asking money next week include some, but by no means all, of those recommended by this firm.

The firm was engaged in September after a series of breakdowns had closed the incinerator several times during the past year or two.

The incinerator cost the Town $500,000 to construct in 1960. It has been in constant use since that time. Its present condition is such that Town officers agree a complete overhaul to be imperative.

The 30-page engineering report includes diagrams and has a nine-page supplement done on the crane alone by Shepard Niles Crane and Hoist Corporation of Montour Falls, New York. Copies are available at the Library. A summary is to be mailed to Town Meeting Members.

"There has been little or no preventative maintenance," the report says in one place of the present crane.

In speaking of the building it says, "It has been neglected in so far as housekeeping and repair are concerned."

A part of the overall recommendations of the Selectmen relative to the incinerator include monies for a second shift of personnel to be put on as soon as the major repairs have been completed in order to assure the preventive maintenance the report indicates heretofore lacking

This money, however, will appear in the 1969 department budget.

Night Fire Guts Five-Family House

WHAT COULD HAVE CAUSED MULTIPLE PERSONAL TRAGEDIES was the night fire Tuesday at the corner of Washington and Fairmount Streets. Members of four resident families, including several small children, left before the two-alarm fire raced through the old frame dwelling at 7:15 p.m.. The Winchester ladder truck is shown at the rear of the house in a photo shot just in from Fairmount by Bill Ryerson.

Multi-alarm Night Fire Guts Five-Family Home

A dramatic two-alarm fire Tuesday night destroyed a five-family frame house at 507-9 Washington Street and left four resident families homeless. Two women, a four-year-old boy and a baby evacuated the house before flames roared from the cellar up through the dormered roof of the 19th century structure. One dog lost his life in the blaze.

It took Winchester Firefighters, assisted by men and equipment from Arlington, Medford, Stoneham and Woburn over two hours to get the fire under control. They were hampered by low temperatures and a high wind, and very heavy smoke. Had the wind been blowing to the south a second, close frame home might well have gone.

The cause is under investigation by State Fire Marshal Leo Walsh. There was considerable damage throughout.

The house, listed as owned by Mrs. Gloria Strong of Wilmington, is currently under investigation by two departments in the town relative to alleged violations of zoning and sanitary codes. A hearing on the latter issue had been set for Monday night but was rescheduled for next Monday.

Two simultaneous phone calls alerted the Fire Station at 7:15. Acting Captain Joseph Shea was in charge, assisted by acting Lt. Henry O'Melia. They found the premises "fully involved." They called the second alarm at 7:24.

All Winchester equipment was at the fire. All off-duty firefighters and officers responded, as did the Winchester volunteer Auxiliary. The latter set up excellent lighting and the whole scene had a stage-like quality against the night sky —with a moon rising just behind.

* * *

Early-arriving spectators were able to see only dense smoke coming from the house. Occasional bursts of flame, visible through the smoke, brought audible gasps from the gathering crowd. The heavy smoke made early efforts at combating the blaze difficult.

* * *

By 8:35 p.m. firefighters from Winchester and Arlington had positioned their ladder trucks and had begun to pour water on the fire from above the house. Heavy smoke pouring off the Fairmount Street side of the house made earlier efforts to use Winchester Ladder 1, parked in the Fairmount Street driveway, difficult. The Ar-

Marycliff Closing Sparks Town Action Toward Acquisition

The weekend announcement of the plan to close Marycliff Academy in June initiated a flurry of action on the part of Town officials in the direction of taking steps to keep the doors open for a possible acquisition of the school and its property.

The 55-year-old private girls' academy, staffed by the Religious of Christian Education, is expected to terminate its service to the Catholic youth of the area due to "problems common to all religious orders today: personnel shortage and financial strain," according to official announcement by Mother Agnes Sharry, Provincial Superior, at the order's Milton headquarters.

The school moved from its original Arlington campus in 1950 to its present site on High Street, the former Sanborn estate.

It was built about 20 years ago by the John Volpe Construction Company. It comprises a 20-classroom academic building and two other adjoining buildings (one the original Sanborn house).

Enrollments have increased and elementary grade instruction has been added in the past few years, and Monday night alumnae and parents gathered to try to take steps to preclude the action of the order.

Under the leadership of Lexington attorney David Walsh, supporters have pledged to take over the financial responsibility of keeping the academy going.

However, officials of the order have not qualified their original position, stated by letter, with regret, to parents and friends last week. The real estate involved, which includes nine-and-one-half acres of flat land, is known to be already in the hands of realtors.

The present assessment on the property totals $724,000 — $631,500 on the buildings, $92,500 on the land.

Town Interest High

On Monday morning representatives of the Winchester Public School Department, led by Superintendent Donald A. Klemer and School Committee Chairman Barbara Walsh, were taken through the school to appraise its possible use for the Town.

On Monday night the School administration and full School Committee appeared before the Selectmen to request advice on what steps could be taken legally to acquire for the Town an option to purchase.

They were joined by Elementary School Building Committee Chairman Earle Littleton, Planning Board Chairman William Chapman, Town Counsel Leonard Mullen, Finance Committee Chairman Ormond Hessler and four of his group.

The meeting was chaired by Selectmen's Chairman Charles Doucette. His full board was there. Arthur Hewis was also present.

There was a strong consensus that the Town should act fast so that "this property won't slip through our hands like Beggs and Cobb."

The only challenge to this course expressed was that of Mr. Littleton, whose position centered on the wisdom of acquiring an old building not in keeping with the future elementary school designs and programs heretofore defined by the School Committee.

"I am confused by this," he said.

Mrs. Walsh emphasized the excellent location, good buildings, pupil capacity up to 475 and good gymnasium in the plant.

Engineers' Report Asks For Big Outlay

The summary of the recommendations to the Town by Fay, Spofford and Thorndike, engineers, recommended a nine-point program to the Town.

The consultants were directed to provide the necessary information and cost data on the following items which were of major concern: a, to reduce soot and dust hazards to a minimum; b, to provide for a more reliable crane operation; c, to increase the burning efficiency of the plant; d, to provide for increased storage capacity; and in general to place the incinerator back in a safe and reliable condition.

Items four to eight are those to be considered at the Town Meeting next week. They include (in an order rearranged from that of the report):

1. Rebuild the entire dust-collecting system from the spray chamber outlets to the chimney. This system, as its name implies, removes dust and fly ash from the exhausted gases before entering the glass-lined chimney. (Cost estimate $38,300)
2. Overhaul the existing crane. (Cost $16,800)
3. Repair the furnace and chamber refractory. This item is primarily replacing fire brick within the furnace complex. ($12,500)
4. Repair the draft and temperature control system. ($1,250)
5. Repair the existing building and improve the lighting. ($18,750)

Total estimated cost for the above items 1 through 5 is $91,140 (a figure which includes contingencies at varying percentages).

The consultant's report also includes the following recommendations:

1. Construction of an additional storage pit.
2. Installation of a second monorail crane.
3. Enclosing the existing conveyor.
4. Additional personnel to allow for a second-shift operation.

The construction of an additional storage pit and monorail crane are being held for further consideration. These two items concern increasing the capacity of the plant at an estimated cost of $256,500. No appropriation is requested at this time, but rather support for proposed legislation to be filed allowing the Town to issue bonds for remodeling, reconstructing or making extraordinary repairs to the incinerator at a later date.

Any bond issue for this purpose would require the additional authorization of a Town Meeting.

The recommendation to enclose the existing conveyor is to minimize the debris blowing into surrounding neighborhoods. This is presently being accomplished with funds still available from the original 1960 construction appropriation.

Citizens Ask Board Action On Reading Missile Site

Winchester Selectmen are strongly considering joining the ranks of their counterparts in Lynnfield and Reading in asking Congressional study of the about-to-be-constructed Sentinel missile site one-half mile from Winchester center.

At Monday night's meeting they responded to a request for action by citizens here with discussion and expression of concern.

Caught, as are many area officials and legislators, in the rapidly evolving current of citizen-level opposition to the Army's anti-ballistic-missile site nearby, the Winchester administrators delayed definitive action only to take time to study the specifics of their position.

At Reading

According to a report from one attendant, more than 25 from Winchester were among the 1200 area citizens who packed Reading High School auditorium last Wednesday night to hear representatives of the Army Corps of Engineers explain details of two Sentinel installations to be located in the nearby towns of Lynnfield, Wakefield, North Reading, and North Andover.

Local Opposition

Opposition interest in Winchester has been growing since the Reading meeting, according to Mrs. Robert Danley of 2 Fenwick Road, who has received numerous calls from local residents requesting information and offering help. Mrs. Danley, who is working with the New England Citizens Committee on ABM, states that a Winchester committee is forming and details will be announced shortly.

Attendants Wednesday learned that area installations are part of a $6 billion national program to deploy hydrogen-tipped missiles and companion radar interceptors in a thin defense system against what proponents describe as a possible nuclear attack from Communist China.

The controversial system, opposed by former Secretary of Defense Robert McMamara and science advisors to the last three presidents, was authorized by Congress in 1968. One of 15 sites

Board Of Appeal Gives Approval For Rest Home On Main Street

The Board of Appeal has notified owner George Rothman of Cambridge of its decision to allow the construction and operation of a rest home at 605 Main Street, a half-block north of the Center Circle on the west side of the street.

Mr. Rothman expects to start building in May.

He plans a three-story plus ground floor brick colonial building. His pre-plans have been filed with the Building Commissioner.

"It should cost over a million, be an asset to the Town, and bring it needed revenue," the Cambridge businessman reported to the Star Tuesday.

Mr. Rothman is in the process of applying for a license from the State Department of Public Health.

Fourth Try

Mr. Rothman has made three prior requests for building permission in Winchester. He was turned down first when he asked to erect an apartment house. The Board of Appeals next refused his petition to run a car wash in this area (this involved two hearings in which the Board reversed its decision in the second).

Teacher Bargaining Nets $500 Pay Boost

A minimum of $6,900—or $500 more than the current salary base—was established for Winchester public school teachers in bargaining which concluded a week ago today between the School Committee and the Teachers' Association.

The 1969 salary figures were accepted by a unanimous vote of the Association. It followed four months of negotiations.

The minimum is for a beginning teacher with a bachelor's degree. A teacher with 14 years of experience and a master's degree will receive a salary of $12,358.

"The new scale should keep Winchester in a competitive position with other suburban communities in teacher recruitment," said a spokesman for the administration.

Winchester hires approximately 50 new teachers a year.

Area reports indicate that Lexington teachers are still negotiating, having turned down an offer of $6,800; Brookline has settled at $6,875; and Newton at $6,900.

Negotiation agreements were also reached with the Winchester School Secretaries' Association and the Committee, said to include a 6% wage increase. The Winchester School Food Services Association (cafeteria workers) negotiated for a 2% increase as agreed to by the School Committee.

According to statute municipal employees may bargain collectively for wages, hours and working conditions. Negotiations have been in progress since early October with four organized school groups as well as the Winchester Principals' Group.

Meeting with the teachers and principals were members of the School Committee negotiating team, Lawrence E. Beckley and Mary A. Mears, and representing the Finance Committee, Stephen R. Parkhurst.

School Budget Not Yet Final

Monday night the School Committee met for the third time to discuss its 1969 budget with the Finance Committee right after its appearance before the Selectmen on the subject of Marycliff.

Still under discussion before the Finance group will give its approval to the School budget is the question of additional professional personnel.

The schools are asking for 10 new positions or 15 fewer than last year. Finance wants more cuts. Personnel costs make up about 75% of the total budget.

Superintendent Donald A. Klemer has announced a public budget preview for the night of February 27 at the McCall School.

This year's percentage increase is expected to approximate that of last year—or about 17%. Already taken from the educational budget is a major reduction in maintenance costs.

Questions For CONCERN

CONCERN, Winchester's Committee on New Concepts of Educational and Therapeutic Needs, is currently answering under this heading questions mailed to its mailbox, Winchester Post Office Box 93 (signed or anonymous); or questions put to any one of its members.

Today's question is:

"Why is Marijuana considered more harmful than alcohol?"

Dr. Donald McLean, medical advisor to CONCERN, answers the question in the following way:

"These two social liablities cannot and should not be compared for their relative harm in that the damage by alcohol and marijuana is very often manifested in markedly different ways.

"Marijuana for example, can never cause the extent of damage to the various systems of the human body that alcohol destroys. Alcohol is a real threat to the very physical existence of the abuser.

"However, marijuana is harmful mainly in the role of a catalyst. In the hands of an addictive personality it can and does lead to the use of medically recognized killer drugs; ie: Speed, LSD, and Heroin. Marijuana is more of a psychological poison than a physiological toxin.

"Marijuana is considered a harmful and dangerous drug whether by itself alone or as a Judas Goat."

Rec Announces Carnival For Vacation Week

A Bob Cousy basketball clinic and foul-shooting contest are set for Saturday, February 15, as the first in several Winter Carnival events planned by the Recreation Department for junior high and high school students the week of winter vacation.

The Herald-Traveler co-sponsors the clinic and contest, run by Draff Young, athletic advisor to Randolph Manufacturing Company which produces the "Cousy" clinics.

Shooting, passing, dribbling, use of eyes and defense are stressed. Basketball shoes go to the contest winners. All registrants are eligible for a future draw for a week's vacation at the Bob Cousy Basketball Camp in Pittsfield, New Hampshire.

Recreation Director Donald Spinney reports that group trips to the WHS basketball and hockey games will be on the schedule of the Town's third annual carnival.

The barrel jumping title will be defended. Broom hockey may be included.

The week will end with the crowning of a carnival queen at a dance at the Town Hall Saturday, the 22nd.

Tennis Queens Due The 19th For Indoor Championship

Four foreign players are already signed to play here when the Women's Indoor National Lawn Tennis championships are held for the third year at the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center on East Street, February 19 through 23.

Julie Holdman, rated U.S. number two, is a probable entry.

Titles will be up for grabs; for Billie Jean King, empress of the women's tennis world for many a year, will not be back to defend her three titles. She turned pro in the summer and is ineligible for the amateur women's championship.

Also signed are Peaches Bartkowicz, Kristy Pigeon, Stephanie Defina, Patti Hogan, Cecilia Martinez and others.

Marycliff

Lawrence Beckley agreed with Mr. Littleton's contention and reaffirmed it could not satisfy the true long-range plan as to ideals. But he felt the possibility most attractive due to the construction of reinforced concrete; the fact many partitions were non-load-carrying cinder block; and the fine acreage.

"A rare opportunity," he said.

Mr. Chapman (who later scored the group for not notifying him earlier) expressed high interest of his board, noting the good land; that it is much better located than Parkhurst; that it could relieve the Vinson-Owen load as well as the previously mentioned Wyman overflow.

He also expressed the possibility of high priority for general Town use should it not be feasible for a school. Action to keep the door open was imperative, he averred.

Mentioned by many speakers was the potential 40-lot piece of land which would be vacated if the academy closes and sells to someone other than the Town.

Mr. Hewis, who emphasized this last point, asked that a committee be appointed to approach the broker about the Town's interest in the property.

Mr. Doucette termed the unanimity of opinion "unique."

Discussion centered on the possibility of inserting a special Town Meeting within the annual Town Meeting in order to bring the matter before the Town.

Selectmen's Executive Secretary Edward Donnelly was asked to contact the broker and convey the large interest of the multiple boards.

Active in the local educational program, Mr. Pyne taught the weather course and the instructor training course for Pequossett Squadron. For the past four years he has been a staff commander serving as assistant to the chairman of the National Weather Committee. Germany Now
Could It Happen Again?

George Speers, general chairman of the New England Press Association (NEPA) and chairman of the Journalism Department at Northeastern University, spent several weeks in Germany this past summer, at the invitation of the German government, studying the press there. The following is one of a series of articles on his trip written for the members of NEPA.

By George Speers

What about attitudes toward some of the "old politics" of Germany, Naziism, for example? Or anti-semitism?

Having participated in World War II, I was naturally on the lookout for such signs. Everywhere I went I kept my eyes open and ears listening for leads. None became apparent to me.

Is this to say that such sympathies are extinct in Germany? No, I don't think so. But I would add quickly that neither are they extinct in the U. S. or anywhere for that matter, I suspect.

What did impress me with regard to these delicate and sensitive matters was how thoroughly unacceptable they are now. I expected to hear some rationalizations or justifications for past actions. I didn't. To me this meant that the old Third Reich concepts are discredited and disgraced in mainstream thinking.

Then, there is another fact of life that has a great deal to do with it. What remains of German leadership of World War II days and before, is now in the 70 or 80 year age bracket. Some could possibly be in the 60's. But the ranks are essentially depleted or gone.

The newer generations don't identify with the Nazi thinking, and are repelled by it. The young adult generation and student age group weren't even born during that period. In fact, 52% of the present German population was not born then.

But the myths of Nazi Germany still go on in movie houses all over America and on TV screens in millions of homes. The stereotypes of "Hogan's Heroes" or "Rat Patrol" or countless other programs and movies do nothing to bring American thinking up-to-date. They obstruct understandings and clear thinking. They are 25-30 years behind reality. And, surely, this is dangerous, and increasingly so, to the best interests of America and a free Europe.

Another question that might well be asked about modern Germany is whether or not the German people are interested in democratic values?

My answer to this is yes. I base such a conclusion on four main factors: young generation thinking (students in particular, since they represent future leadership), the German press, Marshall Plan aid and economic recovery measures, and the built in safeguards in the Constitution (thanks to the foresight and guidance of the American Occupation powers after World War II).

Youth and Democracy

To me there is little doubt that the younger generations want democracy and do not want Nazism to happen again in their country. They are very sensitive to concentrations of power and react negatively to them. During their entire lifetime they have heard about democracy and have seen it take root and become established in their own country, a phenomenon new in German history. I could find no distaste or rejection of democracy among younger people. A criticism of some American policies, yes, but a rejection of what we consider democratic values, no.

With respect to the German press, I am encouraged by what I have seen. Most editors and publishers, after 20 years of publishing under a new concept of little governmental interference, have adopted the idea with enthusiasm. Newsmen frankly tell you they like it and take pride in explaining how they no longer have to accept the dictates of governmental officials. They are perfectly willing to criticize government policies, and do. More than 80% of the German press was taken over directly by Nazi officials during the 30's and World War II. Some publishers can tell you how they were closed down. Such memories are still vivid and press leaders want no more of the "old days."

sures taken by the American and Allied Occupation forces immed-

Economic Recovery

Without U. S. Marshall Plan aid and other economic support, West Germany certainly would never have recovered from almost complete devastation as rapidly as it did. I don't think anyone questions this. Certainly the Germans do not.

With Marshall Plan and other U. S. aid, it was inevitable that other values would be involved. Trade, commerce, business exchanges help to bring about better understandings among peoples and countries. The U. S. and Germany are no exceptions. From these relationships other cultural values followed: music (including rock and roll), clothing styles, literature, a variety of information, democratic values, etc.

Without such vital economic aid, who knows where Germany would have had to turn for help? And the consequent political thinking might very well be far different from what it is today. It probably would not be along democratic lines.

Occupation Forces

Certainly a most critical factor in helping post war Germany to develop along democratic political lines, are the many, many mealately after the war and even now to some extent. The period from 1945 to 1950 were especially critical years. Keeping old leadership out of sensitive posts and putting new leadership in these positions was certainly not easy. Results to date tell us that this problem was handled quite well on the whole.

Great progress has been made, not only in the reconstruction of the cities, but in the political system. The Constitution of the Federal Republic is working, the Parliament and election system are functioning more effectively with each passing year, and the political system seems to be responsive to criticism and suggestion.

For these and other reasons, one can make a good case for Germany's new political look. The signs do point to a growing open society and a representative one.

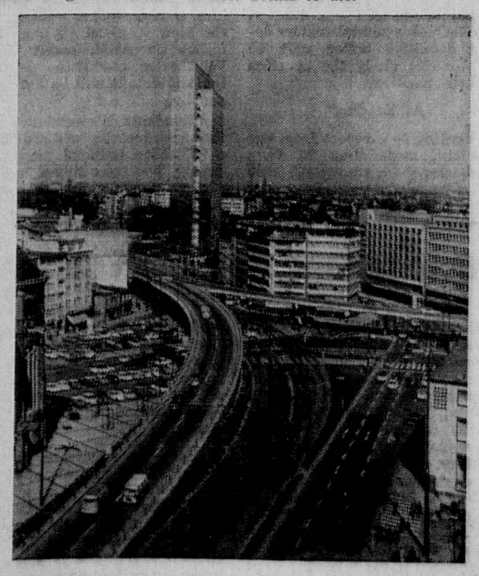

Could it happen again?

Yes, it could. There are no guarantees, certainly, when it comes to political thinking and national attitudes.

We have only to look to our own country and what seem to be growing forces from the new left and far right. The seeds are right here in the U. S., as they are everywhere, Germany included.

We all know that a house can catch fire without any apparent reason if we neglect it. But we all know that there are reasons for such disasters. And we know, too, that with constant and patient observations, and the willingness to be ever watchful, such calamities can be eliminated.

The same principles apply to the house next door, our own town, to countries, and to the world, it seems to me.

PROSPEROUS AND MODERN. Germany is probably the most modern and prosperous country in Western Europe today thanks largely to German diligence and Marshall Plan aid. Modern buildings and new expressways are found in most, if not all, German cities such as in the case of Dusseldorf shown above.

Art Association Sponsors Exhibit

The Winchester Art Association and the Winchester Co-operative Bank will present part of the "Golden Days of Sail" exhibit that has recently been at Harvard, Yale, Boston University, and the State Street Bank of Boston.

This exhibit depicts a whole era of the halycon days of sail. Here are the great Cape Horners "the like of which man will never see again." These are great ships with no motive power other than the winds, designed to do over 400 miles per day and carrying over an acre of canvas.

The pictures in the exhibit, done by artist Joseph Corish of 86 Lawson Road, include:

"Moonpath"
"The Seventh Wave"
"In the Roaring Forties"
"In the Horse Latitudes"
"Out of the Fog"
"Where the Trade Winds Blow"
"Near Norman's Woe"

Elizabeth Wilder is responsible for hanging the exhibit at the bank.

The Winchester Star

Established 1880 By Theodore P. Wilson, Sr.

Serving The Community For 88 Years

Editorials:

Marycliff: An End And A Beginning?

The sadness of the probable closing of the Catholic girls' academy on the Westside hill has realistically to be mitigated in many minds here by the possibility that its buildings and lands can continue service in public education. A reflection of the national church education problem of "personnel shortage and financial strain," the announced closing of the school is quite likely only the first in the Winchester area.

Responding to the sudden announcement Winchester School officials rallied quickly and with an astonishing unanimity of interest. A compromise with program planning ideals seemed very palatable throughout elected and appointed school ranks, if the fine site and good buildings could be acquired. If when studied the move appears to be able to serve the Town well, one hopes it can be effected quickly.

A Year For Heroes

Unaccustomed as they are to being heroes, this may be the year for Finance Committees across the State. Winchester's is no exception.

The background for Winchester's woes is the fiscal nightmare building on the State level. "The situation is grim," says Governor Francis Sargent. It is indeed.

The word "revolt" is in the air. The Governor has said he would lead one himself.

Monday night our Finance Committee dug in to demand more economies still from an already pared 1969 School Committee budget. A new superintendent, trying to guide the Town's educational system toward practicality with improvement, is finding himself up against some adamant, tax-dollar-minded financiers. Both have their jobs to do. Both are in the right.

Superintendent Klemer reminds that Massachusetts rates one of the lowest states in the country—about 41st—in amount of State aid to local schools. He reminds of its current Welfare load and its inadequate long range planning for ways and means. He points to collective bargaining—it has an autonymous quality; to anticipated increase in students this year—about 90 without potentials from Marycliff.

He's in the middle of the squeeze.

Finance Chairman Ormond Hessler puts it this way: "Remember that the base to absorb the tax levy increase averages about 2% with no new major projects. This year in Winchester that would put our tax rate up about 13% or about $4.80 . . . We anticipate about $500,000 less revenue from the State."

Need he say more?

Priorities must be set. And, we believe personnel services in all areas of town business should come first. Planning for the future—taking those steps without which future projects cannot materialize—should come second.

The Finance Committee is a tough bunch. On the wall behind its chairman there hangs a mean-looking axe. If they swing it meaningfully and with their eyes open to the future as well as the present, they could still end up as heroes.

Maybe they will.

Off Our Rockers?

In half a century America has moved from the rocking chair age into the rocket age. In the process can we have gone off our rockers entirely?

The Sentinel Missile site controversy raises many questions of far reaching impact. Top scientists disagree. It is hard for the layman to sort out the answers.

Two things stand out crystal clear, however: the subject is of prime and immediate interest to Winchester. One of the clues to something wrong in the situation is that so many of us knew so little about such an important thing going on.

Our first clue-in was a Public Broadcasting Laboratory (PBL) program put on by Channel 2 about three weeks ago entitled, as we remember, "Defense Decision Making Process." We intended to leave it to do something else. We could not.

It was comprehensive, revealing, careful, compelling and very scary. It portrayed the tight circle of inCongressmen where defense decisions are concerned. It had a short but sharp view-in of a Reading resident's total surprise when the bulldozers started in next to his house. It concluded with President Eisenhower's farewell speech warning against the military-industrial complex in our country. It should be shown again—perhaps with a follow-up of a two-sided panel. For it gives the national-international framework of consideration of this imperative local issue.

In a full-page presentation Monday the Boston Globe quoted "ABM: Yes or No?" by Dr. Jerome Wiesner, MIT's provost and former science adviser to President Kennedy.

"There are people . . . who say that it is better to spend your money on ABM than on more destructive power. If one could do this, that is, freeze the offensive power on both sides and build defenses—this might make ABM a good thing . . . But I do not believe that this is a tenable solution . . ."

There are plenty of defense arguments for ABM. But if it is the best thing for the country, then, should it be situated in the middle of heavy populations? Should it be set down on a town with no advance warning?

Dr. Wiesner calls the Sentinel system a "kind of electronic Maginot Line. The defender sits and guesses about the attacker's tactics. He guesses that this is going to happen, he invents a technology to deal with it. . . But maybe something quite unexpected happens . . ."

He outlines the intricate, multiple steps involved in the interception of ballistic missiles in detail as to what they are designed to do. He then says, "This has been demonstrated to be possible, both by analysis and in field tests. No one questions that if you set up this kind of an ideal situation it will work."

Granted that we must be ready to defend ourselves. Granted that it costs billions to do it. Granted that sacrifices must be made. Granted that all the suppositions in the theory of Sentinel defense could work out to protect us if attacked. Granted that the danger of accidental detonation of the stored nuclear monsters is minimal.

But let's ask our defense decision makers to let us in on some of all this. Let's pressure our leaders for a stop, look, listen.

Let's see that we get our right to know. Let's do it fast.

Starred by the Star:

ABM Site: 4-7 Miles Away

(The following is printed in this column as it highlights so many of the prime concerns of citizens here. The facts are Mr. Moros'.)

Editor of the Star:

May I call the attention of Star readers to the following facts:

(1) The Department of Defense is planning to install an Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) emplacement in Reading. The emplacement will contain thermonuclear warheads 100 times more powerful than the Hiroshima bomb. These weapons will be constantly ready for launching and thus can have only mechanical controls against accidental explosion. Such an installation will also be a prime target in case of an attack.

(2) The range of complete destruction of the above weapons is 5 to 10 miles, with blast fire damage extending out to a radius of 20 miles or more. There is, in addition, a radiation hazard, which will cause more deaths than blast or fire.

(3) Winchester residents live from four to seven miles from the proposed construction site.

Without entering into a discussion of the usefulness or expense of the ABM system, I suggest that all Winchester has an immediate interest in this potentially dangerous situation. Our Congressmen and President should be made aware of our feelings.

Sincerely, David Moros, 41 Grove Street

Arthur Hewis Calls Attention To Metropolitan School Action

Editor of the Star:

METCO—the Second Step is here.

This Metropolitan School System that we alerted our people about, nearly two years ago, is still brewing in Boston.

H-1885 this year, Rep. Long of Westwood is the sponsor.

At the legislative hearing before the Joint House and Senate Committee on Education, the bag was opened. Mr. Long wants this bill passed to have the State take over METCO.

He sees 15,000 children, at $500 per pupil, being bused out to the suburban areas at a cost of seven and one half million dollars. Some of us can see an additional two or three million dollars for transportation.

It is proposed to get this money out of the Local Aid Fund, and to relieve racial imbalance.

Now let's look at recommendation 13 of the State Board of Education, H-92, this is a plain and simple proposal for reverse busing —in these words "or a school committee of any town may adopt a plan for attendance in public schools of said town where such racial imbalance exists of students from another town where such racial imbalance does not exist."

The local School Committee, by this legislation, could have the power to assign pupils from Winchester into Boston, adding another seven and one half millon dollars at $500 per pupil, plus two and one half million for transportation.

Between these two bills, every parent in Massachusetts will lose his parental control of his children.

The Board of Education will very soon own your children, and move them as pawns on a chess board.

And—

The General Court last year voted that as of January 1, 1969 Town clerks, doctors, hospitals etc., can no longer denote race on a certificate of birth. How can school officials or our legislators count white or non-white?

There is no race by statute law.

There is no "Racial Imbalance."

But there is a plan to get a Metropolitan School System.

The plan is to kill the local School Committee.

The academic community wants your child.

Let's wake up again. The METCO second step must be stopped.

Very truly yours,
Arthur J. Hewis Jr.
91 Swanton Street

(Editorial Note: Clara Hewis of 91 Swanton Street recently filed through Senator Pellegrini three bills for 1969 State legislative action all of which are in the area of education: 1) (already heard by the Committee) to repeal the Racial Imbalance law; 2) asking a commission on standardization and achievement testing across the State; and 3) asking a revision of the School Building Assistance formula so as to benefit the urban schools.)

Official Action Urged on ABM Sentinel Site

Editor of the Star:

An anti-ballistic missile system is being installed in the Reading Lynnfield-North Andover area as part of a "thin" deployment throughout the U.S. This site is further along in construction preparation than other areas. Bids on Phase 1 will be opened March 12.

Since thermonuclear warheads (some kiloton, some megaton size) will be associated with this missile site and since eminent local scientists have predicted that 100 percent casualties would be expected within a radius of five miles and massive damage, death and destruction for much greater distances if a nuclear detonation accidentally occurred at the site, all residents of Winchester have a very significant interest.

This system is strongly opposed by four prominent scientists who served as science advisors to Presidents Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson; by three outstanding men who served as Directors of Research for the Defense Dept.; and by many qualified persons in scientific and educational circles.

Reasons for opposition are (1) doubtful reliability and effectiveness, (2) potential excessive cost of 5-7 billion dollars now and possible increase to 50 billion dollars or more later, (3) de-stabilizing effect on the current attempt to reach an arms control agreement, (4) location of sites near population centers making these areas prime targets for any adversary and exposing these population centers to the hazards of accident.

Although we have not yet had a nuclear detonation accident, it is reliably reported that five or six safety systems failed to function properly on the nuclear device which was accidentally dropped on North Carolina some time ago. Since maximum warning time will range from five to fifteen minutes, it is obvious that the safety precautions will have to be minimal and the risk of accident will increase substantially.

Congress approved 500 million dollars in 1968 to start deployment. Apparently, no witnesses outside the administration were invited to testify. Sen. John Stennis has promised a full and open airing of the ABM this year when the appropriations are up for review.

I urge the Board of Selectmen, as representatives of the town, and also every resident to communicate with their local Congressional delegation (Senators Edward Brooke and Edward Kennedy and Representative Torbert Macdonald) urging them to apply all their influence with Army Secretary Resor, Defense Secretary Laird and President Nixon to halt any further construction on this local site—at least until the full hearings have been held. These are apparently the only men in the government who can give such an order and it should be given to allow Greater Boston to share with other sites in the country the opportunity for a full and fair hearing.

Very truly yours,
Richard W. Freeman Jr.

Quotes 'Herald' On Alcoholism

Editor of the Star:

The cup-bearers of alcoholic-degeneracy in our society are the social drinkers. They are the so-called respectable suburbanites, the denizens of the cocktail parties. By their self-indulgence and undisciplined conduct they do nothing to help the old world along and will not help our young people to live lives of sobriety free from the curse of alcoholism.

An editorial in the Boston Herald-Traveler recently painted a true and vivid picture of a major problem in the United States and the immensity of the tragic toll alcoholism takes in our society:

"There are an estimated 6.5 million alcoholics in the United States today. Approximately 10 per cent of the nation's drivers are alcoholics. The suicide rate of untreated alcoholics is 58 times that of non-alcoholics. Thirty-three per cent of all arrests in the United States are for public drunkenness. Thirty to 40 per cent of all delinquent youths come from homes where excessive parental drinking or alcoholism exists. The national economic loss from job absenteeism, care and treatment of alcoholics and support of their families—has been estimated at $2 billion annually. One out of four emotionally disturbed Americans is an alcoholic."

This is a disease that can be as damaging and as deadly as heart disease or cancer. The only remedy for it can be total abstinence.—the remedy of Alcoholics Anonymous. Winchester social drinkers, have you the moral courage?

Boosts Marycliff

Editor of the Star:

I would like to advance my thoughts on the advisability of the purchase by the Town of the Marycliff Academy property for use by the School Department.

The building was built 22 years ago by John Volpe Construction Company and is in excellent condition. Use as a school site is its most practical purpose.

From King Solomon's Quarries To Winchester

THE ABOUT-TO-BE-BUILT Woburn-Winchester Masonic Temple is to have a cornerstone from King Solomon's Quarries, according to an announcement by its building committee this week. Shown in a sketch by architect Dr. Arland A. Dirlam, the new temple is to be built on the east side of Washington Street, at the town line. It will serve the Mt. Horeb Lodge of Woburn and the Parkman Lodge of Winchester, which together accommodate residents also of Reading, Stoneham, Arlington, Melrose, Malden, Medford, Wakefield, Lexington and Bedford. Efforts of the Grand Masonic Lodge of Massachusetts appear to be going to bring about the acquisition of the cornerstone, according to a notice the committee has received from the Grand Masonic Lodge of Israel in Tel-Aviv. Members of the committee will themselves defray the expense of the unique symbol.

BOOK REVIEW

by Ann M. Anderson
Winchester Public Library

AFFECTIONATELY, T. S. ELIOT

by William Turner Levy

This is an account of a personal association with one of the twentieth century's most distinguished literary figures, the late Thomas Stearns Eliot. T. S. Eliot has always seemed a remote, rather inaccessible figure not concerned with everyday life, and this rather pleasant little chronicle confirms that impression. It states that Eliot was known to only a very small circle as "Tom" and that the author was acquainted with him for several years before he attained the privilege of addressing him thus familiarly. He was born in St. Louis but was a member of the illustrious Eliot family of New England. He was the youngest of seven children. After a notable career at Harvard, he continued his studies in England, eventually married an English woman and became a citizen of that country.

The friendship between the two men, who were almost thirty years apart in age, was like the relationship between an uncle and a favorite nephew who did not often see each other but who corresponded frequently. William Turner Levy has based his narrative on these letters and on notes made at the times of their meetings.

T. S. Eliot had a strong interest in religion, and as William Levy was an ordained Episcopal priest this was one reason for their friendship. They made an effort to attend services together every time Eliot came to America. Noting the number of young people attending church he remarked that "the young brought up in homes where God is actively disapproved of are better off. They might react. It is the indifference that kills." At one service the rector's wife introduced Eliot to each of her three children as "Mr. C. S. Lewis," adding that they would always remember the occasion. Mr. Eliot was much amused.

He had a wry sense of humor. Levy was always somewhat surprised that such a decorous gentleman should be moved to tell a joke. He was very funny. This was partly due to the fact that his Negro dialect sometimes sounded more like the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Walt Kelly, who draws the cartoon Pogo, was one of Eliot's favorite writers. Having sent the latest Kelly book to England the author received a note from Eliot which, after expressing his appreciation, had this to say, "Mr. Kelly must have been influenced directly or indirectly by James Joyce's Finnegan's Wake. The type of wordplay and punning, although skillfully adapted to a more popular audience than Joyce ever enjoyed, seems to me of the same order." This is an unusual comment about a comic strip.

The sensitivity of T. S. Eliot is illustrated in the following episode. Levy had given him a valuable and historic plate used by the Roosevelt family at Hyde Park and bearing the initials of the president's father. Eliot refused the gift. He explained that he knew how much it meant to the donor, who had a deep respect and affection for F.D.R. and for his widow. He felt that he would be obliged to accept the gift in the same spirit, and since he did not admire Franklin Roosevelt his conscience would not allow him to keep the plate.

This is the first memoir of T. S. Eliot to be published since his death. It is appropriate that a close personal friend and admirer give us this glimpse of one of the most outstanding modern poets.

National Scouting Week Points To Ideals, Aims

by Edward Crabtree

The Boy Scout movement is moving with determined strides to keep up with the times and to serve more boys in the four Musket District towns of Arlington, Stoneham, Winchester and Woburn. What is happening in Scouting and progress already made will be apparent during several major events of Boy Scout Week, February 7 through 13.

In addition to the World of Scouting Show Saturday and the Sunday rededication service, "Fireside Chats" will be held with groups of volunteer Scouters in each of the towns to explore ways of improving Scouting's financial ability to expand and provide more effective programs serving more boys.

Nolan T. Jones of Winchester, chairman of the Musket District Committee, observes: "Scouting in our communities is moving into an exciting era. We are now putting into action an ambitious and important program in tune with the times, with objectives that will enable our more than 1,100 volunteer adult leaders to deliver a far more valuable Scout experience than in the past and to make it available to more boys than the 2,780 we are serving now.

Attitudes

Chairman Jones continues, "Scouting has been concerned about attitudes for the past 60 years—attitudes toward one's self, one's neighbor, the community, the nation and God, as well as toward property, authority and the nation's resources. We know we must improve our efforts considerably, and now. We are developing plans to strengthen those attitudes and to expand the Scouting experience to meet the growing and desperate needs of today's youth."

Mr. Jones notes that sweeping changes already have been made in the Cub Scout program for boys 8 to 10 years old, with the result that more boys in the four towns are involved in Cub Scouting than ever, and more of them want to go into the Scout and Explorer programs for older boys. The new Cub Webelos program, especially, is putting the pinch on the need for more and larger Boy Scout Troops and Explorer posts.

Today, there are 2,780 boys between the ages of 8 and 18 in the 62 Scouting units of Arlington, Stoneham, Winchester and Woburn; 28 Cub Packs, 31 Scout Troops and three Explorer Posts. The Musket District Organization and Extension goal for years just ahead is to provide three Boy Scout Troops for every two Cub Scout Packs, and to have 10 percent of total boy membership in Explorer Scouting for older boys. This program is well under way, headed by Chris Gallacher of Arlington, chairman of District Organization and Extension.

A number of new District Boy Scout Troops have been organized in recent months, and the committee is proceeding with development of others.

There is one in Arlington and two in Woburn (with Paul Apostolou Winchester Scoutmaster of one).

The Winchester Lodge of Elks now sponsors the new Troop 508 in Winchester. Guy Mafera, Exalted Ruler, announced the following appointments: Royce A. Bailey, institutional representative; Archibald J. MacDonald Jr., committee chairman; Francis A. Lawton, who has been active as Cubmaster of Cub Pack 508, is serving as Scoutmaster, assisted by William Oravetz and Edward Jones.

With more organized units come greater need for more trained volunteer Scout unit leaders, den mothers and committeemen. Musket District has an outstanding leadership training program that is preparing leaders now for the future.

Scout Week

"Each pack, troop and post will have a different activity going, Boys of the 8 to 10-year old Cub Scouting groups will have demonstrations of arts and crafts, sign making, home made games, sand painting, woodcraft and folk lore, and many other subjects.

Winter Camping Included

"In Boy Scouting there will be demonstrations of first aid, history, pioneering, construction of camping equipment, conservation, winter camping, maps and compasses, lightweight packing, boating and many others."

Mr. Smith expects two units to have signal towers standing in the Armory by the time the show opens Saturday noon.

Scores of adults are behind scenes preparing for this event including Elliot Melzer of Winchester on ticket sales.

Among attractions:

—Woburn Mayor Edward Gill will officially open the show at noon;

—A special area is planned for Indian dances to be performed by Taskiagi Lodge, Order of the Arrow;

—There will be opportunity for Scouts and Explorers 12 years or older to obtain information about joining the expedition to the National Jamboree in July at Farragut State Park, Idaho. Registration deadline is March 1st;

—Information for joining a Scout unit will be available;

—Refreshments will be sold; and —The facilities of the Arlington Chapter of the American Red Cross will be there for first aid service during the show.

Tennis

Holland will send its stars Astrid Suurbeek and Judith Salome. Esme Emanuel is coming from South Africa and Judy Tegart from Australia.

Open to the public this year is a dinner and reception for contending players to be held Tuesday, February 18 at the Center.

The popular Youth day will be repeated, this year on Wednesday, February the 19th, including a clinic and one hundred prizes to be awarded.

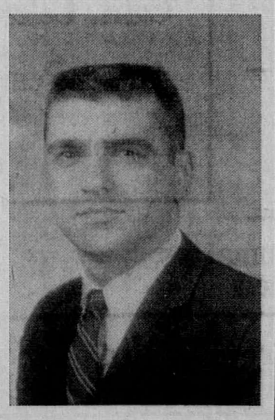

To be played again as a benefit of the Youth Tennis Foundation of New England, the tournament will be co-chaired by Tom Raleigh, of 41 Wildwood Street, president of the NE Youth Tennis Foundation, former NELTA president and present NE delegate to the USLTA, along with Bud Collins of the Boston Globe, which sponsors the affair.

John Koslowski, president of the Tennis Center, will host the games assisted by Ken Tew, the Center's pro. The Winchester Tennis Association again will supply a large committe of planners, hostesses and aids.

Tickets to the tournament, the dinner-reception and youth Day are already available at the Center.

Missile Site

selected, the Boston installations have been approved and federal funds appropriated for construction scheduled to start in early March. Construction plans are to be carried out in two phases. They call for megaton Spartan missiles, kiloton Sprint missiles, and site radar to be located at Camp Curtis Guild, former Massachusetts National Guard training facility.

Long-range radar will occupy at least 100 acres of the Boxford State Forest in the North Andover area.

Hostile Crowd

The Army-sponsored meeting quickly became a confrontation and then a protest, as the audience learned that Army spokesman Brig. Gen. R. P. Young, Division Engineer, Huntsville, Alabama, Army Corps of Engineers was present to discuss technicalities of construction and did not intend to entertain questions about the decision to deploy the Sentinel system.

Hostile reaction spread throughout the hall as Gen. Young was unable to provide answers to some questions concerned with construction costs, land acquisition, and the probability of unusual noise levels resulting from special equipment at the base.

No member of the audience spoke in defense of the project during the three hour meeting.

Questions soon focussed on the consequences of a nuclear accident. Asked to describe the area of destruction in the event of an on-site hydrogen explosion, Gen. Young stated that he was not an expert in nuclear science and was not prepared to answer.

In response to angry shouts of "draw the circle" and indication that qualified experts were in the audience, Gen. Young recognized Prof. George Rathjens, former presidential science advisor. Prof. Rathjens stated that, depending on various factors, there could be total destruction within a radius of five miles and subsequent destruction for as much as 100 miles. He went on to say that while the chance of accident is remote, it does exist; and he questioned the decision to construct any such facility near centers of population.

Other opposition questions and statements were based on fears that the system will be ineffective against cheap penetration devices, readily available to the Chinese; it makes Boston a prime target for attack and is only the beginning of an expansion program which could total $50 to $80 billion and seriously escalate the arms race with Soviet Russia.

Goodwin Asks Review

Mrs. Karl Terzaghi of Winchester called attention to the presence of Richard Goodwin, former presidential aide.

Responding to Gen. Young's invitation, Mr. Goodwin stated that, in view of the preponderence of doubt among political, scientific, and technical experts regarding the desirability and efficiency of the Sentinel system, he would urge suspension of construction and immediate re-evaluation of the program by Congress.

Michael Barrett, 19-year-old Reading High School graduate, asked the audience to remain in the hall to formulate plans for grass roots opposition, and more than 500 responded to his plea at the conclusion of the meeting.

Mr. Goodwin announced formation of the New England Citizens Committee on ABM, which he will co-chair with Robert Pirie of Hamilton, a Boston attorney.

As an initial action, he and others in the local group, recommended a campaign of letters to President Nixon, Secretary of Defense Laird, and members of the Massachusetts Congressional delegation.

Rest Home

He then went before the Selectmen in early August to test out his chances of getting an acquiescence to build old- age-housing units.

Subsequently the Selectmen have been researching the State and Federal ramifications of this. They have postponed an answer; but they never refused his request.

In the meantime the petitioner asked for the rest home at a hearing held December 17 in the Town Hall and received his answer last week.

Not a Nursing Home

In its written opinion, the Appeals Board restricted the permission "...to the petitioner and is not transferable. It covers the construction and operation of a rest home only and does not cover the construction or operation of a nursing home or apartment hotel."

Other conditions were:

—that the building be completed and occupied within two years from January 22;

—that no auto entrance or driveway be placed on Main Street;

—that the lot be laid out and building constructed in substantial conformity to the plans submitted to the Board; and —that no less than 18 parking spaces be maintained at all times on the property.

"The Board finds that the construction of the building in question will not adversely affect the health or safety of persons living in the neighborhood and will not be injurious to the neighborhood or detrimental to the public welfare," the opinion stated.

It was signed by Frederick D. Herberich as acting chairman and by Daniel T. Chane Jr. and Walter E. Fisher.

Mr. Rothman plans 18 bedrooms per floor with two persons in each; a kitchen, dining and laundry rooms; lounge; and therapy and sick room.

He expects to hire a professional manager.

Teachers

Following weekly meetings and one weekend day-long negotiating session, the W.T.A. membership reviewed the proposal and by a narrow margin of one vote the membership returned the proposal to the negotiating team.

Headed by W.T.A. president Miss Janice Collins, the negotiating team returned to the School Committee team for further discussions and eventually the W.T.A. approved the agreement by a unanimous vote.

Negotiating meetings have also been underway since October with the non-instructional personnel groups with Committee member Richard K. Schroeder as chairman of the negotiating team. William F. Clark, assistant superintendent for administrative services, and Personnel Board representative, Nelson Bell, have been assisted on the team by Finance Committee representatives Harry Williams Jr., and Charles H. Pyne.

Superintendent Donald A. Klemer and Director of Personnel Henry B. Perry met with the groups throughout the months of negotiations.

Baptist Women To Hear Jay Sibley

The members of the First Baptist Women's Fellowship and their guests will hear Jay Sibley, well-known monologist, at their program in the church Social Hall on February 12 at 10 a.m.

Before the program, the ladies will have an international coffee hour, where they will serve coffee cakes and pastries from recipes of other lands.

Women from all churches in Winchester are invited to share with the First Baptist women this morning social.

lington ladder truck, attempting to reach the house by crossing the lawn on the steep Fairmount Street side, skidded backwards on the glaze ice formed by the leaking hose and was unable to navigate the hill. After several attempts to get the truck up the hill, firefighters stopped the truck where it was and ran hose up the 65-foot ladder.

Once the ladder trucks began pouring water on the fire, the heavy flames seen in the roof and third story of the building began to diminish. As it appeared the firefighters were gaining control of the fire, the frozen spectators began to disperse.

Fire Chief Francis Amico missed action Tuesday night as he is recuperating from injuries sustained in a recent fall at the Fire Station. Captain Peter Galuffo was at the scene. Captain Michael Connolly, off-duty, responded to take charge at headquarters.

Listed as residing in the house are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Donavan and baby; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Brewin and baby; Mrs. Jacqueline Connor and four-year-old-son; and Paul McDonald.

Red Cross Disaster Chairman Richard Norris is aiding in supplying some clothes to those who lost them. He and Mrs. Norris were in charge of a well-manned chapter wagon which parked at the foot of Fairmount Street and dispensed needed hot coffee (provided by Renton's Market) to Firefighters. Jane's Lunch, Cross Street, also provided coffee for the men.

Ice formed all over the coats and hats of the men of the department the minute they left the heat of the building. Temperatures made footing on the back ell roof of the house treacherous and the steep approach to the building over water-glazed snow made going rough.

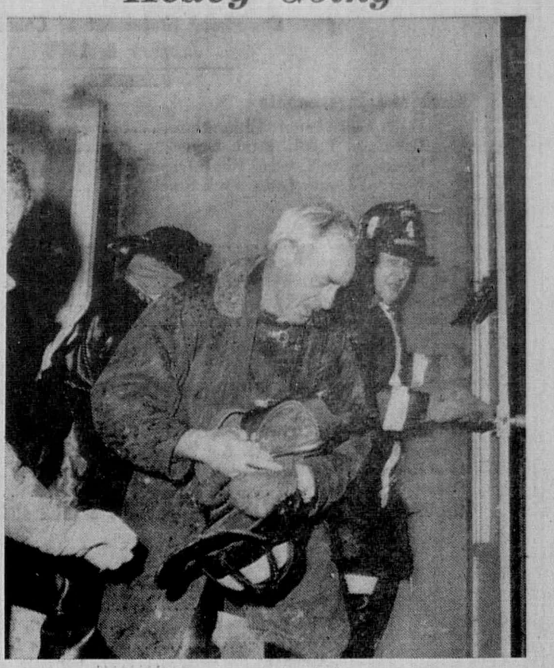

Auxiliary Firefighter John Cleary was taken to the Winchester Hospital in the Police ambulance and treated for an injury to his eye. After treatment, he later returned to duty at the fire.

Boston Edison men arrived and disconnected wires from the pole on Fairmount Street to prevent the wires attached to the house from snapping back and causing injuries if the wood supporting them burned through. At first the lineman only loosened the wires, disconnecting the power to the high tension lines. Later, he returned and disconnected the wire from the pole entirely, allowing it to slump to the ground.

One woman spectator, who stopped to view the fire while returning from the grocery store, had her groceries stolen from her parked car while she was watching the fire.

The best defense against skidding on snow and ice, according to Chief of Police Joseph J. Derro and the International Association of Chiefs of Police is plan all maneuvers well in advance and make them gradually. If the car should skid, steer in the direction the rear-end is skidding. But beware of over-correcting. It may cause the car to skid to the opposite direction and not be able to control it.

Selectmen Turn Down Gas Station

The Selectmen Monday night voted unanimously to deny the request of George Whitten, owner of the Scotch Car Wash on Main Street, to install gasoline pumps and initiate the sale of gas at that address.

Their denial was based on the public safety issue.

The traffic hazard already existing at this location would be increased, the Selectmen said. To substantiate their opinion they cited a traffic study done for them at this area by the police, and a recommendation against the petroleum license from the Police Chief and Safety Officer.

UNICEF Collects $1,063.20 Here

On Halloween, 1968, Winchester children collected $1,063.20 for UNICEF while trick-or-treating, according to Mrs. Charles Haley program committee chairman.

"Whatever their age, our fellow-citizens can feel very proud," she said. "The enthusiasm shown by our young goodwill ambassadors, the qualities of leadership of the teenagers who helped to organize them, and the adults' generosity speak well for our town."

While needy children and mothers in Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Middle East will ultimately benefit from the contributions made on Halloween to the United Nations Children's Fund, our own children may be considered as the beneficiaries of the program.

"They have received a fine lesson in international understanding and the example of concern and sharing set by their elders will not remain unheeded.

"The many residents who welcomed the UNICEF Trick or Treaters too, should feel rewarded by the satisfaction that comes from helping others and from the constructive activities of our children," she added.

"Whither shall I go from thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from thy presence? If I ssend up into heaven, thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold, thou art there." These verses from Psalms are part of the Responsive Reading included in the Bible Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches this week. The lesson is titled "Spirit."
Among related passages to be read from the denominational textbook Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy is the following: "Man walks in the direction towards which he looks, and where his treasure is, there will his heart be also. If our hopes and affections are spiritual, they come from above, not from beneath, and they bear as of old the fruits of the Spirit."

Heart Fund Aids Fight Against Disease

Certain heart disease mortality rates are dropping—and Heart Fund income is rising. What's the connection?

"Thousands of Americans have already been saved from premature death and restored to productive and happy lives through advances in the field of heart and blood vessel diseases. Dollars voluntarily contributed by the public...have helped speed practically every major advance in cardiovascular medicine in the past 20 years," according to Dr. Walter B. Frommeyer Jr., president of the American Heart Association.

In 1946, the first year volunteers went out seeking funds from their fellow citizens they netted $2,655,776. Last year they brought in $11,277,426 on their Heart Sunday house-to-house requests.

And the total 1968 Heart Fund figure reached $37,774,436—the first time that Heart Sunday income passed the $11 million mark.

The Bay State is generous—the fifth largest amount comes from here. Last year the Heart Fund raised $1,488,009 and in 1967 it raised $1,347,429.

The 1968 Massachusetts figures are thus divided: 41.9 percent from Heart Sunday; 20.2 percent from memorials; 20.5 percent special gifts; 9.8 percent from business and 3.6 percent from other sources.

Since 1950 the mortality rate for cardiovascular diseases in people below 65 dropped 18.4 percent. Deaths associated with high blood pressure, in this same grouping, dropped 58.9 percent.

Those deaths associated with stroke were down 32.8 percent; those from heart attack declined 1.5 percent, and those from all other cardiovascular diseases were down 25.5 percent.

Still, an estimated 1,059,400 Americans will die of diseases of the heart and blood vessels in 1969. The Heart Fund dollars collected this year will help research which may decrease these figures.

Remember this when a Heart Volunteer visits on Heart Sunday, February 23.

Lynch To Have Fashion Show

Ninth grade home economics students at Lynch Junior High will present a style show, "Fashions in Wonderland," on Friday, February 7, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lynch cafetorium.

Tickets will be on sale at the door.

Based on the theme, "Alice in Wonderland," the show will present the girls in the outfits they made this year in sewing classes.

They will adventure with Alice through the keyhole and in the garden stage settings. An invitational tea will be held in the Home Economics suite after the show.

As hostess gowns, slacks, pant suits, skirts, dresses, and coats parade before them, the panel of judges will decide who will be the 1969 Fashion Princess. The winner will be crowned by Joanne Collins, last year's talented winner.

Welcome the Heart volunteer visiting your home on the week end of Heart Sunday, and make a generous contribution to the 1969 Heart Fund.

Library Film Program

Family Film Night, February 7 at 7:30 p.m.

They Steamed To Glory — the history of the development of the railroad and the steam engine locomotive in this country. The wonderful world of trains is fast disappearing and this is a fine preservation of it at its zenith.

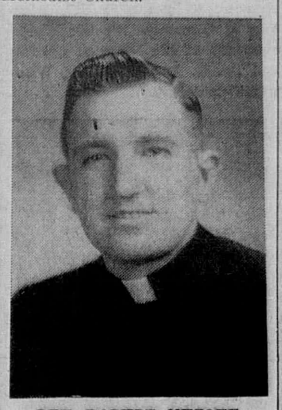

How To Build An Igloo — Two Eskimos give a step by step demonstration of igloo building in the far North, showing how the site is selected and how blocks of snow are used to make a snug shelter against Arctic cold. This is an art that may yet come in handy here this winter.

Old Woman In A Shoe — The familiar nursery rhyme about the old woman who had so many children serves as a basis for a colorful animated film introducing primary number concepts. This may seem a sneaky way to teach addition but it's lots of fun.

The same program on Saturday morning at 10:00 a.m. for school age children only.

Rev. Mezoff To Preach At Methodist Church

The Rev. Robert Mezoff, pastor of the Calvary United Methodist Church in Arlington, will preach at the 11 a.m. service this Sunday at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church.

REV. ROBERT MEZOFF

In a state-wide pulpit exchange, visiting Methodist ministers will preach on the nation-wide United Methodist Fund for Reconciliation.

Rev. Broyles will be preaching at the First Methodist Church in Everett.

This twenty million dollar fund is being subscribed over a four year period and is to be used primarily in projects and efforts toward black-white reconciliation.

Methodists are seeking to raise one and one half million among the congregations in Massachusetts.

Rev. Mezoff holds the A.B., S.T.B., and S.T.M. degrees from Boston University with a major in New Testament. He has studied at the University of Switzerland in Lausanne in the areas of German and European politics.

He is also the recipient of the Merrill Fellowship at Howard. His main interests center in ecumenical relations and new forms of liturgy.

The title of Rev. Mezoff's sermon is, "A Church Attuned to the Times."

Jack Wilson To Speak To Garden Club

Jack Wilson of 42 Thornberry Road will present movies of his tour of Africa at the February 10 meeting of the Winchester Estates Garden Club to be held at 8 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Carl Albers, of 12 Thornberry Road.

JACK WILSON

Mr. Wilson and two friends travelled to Africa in October 1967, highlighting their tour with a five and a half day climb of 19,340 foot Kilimanjaro, Africa's highest mountain.

Following the climb of Kilimanjaro, the adventurers spent ten days in African game parks, staying at the Tree Tops Hotel for their last night in Africa.

Co-hostess for the garden club meeting will be Mrs. Rolland Robison.

The Social Security booklet, "If You Become Disabled," emphasizes the point that even though the disabled worker returns to work despite a continuing severe condition, his benefits may continue to be paid during a trial work period of up to nine months. This will give him a chance to test his ability to work.

First Congregational Church Invites Town To Join Celebration

The parish of the First Congregational Church is inviting the community to join its members in a service of celebration to mark the occasion of Dr. Oliver Powell's first year as pastor of that church.

Members of the church plan to show their appreciation for the ministries of Dr. Powell, Dr. Kenneth Henley and the Rev. Richard Diehl.

DR. OLIVER POWELL

"Because, in today's world an effective ministry in a town involves all denominations, all religions, all persons in the community, everyone in Winchester is asked to share in this special occasion," a church spokesman said this week.

The service will be held in the sanctuary of First Church on Sunday evening, February 9th at 7:30 o'clock.

Students Present Sunday Service At Unitarian Church

February 9, the Unitarian High School Group, Metcalf Union, will present a Youth Sunday Service with the theme, "Man's Destiny."

For over a month the young people have planned and devised a service which will be a compilation of verse and prose, some of it original.

Instrumental music, singing, and dancing by the Sacred Dance Group will be included. A non-verbal skit has been written and directed by the young people.

The Metcalf Unioners will break tradition by giving a new version of Genesis and reciting an original statement of faith. A bread sharing ceremony will be featured.

The offering on this Sunday will be given to "A Committee on Responsibility." This organization brings starving and injured Vietnamese children to the United States for medical attention and to find foster homes.

Those participating in the service will be Ann Dieterich, Pat Amos, Karen Yapp, Nancy Fontneau, Betty Ann Ellis, Jean Reynolds, Susan Tesar, Lisa Urey, Janet Puffer, Susan Jones, Kathy Blanchard, Karen Magnusen, Brooks Herrala, Marc Levinson, David Boyer, Eugene Rochow and Eric Neurath.

The service is open to the public. Every one is welcome.

Sorenson Heads Winchester Heart Drive

Richard A. Sorenson of 81 Fletcher Street, has been appointed community chairman of the 1969 Heart Fund Campaign by the Greater Boston Chapter, Massachusetts Heart Association.

Mr. Sorenson is a graduate of Oregon University and is presently an assistant dean of students at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

This year's Fund goal is $750,000 to aid in the fight against congenital heart defects, hypertension, heart attacks, stroke, and related heart and blood vessel diseases.

Accepting the post Mr. Sorenson said, "The volunteer recruitment drive is well underway. Many civic minded persons have already called our central phone operation headquarters at 267-6580 to volunteer. However, many more are needed if we are to achieve our increased goal of $125,000 over the 1968 figure in Greater Boston."

Your Heart Association, supported by the Heart Fund, fights a vast complex of diseases—among them heart attack, stroke, high blood pressure, rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease and congenital heart defects.

Films Named For Smith Club Annual Event

Tickets for the annual Winchester Smith College Club Film Festival were distributed to the members of the club at a meeting held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Thomas G. Craig on Bruce Road.

The Film Festival is a series of three classic movies to be held at the Winchester Theatre on March 4, March 18 and April 1.

The first film will be "David Copperfield." Its cast includes Freddie Bartholomew as the young David, Frank Lawton as David as a man and such other stars as Basil Rathbone (Mr. Murdstone), W. C. Fields (Micawber), Edna Mae Oliver and Lionel Barrymore.

"Ten Little Indians," a British adaptation of the Agatha Christie mystery novel, " And Then There Were None," is the second film.

The final picture is "Lilies of the Field," staring Sidney Poitier in one of his finest roles, as he gradually befriends a group of nuns in their convent and teaches them some of his ways.

More than nine million hours in volunteer services were contributed by over 100,000 individuals at Veterans Administration hospitals last year.

WE THANK YOU!

We at the Gift Boutique are still impressed with the great concern shown us and the help proferred us after last week's cellar fire and heavy smoke caused us inconvenience and a temporary shut-down.

We consider above and beyond the call of duty the treatment we got from the Winchester Fire Chief and his men. The Department came quickly, operated efficiently and, more than that, with such care that in a shop full of breakables, we suffered not a single broken item!

In addition to this customers and friends in the business community — many we had never met — offered us aid of all kinds.

We are happy to say thank you, happy things went as well as they did, and happy to say we are ready to serve you again.

Local Staff Of Hutton Co. Attend Seminar

Messrs. Royce Randlett, Ray E. Brown, Harold Huff, George Murray, John Caruso, Carl Hyam, account executives at the 31 Church Street office of E. F. Hutton & Company, Inc., New York Stock Exchange member firm, attended the first of a series of seminars at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel on Wednesday, January 22.

The seminars, entitled "Why E. F. Hutton in Metropolitan Boston?", explain how the firm hopes to serve this dynamic growing area.

The account executives had formerly been associated with Draper, Sears & Company, Inc., who recently merged its 13 offices into the nationwide Hutton system.

Keith S. Wellin, president, extended a welcome to the Hutton organization and stressed the importance of New England as a major financial center in the United States. Besides providing background information, corporate policies and structure, Mr. Wellin pointed out that seminars such as this are only one example of the emphasis E. F. Hutton places on continuous training.

Vice President of Manpower and Organizational Planning, Morton D. Siegel, discussed "Effective Human Relations," Roland B. Williams, assistant vice president, senior security analyst, projected "A Look at Stock Ideas: Early 1969" and Donald C. Sarin, branch office manager, Southfield, Michigan, spoke on "Growth in the future with E. F. Hutton." Nationally quoted market analyst, Newton Zinder, closed out the session with a stock market outlook.

Teachers Attend Tufts Conference

Miss Barbara Campbell, Miss May E. Milliken and George Watson of the Winchester High School and Mrs. Carl Hatchell of Lynch Junior High School attended a conference on social studies at the Lincoln Filene Center for Citizenship and Public Affairs at Tufts University recently.

The Center staff introduced the conference participants to the three basic instructional units of its secondary social studies program: (1) dimensions of citizenship; (2) the inner city: problems and prospects; and (3) decision making in the international system.

The teachers and administrators were given a demonstration of a new international politics simulation game, "CONFLICT," developed by the Center.

Another special feature of the day's activities was the presentation of materials in the new economics program.

Mrs. Robert MacArthur of 42 Cabot Street will open her home for the Monday, February 10th meeting of the Winchester Auxiliary of M.S.P.C.A.

Russell Howard, guest speaker, will discuss pet insurance and liability including the humorous (very) side. For instance, what happens if kitty nibbles a guest's $65 mink hat? His second appearance before the club is by popular request.

A social hour with tea served by Mrs. Park Hoyt and Mrs. Norman Weeks will close the afternoon. Friends are invited.

(Ed. note: It seems pertinent to attach here a recent verse submitted to the Star by Clarence Borggaard:

The Cat

The cat is a creature
Of infinite grace
It spits on its forearms
And sponges its face
It licks and it sponges
Itself every place.

It licks and it sponges
Itself without haste
It uses no soap
No powders, no paste
No cold-cream
No napkins, no towels to waste
Very efficient—
But how does it taste?

Heart Assn. Offers Books

"Cholesterol, schmeresterol," harrumphed Mr. Rotund, slamming his newspaper into a wastebasket. "I'm tired of what I shouldn't eat because it will turn to cholesterol inside me. Who cares?" And he reached for a wedge of cheesecake, washing it down with a quart of chocolate milk.

It is tiresome to read and hear so much about saturated fats, cholesterol, polyunsaturated fats, hydrogenation, etc. and not really understand them.

To save everyone's heart the Massachusetts Heart Association suggests a reading of "The Way to a Man's Heart" and "Recipes." Both booklets explain the terms that one is likely to meet.

Cholesterol, C27 H45 OH, is a waxy substance found in all animal fats, in blood, the brain, milk, egg yolk, the liver, kidneys and the adrenal glands. Since the body also manufactures this substance.

The booklets give more than definitions and documented warnings: They advise people what foods to eat instead of those full of saturated fats and cholesterol.

Saturated fats by the way, come in two types: animal and vegetable. The animal variety include fats from beef, lamb, pork and ham, plus that in butter, cream, whole milk and cheese made from cream and whole milk.

Saturated vegetable fats are found in coconut oil, chocolate and many solid and hydrogenated (changed from liquid to solid) shortenings.

The Heart Association suggests that the family cook choose polyunsaturated fats, instead. These are fats which are usually liquid oils or vegetable origin such as corn, cottonseed, safflower, sesame seed, soybean, and sunflower seed oils.

The American Heart Association's Committee on Nutrition released a statement on diet in 1968 which said: "It has been repeatedly documented that in populations with high concentrations of serum cholesterol, the frequency of atherosclerotic coronary heart disease is high, whereas in populations with lower concentrations of serum cholesterol, the frequency of coronary disease is lower."

Youth Speaks Out, Holy Name Theme On Sunday

The theme of the monthly meeting of St. Mary's Holy Name Society to be held Sunday morning at K of C hall will be "Youth Speaks Out."

The organization will attend the 7:45 Mass and there will be music by the Holy Name choir. All young people of the town are invited to attend and then proceed to the hall for the youth program.

As speakers James Mallon president of the Winchester High Student Council and Robert Joyce president of the Drop-In-Center will present the constructive opinions of local youth on current matters of importance to the school and the community.

Citizens of the town well remember Mr. Mallon's articulate and meaningful speech at the general meeting on the construction of the new high school.

Mr. Joyce helped organize and sustain Center activities including the fund raising and outdoor barbecue event which have helped finance its work.

They will discuss recent developments in the thinking of Winchester's youth. There will be a question period open to the members and any of the young people who attend.

President John Ellis emphasizes the fact that the meeting will be open to youth, both boys and girls of all denominations. A Continental breakfast will be provided.

Lesley Honors Local Alumnae

Mrs. Arthur J. Connell of 53 Yale Street and Mrs. Francis M. Mead of Belmont, a former teacher in the Winchester elementary schools were honored at a dinner given recently at the home of Dr. Don A. Orton of 6 Wincrest Drive, president of Lesley College.

Mrs. Connell and Mrs. Mead were presented with plaques for membership in the Lord Newark Associates, a leadership organization of alumnae, parents and friends of the college.

Mrs. Connell and Mrs. Mead are both trustees and corporators of Lesley and members of the alumnae association board of directors.

Other Winchester Lesley College trustees and corporators include H. Gardner Bradlee of 46 Lorena Road; Dr. Chester L. Dawes of 74 Wedgemere Avenue; Don S. Greer of 82 Arlington Street and William C. McConnell Jr. of 10 Niles Lane.

Student Council Plans Agenda For February

On Saturday, February 8, the W.H.S. Student Council plans to run a mixer at the high school featuring Chuck Torlone's group.

This is meant to be a "mixer" in the true sense of the word. Students are welcome to come to sit and talk with friends, dance or just listen to music.

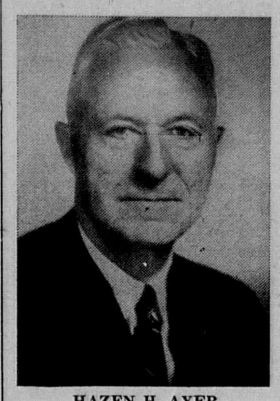

February 22 is the date of the annual Winter Carnival Dance. Hopefully, a name group will play at the dance at which a carnival queen will be chosen.

On February 28, the Council will sponsor a basketball game at which the men's faculty will oppose the varsity and/or the senior boys.

All are welcome to attend.

League Of Women Voters Hears About State House

Co-Workers Fete Mrs. Kelley

Eighty-seven well-wishers attended a dinner party in honor of "retiring" Elaine C. Kelly, secretarial employee of the School Department for the past 13 years.

Mrs. Kelley is planning to become a full-time housewife after her years of service to the assistant superintendent for administrative services, presently William F. Clark.

The gathering was at the Commodore Restaurant on Route 1A and a gift certificate and watch were presented to Elaine by her friends. She began working for the School Department following her graduation from Winchester Senior High School and lives with her husband, Jack, at 23 Emerson Road.

Amusing verses from fellow employees expressed their affection for Elaine, appreciation of her successful efforts in her position, and sadness at her departure from the McManus House Administrative Offices.

The heart and blood vessel diseases are responsible for more industrial lost time than strikes and work stoppages.

Dyslexic Children To Be Subject Of Meeting

Learning disabilities will be explored at a meeting for parents on the book, "Excel"—"Experiences for Children in Learning." On Wednesday, February 12 at 8 p.m. at the McCall Junior High School Library, sponsored by the School Department.

Co-author of the book, Mrs. Polly Behrmann, will discuss the activities suggested in the book for use by parents of dyslexic, (perceptually handicapped) children with learning disabilities.

It is the feeling of Mrs. Behrmann and her assistant author, Mrs. Joan Millman, that "by exposing a child to learning situations as one would expose him to a sport, you, the parent can create an educational experience that is not only fun but also at a level where the child can feel comfortable and in which he can succeed."

Purposefun games and methods of developing perception, expression and motor coordination are presented in the book for use in the home. This use would supplement the individual tutoring now provided for perceptually handicapped children in the Winchester Public Schools for about two-and-a half hours per week for each of the 70 children presently diagnosed.

Refreshments will be served at the meeting by members of the Massachusetts Association for Children with Learning Disabilities. The group will also arrange to have copies of the book available for interested parents to purchase. President of the local chapter of MACLD is Mrs. Clifford Orman.

Baptist Home Plans Building

The Baptist Home of Massachusetts, located at 66 Commonwealth Avenue, Chestnut Hill, has received a gift of a 35-acre tract of land with buildings in Kingston from the Rev. Dr. E. Joseph Evans.

Announcement of the gift was made recently by Leslie G. Rawding Lynnfield, president of the Home.

Plans are being made to build a new home for the elderly accommodating from 150-200 people on the Kingston property.

Walter Josephson of 102 Highland Avenue, chairman of the expansion committee of the Baptist Home, which is one of the oldest and largest in the state, said immediate steps would be taken to engage an architect, to make extensive borings on the property, and consider how to raise the necessary funds.

At present, there are 131 members in the family of the Home on Commonwealth Avenue. It is the plan of the Home Trustees that no transfers would be made from Newton to Kingston, unless requested.

There are more than one hundred on a waiting list seeking admittance to the Baptist Home. The Chesnut Hill property would be kept as a second home.

"WE'VE GIVEN THEM EVERYTHING . . . HAVEN'T WE?"

The best schooling, good clothes, a comfortable home . . . all these are important.

But don't they need answers to the big questions — such as Who is God? What is God? Where is God? What does He have to do with me?

Your children's sense of security and lasting happiness may well depend on being given good and useful answers to these important questions.

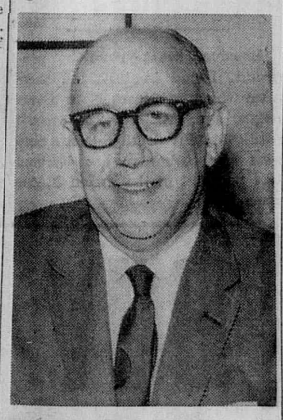

In the Christian Science Sunday School, children learn to know God, to feel a closeness to Him, and to turn to Him for the spiritual resources they need to strengthen and enrich their lives.

Isn't this something you would like to give your children? Why not bring them next Sunday morning at (hour and place of Sunday School)

ACROSS THE COUNTER

"What is your biggest satisfaction in the Insurance business?" a friends asked me a few days ago.

"Naturally," I replied, "It is when I KNOW I have been of real service. This brings a self-satisfaction that nothing else can match."

"Let me give you an example," I replied. "Several years ago, I suggested to the owner of a large commercial building that he had it underinsured. He needed considerably more fire insurance.

"He's a nice fellow," I continued, "but I think he was skeptical that I was really serving his interests. He probably felt I just wanted to sell him more insurance. Reluctantly, he agreed to having his building appraised for its replacement value.

"When we got the figure," I added, "I thought he would explode. But after a hard battle, he agreed to the increase. Seventeen months later, his building burned to the ground.

"The owner told me 'Your insistence on the proper coverage saved me from a $43,000 loss. That's an invaluable service that I can never repay!'"

May we SERVE you too?

Released Time Planned For Both Elementary, Secondary

Elementary school pupils will be released from classes on Thursday, February 13 at noon.

Teachers will use released time for building meetings at each school. Kindergarten teachers will continue part two of their course in individual readiness recognition taught by Principal Dr. Clare Corcoran of Vinson-Owen School.

Parents of secondary school youngsters are reminded of the change in the date of the secondary school released time meetings from February 5 to Tuesday, February 11. This was done in order to be able to schedule speaker, Dr. Douglas Heath of Haverford College Department of Psychology, Haverford, Pennsylvania, as leader of the meetings for the secondary teachers. Students will thus be dismissed at noon on Tuesday, February 11.

March Of Dimes Urges Donations

March of Dimes volunteer leaders today urged all residents to make their contributions by returning the mailer or the envelope left by a Mothers' Marcher or by placing it in a coin container located in many places throughout the community.

John V. Harvey, Middlesex County registrar of probate and campaign director for the 1969 March of Dimes, thanked all those who have already contributed to the expansion of the vast research program of the voluntary health agency. He asked others to do so as soon as possible.

As the 1969 campaign draws to an end, another example of the contribution The National Foundation-March of Dimes makes to the health of the nation is found in the announcement that the German measles vaccine will soon be licensed.

This voluntary agency played a major role in the development of the vaccine by providing the basic tools and discoveries.

The disease has been found to be a significant cause of many birth defects in the child-to-be if it is contracted by the mother early in pregnancy.

Distribution of the vaccine is expected to start sometime during 1969.

Massive heart research programs, begun in 1950, the year after the first Heart Fund Campaign, have paid off. The overall cardiovascular death rate for persons aged below 65 has declined 18.4 per cent in the United States since 1950.

Policemen Attend School

Sgt. Robert A. Elliott and Sgt. William T. Haggerty of the Winchester Police Department are attending the 14th session of the Command Training Institute for police officers at Babson Institute, Wellesley.

Sponsored by the New England Association of Police Chiefs, the course began on January 27 and will continue through February 14.

Arthur D. Kehas, deputy chief of police, Manchester, New Hampshire, is director of the Institute.

The Command Training Institute, supported by a grant from the United States Department of Justice, started in the fall of 1967.

A total of 390 police officers in New England have attended sessions at Babson to date.

The course material includes lectures and seminars on a variety of subjects in addition to law enforcement, including community relations, human relatins, decision-making, and related topics.

Nationwide programs of research education and community service are supported by the 1969 Heart Fund Campaign, observed nationally throughout February.

The best defense against skidding on snow and ice, according to Chief of Police Joseph J. Derro and the International Association of Chiefs of Police is plan all maneuvers well in advance and make them gradually. If the car should skid, steer in the direction the rear-end is skidding. Winton Club Casts A Spell With "Once Upon A Time"

Review By Patrick Murphy

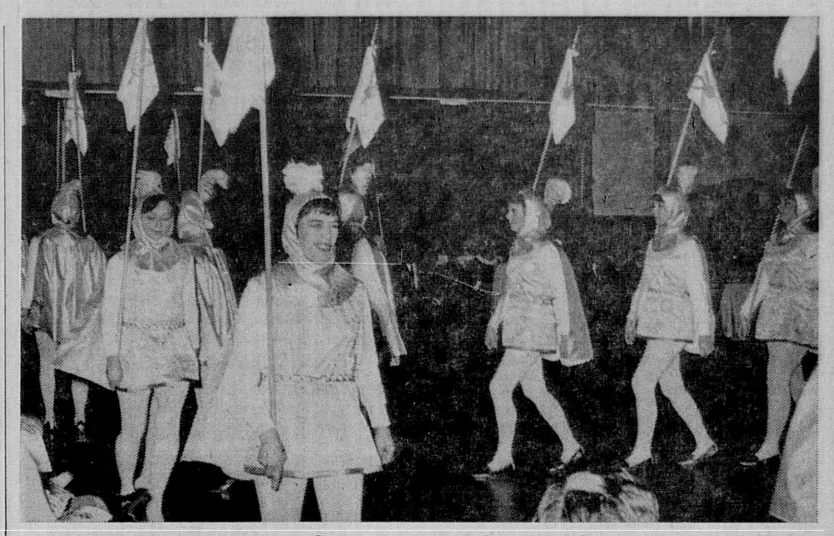

Photos By Don Young

VAMP AND VILLAINS have their turn as Jane Olivadoti gets the best of Wolf George Littell, Bluebeard Steve Davies, Pirate John Morton and Fox Dick Bannister.

GOLDILOCKS, here I come. Baby Bear Meredith Burtnett ponders the scene.

CABARET KNIGHTS were popular every one, and the gals of the time-honored drill played a big part in making them so.

ALL-FOR-ONE in looting, Vincent Carr as Ali Baba leads his 40 thieves to no good.

Once upon a time, long, long ago, there was a girl, a dragon and a riddle — a fairy-tale land where Humpty Dumpty, the Seven Dwarfs, Dr. Doolittle and Goldilocks were real people. Now they are legend and the 1969 Winton Club production "Once Upon a Time" is just a memory.

At the Winchester Town Hall last week both cast and characters were familiar, but the show itself was fresh and original.

Lee Daniels wrote the music and lyrics, and Shirley Finkel created the dance numbers that helped make this such an enjoyable production for both young and old.

Original material is essential to a production of this type. And, the success of Winton Club shows is not the reflection of a few bright stars but rather the combined efforts of many different people.

It is impossible to list them all in a review. Cabaret Chairman Mrs. Richard F. Brackett had many helpers. There were ushers and ticket sellers, stage hands and cigarette girls. Then, there was the Program Committee headed by Mrs. Courtney Crandall and Mrs. John W. Harrison. All these people, and many, many more, share with the Winton Club and its president, Mrs. Austin Broadhurst, credit for accomplishing so much for the Winchester Hospital.

"Fairy Tales Can Come True"

The show started with the Vocal Ensemble singing "Once Upon a Time," setting the stage for fairy tales to come true. The curtain went up on Caroline Franchi, the old woman who lived in a shoe. There were children popping out everywhere, and this modern mother let them out to play and dance.

Spilling out of the shoe house, on to the stage and down to the dance floor were Red Riding Hood, Puss 'n Boots, Jack and Jill, Bo-Peep, Hansel and Gretel and all the characters that children love so well. Their proud mother gave them a vocal introduction as they danced the Backalamoova, an original samba-rock by Lee Daniels.

The Costume Committee, headed by Mrs. Laurence Lougee and Mrs. Robert Joyce, had outdone themselves.

Enter the Dragon

The spell was suddenly broken as a dragon as big and mean as anything ever seen on the Chinese New Year chased all the children from the floor. Petticoats flew.

Only Melissa, fetchingly played by Diana Bruno, showed no fear. She quieted the dragon by pulling a thorn from its foot. He said "thank you" and in return for her kindness gave Melissa a riddle and a promise.

The riddle went like this:

"In marble walls as white as milk
Lined with skin as soft as silk
Within a pool so crystal clear
A golden apple doth appear.
No doors there are to this stronghold
Yet thieves break in and steal the gold."

The Dragon promised Melissa, "If you solve this riddle, a miracle will happen right before your eyes." In her search for the answer, Melissa was to have more adventures than Alice in Wonderland.

First she met Rumpelstiltskin, who was being teased by the villagers to give them his name. But despite all the names they wove together in song, they never found the right one.

Melissa was more fortunate. And so in exchange for his anonymity, Rumpelstiltskin, played by Dick Bannister, gave Melissa the first clue to the riddle. It was the word "white."

Next Melissa met Goldilocks and the Three Bears. Their story was told in song by Lorraine Esterhill, Cathleen Gill and Teresa Grady. Goldilocks was played by Nancy DelRossi; the Three Bears by Ronald Albertelli, Jan Cooper and Meredith Burtnett. Goldilocks and the Bears followed the song in panto-mime dance.

Old Familiar Faces

Next the audience met the Seven Dwarfs as the male quartet, Vincent Minichiello, Bob Gentry, Fred Lee and George Littel, sang an accompaniment to their dance. There was Sleepy and Sneezy, Dopey and Happy — they were all there with papier-mache masks that would do credit to Disneyland.

The dance of the dwarfs took them right into the audience, where they greeted old friends, and as the dance ended, each dwarf took off her mask to reveal a familiar face: Ceci Bradlee, Martha Eaton, Georgia Farnsworth, Midge Kelley and Cynthia Moore — all former Cabaret chairmen. Bernice Kimball and Mary Mears have been Cabaret regulars for years.

Each in turn received a well-deserved hand. But the biggest hand was reserved for the last to leave. It was Mrs. Farnsworth, who stopped to give the next clue to Melissa as the Dwarf's song was picked up by the Vocal Ensemble off stage.

The next scene brought on another familiar face — Jane Olivadoti. In her song she explained to her friends the Wolf, the Pirate, the Fox and Bluebeard how she "loved the nastiness in you." The Vamp and the Villains — John Morton, Dick Bannister, George Littell and Steve Davies — brought down the house.

But four villains were not enough. Next came 40, as Ali Baba and his cutthroat gang swept onto the floor with knives clenched between teeth.

The dance that followed was right out of the Arabian Nights, and Ali Baba was a villain to be reckoned with. Fortunately Melissa was not afraid and she was able to persuade Ali Baba, played by Vincent Carr, to give her another clue to the riddle.

On to Prince's Ball

In the next scene, entitled the Glass Slipper, Judy Millican, Berta Swanson, Roxanne West, Fred Lee and Buddy Norcliffe sang a series of romantic solos and duets before all joining together to sing the beautiful waltz "Love Makes the World Go Round."

Every word of their song was audible throughout the hall a credit not only to the singers but also to Cyrus Jacobs, the sound engineer. Wireless microphones do make a difference.

Counterpointing the ball with its formal court costumes and classic love songs was the appearance of Barbara von Rosenvinge in a silver mini-dress as Mira the Wizard belting out another original number, "I don't need a crystal ball." Mira added another clue to the riddle as the trumpets heralded the Winton Club Drill.

All the King's Men

What fairyland would be complete without Humpty Dumpty and All the King's Men?

The traditional Winton Club Drill continues to set the standard for the entire production. Once again Mrs. Percival Metcalf provided exciting costuming. The King's Men in their white and gold uniforms marched, countermarched, wheeled and turned across the floor without an order being spoken or a step being missed.

Practice does make perfect. This would be a tough act to follow, but the Drill is traditionally the last number before intermission.

And All the King's Horses

Following the intermission, Melissa finally catches up with Humpty Dumpty, who was ably played by Ted Burleigh. Humpty is singing Melissa's riddle. What does this mean?

Before anyone can find out, the King's Horses pranced on stage with manes and tails swinging to form a high-kicking line that would do credit to the Rockettes.

Vincent Minichiello was next as Dr. Doolittle with his friends — Wolf, Fox, Rabbit and Tiger, and the entire Vocal Ensemble.

Every good fairy story has at least one witch. "Once Upon a Time" had no less than 13—just the number to sit down around a cauldron after Sue Armstrong and Beth Welles debated in song whether to be good or bad.

Lynda Nanry Cowles singing "In a Blaze" tipped the scales and sweetness and light flew out the window.

In its place Betty Vallee flew on stage on a broomstick bringing with her 10 more evil-looking, bent-over old hags with long pointed hats and black capes.

But the capes were soon stripped off, showing witches who were bewitching. The Broomstick Dance moved from the stage down onto the floor as the tempo picked up—a treat instead of a trick—and the last number before the reprise and the finale.

It is hard to criticize this year's production, if only because there were no weak scenes and the show flowed from one number to the next taking the audience with it every minute of the way. Perhaps there was no individual number with the originality of last year's Curly Girly Octopus or the Beggs and Cobb Fire Dance from the '66 show. But, the total production was as fine as any we have seen, and there was not one act or one scene that didn't measure up to the highest standards.

The Riddle Is Solved

As the final scene opens Melissa solves the riddle. The answer is Humpty Dumpty. An egg has no doors yet thieves break in and steal the gold. The moment the riddle was solved the Dragon disappeared in a puff of smoke and there stood Prince Charming, George Bissell.

Free of his dragon's mask and scaly tail he sang, "You're not a dream, Melissa, before the dream there was you." And Melissa answered in song that she just wanted to "make just one someone happy."

As the Prince led Melissa off stage the Fairy Tale Kids, Goldilocks and the Three Bears, Ali Baba's Thieves, the King's Horses and the witches all came back to dance their reprise, joined by the stage crew, Paul Gilpatric, Ed Higgins, Frank Kelley and Rogers Welles, dressed as Old King Cole and His Fiddlers Three.

Finally Melissa and the Prince returned. Our heroine had changed from her picture-pink little girl dress onto a beautiful full-length blue gown. William Towner led the assembled cast in a toast to the bride and groom, after which the entire company joined in singing "Fairy Tales Can Come True—Once Upon A Time."

And, they all lived happily ever after.

The Jades finally made it into first place, which was expected. After all, Betty Morgan, captain of the Jades, holds first place in every other category. She may as well put her team in first place also.

Evelyn Borsini bowled the best three-game series of the night. Her total was 294.

Janice Fairneny, still fighting for Betty Morgan's position of top average, bowled a 116.

After bowling, a meeting was held for all bowlers of the club. Coffee and doughnuts were served.

Coach Sees Athlete Win Mile Race 27 Years Later

STAR SPORTS WRITER JOHN PARRELL, right, shown with Ted Vogel after the latter's mile race win at the Garden during the recent K of C track meet.

John F. Parrell, schoolboy sports writer for the Star, has been active in athletic coaching and officiating for many years.

At this year's Knights of Columbus track meet held at Boston Garden he saw a man whom he had coached as a schoolboy in 1942, run and win a race at the gruelling one-mile distance.

The passing of years has made Ted Vogel look a bit older but certainly has done nothing to affect his lithe figure or his ability and stamina for running. He has kept in top condition by doing some running through the years in addition to extensive cycling. This was shown by his performance of running the mile in 4 minutes, 49 seconds, and topping a field of other former greats at the distance.

Ted, who was outstanding in his favorite sport while at Tufts, was captain of his track team and also finished third in the 1948 Boston Marathon, which qualified him for the Olympic team. At present he is a representative for the Hallmark Greeting Card Company and resides in Mamaroneck, Long Island.

After his outstanding performance at the Garden he was congratulated by all the leading track officials, including the meet director, Ding Dussault, who has been his coach at Tufts. He was thrilled to see Mr. Parrell, whom he had never seen in the intervening years, and told the group but for the local man's coaching he might never have been a track man.

However, the coach had a far different version, which went along the following lines.

He was coaching basketball in Malden, and the new Farnsworth G. Marshall gymnasium had just been opened.

Practice was over and he was putting away the equipment in his room when he heard footsteps in the corridor and looked up to see a slender young fellow carrying books and a bag. He was covered with snow from a miniature blizzard which was in progress, and about six inches had already fallen.

Real Desire

Two logical questions were: "Who are you and what do you want?" "I am from St. Mary's High of Waltham and I want to try out your new track, If I may," was the reply. It was impossible to say "no" to a boy who had that type of enthusiasm, so the lights went on again and Ted took his first workout. After it was over he was off again in the storm to hitchhike his way to Watertown. This made a round trip of over 25 miles under impossible conditions just for a chance to run. "It was not the coaching," says former Coach Parrell, "but Ted's desire that made him a track man and a good one, and that same desire is what kept him in shape through the years.

"That resulted in his great victory and gave me one of the biggest thrills of my career and one which is unique in all coaching circles, a winner 27 years later," says Mr. Parrell.

Uphill Fight

Ted came over nearly every day, arriving after basketball was over; and when asked if he had ever been to a big schoolboy meet he replied in the negative.

Every attempt was made to enter him, but since St. Mary's was not a member of the Headmasters' Association he was ineligible. However, the coach, who was officiating at the Andover Interscholastics, took him up and he was thrilled to see the keen competition.

By this time the season was drawing to a close, but there was an A.A.U. meet scheduled to dedicate the Marshall gymnasium and he was entered in this competition against experienced and older runners from Harvard, Boston College and Northeastern. The high school sophomore more than held his own to finish third in a field of 12 entrants.

Before another season rolled around Mr. Parrell had left his teaching and coaching duties for the Army Air Force.

Ted found a closer spot for his training at Arlington, where the late Doc McCarthy and Henry Hormel picked him up under his former coach's recommendation and continued his development as an outstanding distance runner. He later trained at Boston College under the late Jack Ryder, who had been Mr. Parrell's coach in college days. Incidentally these trips were made with Frank Leahy, who was coaching the Eagles and later went on to become a legend at Notre Dame.

If all goes well and the veterans' mile is again on the program Ted will probably be back another year, and his old coach will be on the sidelines giving him fractional times as he gallops around the track.

The Star sports scribe says, "If he runs I'll be there, I wouldn't miss it—but it certainly can't be any greater thrill than this one that came when we hadn't met in 27 years. Remember, Ted made himself a winner by sheer determination to overcome all obstacles as a boy, and that same spirit has helped him to conquer age, the greatest of all barriers. Imagine being able to run a mile in 4:49 when you have gone by the age of 40!"

The Heart Volunteer visiting your home on the Heart Sunday week-end will leave behind valuable educational information. Study it carefully. The heart it saves may be your own!

KHANDA BARON-GHAN, the seven-year-old Afghan hound owned by the Edgell family of 8 Sheffield West, died suddenly January 28. Descended from champion Afghan bloodlines, she had done well at dog shows. With the other Edgell Afghan, Ishtar of Xanadu, she took prizes in the Afghan hound brace class at several shows.

Black Hawks Defeat Bruins In Youth Hockey

Coach Jay O'Leary's high-flying Black Hawks came up with their biggest win of the year as they upended the previously undefeated Bruins 2-1 last Sunday morning to tighten up the hot race in the Bantam Division.

In the Pee Wee Division the Flyers widened their hold on first place to eight points over the second-place Kings as they won one and tied one in their two games.

The Bruins and the Black Hawks opened the morning's triple-header that shaped up as a battle between the Bruin's Jim Beck and the Hawk's Billy Harris. Jim got the Bruins off on the right foot as he scored unassisted at the fifteen minute mark of the first period.

Seven minutes later Billy Harris tied it up for the Hawks and the first period ended at one apiece.

With eight minutes left in the game Billy Harris was the man of the hour for the Hawks as he scored again, another solo effort.

Jim Beck played a fine game in a losing cause for the B's as he took a steady turn on defense but just couldn't seem to get his team going.

Mike O'Leary and Rich Maggio tended goal in this game.

Paul Whitney completed the score with 45 seconds remaining to give the Maple Leafs a hard earned 4-3 victory over the luckless Canadiens. Paul's first two goals were unassisted while the winner was set up by his linemates Pete Sandford and Steve Troiano.

Whitey Murphy jammed the puck past Denis O'Donnell who had just stopped Dave Brenton's blazer from the face-off circle for the other Leafs' score.

All the Canadiens goals came on unassisted efforts. Steve Neergaard had the first one for the Habs while the Brennan brothers took care of the rest of the scoring for the Canuks. Jack Brennan's solo dash tied it at 2-2 while brother Tom zigzagged through the entire Maple Leafs team, faked out Goalie Denis O'Donnell and flipped it in to give the Canadiens a 3-3 tie.

Coach Fred Cammon's Rangers are still flying high and moved within two points of first place as they knocked off the Red Wings 3-1. Rick Murphy and Chris McKenzie took care of all the scoring for the Rangers with Rick netting two. Rick's first goal was unassisted while Chris picked up an assist on his second tally.

Rich Maggio who tended goal in the first game played wing for the Rangers in this game. He picked up an assist on Chris McKenzie's goal.

Allen King averted a shutout for the Wings late in the game with assists going to Bobby Ungaretti and Denis O'Donnell, another goalie, who skated wing for the Red Wings.

The Flyers, under the reins of Bill Paglia and Bill Coppins, increased their league lead to eight points over the second place Kings as they came out with a victory and a tie in their two games.

The Flyers whitewashed the Blues 3-0 in the first game and battled the North Stars to a 1-1 stalemate in their other encounter.

The North Stars tied their second game also, with a 1-1 standoff with the Seals.

The Kings moved into second place as they came out victorious in both of their encounters, both by 1-0 counts. The Kings first victim were the Blues while the Seals took it on the chin in the finale.

Chosen this week for their outstanding performances were Paul Whitney of the Maple Leafs for his score leading them to their 4-3 victory over the Canadiens and Billy Harris whose two goals knocked the Bruins from the unbeaten ranks. With his three goals Paul moved into second place in the league scoring race with 10 points, one behind Red Wings Jimmy Dale.

Billy Harris has scored seven times this year for the Hawks, who are one point out of second place, and only three out of first.

The league race is starting to tighten up with the playoffs just around the corner, the finish could prove to be very interesting.

Hoop Team Belts Spartans 78-59; Melrose Wins Ice Battle 2-0

John F. Parrell

The Sachem basketeers and puck chasers played their finest games of the season over the week end with Coach Vandy French's boys besting Stoneham handily to retain their hold on fourth position.

Coach Ted Kelly's boys played inspired hockey to completely check the high scoring league leaders from Melrose only to see their victory snatched away on a long shot and a deflected one off the leg of a Winchester player.

Stoneham Henry McCarthy pulled out all the stops in his various styles of defense, but none was capable of coping with the Winchester offense, which ran up a 40-19 halftime margin and maintained a comfortable lead to finish in front by 78-59.

The visitors had their shooting eyes with them as they shot a strong 50 percent from the floor. However, the home team's attack worked smoothly and had 25 more floor shots than the Stoneham crew. This was by far the best coordinated effort by Winchester this season as it played equally as well on defense as it did on attack. There were very few turnovers, and a continuation of this type of play should insure it of keeping its spot in the first division.

This week's game (at home) found Reading here Tuesday, and Coach John Killilea will bring his second-place Melrose quintet here Friday night in an attempt to check the high-scoring Sachems with his famous defensive maneuvers. Last week's attendance was encouraging, and the players look forward to a large outpouring for this week's two games, which have so much bearing on the league standing.

WORKMAN ON TOP

Capt. Tom Workman led the scoring with 27 points, with Jack Papadinis chipping in with 16. Stoneham's Don Barbo was limited to 10 at teammate Carroll netted a dozen to lead the losing cause.

In other Friday night action Lexington qualified for the Tech Tourney by thumping Reading, while Concord-Carlisle played tight-fisted ball to knock off second-place Melrose 42-21. Coming on the heels of last week's shocking upset of the Red Raiders' hockey team, this seems to qualify the historic town boys as the prime nemesis of the high-riding Melroseites.

FAST HOCKEY

Heavily favored Melrose had its hands full with the scrappy Winchester hockey team before emerging victorious by a narrow 2-0 edge. The first game between the teams had found Melrose outfought at times but managing a 5-0 score, which is well below its average, during the first round.

With Brian Bowen back in almost regular action, the locals met Melrose at its own game, and they peppered the Raider cage with shots, only to find goalie Wolfe coming up with miraculous stops. The action was at a fast clip throughout the opening session, which ended scoreless.

The second period opened on the same style, but at the 6:30 mark Dave Brussard let fly a shot as he crossed the blue line, and it zipped into the goal. Just two minutes later he tried the same type of shot and missed the goal by a wide margin, only to see it bounce off a Sachem defender and past Fred Cammon for the final margin of victory.

Brussard was playing in place of regular defenseman Larry Abbott, who was sidelined with a broken jaw. The high-scoring Melrose front line, centered by Steve Dolloff, was kept completely in check by the aggressive forechecking of the local team. Penalties helped to keep Winchester down, but in spite of these, the high-powered Raider offense was muffled.

Once again the local defensive group more than held its own as it kept the per-game average of all opponents well below three. However, in spite of very heavy territorial edges in the games to date, its own tallying has been just over one per game. Some time soon the team should break out in a scoring rash because, on its consistently good play it deserves a far better standing than it now has.

No games are carded for the team this week; but next week it will return to the ice against second-place Stoneham on Tuesday at 5:45, and on Saturday it faces off with Lexington at 3:30.

Sachem Grapplers Split— Top Redmen, Lose To Norton

Coach Tom Kline's matmen divided two matches last week winning from Wakefield 49-12 and being beaten by Newton South 38-14. Both matches were held away from home and the Winchester boys continued to show progress in preparation for the District Meet to be held on February 14 and 15.

The Middlesex League meet scheduled for this week has been cancelled. The regular schedule has ended with six meets being won and five lost, a very good record in view of the caliber of opposition that has been faced.

In the Wakefield victory Bill McGrath in the 127 lb. class and Chris Osgood in the 145 lb. class were judged the best performers while Steve Grace was selected as the most improved wrestler. Mike Dooley who has lost just once this season set a new record for the fastest fall pinning his opponent in just 30 seconds.

Other Sachems winning on pins against Wakefield were:

110 lb. Class: Pete Barry
115 lb. Class: Bob Thomas
120 lb. Class: Bill McGrath, and Steve Grace
152 lb. Class: Chris Penta
160 lb. Class: Pete Wardwell

Winning by decisions were:

133 lb. Class: Mike Keileher
138 lb. Class: Cliff Pierce
145 lb. Class: Chris Osgood
180 lb. Class: Capt. Don D'Andria

Noel Webb wrestled his opponent to a draw in the unlimited class.

The Winchester boys met much sterner competition at Newton South and came up with just four winning matches. Mike Dooley in the 105 lb. group and Bob Thomas in the 115 lb. match pinned their rivals. The other points came on decisions won by Chris Penta in the 152 lb. class and Noel Webb in the unlimited division.

Melrose Leads Middlesex League

Wakefield pulled the second big upset in as many weeks in the Middlesex League last Saturday when they edged Stoneham, 3 to 2, to knock the Spartans out of a tie for first place. In their first meeting, Stoneham handled Wakefield easily in winning, 5 to 1.

Next Saturday, the Warriors hope to continue their winning ways as they face league leader Melrose in the feature game, starting at 3:25 p.m. The Red Raiders also had no trouble in beating Wakefield, 6 to 1, in their first meeting and Wakefield seems to have tightened its defenses in the second half of the campaign.

Watertown and Stoneham will open the program at 12:30 p.m. while Belmont faces Lexington in the second game. Reading and Concord meet in the third game at 3 o'clock.

The league will also be in action Wednesday night as Watertown takes on Melrose in the opener of the doubleheader at 5:15 p.m. while Stoneham takes on a stubborn Belmont team at 5:35 p.m. In their first meeting, Stoneham scored in the final minute to edge Belmont, 4 to 3.

Steve Dolloff was blanked Saturday but he has a comfortable lead in the individual scoring race with 35 points, 11 more than Joe White of Melrose, the scoring champ last year.

The scoring leaders:

Steve Dolloff, Melrose	13	22	35
Joe White, Melrose	12	12	24
Phil Carrigan, Concord	12	6	18
Jim Murphy, Melrose	9	8	17
Jack Zurek, Stoneham	10	7	17
Bob Cotter, Belmont	7	9	16
Bob Driscoll, Concord	7	8	15

Pee Wee Hockey Downs Westford

The Winchester Pee Wee B hockey team, paced by Allyn Stillman's hat trick and the fine all-around performance of the first and second lines, defeated Westford 7-1 last Sunday at Bedford.

Winchester opened with Larry O'Grady scoring, assisted by Frank Ryan and Mike Jeannette.

Kevin O'Neill made it 2-0 from Phil Neergaard and Dan Whitney, who played defense instead of his normal goalie slot for this contest.

Allyn Stillman got his first of the evening late in the first period from Boo McKenzie and Will Paglia. Allyn started off the second period by knocking in Will Paglia's rebound.

The third period found rugged defenseman Kevin Pronski registering on a slap-shot set up by Tom Allyn. Midway through the period Frank Ryan made a rink-long dash and found an opening between the goalie and the post with his wrist shot.

The Winchester scoring was rounded out when Boo McKenzie won a face-off in the Westford end, getting the puck to Allyn Stillman, whose quick shot found the far corner.

Westford finally scored on the fourth rebound of a flurry in front of the Winchester net with seconds remaining in the game. Peter Frongillo, who had an excellent game in the nets had no chance to save his shut-out.

Good efforts were turned in by centers Kevin O'Neill and Jay Frongillo.

Next week's opponent is league power Bedford at 4 p.m. Sunday.

Juniors Win Trophy At N. H. Bonspeil

During the past weekend at the Nashua Junior Invitational Bonspeil, in Nashua, New Hampshire, the two teams representing Winchester Country Club did quite well. Winchester I nearly won the whole bonspeil while Winchester II won the Woodman Trophy as the winners of the third event.

Winchester I skipped by Gary Stillman defeated three rivals in reaching the finals of the first event. In their match against Nashua I, which is considered by many as the finest rink in the East, the Winchester team jumped off to a fast lead, but had to fight off a strong finishing rally by their determined adversaries in order to win.

In their second match, they faced a pre-tournament favorite in Petersham. Again they jumped off to a fast lead and then proceeded methodically to defeat this team easily.

Their third match was considered by many veteran observers of Junior Curling as perhaps the finest Junior game ever played in the East. Norfolk, their opponent, was the defending champion and had already vanquished two opponents.

At the end of regulation play, both teams were tied at six all. In the extra end, however, the Winchester team with masterful curling by all members managed to defeat their rivals.

Finally, the Winchester team met defeat in the finals which were held only an hour after their match with Norfolk had ended. The Winchester I team included Karen Deininger, lead; Ty Gerould, two; Jane Wilcox, vice-skip, and Gary Stillman, skip.

The Winchester II team showed a great deal of promise in their games also. In thir first match against a strong team from Nashua, they were barely defeated. After dropping their next game, the youngsters dropped to the third event. Here, they easily defeated their rivals. Against the same Nashua team that beat them earlier, they performed beautifully and revenged their earlier loss.

In the finals, they continued the mastery of Winchester over Petersham by drubbing them 15 to four.

This team was made up of both first and second year curlers whereas Winchester I was mainly three and four year veterans. Winchester II included Myron Wilcox, lead; Scott Carlile, two; Pam Speers, vice-skip, and Willy Speers, skip.

WCC Runner-Up At Brae Burn

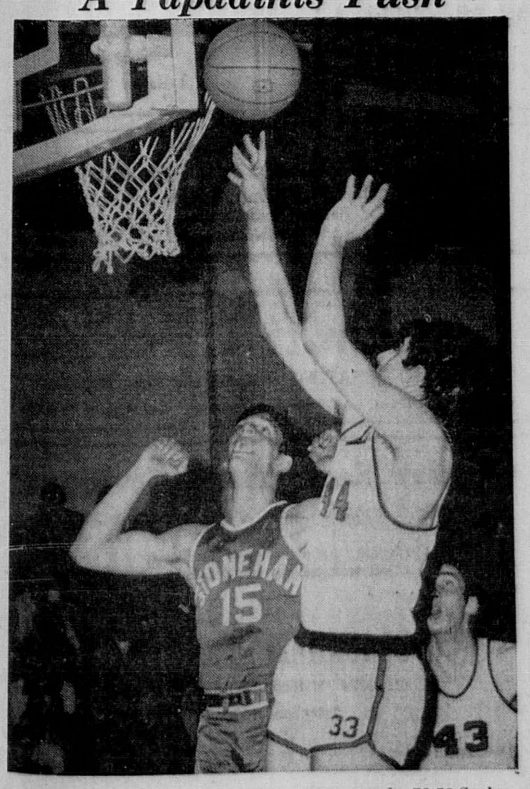

Ottawa Granite Curling Club swept the 9th International Mixed Bonspiel at the Brae Burn Country Club in West Newton by defeating the Winchester Country Club in a close final round.

Bun Wiseman skipped his rink to victory in four straight matches to win the coveted Kittredge Bowl.

The runner-up Winchester rink was skipped by Stan Neill, and included Brad Bentley, Edna Bentley and Sally Danner.

A highlight of the four-day series was an "eight-end" scored by by Stan Holland of Petersham. The "eight-end" was the first in Brae Burn's curling history, and is similar to a "hole-in-one" in golf, but is much rarer.

Track Co-Leaders Do Well In B.A.A.

Winchester's only two qualifiers for the B.A.A. schoolboy track meet did well in their respective specialties last Saturday afternoon at Boston Garden.

Co-Capt. Rick Mobbs finished second in his semifinal heat of the hurdles but met with a little bad luck in the final when he bumped a hurdle which cost him a scoring chance.

Co-Capt. Neal Benshimol led most of the way in the Class C 1,000 yard run but was overtaken in the final stages. However, he broke 2 minutes and 30 seconds for the race and finished in fourth place to score two points for Winchester.

Middlesex rivals from Melrose waltzed off with Class B scoring 37 points, Lexington was fourth in Class A with 19 points and Woburn and all other local rivals were restricted to single number scores.

Camp Wyanoke Reunion Held

The midwinter reunion of Camp Wyanoke was held on February 1 at the Sheraton Motor Inn in Lexington. Over twenty Winchester boys and parents attended.

Attending the reunion were Skip Lane (who recently moved to Hingham), Jimmy Graves, Peter and Billy Shean, Jeff Barger, Edward and Sandy Bigelow, Carl Galante and his father, Chris Parsons and his father, Justin O'Connor, who assisted with the camp movies and ran the "Pictures-taken-last-summer" contest, Richard Lougee and his parents, and Steve Meahl. Counselor Steve Downes also attended.

Traveling from Durham, New Hampshire for the reunion were Dave and Sherry Bentley and Bruce Larson and his father, all former Winchester residents.

The highlight of the meeting was a puppet show depicting familiar camp scenes, put on by Will Bartlett, of Cape Elizabeth, Maine, whose father, George, lived in Winchester for many years.

Jim Reynolds, soloist at the First Congregational Church, sang for the group, as he has at campfires at Wyanoke in the past.

Brad and Edna Bentley spoke about plans for the coming summer, Wyanoke's 61st season.

Sachem Girls Down Woburn

Recovering their usual speed and skill after the defeat of two weeks ago, the Winchester girls' basketball team scored a 34-24 victory over Woburn last Thursday in the high school gym.

The Sachem's quick, accurate passing was most effective in penetrating the Woburn defense.

Although the two teams were well-matched and the final score gave Winchester only a 10 point margin, the Sachems managed to out-play their opponents throughout the game, and out-score them in every quarter. Unfortunately, Winchester lost one of their key players, Junior Sue Kent, early in the third quarter after she turned her ankle.

The top scorers of the game were Winchester's co-captains, Cathy Niles and Marcia Barrow, who each totaled eleven points. Both girls, along with Junior Lynn Anderson who scored ten points carried the whole Sachem team.

The Winchester girls began the first quarter with a save and then dribbled down the full court, executed several quick passes and scored on a jump shot by Marcia Barrow.

From then on the Sachems held the lead and by half-time they had a nine point margin over Woburn. The Woburn girls were unsuccessful in breaking down the Sachems co-ordinated team play and most of the action was concentrated around the Winchester basket.

The Sachems hope to repeat their performance in the next game against Lincoln-Sudbury, as do the J.V.s who won their game by a score of 25-17.

Bond Shoes To Be On TV In Striderite Commercial

Bond Shoes, Main Street, Woburn, will be on television this Spring.

The store, retailers of Striderite Shoes for children, has been selected from among the thousands of shoe stores throughout the country who market Striderite to be the location of two television commercials for the company.

The two color commercials will be used during the Spring for a national television advertising campaign for Striderite Shoes, a division of Green Shoe, the largest single factory in the world making children's shoes.

Two sixty-second spots were filmed at the store last Thursday. The store was rewired and the film crew moved in equipment and actually set up a T.V. studio in the store.

Dan Yarchin, sales executive with the Green Shoe in Boston, explained that Bond Shoes exemplified what they like to look for in a Striderite retailer including being well known throughout the area as reliable and capable.

Headded that the store is one of the most attractive in the Boston area. Owners are Al and Bert Feinberg.

The cast for the commercials includes two mothers, played by Pat Wilson and Joan See; the shoe salesman, played by Jay Devlin, and the children, played by Elliot West of Needham, Pamela Martin of Melrose and Leslie Ann Storella of Everett.

We are expanding and are very interested in two experienced Licensed Real Estate Brokers or Salesmen, male or female, who are active, creative, aggressive and desirous of an excellent income.

In addition another 158 students were awarded diplomas after finishing up studies last August during UNH's summer session program.

All graduates have been invited to return to campus to participate in formal commencement exercises in June.

Jerry Borsini Jr., son of Jerry Borsini was installed as a new member.

Chairman Moose Bellino of the sports committee reminded members tickets for the annual men's sports night are on sale. The night is planned Sunday evening, February 16.

Patriot's football player Jon Morris and Harvard football player Vick Gatto will be on hand to tell stories of their experiences Sports writer George Sullivan of the Herald will also be there. Moose says another surprise guest also will be featured.

The sports committee has always out-done themselves in preparing for this affair. This year the tickets will be on sale for members, and for guests of members so purchase tickets early. A meal will be served by members of the committee.

A joint committee formed by members of the women's and men's lodges will sponsor the third annual Roaring 20's Dance on Saturday evening February 22.

The committee has sent out notices to all members about this dance. Tickets may be purchased from committee members. Dig out Roaring 20's dress and purchase tickets for a night full of fun and dancing.

The degree team has started to take bookings to perform at lodge installations during the early Spring. The first lodge to ask for the team to perform is the Malden S.O.I. Lodge, on April 5.

Braking distances on glare ice can be cut in half by using reinforced tire chains, according to tests by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards. But even with tire chains, it takes far longer to stop on ice than on dry pavement, according to Chief of Police Joseph Derro. He warns that much slower than normal speeds are essential.

New Aids For Dentists Outlined In Report By Percy Hill

Americans suffer from 700 million unfilled holes-in-their-heads.

New fulfillment for these 700 Million unfilled cavities in America today is seen by Professor Percy H. Hill of 11 Stratford Road, chairman of the Department of Engineering Graphics and Design at Tufts University.

At the recent annual mid-year meeting of the Engineering Graphics Division of the American Society for Engineering at Louisana State University, Prof. Hill presented a paper outlining his findings in biodental research.

He and a Tufts team of engineers, psychologists, architectural planners and dental educators, under a five-year grant from the U.S. Public Health Service, have pooled their efforts to master-mind the "dental office of the future."

"Probably the greatest demand upon dental service will be made through the effects of socio-economic changes.

"Higher levels of education, greater family purchasing power, prepaid dental plans and federal treatment programs all contribute to an increased demand for regular comprehensive dental care," Prof. Hill specified in his research report.

The report recommended delegating more functions to auxiliary personnel, leaving the dentist free to act as an oral diagnostician while the dental nurses prepare and fill the cavity.

"The dentist can then treat four patients simultaneously," asserts Prof. Hill.

To shed more light on the problem, the Tufts design engineers devised new light sources in the form of miniature spotlights perched on the dentist's glasses and on the operatory instruments.

In the area of patient comfort, the team designed a three-way chair, which could be set in a lounge position, a seated position or in an almost vertical stance.

Prof. Hill reported these and other findings at the recent mid-year meeting in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, attended by representatives from engineering colleges throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Steve Bryant State Math Finalist As 7 Others At WHS Commended

Winchester High School was well represented in the results of the State Math Contest, received this week.

Over 6500 students in Massachusetts participated in the Fifth Annual Olympiad High School Prize Competition in Mathematics conducted on November 7, by the Massachusetts Association of Mathematics Leagues and Sponsored by the Actuaries' Club of Boston.

Eighty-four Winchester High Students took the exam, one is a state finalist, seven were commended.

One hundred fifteen out of the 6500 participants have been declared Finalists or eligible to compete in a second round examination consisting of 5 problems—these to be done within a 3 hour time limit.

"Needless to say, it is a difficult and highly competitive examination," reports Math department head, John Waite.

Stephen C. Bryant, a junior at Winchester High School is one of these 115 finalists from the State, and he has been invited to the American Mutual Liberty Insurance Company in Wakefield on April 1, to compete in the second round. He will receive a scroll for outstanding achievement and is now eligible for a cash prize and medal, depending upon the outcome of the second level exam.

Besides the finalists, 250 more students are awarded certificates of merit for distinguished achievement in the first level examination.

Again, Winchester students were well represented. Seven did well enough to be among the top 365 in the state. Those receiving certificates are: seniors Christopher Allyn, David Cincotta, Alan Raphael and Peter Rozett; juniors Michael Kennedy, and John Schroeder; and a sophomore, Geoffrey Rivinius.

"They are all to be congratulated for a job well done," says Mr. Waite.

CSA Discusses Counselors, Sidewalks

The Community School Association of Winchester will hold its next meeting February 7 at the home of Mrs. Phillip B. Parsons Jr. of 195 Highland Avenue.

At its last meeting the CSA met with Dr. Donald Klemer to discuss the different problems in the schools and to give suggestions for needed improvement.

More guidance counselors were suggested for the elementary schools to give help at an earlier age.

Sidewalks were brought up and the need in some areas such as Johnson Road and Highland Avenue was discussed. The CSA is going to look into the overall problem.

Improvement of the French classes at McCall Junior High were discussed and changes will be made in the near future. A summer program for Negro exchange students was accepted.

Two mothers from St. Mary's and the Immaculate Conception Schools were invited to this meeting to unify all the schools of Winchester.

Your Heart Fund gifts have speeded virtually every advance in cardiovascular medicine since 1950, prolonging many thousands of lives.

En Ka Exchange Move February 12

The En Ka Society held its first meeting of 1969 last week at the hall of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church.

A luncheon, served by Mrs. William C. Platzoeder and her committee, preceded the meeting which was called to order by Mrs. Robert C. Ingraham, president.

Tributes were read in memory of two En Ka members, Mrs. Stephen Neilley and Mrs. Charles L. Baisley. Mrs. Baisley was a past president and an honorary member of the Society who served on the reorganization committee in 1932.

Since the October meeting, En Ka has given a total of $2477 to local causes. Mrs. Gordon L. Sidebotham, finance chairman, announced the following recipients: Homefronters, $325; Winchester High School for transportation for volunteers, $300; Community School Association for the foreign student exchange program, $950; Elizabeth McDonald Fund, $25; Winchester High School for the radio station and other equipment, $680; Red Cross, $157; and the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association, $40.

Mrs. Charles Potts reported the En Ka Exchange is moving to a new location—736 Main Street, home of the former Fabric Center.

The Exchange Committee is painting and decorating the new shop for its grand opening on February 12. Mrs. Potts reports the new location has doubled the floor space of the former shop.

Majestic Aftermath At Elliott Park

And Is There More On The Way?

Snow-Blower From Northeast Puts Town On Its Knees

70 Men, 42 Machines Pushing 20-26 Inches

Emergencies Abound; Schools Resume

In just over 30 hours the Northeaster which came in Sunday morning blanketed the Town with up to two feet of snow. Winds which reached 70 miles an hour built drifts about six feet high in some places. At one time the snow fell at the rate of four inches an hour.

One death has been reported attributed directly to the storm. One snow-blower victim was taken to the Hospital. Many emergency calls were answered by police including transporting physicians and nurses in emergency situations.

Many accidents occurred. Several cars were stranded—particularly on the hills to the east and west.

And many persons spent the night in Winchester who hadn't intended to.

All schools closed Monday and Tuesday. Yesterday, the secondary schools only opened, due to hazards of the younger children walking on the streets.

A most serious condition exists in Town due to students and parents calling Police and Firefighters for no school information.

The nerve center during the whole operation was the Police Station—it transmitted emergency alerts. The heart of the operation was command post up at the Town yards—or "Highway Base" as it is known on radio call.

At 2:30 a.m. Monday Salvatore Antonuccio of 17 South Gateway was taken to the Hospital by police ambulance where he died.

He was stricken upon making his way into his home after an arduous drive from Rhode Island.

On another call the ambulance went to 50 Clark Street where they transported Mrs. Mary McGinty to the Hospital with a serious emergency.

At 10:40 a.m. Monday Granville Gilpatrick of 372 Highland Avenue was taken by cruiser to the emergency entrance. He had severe lacerations and multiple fractures on his left hand as a result of a snow-blower machine accident.

One effort Sunday night to help a Ridge Street resident get into Boston to give an emergency blood transfusion resulted in police cars being tied up for two hours trying to get up the West Side Hill.

The Police Station was temporary home for several persons whose cars had been stranded while trying to get through town. Some 40 wedding guests stayed for a long reception at the Christopher Columbus Club — overnight.

The most impassable Road conditions were reported from the West Side Hill. Reports continued into Tuesday morning with several residents of Nassau Drive insistent that the Highway Department just didn't like them.

Another area in more trouble than most was that on both sides of Main Street at its Medford end. Conditions here remained poor into Tuesday.

But for the most part, relative to the magnitude of the storm, Winchester streets were in excellent condition, way above the average of its surrounding towns.

Calls commending the superb job of the Highway Department far outnumbered those of criticism. Many reported that it was a relief to get back into town after venturing out in almost any direction.

Power, Phones Hold Quite Well

Beginning at 5:45 p.m. Sunday power lines were reported sagging or already down. Within the next few hours 35 such calls had been received at Police headquarters alone.

Power failures, however, appeared fewer than during the last storm. Forest Street again suffered one of the first and longest blackouts.

The New England Telephone reported approximately 60 telephones in Winchester out of service because of downed wires. Service was expected to be restored by the end of the work day yesterday.

Transportation

All train and bus transportation came to a halt Sunday night. Most did not resume until Monday morning.

Tuesday train commuters found themselves waiting at the stations. At about 8 some 300 to 350 patrons of the B and M crowded the outer platform there for a lengthy time before a Budd car stopped. Conditions were the same at Wedgemere.

Once into Boston most found MBTA lines slow; some were not running at all.

The Highway Department was forewarned 12 hours in advance by their weather bureau, the Northeast Weather Service located in Bedford. According to Highway Superintendent Robert O'Brien, the department had all 30 of their plows with chains and blades mounted Friday afternoon, as is their normal procedure on winter weekends. The trucks were also loaded with a total of 500 pounds of salt.

Salters went to work on the roads at 7 a.m. Sunday but were replaced with plows about noon when the snowfall became heavy. There was then an inch-and-a-half of snow on the ground, according to Mr. O'Brien.

All available contracting equipment was hired to cope with the storm. The Town was able to hire two more plows and three front end loaders to add to its 30 plows, two front end loaders and one bulldozer. It was still trying to hire additional equipment yesterday.

Heavy, wet snow made removal efforts difficult. "The snow reached the point at which our trucks couldn't move it—it ripped the chains right off," Mr. O'Brien said. When the plows couldn't get through, the men used front-end loaders and the bulldozer. The winds (60 to 70 miles per hour) and fast rate of fall (four inches an hour) Sunday night made much of the plowing effort futile.

Many of the Highway men worked around the clock from 7 a.m. Sunday. The Department has 60 men on constant call for plows. They include men of the Park and Water Departments and are directed by Assistant Superintendend Edward Murphy and Tom McNulty, all working under Mr. O'Brien. The mechanics at the Highway Department under Foreman Michael Luise kept the trucks on the road.

At the Town yard's office a large street map of the Town is marked in orange, blue, green, and yellow, with the different routes for the plows. Each vehicle (always with two men each) has its appointed route.

Downed electric wires, phone wires, trees, branches and stalled cars prevented the plows from entering many of the streets.

The Fire Department answered 20 calls for wires between 3 p.m. Sunday and 9:20 a.m. Monday. They also had one call for an oil burner out and one for a chimney broken in the storm.

Attention! Attention!

Town officials have termed the emergency created by students and parents of school children "outrageous." No school calls to both fire and police headquarters have come in at the rate of from one to two hundred calls an hour. At many times all lines into both were clogged with these calls. No one dying, no one with a house fire could have reached either.

The Fire Chief Asks:

—Don't call the station on school information.

—Do aid the serious condition by clearing hydrants in your area. Town departments are trying; but in many areas vision to hydrants is still blocked.

—Do warn parents to keep all children away from any hanging wires. All must presumed to be live.

The Police Chief Asks:

—Don't call the station for school news. By doing so you may be responsible for the death of a citizen.

The School Department Asks:

—That householders aid clearing sidewalks in front of their homes so that children may be safer going to school. (There is a serious danger to any person walking in the streets. If absolutely necessary adults should walk against on-coming traffic and single breast.)

—Don't clog the school lines for no-school calls. Within half an hour of any decision the data on this are on all major radio stations. Every morning they go out by whistle.

No School Signals (by fire whistle):

2-2 repeated four times:

At 6:45 a.m. means no school all day, all schools.

At 7 a.m. means no school morning sessions, elementary schools only.

At 12 noon means no school, afternoon session, elementary schools.

Tax Books

"Real Estate and Personal Property Tax List for the Town of Winchester, 1968" has just been completed and is on sale at the Assessors' Office in the Town Hall for $2.00.

The much discussed publication of the first local tax-listing since the full cash valuation assessment this summer has just been announced by the Board of Assessors.

Printed page by page from the computer sheets which formed the basis of the original report, it was delayed for several weeks by factors which included the behind-schedule functioning of the Town's new computer.

Motions Toward Marycliff Purchase Are To Be Added To Tonight's Warrant

The first Town Meeting of 1969 —a special—opens tonight at 7:45 in the WHS auditorium.

Called because of the emergency situation at the incinerator, the warrant now includes four other general subjects:

—that of action which could lead to the purchase of Marycliff Academy by the Town;

—an article asking for monies for real estate appraisals (to which has been added a sum related to the above);

—two articles asking amendment of the Town's (unconstitutional) laws about political pamphleteering;

—and an article to appropriate money to acquire the land and buildings at 26 Highland Avenue.

Moderator Harrison Chadwick, who is running unopposed in the March elections, will run the meeting.

The introduction of the Marycliff subject more than doubles its potential importance to the Town.

Action Toward Marycliff

Subsequent to meeting on the subject again this week, town officials have developed procedures to be followed in considering the acquisition of Marycliff Academy, which is still scheduled to be closed in June of this year.

Monday night the Board of Selectmen and the School Committee indicated a greal deal of interest in this matter at their separate meetings.

The initial step will be taken at this evening's Special Town Meeting. The Board of Selectmen will request an appropriation of funds for real estate appraisals including this school.

The Board of Selectmen have set March 13 as the date for a Special Meeting, within the regular session, to consider the following:

1. Establsh a study committee to determine the feasibility of acquiring the Marycliff Academy property and to determine its best use by the Town;

2. authorize this committee to execute an option to purchase the property and provide funds for this purpose; and

3. to support special legislation by the State allowing the Town to finance this purchase by issuing bonds.

Representatives of the Sisters of Religious Education, owners of the property, have stressed the importance of time to the Order in selling the property. They are seeking an early decision on the part of the Town in order that it

LAWRANCE
FOR SCHOOL COMMITTEE

To the Voters of Winchester:

I wish to introduce myself as a candidate for School Committee.

My wife Frances and I have three children, who started at Washington and are now at the Muraco and McCall Schools. I grew up in various Massachusetts towns in which my father, who lived here as a boy, was Superintendent of Schools. An electrical engineering graduate with a Ph.D. in Physics, both from M.I.T., I manage a group designing electro-mechanical computer equipment, and have been granted more than 20 patents.

I am a director of two charitable corporations, member of the Unitarian Church Standing Committee, and Scoutmaster of Troop 506.

First elected Town Meeting Member in 1960, I have not missed a meeting. I am active in Town Civil Defense communications and am an Associate of the Conservation Commission. For the past two years I have attended meetings of the High School Building Committee, and, this past year, School Committee meetings. I believe my background and awareness of current problems qualify me for the School Committee.

I ask for your vote March 3rd. If elected I will do my best for our children and our Town.

I am especially grateful to our friends who volunteered their time and energy circulating nomination papers.

In accepting the honor of nomination, I urge all Winchester residents to participate in the Town election and make their voices heard through their votes.

What Goes On Under The Hood

Students Opt For Variety

From autos to pets, from dress design to jazz.

"Free Option Day," was presented at the Lynch Junior High School February 3 and local residents and businessmen aided in many of the 20 activity options selected by students as a way, educationally to spend some time.

Choices included slide-lecture programs on Australia, Peru, Italy, American Indians, the Mediterrannean; programs on dress design, gym work, mass production, pet care, anatomy, jazz, photography, silent films, manners; and field trips to the Winchester Star, Bonnell Motors to watch a mechanic explain automobile engine repair, and to Concord to photograph historic homes.

Guest instructors included Mrs. Alan Broyles, Mrs. Theos Thompson, Mrs. Frank Feith, Richard Hakanson, Mrs. Frederick Cardin, Ralph Bonnell, Dr. Graham Hunt, Miss Lyn Sauber, Miss Ana Maria Sevilla, Thomas Kline, Donald D'Andria, Christopher Penta, Stephen, Grace, and Robert Thomas.

Gardner Hardy and David Tenney, principal and assistant principal at Lynch, expressed their gratitude to the citizens who donated their time and talent to this pilot project at a coffee hour following the school day.

Most groups were small to insure optimum benefit to all students. Evaluation of the success of this enrichment program will determine to what degree it is educationally rewarding and whether it should become a regular activity at Lynch.

Sponsored by the Faculty Club of Wesley College in Dover, the show will be held February 20, 21 and 22.

Order Of Arrow To Meet Sunday In Woburn

More than 400 members of the Taskiagi Lodge, Order of the Arrow, will gather on Sunday, February 16th, to be trained in new national procedures for membership elections.

According to Lodge Chief Barry Fenton of Woburn, the meeting will be held at the Wyman School, Route 38, Woburn, beginning at 2 p.m.

The Order of the Arrow is a chartered service organization of the Boy Scouts of America. The Taskiagi Lodge exists under the sponsorship of the Minuteman Council, B.S.A.

During the last National Convention held at the University of Nebraska, national delegates voted approval of changes in membership election procedures aimed at offering membership to a larger number of boys and leaders. These changes are to be implemented across the country early in 1969.

Based on a premise of service and camping, the Order of the Arrow seeks to crystalize the Scout habit of helpfulness into a life purpose of leadership in service to others, and to promote Scout camping where it reaches its greatest effectiveness in the Boy Scout Troop or explorer Post.

Lodge Chief Fenton has announced elections will be held in all eligible Boy Scout Troops and Explorer Posts during the month of March. More than 200 boys and leaders from the 20 communities of the Minuteman Council are expected to be inducted in 1969.

Editorials:

Hundred Dollar-Wise, Thousand-Dollar Foolish?

Like a lot of other ugly questions raising their monetary heads these days, that of the incinerator is one of alternatives: if we don't spend the huge amount of money to put it in proper shape, if we don't budget for proper maintenance, we'll be in worse and more expensive trouble than if we do. Indications are clear that up to now we have been remiss in care of the mechanical monster without which we cannot keep the Town clean.

Winchester's incineration troubles have been building a long time. So have those of Arlington, Somerville, Cambridge, and some eight towns to our east which have been desperate for the past few months. A solution will go before the Town Meeting tonight that could start things in the right direction for the future—and that means for the far future. We're lucky we have one to look at.

Arguments as to priorities of repairs for the incinerator should be heard tonight. Some have questioned the scheduling of the second shift personnel—actually a subject for the March meeting. Is it the most economical? Is it out of order again to talk over the idea of control burning—or a back-yard, one-section-of-Town-a-day, door to door collection which would equalize the machine's burden over the working week days? These questions may come in March.

Whatever the answer, however harsh the outlay, it must be adequate for the situation. Or again will Winchester find itself hundred-dollar wise and thousand-dollar foolish.

Accolades

Without exception persons driving back into town from municipalities in all directions have said—"Hat's off to Winchester,"—and, "Was I glad to get back!"

Nature was vindictive. The Highway department is vindicated.

Last year's sticky early storm caught the Department a little off-balance under new leadership. The rest of the year compliments came grudgingly—though for our money they did a fine job from there on out.

Judgement during this storm is based on observations brought into the Star from all areas, the general tenor of which was "Until I saw in what tough shape other towns are in. . ."

What most people were saying was that the storm was too much to be coped with quickly and efficiently; but given its magnitude we did fine here.

Yes there were calls to complain. And some seemed valid indeed. It appears that pockets of the town hadn't been reached ("not even once") by Tuesday morning—they were mostly at its edges and mainly in areas with inclines.

For safety sake no truck is allowed out without two men—this is so that one is responsible for watching for cars, persons and other hazards. There are 30 plows in town. Administrators hire as many more as they can (in competition of course with all surrounding towns). Trucks plow regularly on established routes. If the department started pulling some off here and adding them there, they'd be in trouble. Things go wrong in given areas and it is some time before oversights can be corrected. The men did their best. According to area standards it was superb. We congratulate them.

And the police and firemen.

The police station was the town's message center, taking and giving emergency information. Life and death hung on many of its actions. They too did a superior job. And so many calls have come in to compliment them on specific instances of quick and kindly action that it is impossible to list them. They are not supermen with supercars—they had to accomplish their tasks within all the handicaps of the average citizen. We congratulate them.

The job of the Firefighter's was less overt, less easily seen. However, theirs is the terrible responsibility of working to keep every option ready for action when needed. The captain in charge of the station said that on Sunday night he simply prayed that no fire would be called in. It wasn't. But had it been all men in the department were at the ready. In addition they were on the alert guarding live wires — about 30 — throughout the crises. We congratulate them.

The town can be proud indeed.

Opprobrium. And Is It Manslaughter?

It is hard to find the words strongly enough to condemn those who insist on calling the police and fire stations for no-school information.

On Sunday afternoon prior to 2 p.m. the calls started at the police station. At that hour one out of every three calls was a school information call. The others involved: emergency medical, emergency highway, emergency power and fire hazard calls. It was the same story in different words with the firemen.

On Monday evening we visited and watched the boards. Five lines into the police station. All lit up. Every one a school question. Was someone dying in need of the ambulance? Who could tell? And the most outrageous thing is that many were adults and in some instances they used subterfuge and called again. Such as, for instance, a second call from a prior voice, "This is station WBZ. We didn't get your no school information." And when the officer in charge asked on what street the station was located, the caller didn't know. Many get angry when they get no answer.

The Fire Chief said: "I implore these people not to call. What else can I say? . . .In one two-hour stretch 331 calls on schools were logged."

For our money the protection officers are too polite. They should say "no school information and don't ever call again."

The School Department is strongly considering a recording system to inform on this subject. This may be the answer but this is not the point. At present there is no such system. And the point now is that grown persons all over town are putting what has to be their convenience—or that of their children—above the life, limb, health and welfare of their fellow citizens. Persons listening to the radio Sunday, Monday and Tuesday were bombarded with the no-school announcements whether or not they had any interest therein. Persons who couldn't wait the hour to listen before they planned something different for the next day were callous and irresponsible.

Did someone die because of their impatience? Not manslaughter in any legal sense maybe; but the indirect causing of a death? Had last week's five-family house fire been Sunday night and had one of the several small children and babies living there been home alone, it is likely one of them would have died. So Johnnie could know if he was free to go to the movies with Joe on Monday? So his mother would know whether she could plan to go shopping with Joe's mother?

What price this kind of action? The price could be responsibility for a death.

Air Pollution

If I ignite some autumn leaves
And raise a wisp of fragrant smoke
The law will grab me by the sleeves
And throw me in the local poke.

Meanwhile the Edison can cause
An opaque pall to blot the sky.
If they can flaunt pollution laws
Why then, not you, or I?

When I look southward from the ridge
Where sits my small, suburban home
I cannot see the Mystic Bridge,
Prudential Tower, or Gilded Dome.

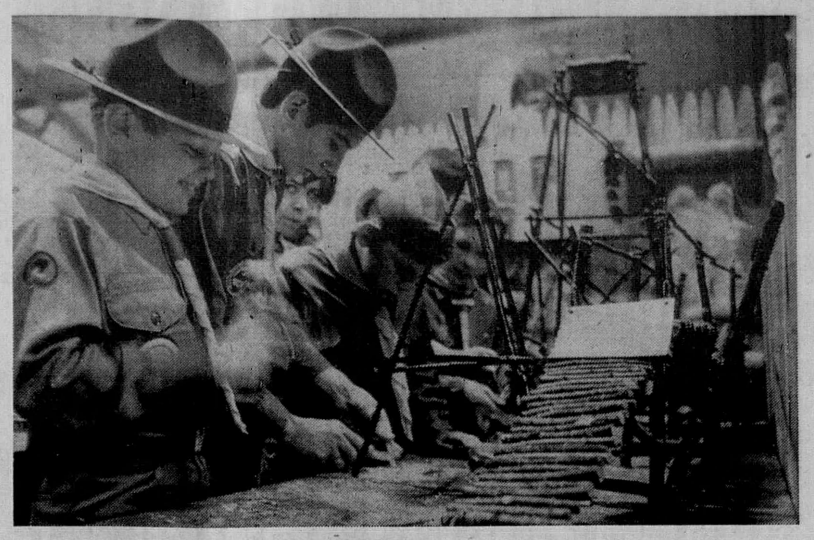

Ten thousand homes, ten thousand fires—
Not in ten thousand days
Could ever match their towering spires
Of dust and smoke and haze.

It seems the big offenders go
Unscathed, while only little guys
Are bothered. Let the big ones know
We mean to clear our leaden skies!

BOOK REVIEW

Winchester Public Library
by Elva L. Nelson

THE LITERARY LIFE

a scrapbook almanac of the Anglo-American literary scene from 1900 to 1950,

by Robert Phelps and Peter Deane

This book is full of pictures, "gossip, homages, warnings and clues together with laurels, letters, lists and whispered asides," the whole having been reverently "garnered and arranged" to give a whiff of our recent literary heritage. Perhaps the first quotation is an apt one—"Literature is that writing which most reveals the personality of the writer."

The authors are the happy victims of hero-worship. Their book admittedly grew in a homemade private fashion, beginning with poets, their portraits, family, their love affairs, and came to include other creative artists, their sayings, their doings, a so-called what-happened-when, which has finally emerged in this public event.

The literary nineteen twenties! The year 1921 has pictures of Aldous Huxley, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Walter dela Mare, Marianne Moore, Ford Madox Ford, and E. M. Forster. It lists fiction, verse and drama, and non-fiction of Great Britain and the United States published that year and now widely known. Important foreign language books, deaths, and marginalia have been added.

Its gossip: "Sherwood Anderson (with expenses paid by Paul Rosenfeld) visits Paris and meets Gertrude Stein . . . After the failure of his short-lived dry-goods store, Robert Graves moves to a cottage in Islip purchased by his mother and rented to him for ten shillings a week. He is also helped by T. E. Lawrence . . ."

Notes Ezra Pound for the year 1922, "It is after all a grrrreat litttttterary period." That year marked the death of Marcel Proust, who died of exhaustion and chronic asthma aggravated by bronchitis. James Joyce's "Ulysses" appeared, and oh! how some of the other novelists did look at it! Virginia Woolf: "I finished "Ulysses" and think it is a mis-fire. Genius it has, I think; but of the inferior water. The book is diffuse. It is brackish. It is pretentious. It is underbred . . ."

D. H. Lawrence: "My God, what a clumsy olla putrida James Joyce is! Nothing but old fags and cabbage-stumps of quotations from the Bible and the rest, stewed in the juice of deliberate, journalistic dirty-mindedness—what old and hard-worked staleness, masquerading as the all-new!"

Nineteen twenty-three marked the death of Katherine Mansfield and the publication of poetry by Conrad Aiken, Louise Bogan, Robert Frost, Edna St. Vincent Millay, Marianne Moore, E. A. Robinson, Wallace Stevens, William Carlos Williams and Elinor Wylie. It was Edna Millay who won the Pulitzer Prize. The Nobel Prize in literature went to W. B. Yeats. And William Faulkner, 26, with a file full of poems and stories, went to New York looking for literary connections. After clerking for a few months in a bookstore, he returned to Oxford, Mississippi.

Langston Hughes, working as a busboy in the Wardman Park Hotel in Washington, D. C. (so the marginalia has it for 1925) and unable to get into the hotel's "White Only" theater to hear Vachel Lindsay recite, paid homage by leaving three of his own poem's beside Lindsay's plate.

Hughes relates, "I looked back once and saw Mr. Lindsay reading the poems, as I picked up a tray of dirty dishes." That evening Lindsay read Hughes' poems and next morning Hughes found himself surrounded by reporters.

The literary 1920's ends with the publication of Thomas Wolfe's "Look Homeward, Angel," and Hemingway's "Farewell to Arms." Boston was banning thirty current books, among them Bertrand Russell's "What I Believe," Sinclair Lewis' "Elmer Gantry" and Hemingway's "The Sun Also Rises." Maybe Boston didn't take to heart Mencken's adage, "The great artists of the world are never Puritans, and seldom even ordinarily respectable."

If you want a book of a different color, but also entertaining, try "An Exaltation of Larks," by James Lipton. Maybe the expression, "a pride of lions," or "a parliament of owls" will put you on the track of its contents. Or what about "a wince of dentists," "a wrangle of philosophers," or "a shush of librarians." What is your guess?

Mental Health 'Family Care' Is Supported

Editor of the Star:

Hundreds of chronic patients in the mental hospitals of the Commonwealth no longer require hospitalization, but have no house of their own to which to return because they have been out of touch with the world for many years. They are unable to live independently.

As an alternative to letting them spend the rest of their lives in hospital wards, the Department of Mental health Family Care Plan uses selected, supervised foster homes as a sheltered environment for appropriate mental patients, paying the foster family for the room, board and care. The freedom of the community and the warmth of a smaller living unit speed the patient's rehabilitation. Often this proves to be the stepping stone to employment and independent living, thus removing the individual entirely from the tax burden.

The 1969 deficit budget currently under review by the Ways and Means Committee contains a request by the Commissioner of the Department of Mental Health for funds to permit the immediate placement and support in Family Care homes of 150 more patients.

This is only a stop-gap measure, for five times that number of patients are likely to need community placement within the next 15 months; however, it is a vital first step towards the rehabilitation of some of our most neglected citizens.

It will bring incalculable benefits, not only to those who can thus return to a life of dignity, hope and health, but will permit more scarce professional staff time to be devoted to the hundreds of patients remaing in hospital care.

We urge support of this item.

Irving Chase, president
Mass. Mental Health Assoc.

Constant Pressure On ABM Asked

Editor of the Star:

Opponents of the Sentinel Anti-Ballistic-Missile system have had a taste of victory in the first effort to halt deployment of the system. Sober reflection, however, suggests that the victory was modest enough. It consisted merely in achieving public awareness of the fact, long recognized by competent physicists incduding three presidential science advisers that the system would not provide effective defense against nuclear attack from any quarter.

If affairs of state—or at least of defense—were conducted on a rational basis, the opinions of the scientists would have been decisive and it would not have been necessary to protest publicly against installation of a Sentinel ABM complex in the Boston area. The plans for this obsolete system would have been rejected out of hand by the Pentagon.

Does anyone now believe that officials in the Pentagon are about to abandon the Sentinel ABM project merely because many citizens have discovered what the officials must have known for a long time —namely that the system won't work? If this futile, hazardous, and costly project is to be stopped, it will have to be stopped by Congress, as a result of a rational examination of Defense Department expenditures for such items as the ABM. Unless Congress is kept under constant pressure to conduct such an examination, the military-industrial complex may yet succeed in losing every battle except the last.

Sincerely,
Ruth D. Terzaghi

Thanks From Winton Club

Editor of the Star:

On behalf of Winton Club and the Cabaret Committee I would like to extend a huge thank you to all, advertisers, patrons, performers, backstage committees and audiences, who were so generous with their time, talent and support for "Once Upon A Time."

As chairman it is truly a pleasure to have so much fun and at the same time to raise so much money for the hospital. It is indeed the "year of the Dragon" for Winton Club and the hospital.

Gratefully,
Jennie Lou Brackett

Mr. Whatmough Given New Post

Jeremy Whatmough, son of Mrs. Joshua Whatmough of 17 Central Street and the late Professor Whatmough, has been appointed department manager of the sheet metal processing and warehousing plant of the new Ford Auto-lite Division which opens this coming summer at Brownstown, Michigan.

The new plant will be the largest Ford plant under one cover.

Mr. Whatmough, 34, was promoted less than a year ago to superintendent of material handling, at the Ford Woodhaven stamping plant which position he leaves to assume his new duties as manager.

His wife, who is chairman of the Airedale Terrier Club of Michigan has been doing well with her Airedales. Her bitch, Navaho Gypsy of York, was pronounced best of breed in the Livonia Puppy Show and at the same show her dog Navaho Rob won first prize. Their young son, Jay, showed his Airedale at the East Detroit Dog Show where he won an honorable mention for junior handling.

Duplicate Bridge Club

On Wednesday, February 5th, the Club held its annual tournament for the benefit of the American Contract Bridge League Charity Foundation. The Foundation has a long-time record of contributions to various fields of medical research. Besides regular grants to the well-known research programs, one of its most recent grants has been to the "Genetic Alert" program of he National Foundation for Neuromuscular Diseases. This program refers to the detection of latent hereditary disorders in children while they are still preventable or treatable.

Club Director Blair Hawley smoothly handled the two large sections with a twinned-board Scrambled-Mitchell movement, thus enabling all tables to play the same hands and assuring that any one hand might be played either in the North-South or East-West direction.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vietor were the winners in Section B and Don Dalrymple and Bob Haskell in Section A. Above average scorers are as follows:

Board 13 was lying in wait for the unwary duplicate player on Wednesday night. In rubber bridge there would be no strain; without any particularly good hand out of the four, everyone could pass with impunity. At duplicate, however, you are often nudged into action by the nagging thought that some of the other players with your hand (twenty-one of them on Wednesday) might eke out a plus score.

Both sides are vulnerable with North the dealer.

Now put yourself in each position and see if you would open the bidding. Let's start with North. On the positive side there are twelve points and a four-card major suit —hearts. But, balance this with the vulnerability and the fact that two of the twelve points are in Jacks, and a pass seems in order.

How about East? Again twelve points, counting two for the singleton. Again borderline, but in first and second position, it usually pays to be solid on a vulnerable opener. So—pass.

Now as the wheel turns we have the third and fourth positions where you can shade your points knowing your partner may have passed with eleven or twelve. But frankly South is too low to upgrade when vulnerable. Again let's pass.

West might, however, cogitate a bit longer; though in the modern point count there are only ten high card points and one for a doubleton, if you are old enough to have learned via Culbertson, there are 2½ quick tricks which merits an opening bid. In short, points in Aces demand a second thought. So I would open with the West hand, although with considerable trepidation.

It is always fascinating to peruse the traveling score sheet when twenty-two tables have played a hand. We were lucky sitting North-South to be one of the seven tables passing the hand, for, except for 1 NT by North making (doubled and redoubled incidentally), a passed-out is the best score for North-South. Seven other North-Souths got into trouble in hearts and spades being set 200 or 300. At the other seven tables East-West bought the contract in hearts, diamonds or no trump, all making. Quite a divergence for a meek little hand with 20 high card points in each direction, which pinpoints the appeal of duplicate. There is just as much challenge to your judgment in the poor hands.

Smith Club Film Festival Announced For Scholarships

"Probably the most successful and satisfactory 'Hollywood Classic,'" will be the first of three fine films offered by the Winchester Smith Club in its annual Film Festival scholarship benefit to be held at the Winchester Theater.

"David Copperfield," "richly acted with the true Dickens' flavor," by W. C. Fields, Freddie Bartholomew, Edna May Oliver, Basil Rathbone and Lionel Barrymore will be screened at 8 p.m. on Tuesday evening, March 4 to lead off the series.

On March 18, "Ten Little Indians," a suspenseful murder mystery based on one of Agatha Christie's most popular tales will be shown, and "Lillies of the Field" will complete the series on April 1st. This production was characterized in the New York Times as, "a bright little film...gentle and ingenuous in constructing a modern parable," and has brought Sidney Poitier some of his highest accolades as an actor.

Further information about this opportunity to see outstanding cinema from prior years may be had by calling 729-4075.

Storm

Calling it the worst storm in 20 years, Mr. O'Brien said the heavy, wet snow made it "the toughest storm I've seen." Although the Department received many calls about the slowness of clearing the area, Mr. O'Brien said there were few angry complaints. He wished to thank the residents for their understanding and patience.

Sunday night the Highway Department had hired a firm to tow stalled cars to allow plowing, but at the height of the storm the firm left since, under Town statute, the Department is only allowed to pay $10 per towed car and stalled drivers in other areas were paying about $35 per car.

Fish & Chips Shop To Open Soon

A 217 year old legend was recently turned into a totally new concept in fast-service take-out restaurants with the opening of the first Chas. Goodlight & Sons, Ltd. Fish & Chips shops at 232 Main Street, Stoneham.

The exact grand opening date will be announced next week. The store will be open seven days a week from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Personnel are now bein hired.

Chas. Goodlight Fish & Chips shops is a division of Dunkin' Donuts. During the next two years, the company plans to add many more Chas. Goodlight Fish & Chips stores throughout the U.S.

The 217-year old legend that brought about this new concept concerns Chas. Goodlight, his sons and their first fish and chips shop in London. It's said that around 1752 Chas. Goodlight and his sons opened their new shop "devoted to the sale of superior quality authentic Fish & Chips in the tradition of my forbears."

The Union Jack lamp that served as their sign soon became a beacon to authentic Fish & Chips from one end of London to the other.

Braking distances on glare ice can be cut in half by using reinforced tire chains, according to tests by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards. But even with tire chains, it takes far longer to stop on ice than on dry pavement, according to Chief of Police Joseph Derro. He warns that much slower than normal speeds are essential.

PAUL R. DEL ROSSI
SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Dear Voter,

During the past several weeks many individuals have asked me why I am running for the Winchester School Committee and what my qualifications are for this office. In this letter to you, the voters of Winchester, I will answer these questions.

My reasons for running are two. First, as a native of Winchester and a product of our fine school system, I have an appreciation of the benefits that can accrue to our students. I am concerned about maintaining those excellent elements in our school system while at the same time improving other elements in our system to insure uniform, high-quality education for all of our students. The second reason is my concern as a taxpayer and a parent with children who will be entering the Winchester school system. I want the best possible educational services for my children and yours at the most reasonable cost.

There are three distinct reasons why I consider myself to be a qualified candidate for the School Committee: First, I am a graduate of the elementary, junior high, and secondary school levels of this system. Consequently I have first-hand experience of the full range of services available in our school system. Second, I have within the past week completed field research of the Winchester School System. This research included personal visits to all eleven schools, interviews with all principals and many key teachers, observation of many classes in session, interviews with the Superintendent and all members of his professional staff, members of the School Committee, and members of the Board of Selectmen. This has proven invaluable in providing me with a better working knowledge of the successes and problems of our present system. Third, I am currently employed as a consultant specializing in education by Arthur D. Little, Inc. In this capacity I have had the opportunity to work through many of the problems facing public school systems in the following areas: establishing policy guidelines, evaluating curriculum, planning school-facility construction and reviewing management and business practices. To cite a few examples:

—development of policy recommendations for the California State Board of Education in that state's public vocational education system

—a curriculum and program evaluation for a midwestern school system

—the development of educational specifications, program content, and organizational structure for a new regional vocational school

—the development of a five-year construction program for a school system investing $150 million for 45 new schools

—an evaluation of the management and business practices of a nearby school system comparable in size to our system.

May I urge you to consider my reasons for School Committee candidacy and my personal and professional qualifications when you go to the polls on Monday, March 3, 1969.

Respectfully,
Paul R. DelRossi
Candidate for School Committee

Do It Yourself And Renew It— Winchester Hardware Tells How

For two days—tomorrow and Saturday, February 14 and 15, the Winchester Hardware will have a demonstrator on hand to tell it as it is: easy to make old furniture look attractive and refreshed.

Ralph Anderson a representative of the manufacturers of Tone-N Tique, will demonstrate the easy process through which one can quickly give a new look to an old bureau, chair, or smaller items. He will be there Friday from 1 to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 10:00 a.m. until 5 p.m.

The Winchester Hardware is located at 69 Swanton Street, just two blocks west of Washington Street.

No matter how productive we, as a nation, become, how high we are able to lift ourselves in a material way, how clever the ideas advanced by our scientists, inventors and social thinkers, we can never afford to lose sight of the fact that individual liberty and responsibility are the bedrock on which our American system was built.

Eugene Rochow To Participate In Channel 2 Program

A Winchester High School sophomore has been chosen to appear weekly on "Crisis: Congo," a TV foreign policy simulation game for high schools due to begin Thursday, February 27 at 1 p.m.

EUGENE ROCHOW

Eugene G. Rochow of 37 Squire Road is a member of the panel of 15 students representing Red China on the five-part series to be seen by more than 40,000 students from Maine to Washington, D.C.

Based on a hypothetical 1975 Congo crisis involving three super powers, the series requires students in the classroom to pretend they are citizens of a nation involved in the crisis. Each nation has its representatives (all local high school students) in the studio who will receive telephoned advice from classroom "constituents" during the program, and written suggestions following it.

Majority vote by classroom viewers will determine all policy decisions of the great powers: Red China (TV spokesmen at Channel 2 representing all New England); the United States (headquarters in Syracuse, New York at WCNY-TV); and the Soviet Union (with a capital in Philadelphia at WNYY and a team of classroom students in Pennsylvania and Washington, D.C.).

"Crisis: Congo" has been written by three students who participated in "Cabinets in Crisis" last spring when they were seniors at Boston Latin School. The three, new college freshmen, are Richard Clarke, University of Pennsylvania; Bill McQueeney, Johns Hopkins University, and Stephen Smith, Boston University.

In each area the TV spokesmen will attend regional meetings at which the classroom students may ask them questions and meet face to face with the young people they will be advising by phone and letter.

Summer Theatre Play Reading Has Begun

Despite the wintry blasts, Winchester Summer Community Theatre hasn't gone into hibernation.

The play reading committee is now selecting plays to be presented July 18 and 19 and August 15 and 16.

The Winchester School department and recreation Department gave the summer theatre its start last year. Everyone is welcome to participate, regradless of age or theatre experience.

Members of the play reading committee have been active in Winchester's Parish Players and Unitarian Players, Arlington Friends of the Drama and other groups in addition to the summer theatre.

The committee, headed by Kenneth N. Astill, includes Mr. and Mrs. David Miller, Mre. Roger D. Foskett, Mrs. James O. McIntosh, Mrs. Kenneth Garland of Lexington and Richard Cox of Boston.

Anyone wishing information on the summer theatre may contact the chairman of the Steering Committee, Mrs. Robert Magnusen, 729-7197.

Many a writer takes a year off to do a novel when he could buy one for a couple of dollars.

Mr. Spiller Named Trustee At Fisher

Robert J. Spiller of 4 Leslie Road, vice-president of the Boston Five Cent Savings Bank, has been elected to the board of trustees of Fisher Junior College in Boston.

While not a stranger to membership and responsibility to corporate boards in the banking, real estate and educational segment of the Metropolitan Boston Community, Mr. Spiller joins the Fisher board at a time when his experience will be of great assistance in helping chart the exciting changes programed at the college.

DO YOUR TEEN-AGERS UNDERSTAND YOU?

Today many teen-agers feel that anyone over the age of 30 simply doesn't know. Rebellion sometimes seems to him to be the only way of life — the only answer.

Irresponsibility and rebellion aren't the only way of life for the teen-ager.

What is important to him as a way of life? Isn't it a deep desire to search for Truth — for meaning in his own life?

This is why young people like the Christian Science Sunday School. They get a chance to think for themselves, and to dig deep for ideas they can prove and use. They find out who they are and why they are here.

Above all, they discover the solid basis for freedom in obedience to God. This helps them understand you!

Your teen-agers are welcome at our Sunday School, any Sunday morning.

Enrollment Period For Insurance Under Medicare

An enrollment period is now open to those over 65 who do not have medical insurance under the Medicare program. March 31 is the deadline.

Those who enroll will have this protection beginning July 1.

John E. Lonergan Jr., manager of the Social Security district office in Cambridge, cautions those born before October, 1901, who have not yet signed up, that this is their last chance to enroll.

This insurance covers doctor bills for treatment in the doctor's office, in the hospital, or in the home. Other items covered are: hospital out-patient services; x-rays or other radiation treatment; surgical dressings, splints, casts and braces; and physical therapy furnished by an approved agency.

Medical insurance also helps pay the cost of the rental or purchase of necessary hospital equipment.

The first $50 of the year's medical bills are not covered by medical insurance. It does pay 80% of reasonable charges for all covered services over the first $50.

If the doctor orders nursing care or physical therapy at home, up to 100 home health visits in a year by an approved agency will be paid for by medical insurance without any charge.

"Most private health insurance plans do not duplicate Medicare coverage, so those who do not enroll will find themselves without valuable basic health insurance protection as medical bills pile up," Lonergan said.

The Social Security office has enrollment forms and will be glad to answer any questions.

For more information, get in touch with the Cambridge Social Security District Office at 625 Mount Auburn Street (telephone 491-0700). The Cambridge office is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Wednesday evenings until 8 p.m.

The Social Security representative will also be at the Woburn Library Tuesdays between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

INVITATION TO BID ON CUSTODIAL SUPPLIES AND TOOLS

Sealed proposals addressed to the School Committee, Town of Winchester, Massachusetts, for furnishing Custodial Supplies and Tools will be received at the Office of the Superintendent of Schools, 465 Main Street, Winchester, Mass. 01890, on or before Thursday, February 20, 1969, at 2:30 p.m., at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read.

Detailed information regarding specifications may be obtained at the Office of the Superintendent.

Area Rates Higher Than Most In Golden Wedding Anniversaries

Of the 279,950 or so married couples in Middlesex County, how many of them are likely to be together to celebrate their golden wedding anniversaries?

What are their chances of marking their silver anniversaries?

Interest in these matrimonial milestones has been aroused at this time because of the fact that one of America's most famous couples, Dwight and Mamie Eisenhower, have just celebrated their 50th year of married life.

That marital landmark will also be reached this year by no less than 160,000 couples throughout the United States.

According to figures worked up by insurance company statisticians here, based upon data taken from their own records and from government sources, the chances are now 1 in 3 that a young Middlesex County couple, just married, will be able to reach the 50-year mark.

That is the expectation, unless divorce or annulment intervene. In that event, all bets are off.

Locally, there is less likelihood of such split-ups than in many communities. People in the area tend to get married young and to remain married for a longer time than is the case generally.

The latest government findings show that some 63.8 percent of the local population over age 14 are now married. This includes 66.7 percent of the men and 60.8 percent of the women in that age bracket.

In 1916, when the Eisenhowers were married, the chances were only 1 in 6 that they would live out their 50 years together. Since then, with the great medical advances of the last half century, the odds have been brought down to 1 in 3.

That is what Pat and Luci Johnson Nugent now have going for them. And, with the further gains to be expected in the next 50 years, their chances will probably become considerably better than that.

As for celebrating a silver wedding anniversary, the likelihood is excellent for today's newly marrieds. Even when a man marries as late as age 34, if his bride is not appreciably older, their chances of living together for 25 years are better than 7 in 10. (Park Row News Service)

Suffolk Law To Award Doctor's Degree

Suffolk University Law School's board of trustees, departing from a 63-year tradition, has approved a change calling for the awarding of the degree of juris doctor instead of the familiar bachelor of laws degree.

The change will take effect with the mid-year commencement February 23 and follows the recommendation of the law school faculty and 90 per cent of Suffolk's law school students. It means that all future first degree law school graduates will have the designation J.D. (Juris Doctor) after their names instead of the traditional LL.B. (Bachelor of Laws).

Suffolk thus will become the first New England law school to award the new degree in a growing national trend. At present, 106 out of 136 law schools approved by the American Bar Association confer the degree, and more than half of these institutions have switched since 1964.

The American Bar Asiciation has led the move to the juris doctor degree, which is the academic equivalent of the bachelor of laws. However, the Association notes that in the early days of formal legal education, an undergraduate degree was not necessary for study, while today the profession demands at least three years of study beyond the baccalaureate level.

The Student Bar Association of Suffolk University Law School urged the change, declaring it would be in keeping with a uniform system of awarding professional degrees as in the case of students graduating from medical and dental school.

Future Town Planners At Work At Muraco

Third and fourth grade students from Winchester's Muraco School have been scouting the area, snapping photos, shaping "Match Box" cities, and studying the Planning Board and Town Meeting actions on land usage in the unit, "Planning for Better cities."

When completed, their collection of pictures and write-ups will be exchanged with a class in the city of Boston as they expand from a study of their own town to metropolitan Boston. Joint field trips with the city children are planned to urban renewal projects and the Model Cities Program with joint discussions to follow.

Part of the unit on cities embodies photography by the children using inexpensive cameras to produce their own "learning materials." This part of the project is funded under the auspices of Dr. John S. Gibson of 20 Cabot Street and the Lincoln-Filene Center for Citizenship and Public Affairs of Tufts University.

40c Cameras

Field trips have been taken in Winchester with 40c cameras issued to all children. Fact-finding sheets were given to every four to six-member team. The students were asked to record types of buildings in residential, industrial, commercial, private or public areas. In their explorations the shutterbugs snapped pictures which best illustrated the buildings found in each type of area.

On their return from the field trip the students, under the guidance of photographer Major Morris used easy and inexpensive ways to develop their film and produce pictures. The students used developing paper sensitive to sunlight by holding their negatives up to the windows. Dunking the paper in hypo and developer produced photographs for the amateurs. Mr. Morris assisted in the project. He has worked with the Educational Development Center in Newton in photography. (EDC is the New England Regional Laboratory involved in exploring new ideas and tools for use in education.)

The basic social studies project thus offers experiences with photography as well as language arts and science. A camera is used to help the children to look more carefully at what they see by focussing on only a small part of their world.

City Planning

Another facet of the unit involved use of the Children's Museum "Match Box," "The City." This "Match Box" is a collection of books, tapes, and articles for use in teaching about the city. Each day a city was planned and wooden buildings resembling factories, homes, churches, etc. were arranged by different groups of students to demonstrate their understanding of good land usage.

In direct application of planning methods to Winchester the students learned about the elected five-man planning Board which studies the town and makes suggestions for placement of buildings, etc. Study included listening to a tape recording that was made at a recent Special Town Meeting involving debate over apartment zoning and on an article requesting sidewalks for a particular area.

Students have the opportunity to learn arguments for and against zoning changes and to debate these issues themselves. The unit will progress from studying these aspects of their own community to the study of the city.

According to Miss Clara Halverson, social studies writer at Muraco School and author of the unit on "Planning for Better Cities," "In order to prepare young people to be effective voters and leaders of tomorrow, we must teach them not only to understand their environment, but also to shape it.—It is not enough that students learn about the structure and function of the city now; they need also to deal with problems and with issues which have conflicting points of view. Such a unit must be designed so that students have numerous opportunities to restructure present reality."

"It is not enough to clear away the mythology and deal with issues which are sometimes left hidden (i.e. some functions of cities do not satisfactorily provide for all people as in the case of housing and employment for members od some minority groups). If we are not to leave students with only a sense of guilt and frustration, we must, in teaching (this) unit, equip the student with the tools to plan for change."

The invitations read "Bar Hounds will gather in the Constitution Room at 7 o'clock and Eager Eaters will assemble in the ballroom at 8:30." Guests are asked to "put on the dog" and rhinestone collars will be worn.

The Buddy Dog Society has a shelter in Sudbury for homeless and impounded dogs. It was founded by Albert Halper of Newton and named in memory of his dog, Buddy. Fifteen hundred dogs are annually adopted from the small non-profit shelter in Sudbury, which can accommodate only 20 dogs at a time. Mrs. Fred Cardin of Winchester is director.

Registry Explains New Licenses

Registry of Motor Vehicles officials have explained how the new statute on photo licenses will operate.

For renewals a form will be sent to each licensee by mail from the Registry of Motor Vehicles prior to the expiration date of the present license. The fee will be noted on the renewal application form.

The form must be filled out with all questions answered and signed in ink by the applicant. It must then be taken in person by the licensee to a Registry office.

An examiner will inspect the application and if it is in order, he will conduct an eye test.

If the applicant passes the eye test, the examiner will process the form.

The applicant's photo will then be taken and will appear on the license which will be presented to him on the spot.

The whole renewal process will require five minutes at the Registry counter.

Licensees are advised not to make any alterations in the printed information on the face of the application received in the mail.

Any needed changes should be reported to the Registry in person. However, changes of address should be noted on the reverse side and on the stub of the application.

Applicants who are not now restricted to wearing eyeglasses but who know they need them should wear them for the examination.

Nickerson Homes, Inc., wholly-owned subsidiary of Nickerson Lumber Company of Orleans, has engaged the services of Harry E. Damon, formerly of Winchester, as general manager, according to an announcement made recently by Joshua A. Nickerson Jr., executive vice-president of the Company.

HARRY E. DAMON

"This action was prompted by the unprecedented growth of our custom home building organization," said Mr. Nickerson.

Mr. Damon has had wide experience as general manager of manufacturing and sales in large plants in the East and Mid-West. He holds numerous patents in machinery and material-handling equipment.

Mr. Damon was formerly general manager and director of Beggs and Cobb. While living in Winchester he served on the executive committee and was a director of the Winchester Co-Operative Bank.

Children's Treats 142 From Town

There were 142 children from Winchester among the 60,000 infants and other youngsters who received medical care at the Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston during the 12 months ended last September 30, according to the hospital.

Dr. Leonard W. Cronkhite Jr., general direcotr at Children's, said that an annual tabulation has revealed that a record number of patients were treated during the year.

"Our emergency clinic grew into the second largest in Boston," Dr. Cronkhite noted, "and computerized clinic scheduling helped us to see more outpatients while at the same time improving the level of care."

Of the 60,000 youngsters cared for at Children's in fiscal 1969, more than 12,000 were hospitalized. The remainder were treated in one or more of the Medical Center's 54 outpatient clinics or in its emergency clinic.

The greatest number of patients was in the two to twelve-year age span, with the second greatest number in the newborn to two-year-old category. The Medical Center treats patients up to 21 years of age.

Registry Begins Evening Hours

Motor vehicles Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin has announced all Registry branch offices and the main office in Boston will be open on Monday nights until 8 p.m. beginning on Monday, March 3.

McLaughlin said that this extension of regular working hours is being provided to accommodate the motoring public in the changeover to the new four-year photo license statute which requires applicants to appear in person for an eye test and a photograph.

Registrar McLaughiln said the volume of business transacted on Monday evenings during the first few weeks would indicate the need for any additional evening business hours.

In addition to the eye test and the photo, the new statute provides for a four year license which will expire on the applicant's birthday not more than 48 months but not less than 12 months from the date of issue with a fee ranging from $10—$7.50—$5—or $2.50. (The fees remain unchanged from the $2.50 annual rate.)

The license renewal form will specify the fee to be paid depending on the period of validity covered.

The Registrar said that written renewal tests have been postponed indefinitely because of inadequate financial resources to provide additional help.

Peter Lennon Is Studying In Austria

Peter Lennon, son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Lennon of 124 Arlington Street, was one of 26 Nasson College students who left LaGuardia Airport in New York January 29 for five months of study in Vienna, Austria.

The program constitutes the equivalent of one semester's work completed in residence at the College.

Students normally participate in the program during their sophomore year so there will be no interference with the specialized programs offered within their major fields during their junior and senior years.

The students participating in this program will earn 16 credit hours for academic work, eight in the humanities, and eight in foreign language—in this case German.

As a part of the humanities program, the students will be exposed to theatrical productions, the opera, ballet, concerts, and the many famous museums found in this Austrian Mecca.

Peter, a sophomore history major at Nasson, is a 1966 graduate of Winchester High School.

Evidence Of Baby Coughing–Parent Smoking Tie-In Reported

"An interesting story from the January 5-Day Plan to Stop Smoking at New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham, was the report of a young married couple with a five-month-old baby," states Walter E. Kloss, director of the plan.

Both mother and father had been two-pack-a-day smokers, and during the wife's pregnancy, she smoked even more than two packs per day.

Since birth five months ago, their baby has suffered from colds, sniffles, and even pneumonia, but at the close of the five evening sessions, they told Mr. Kloss that their baby had stopped coughing, the sniffles ended, and it is now experiencing better health.

The sessions started with a registration of 156 on January 19, and on the 23rd, 104 finished the program with only 14, or 86.6%, not completely kicking the habit.

"This is above the average success rate of 80%," said Mr. Kloss.

The 14 unsuccessful participants all indicated that they had significantly reduced their smoking habits.

Assisting the director of the 5-Day Plan were Drs. Robert Roy, Roger Nelson, Ernest Horsley, and Edgar Latimer. The Middlesex County Tuberculosis Society again performed vital capacity and pulmonary function screening.

Follow-up meetings for members of the January 5-Day Plan are continuing each Thursday evening at the hospital.

PHILIP B. McCUTCHEON III, son of Philip B. McCutcheon Jr. of 229 Pond Street, has enlisted in the Naval Aviation Officer Candidate program at the Naval Air Station, South Weymouth. He is scheduled to report March 11, at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida, for his flight training. Philip graduated from the University of Massachusetts and is presently employed by the Carolina Freight Carriers Corp.

Fabric World Opens New Office

Fabric World, Inc., New England's most complete sewing center "for the modern woman who sews," announces the opening of its new executive and accounting offices located at 480 Moody Street, Waltham.

Waltham is also the location of its newest and largest fashion fabric store.

When Melvin D. Slovin and Jerrold L. Winer entered into partnership with Norman Karp, owner of Lowell Textile Fabric Shop, Lowell, they incorporated under the name "Fabric World."

Since then the corporation has grown from the original retail outlet to a chain of eight stores.

Mr. Slovin, after graduation from Northeastern University with a B.S. in economics, entered Filene's executive training program and rose to the position of buyer. He then joined Arlan's Department Stores as a store manager. He was later promoted to district manager of the Mid-West.

Mr. Winer, a Brandeis University graduate with a B.A. in Economics, began working for Jordan Marsh where, after completing their executive training program, he joined the buying staff. He also joined the Arlan's orgainzation where he served as store manager, district coordinator in the Mid-West and district manager of New England and New York.

After Mr. Slovin and Mr. Winer joined their talents in the textile business experience of their partner, stores were opened in Reading, Arlington, East Dedham, Lawrence, Beverly, Taunton and Waltham.

On January 2, 1969, Mr. Slovin and Mr. Winer acquired all captial stock of Fabric World, Inc., and the organizational structure of the company changed. Mr. Winer became president and Mr. Solvin, secretary and treasurer of the Corporation.

William R. LaBell, a graduate of the University of Florida, has been named vice-president in charge of all Fabric World custom drapery and slip-cover operations, including Shop-At-Home Service.

Malcolm B. Elias, Harvard '58, formerly district coordinator of the domestics-piece goods and other divisions for Arlan's Department Stores in the northeastern U.S. has been appointed vice-president in charge of retail store operations.

Carlton A. Healey, who received his B.S. degree in accounting from Bentley College, has been appointed manager of Fabric World General Offices.

Allan L. MacKinnon, who has many years of experience in retailing with Goddard Bros. of Lynn, the W. T. Grant Company and Arlan's Department Stores, has been named supervisor of stores.

Take a look at your tax bills and you'll quit calling them "cheap politicians."

School Volunteers Seek New Members

Mrs. Charles R. Murphy of 84 Bacon Street is a School Volunteer for Boston two days a week at the Charles Edwards Junior High in Charlestown, where she is developing an enrichment program for a group of seventh grade girls and another for a group of eighth grade boys, and is also tutoring a seventh grade history group.

Mrs. Murphy began volunteer work in this school two years ago when a library program was initiated by a group of school volunteers.

Through her work in the school library, Mrs. Murphy grew to know the teachers, students, and the needs of the school, and as she looked for something further that she could do in the school, several of the teachers suggested a trial enrichment program for certain of the students.

Poetry, fine arts, and many other non-curricular areas have been introduced.

School Volunteers for Boston serve more than 80 Boston schools. Volunteers come from Boston and the neighboring communities and serve as teachers' assistants and as tutors in reading, math, and English. They help open school libraries and present special programs in the arts and sciences according to their special talents.

Other Winchester residents who serve as School Volunteers for Boston include Mrs. Lawrence Colman, Mrs. Maurice Minkowitz and Mrs. Ann P. Stevens.

Those who wish to know more about the prorgam should call 267-2626. No previous experience is necessary; training is provided by the program. Volunteers are now being recruited to fill immediate openings.

Those interested are welcome to attend the mid-winter meeting of all School Volunteers to be held February 26 at Faneuil Hall in Boston.

Mrs. Arthur Goldberg, wife of the former Supreme Court Justice and executive vice-chairman of the National school volunteer program, will be the featured speaker.

Muraco Parents Sponsor Show

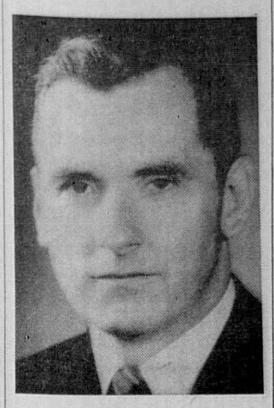

A one woman fashion show on "How To Shop Inexpensively And Look Like A Queen" will be presented at the Muraco School Auditorium on Thursday evening February 13, from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m.

The show features Mrs. Ray Earl who will display her bargains and creations.

A short general business meeting of the Muraco Parents Association will precede the show.

McNulty Made VP

The appointment of Paul A. McNulty as vice president for marketing, was announced this week by New England Nuclear Corporation in Boston.

PAUL A. McNULTY

Mr. McNulty's appointment was announced by Dr. Seymour Rothchild, president of the publicly owned company, a world-leading commercial supplier of radioactive chemicals for research and a manufacturer of radiopharmaceuticals.

Mr. McNulty has been employed by the Company since 1960, and was previously sales manager. He joined New England Nuclear from the Tracerlab Division of Laboratory for Electronics, where he was public relations manager.

The appointee is the son of Paul A. McNulty of 174 Mystic Valley Parkway, who is sub-master of Medford High School.

A native of Medford, he was graduated from Tufts University in 1951 with a bachelor of science degree in chemical engineering. He now lives in Newton with his wife and seven children.

Reading Course Is Offered

College catalogs, application blanks, reference forms, campus visits, interviews, SATs, Achievements have all been very much a part of each high school senior's life this past year, a step in being accepted to the college of one's choice.

It has been estimated that a college freshman has approximately one million words of required reading, and over three million words of supplementary reading during his first year of college. Reading at an average speed, it would take one month of reading, ten hours a day, without any breaks, to digest this amount of printed material.

Each high school senior should ask whether his present reading skills are adequate for the job ahead.

The Scholastic Achievement Center of Melrose and Newton Centre is offering a special course for high school seniors which will combine speed reading techniques with a review of the most progressive study techniques. This course will help seniors bridge the gap between high school and college.

Strong study techniques and reading skills will assure academic success, provide extra confidence, and take the grind and worry out of college life.

A popular misconception about Social Security is a person has to be totally disabled in the sense that he is bedridden or totally paralyzed to qualify for payments. This is definitely not so. The worker merely must have a physical or mental condition that prevents him from doing any substantial gainful work over a period of at least 12 months. There is no necessity that he be drastically incapacitated in order to receive payments.

Girls' Basketball Splits Two Games; Beaten By Lincoln, Top Melrose

Emotions of the girls' basketball team were mixed by the end of last week. After losing their game on Wednesday to Lincoln-Sudbury by a 17 point margin, the Sachems bounced-back with a tremendous 47-18 victory over Melrose on Friday.

Although the two teams were well-matched, the Sachems made a far better showing during the first half of the game on Wednesday than they did during the last two periods.

The Winchester girls got off to a slow start but had regained most of their usual shooting strength by the second quarter. In fact they outscored Lincoln-Sudbury by quite a bit during this quarter and at the half were only one point behind, with a score of 20-19.

Totaling five baskets for the quarter, Cathy Niles led the scoring while the tight Winchester defense allowed the Lincoln-Sudbury girls only three baskets.

Although Lincoln-Sudbury was really hustling, they were just unable to penetrate the local defense and the Sachems intercepted many scoring attempts and rallied them down the court for additional Winchester points.

39-56 Final Score

The second half of the game was the Sachem's downfall as their effective defense was broken up by Lincoln-Sudbury's two key shooters, Carla Walsh and Sharon Devereux.

Scoring a total of 22 points, Carla exceeded Cathy Niles by only one point. Sharon carried the decisive third quarter with an amazing seven baskets as the Lincoln-Sudbury girls totaled 22 points and gained a substantial margin oved the Sachems. Impeded by their own slow passing, and their opponents' much-improved defense, the Winchester girls were unable to catch up again and scored only seven points in the final quarter, to end the game with a score of 56-39.

Ahead of The Game

On Friday, the Sachems played an extremely good game and managed to stay ahead of their Melrose opponents throughout all four periods.

Although the Winchester girls were not as skillful as usual with their passing, most of the action was concentrated around the Winchester basket, and the unorganized Melrose defense allowed the Sachems many shooting opportunities.

The high scorer of the game, Cathy Niles who totaled 19 points, was aided quite a bit by Kathy Harris who played her best game of the season. She received many passes from the Sachem defense and manoeuvered the ball into scoring position for Cathy and Marica Barrow. At the other end of the court, the Winchester girls' defense remained impenetrable as Lynn Stites, Jean Hoyt, Marcia and Cathy held tight to their zoning and prevented the Melrose girls from any close shooting attempts.

The Melrose girls did manage to outscore the Sachems in the final period, but the Sachems had established the lead early in the game and were determined to capture the victory.

Rotary Club Hears Executive Of Boy Scouts

Last Thursday during Boy Scout Week the Winchester Rotary Club heard Richard T. Wales, deputy regional executive say that Rotary Clubs across the country have sponsored more Boy Scout Councils than any other organization because they have inter-locking interest in youth.

Boy Power '76 was announced by Mr. Wales to Rotary being the project of Boy Scouts of America to enlist one-third of the boys of America into the Scouting program.

To do this they have modernized and up-dated the Scouting material to include all the new fields of science such as aerospace, oceanography, and atomic propulsion. Scouting is at work building a great new adventure to meet the challenge of the future.

Mr. Wales challenged Rotary with the statement that the future of America may well be determined by the commitment adults give to the programs which prepare boys for the challenges of the future.

Prior to his association with Boy Scouts of America, the speaker had a wide and varied experience in the business world. Joining the Scouting movement in 1938, he served very successfully in Northern Virginia, Rhode Island, Pittsburgh Pennsylvania, Vermont, and Gardner, Massachusetts. In 1957 he was appointed to the national staff serving the six northeastern states. He is co-author of the new Sea Explorer Manual along with Dan Johnson, the Minute Man Council of B.S.A. executive director.

Youth Hockey Sees Rangers In Tie For First

Under the inspirational tutorship of Coach Fred Cammon and paced by Richie Jacobs' hat trick, the Rangers moved into a first place tie with the Bruins as they humbled the B's last Sunday morning 3-2.

With two weeks left to go on the schedule before the playoffs begin, only four points separate the two first place teams from the fourth place Maple Leafs.

The Bruins never had the lead in the game and the closest they came was on Phil O'Connell's goal that gave them a 1-1 tie in the first period.

Jacobs first goal was unassisted while Jerry Granfield received an assist on his second and Jim Dillon had an assist on his third score. Joey Penta closed the gap to one goal late in the third period with Bill Gannon picking up an assist. The Bruins kept the pressure on the Rangers the last two minutes but couldn't put the plug in the nets. Goalies Cliff Falla and Dennis O'Donnell were outstanding.

Steve Troiano and Mike Sandford had a hand in all the Maple Leafs goals as they handed the Red Wings another set back 3-1.

Charlie Evans got the Wings off to a quick 1-0 lead in the first period with Rich Maggio picking up an assist. Late in the period Mike Sandford's blazer from the point found its way through a maze of players to tie it up with Troiano picking up his first assist.

The Leafs leading scorer Paul Whitney then scored what proved to be the winner combining with Troiano and Sandford. With three minutes to play Sandford and Troiano broke with a long Wings defenseman and Sandford fed Troiano with a perfect pass which went for the final Maple Leafs score.

Goalies Mike O'Leary and Ricky Coakley turned in their usual fine job in the nets in this game. Coakley is also the goalie for the Bantam "A" team which has only lost twice this year while O'Leary along with Cliff Falla are the backbone on the undefeated Pee Wee "A" team.

Dave Dolan's unassisted goal at the 17 minute mark of the first period gave the Black Hawks a hard fought 1-0 victory over the hapless Canadiens. The win put the Black Hawks in sole possession of second place, one point out of first in this ever tightening race for first place. The game was highlighted by the outstanding net-minding of Jimmy Grenier and Rich Maggio.

In the Pee Wee Division the Flyers kept soaring along as they picked up three of a possible four points. The Flyers came from behind on Willie Paglia's two last period goals to edge the Seals 2-1. Paglia had been constantly thwarted in the game by goalie Pete Frongillo who made a sensational save on Paglia who broke in all alone. Down the other end of the rink, Danny "Gump" Whitney was also superb as both boys gave up only seven goals in the five games played.

The Flyers and the Kings and the North Stars and the Blues all battled to scoreless ties, all well played games. The North Stars shut out the Kings 2-0 for the only win of the day while the Seals and the Blues tied 1-1.

Chosen "Player of the Week" for his outstanding play was Richie Jacobs of the Rangers whose three goals gave them a 3-2 victory over the Bruins and a share of first place. The Rangers lost their first two games of the season and since then have won five and tied one having moved from last place to first in this exciting race. There are only two weeks of regular season play left and two weeks of playoffs and with four teams in contention for first, this could prove to be the most exciting climax since Ben Dolan's goal in sudden death overtime in the last game of the season two years ago won it for the Black Hawks.

Melrose Outlucks Sachems 55-54 In Heartbreaking Loss Here Friday

There is a trite saying that goes; "That's the way the ball bounces," and in these few words rests the woeful tale of the Friday night basketball game between Winchester and Melrose.

It was nip and tuck every inch of the way with both teams playing an excellent game. First one and then the other quintet took a momentary lead of a point or two and then the other rallied.

But the coup de grace came in the dying seconds when a shot by the visitors rebounded high off the rim hit the top of the backboard and then the upright and fell into the hands of a scarlet-clad invader who popped in the basket that decided the contest for Melrose by 55-54.

Neither official was in proper position to see what happened and neither paid any attention to the protests of the Sachem players. However, every fan in the gymnasium was well aware of what had happened and were thunderstruck or gleeful according to their allegiance.

'We'll Take It'

A Melrose teacher sitting beside the writer said; "It's a bad call, but we'll take it." This point is brought out not to discredit the Melrose team but rather to bring out the tragic loss by the locals who had fought them tooth and nail.

The visitors had received a bad break earlier when they lost Capt. Bob Doucette, their captain and high scorer, with nearly ten minutes of action left. Coach Killilea used his son in the vacant spot during the waning moments and he tallied a nice set shot and four vital fouls to keep peace and happiness in the Killilea household.

Playing without Peter Knight who was sidelined by an ankle injury the Vandy French quintet fought back from an early deficit to cut the visiting margin to 13-9 as the first period came to a close. They kept coming strong in the second frame and by half time they were in front by 26-22.

Play continued fast throughout the third period with the lead changing hands several times. Both teams were playing smart defense and taking only good shots. It was by no means tight possession basketball but neither was it a wide open running style of game.

Melrose was defensing Winchester with a three man press but to no avail. Excellent ball handling by Tim Fahey enabled the home team to get the play up to the Melrose end of the court almost every time and there was only one outright steal which gave the visitors any points.

Capt. Tom Workman with 23 and Jack Papadinis with 15 were the top point getters for Winchester while Melrose had its scoring well distributed.

Doucette, their top point scorer for the year, netted only six, all from the foul line. But this was the place that the game finally was won in spite of the fatal final bounce.

The Sachems outshot the Melrose gunners from the floor by 20-19 but the foul line edge and victory went to the Big Red as 17 foul shots swished through to 14 for the home team.

The only game this week comes tomorrow night at Concord-Carlisle where Coach Hayes is expected to play a tight game waiting for the perfect shots. His team used this with success against Lexington and made it a close game. Against Melrose they choked off the offense and won handily 42-21.

It should prove interesting to see how well they fare in stifling the Sachem offense which is averaging well over 60 points per contest. A large crowd is expected to make the trip for the final league game of the season. The hoopsters then rest until February 26 when Woburn will be entertained at the local court.

Scout Service Rescheduled

Scout Sunday services planned for last Sunday and cancelled because of the snowstorm will be held this Sunday at the Stoneham Town Hall auditorium at 3 p.m.

The Sunday program is planned for all Boy Scouts in the Musket District.

Hockey Team's 6-Game Schedule Rugged Stretch

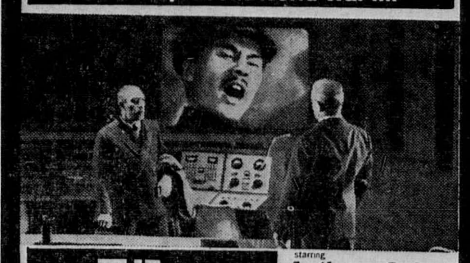

After having ten days without a game Coach Ted Kelley's puck chasers face a rugged program involving six games during a two week period. The boys have had several intensive practice sessions and it is hoped that the offensive punch which has been lacking all season will suddenly break loose. The sextet has been playing a fast and interesting style of hockey with an airtight defense but wins have evaded them in several one goal defeats.

The action started last night with a Middlesex League game against Stoneham who barely edged them during the first round. Today they will face off against Noble and Greenough at the prep schools, home rink in Dedham. Lexington will be met in a 3:30 game as league competition resumes on Saturday. Concord will provide the opposition next Wednesday with the puck being dropped at 5:15.

A trip to West Point to play the Army Plebes will come next week with a game carded to be played Friday and then the Sachem shooters will rush home to keep a league date with Watertown a week from Saturday at 3 o'clock. The curtain will drop on the season when Reading is met in the season's finale at Lynn. Game time will be at six o'clock.

Track Victory By Sachems Moves Them Above Concord; Season Closes Saturday

Coach Tom Hughes had his speedsters ready and waiting for the runners from Concord-Carlisle and they bested them 47-39 to take over sixth place and drop the losers to seventh. Co-Capt. Rick Mobbs was the leading scorer with 10 points as he copped top honors in his hurdles specialty and also garnered a win in the high jump.

Co-Capt. Neal Benshimol was clocked in a well run 1,000 yard run in 2:28 and Les Fabuss led the shotputters to chalk up important points. However, sophomores Mike Deshler, who won the dash and towering Chip Emery with a second in the shot put, junior Ron Allard runnerup in the 600 and Bob Doty in the same spot in the 300 and seniors Ken Tully who finished second in the two mile and Jerry Hicks similarly placed in the mile helped to build the Sachem total.

Third place finishers included. John Leland, mile; Mark Harms, hih jump; Marty Hill, hurdles; Paul Stevens, dash; Ralph Bennick, 1000 yard run; and Nick Longo in the mile each added a point to round out the best team performance of the year.

The final meet of the season will be Saturday at the Lexington Field House starting at 8:45 with Wakefield furnishing the oppositiion. In other action undefeated Lexington meets undefeated Melrose winners of the B.A.A. and State Class B meets. This could prove to be a real tight matching although the latter would appear to hold a definite edge with great strength in the sprints and high jump to offset the Lexington advantage in the distance runs.

The summary:

Football Dinner Honors Sachem Champs With Awards

Players To Coach: A Special Presentation

HEAD COACH MANNY MARSHALL, left, is awarded a Middlesex League championship trophy, planned for and financed by the players themselves, and including the names of all varsity players. "To a Great Coach who battled with us . . ." reads the inscription on the award, made here by co-captains Joe Bonasera and Brian Bowen.

John F. Parrell

The glow of the championship 1968 football season settled on the WHS cafeteria Saturday night as over 200 players, school reperesentatives and parents held an awards celebration.

Winchester's 1968 champions of the Middlesex League had finished their season with a record of eight straight wins before being edged by Woburn.

Sixty members of the team were presented with jackets and there were trophies and game balls awarded to outstanding players.

The athletes in their turn remembered Coach Manny Marshall and his assistants with gifts.

A high spot was the presentation of the league championship trophy to Principal W. Howard Niblock by Co-Capt. Joe Bonasera.

The dinner and many of the awards were planned and presented to honor the men by civic-minded organizations and individuals

Knowlton M. C.

Athletic Director Henry T. Knowlton was master of ceremonies. He welcomed the team members and their parents commending them and the coaches on an excellent season.

The cheer leaders and the tumblettes served the dinner and after the meal and the speaking program the young people adjourned to the gymnasium for dancing through the rest of the evening.

Rev. Bernard Hoy, C.Y.O. head at St. Mary's church opened the program with grace.

Creighton Horn of the Elks was a prime mover of the affair and represented the organizations and individuals who contributed money to help finance the affair. He complimented the players and commended their parents for the fine type of boys who played on the team.

School Superintendent Dr. Donald A. Klemer and Principal Dr. W. Howard Niblock added their personal congratulations as did Bradford Bentley director of Camp Wyanoke where the team spent a week in pre-season practice.

Coach Manny Marshall told several humorous incidents connected with situations which were met during the season and thanked the players, parents, and contributors for their support.

He also singled out each of his assistants and expressed his appreciation of their cooperation in their special assignments.

Game Honors

The balls used in the victories were presented by the coach to the following who were judged to have been outstanding in the respective games: Concord: Les Fabuss; Stoneham: Doug Dalton; Cambridge Latin: Don D'Andria; Lexington: Co-Capt. Joe Bonasera; Melrose: Joe Fiumara; Reading: Ernie Guarino; Belmont: Tom Flaherty; Wakefield: Pete Knight; and Season Ball: Coach Manny Marshall presented by Co-Capt. Bonasera.

Hindes Award To Wolfe

The "Doc" Hindes trophy symbolic of the outstanding team player and unsung hero award given traditionally to a lineman was presented to Tom Wolfe by Charles Koch.

Special trophies for contributions above and beyond those usually required went to: Jim Mallon, Co-Captain Brian Bowen and Coach Marshall. These were presented by Athletic Director Henry Knowlton who pointed out that both of the players had contributed a great deal to the team success even though early injuries had kept them out of action during the season.

He also added words of praise for Dr. William Barone, team physician since 1946.

Coaches Honored

Co-Captain Brian Bowen made the presentation of the team gifts to Coach Marshall and his assistants Earl Johnson, Edward Kelley, Michael Houghton and William Colella. The major trophy consisted of a large brass football appropriately mounted and with a plaque telling of the team's respect and thanks to "a great coach." The others were in the form of desk sets with a football mounted in the center and also plaques expressing appreciation.

Then with much banter about whether linemen or backs had to be tougher the 1968 co-captains introduced their 1969 counterparts. The new leaders will be Dave Scott and Mike Gilberti and they were wished luck by the championship leaders who told them that they have the material to repeat the Middlesex title of this year and to outdo them by also winning when Woburn comes to Manchester Field next Thanksgiving Day.

Many Contributed

The fund for the presentation of the handsome championship jackets had been made of contributions from following organizations and individuals: the Elks, Sons of Italy, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Rotary Club, Kiwanis, the Sano Cleaners, Winchester Appliance, E. J. Luongo Ernest Dade, John Mercurio and Lawrence Moore.

A background of taped college songs set the mood for the evening. The Elk's famous maitre d'hotel, Micky Curtin, presided in the kitchen, assisted by Mike Penta, Mittsy Mawn and Larry Barstow.

The following were presented with jackets:

Homemaker Of Tomorrow Awards Announced By General Mills

Winners in local high schools in the 1969 Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow, an annual nation-wide competition with $110,000 in scholarship awards, were announced recently. They are Jane E. Williams, a student at Maryeliff Academy, and Jane Gayle Roberts, a student at Winchester High School.

Each will receive a special Betty Crocker silver charm, and their papers will be entered with those of other school winners in the state competition for the title, State Homemaker of Tomorrow.

The winner of this honor will be granted a $1,500 scholarship from General Mills, Inc., sponsor of the annual program. Her school will be awarded a complete set of Encyclopaedia Britannica by Encyclopaedia Britannica, Inc. The state runners-up will be granted $500 scholarships.

In April, the first-place winners from the 50 states and the District of Columbia, each accompanied by a school advisor, will be guests on an expense-paid tour of Washington, D.C., and colonial Williamsburg, Virginia.

The trip will culminate with the naming of the Betty Crocker All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow. Her scholarship will be raised to $5,000, with three runners-up being granted $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 scholarships, respectively.

National winners are chosen on the basis of their original test scores, plus personal observation and interviews while on tour. All judging is by personnel from Science Research Associates, Chicago, nationally known educational testing firm, which also constructs and grades the written test papers.

The Betty Crocker Search for the Homemaker of Tomorrow was started in 1954-55 to emphasize the importance of homemaking as a career. It marked its 15th anniversary this year with a record enrollment of 630,564 senior girls in 15,116 of the nation's schools.

Job Security To Be Taken

A sample of residents in this area will be asked about their work experience during 1968, as part of a nationwide survey the week of February 17, Director James W. Turbitt of the bureau of the Census Regional Office in Boston announced.

Questions will be asked about the number of weeks worked last year, the number of weeks lost because of unemployment or other reasons, and the longest job held during the year.

The survey is taken annually at this time to provide data for use by the U.S. Department of Labor. The questions supplement the Bureau's regular monthly inquiries for the Labor Department on current employment and unemployment.

The identity of households in the survey is confidential, and the information obtained will be used for statistical purposes only.

Showing people the comparative excellence of Winchester Town Government couldn't be more graphically done than by taking an automobile over the streets of Winchester and surrounding cities and towns this week.

Local Case Aides Boost Area Volunteer Service

Interviews are now being arranged at the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association office for Case Aide Volunteers. And Winchester volunteers can attest that for a personally satisfying community service this program to assist individual mental patients is hard to beat.

The Winchester Mental health Association is an affiliate of the Mystic Valley. And the Case Aide program at the Metropolitan State Hospital in Waltham is co-sponsored by the Mystic Valley MHA and the Mental Health Association of Central Middlesex. It is now in its fourth year.

The program has been successful in the resocializing of both men and women patients. Some have gone into foster homes, apartments, nursing homes, to work, or to their own homes. The Case Aides also have benefited by the program in broadening their knowledge of mental illness and the hospital. Some have gone on to further their education.

A large number have continued in the program since the beginning and are working with their third or fourth patient. Another outgrowth of the program is a social club for patients in and out of the hospital called "The Happies," meeting three hours weekly in the Church of Our Redeemer in Lexington with varied programs in grooming, cooking, sewing, game playing and field trips.

The Case Aide Program requires of the volunteer (men or women) one morning a week for a year, to work on a one to one basis with a patient supervised by a psychiatric worker. The qualifications for a Case Aide include warmth, understanding and the ability to care.

A recent patient letter to a Case Aide tells a story by itself:

Dear Mrs. Smith:

"I called your home twice yesterday and got no answer so I called today with the same result. I assumed you were sick probably in bed and did not hear the phone. So if you are able to make it up here Friday to see her she is going to call me over and we will settle things definitely about my new job.

"But Mrs. Smith don't push yourself. If you don't feel able don't try you have your own health and family to consider. I hope you will be fully recovered by then but if you aren't I will understand. You have already done lot more than I expected, but I have waited 35 years and a few more days won't matter. Give my regards to Jasper and the kids.

Sincerely,
Max L. Williams"

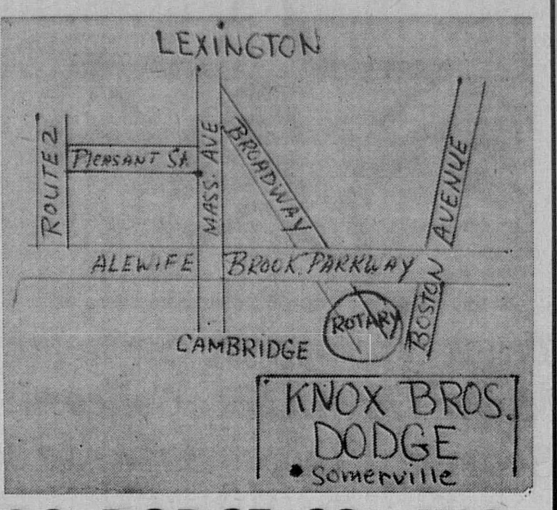

The Case Aide's response to this was "How can I do less than the very best that's in me for a great guy like Max?"

For anyone looking for an opportunity to do for others' this program may be the one for you. Call now. Answer. The MVMHA suggests calling now for an interview.

NET Studies Drug Prices

The public is getting more and more bewildered and even downright provoked over the cost of medicine—when the same drug has a price tag of 99 cents in one pharmacy and $9.95 at another, for instance.

National Educational Television's reporters for "Your Dollar's Worth" have just completed some very careful research and will broadcast their findings on Channel 2 Wednesday, February 26 at 9 p.m. (repeat Saturday, March 1 at 6 p.m.).

Several of the research team's conclusions will only confirm what the ordinary citizen has long suspected—that the markup on most drugs is about twenty percent above the wholesale cost, or about twice the national average for all retailing. In the case of some drug products the increase could go as high as 100 percent if the brand name instead of the generic name is used.

Drug company representatives claim the price markup is necessary to finance research, while Dr. Philip Lee, assistant secretary for Health and Scientific Affairs under President Johnson contends the companies don't do enough research to justify the high profit margin.

Air Force Wants Officers

College graduates or seniors nearing graduation may now apply for Air Force officer's training school for either flying or non-flying specialties, according to TSgt. Joseph P. Nolin Air Force recruiter in Medford.

Some of the non-flying specialties include engineering, weather, intelligence, personnel, administration, missile operations, statistics, transportation, supply management, communications-electronics, aircraft maintenance and weapons directors.

Many of the non-flying specialties are open to women.

Selectees will attend officer's training school at Lackland Air Force Base near San Antonio, Texas. Graduates of the 12-week school are commissioned second lieutenants in the Air Force.

New classes begin every six weeks.

Applicants selected for OTS will be informed of their career areas before enlistment. Many OTS graduates receive further Air Force professional training immediately after commissioning.

Further details are available at the Air Force recruiting office located at 19 High Street, Medford. Or call Sgt. Nolin at 396-5109.

Police Sign; Firemen Hold

A preliminary report this week to Town Meeting members records Personnel Board negotiating for 1969 Town salaries as complete except for that with the International Firefighters Local 1564.

Police here have accepted a 7% raise which would bring base officers' pay to $8,350. They received a 12.3% raise last year—the first budget in which their pay was boosted over that of Firefighters.

Firefighters here went up to 8.2% in 1968. There is no report from either side, as negotiation continues. The delay is, however, interpreted by many to mean that Local 1564 is asking again to be on an equal base scale with the police.

Lack of agreement at this date means, according to Personnel Board Chairman Robert Ericson, that the annual Town Meeting session will not provide funding for the 1969 Fire Department salaries and that a special session will have to be called. This is because all bargaining committees agreed prior to this year's negotiations that agreement must be final 30 days prior to Town Meeting or be excluded from the Board's 1969 annual session report.

The Town Employees Association—affecting some 100 local workers— has signed for raises ranging from 7 to 9%. School custodians break down at 6 and 7% and food service workers at a 2% upgrading.

The School Secretaries Association which bargained to the wire last year and received 12.4%, again will receive a wage raise: 6%.

The Personnel report was sent in the name of Mr. Ericson and members Nelson Bell, Alexander Fay, Samuel Reid and Ralph Wilhelm. They will report to Town Meeting members once more before the March 13 opening session.

Schools Offer Budget Preview Next Week

Town Meeting representatives and residents will study the School budget with administration and School Committee members on Thursday, February 27, at a "Budget Preview" at McCall Junior High School at 7:45 p.m.

Charts and slides will be used to illustrate the different areas of the budget to be voted on at Town Meeting in March. Topics include maintenance, salaries, comparisons with similar communities, enrollment projections and equipment.

A question period will follow presentation of the budget. All interested representatives, candidates for Town offices and citizens are urged to attend.

Marycliff Study, Option Asked In '69 Warrant

The Selectmen Monday night closed the warrant for the Special Town Meeting to be held on the opening night of the annual session, March 13.

The special warrant is for action on Marycliff sponsored by the Board and the School Committee. The article asks appointment of a committee of five voters to work with the Permanent Building Committee looking into the feasibility of acquiring the Academy buildings and about nine-and-one-half acres of land.

Former Resident Heads To Moon

On the roster for the February 28 Apollo 9 mission is Astronaut Russell L. Schweickart, who lived here at 303 Cross Street in the early 60's.

STYLISH AND UNORTHODOX. All kinds of top tennis form will be on show today through Sunday at the Winchester Indoor Tennis Center as the National Women's Indoor Tennis Championships bring the best of United States and European racqueteers to town for the third time. Missourian Mary Ann Eisel, left, is first seed and has just won the New England indoor title over South Africa's Esme Emanuel, who is also in town. Peaches Bartkowicz, Michigan's hard-hitting star, right, is seeded third. Kristy Pigeon from California is second seed on the East Street courts. (See story page 6C.)

Maine Crash Injures 4

Four Winchester girls were injured, three seriously, in a head-on automobile-truck collision near Eustis, Maine, late Monday afternoon.

The girls were among 14 Winchester High School senior girls who were spending part of their vacation skiing at Sugarloaf Mountain.

Still in Farmington Hospital, Farmington, Maine, with injuries received in the accident are Julie Sacca, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory F. Sacca of 9 Plymouth Road, operator of the car involved; Janice Ferguson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Ferguson of 112 Sylvester Avenue, a passenger in the front seat, and Emily Layzer, daughter of Mrs. R. F. Layzer of 2 New Meadows Road, a passenger in the back seat.

Treated at the hospital for a broken wrist and later released was Linda Boesch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip W. Boesch of 14 Mayflower Road, a passenger in the back seat. She now is receiving treatment in Winchester Hospital.

Storm Cost Passes $60,000 At Week's End

The Boston press quoted the week's snow-removal job here at $100,000. According to Highway Superintendent Robert O'Brien this was high. It is going to come to just over $60,000.

The reported figure of $221,000 for total 1968 snow budget was accurate, however. It put Winchester third after Boston ($1.2 million), and Quincy ($225,207).

On this figure the Superintendent reminds that Winchester's figure is a realistic total snow cost, whereas that of many municipalities is not. The reason is that on snow-work days Town employees salaries come from the snow budget and are subtracted from that of their respective departments.

Mr. O'Brien's last note: another big one headed this way this weekend.

ABM Opponents Plan Meeting Here March 6

A public meeting, to be held Thursday evening, March 6, in Hadley Hall, Church of the Epiphany, has been planned to inform local residents about the proposed ABM defense system by a newly formed Winchester Citizens Committee on ABM.

This action follows the February 10 vote of the Board of Selectmen to send letters to Senators Edward M. Kennedy and Edward W. Brooke approving their actions calling for suspension of construction pending Congressioal review of the ABM.

Supt Conlon Rescues Boy At Wedge Pond

Late on the afternoon of February 12 as dusk was falling, eight-year-old Stephen Downes was taken from Wedge Pond, rescued by William Conlon of Lake Street, superintendent of the Water and Sewer Department.

Mr. Conlon had just driven up to his headquarters when he heard three teenage boys yelling to a youngster to keep off the thin ice. Seconds later he saw Steve go through and end up to his neck in the pond at its northeast corner where Horn Pond flows in.

Town Meeting Votes $130,640

The special Town Meeting Thursday night voted affirmative down the line. In just one hour and 45 minutes it authorized total expenditures of $130,640: $101,140 for incinerator improvements, $5,000 for real estate appraisals and $24,500 for land acquisition on Highland Avenue. It also amended the Town By-Laws regulating political pamphleteerings.

The meeting was orderly but alive and informative. It was delayed due to a lack of a quorum but attended eventually by 150 members.

Only a handful of die-hard citizen observers attended. They included a small group of government studying girl scouts, the only balcony observers.

The Reverend Michael Jupin of the Epiphany Church invoked the meeting at 8:10 p.m.

Heavy applause greeted a remark by Moderator Harrison Chadwick that attendance had been possible largely due to the fine job done on the Town's streets.

Chairman of Selectmen Charles Doucette Jr. was the first to address the meeting.

"The incinerator needs major surgery," he said, concluding his brief review of a capsuled statement reporting the Selectmen's firm commitment to major expenditures on the incinerator, the subject of Article 1.

Candidates At McCall On Tuesday

Appearance of the two candidates for Selectman, five contenders for School Committee, and the three for Library Trustee will highlight the League of Women Voters-sponsored public Candidates' Night Tuesday, Feb. 25, at 7:45 p.m. in the McCall JHS auditorium. Moderator for the first time is Dr. John Gibson, director of the Lincoln Filene Center for Citizenship and Public Affairs at Tufts and professor of political science there and at the Fletcher School.

Familiar to many through his TV series on government participation, he lives here at 20 Cabot Street.

Frederick LaTorella and Sherman Saltmarsh, in contest for the one place on the five-man Town administrative board, will give short talks and be open to question.

Also expected before the voters are the five men after the two openings on the School Committee: John Carroll, Paul DelRossi, David Kline, Richard Lawrance and George Whitten; and the three for Library trustee, Andrew Nichols, Edward O'Connell and Robert Whitman.

Uncontested candidates and Town Meeting Member office seekers have been invited to be present for discussion at an informal coffee hour to follow.

SALTMARSH FOR SELECTMAN

Voters of Winchester:

Having been urged to run for Selectman, I do so humbly and willingly. I am hopeful of winning your approval and votes. My plea is that all citizens participate in the town election March 3rd.

The fact is that less than one-half of those eligible voted in the last town election. I do not think any of us want less than a majority, however well intentioned, to rule the town. I am convinced Winchester is a town good enough for all of us to help govern.

In asking you to decide on my continuing to serve the town, I am pleased to report that during the past fourteen years as a town meeting member (1956-1969) and, as a member and chairman of the Board of Selectman (1959-1962), I participated fully in all sessions and voted on every issue.

I am a lifelong resident who attended the public schools, graduated from Winchester High School, Kimball Union Academy and Boston College. I served in the U. S. Navy. I was privileged to play on my school and college hockey teams and earned selection as an alternate on the U. S. Olympic team.

I have served the town in numerous community and governmental capacities. I feel that such experience will benefit me in meeting the principal challenges facing Winchester.

Sherman W. Saltmarsh, Jr.

Our greatest effort, I believe, should be to insure that Winchester remains a good town to call our home. I believe constructive action, and the advice and support of an interested electorate, can be taken to improve the town's tax position. In this area, vital to individual and community prosperity, I believe we must be prepared to resist all present schemes originating elsewhere to tax Winchester to pay for various Metropolitan Boston undertakings.

Sincerely,
Sherman W. Saltmarsh, Jr.

GEORGE D. WHITTEN School Committee

GEORGE D. WHITTEN

My name is placed before you for election to the School Committee by people concerned with educating the children of our community.

Today we need to encourage the students to respect and obey authority as well as give them fine teachers, good school plants, and the best materials possible. Even though Winchester's school system is one of the finest, we need to give more consideration, attention and help to the middle student and the underachiever.

Today's real estate taxes are high and more than half of our town's budget goes to the school system. We need a businessman's influence, as well as educators, on the School Committee to be sure our tax dollar is carefully and wisely spent. I therefore ask the support of the Winchester voters because I am concerned and interested in the school system, the children's education, and the homeowners' taxes.

No Good In A Cast!

"Motorists have enough to contend with on snow covered streets jammed with cars without worrying about hitting members of the muscle fraternity," said Winchester's Phil Wallwork, ALA safety director.

"With sidewalk plowing a thing of the past most places, joggers should be forced off the streets until spring. A toned-up leg muscle is of little use if it's in a cast," Wallwork said.

Joggers should confine their athletic activity to running around their basements and keep off the highways for the rest of the winter, the Automobile Legal Association representative emphasized.

Rescue

Mr. Conlon, a former Marine flyer with a long war record, grabbed the nearby rescue ladder and went out a way to reach it over to Steve. Before he could complete the rescue he himself went through up to his thighs.

Fire Lt. Joseph Connolly had arrived to assist. He drove the soaked young man home. Steve had crossed Wedge Pond from the area of his home, on the southwest side, before the mishap.

Assisting on the shore had been William McGrath, 16, of 1 Newton Street; Stephen Louanis, 17, of 54 Swanton Street; and Charles Weller, 18, of 14 Charles Road.

Navy Has Delay Program For Enlistees

Boatswain's Mate First Class Richard L. Michaud, USN, the Medford Navy recruiter, has announced high school seniors may enlist in the Navy as early as March and report for active duty after graduation.

Under the 120 Day Delay Program, the Navy has been authorized to enlist qualified young men and give them up to 120 days to report for active duty.

Young men enlisting in this program gain several advantages. The delay time prior to reporting to active duty counts toward completion of military obligation, builds up longevity for pay purposes, and affords four months' seniority prior to entering recruit training. No attendance at drills or meetings is required during the waiting period.

Anyone desiring further information on this program, or any other program offered by the Navy, is invited to drop by and see BM1 Michaud at City Hall, Salem Street, Medford or call him for an appointment at 395-6066.

Girl Scout Diary

Scrapbooks made by Brownie Troop 483, Mystic School, were delivered to the Fernald School on February 7. The Brownies, under the leadership of Mrs. George Parker and Mrs. Lawrence Brown, cut up Christmas cards to make gay covers for the scrapbooks.

Along with the scrapbooks went lifesaver dolls made by Junior Troop 507, Washington School.

Hatchets and three-cornered hats decorated hospital trays on Washington's Birthday. The tray favors were made by Brownie Troops 697 and 528, Mystic School, and 519 and 520, Wyman School.

Valentine's Day was celebrated by Brownie Troop 697, Washington School, with a party. Decorations were made by the troop, and seval girls shopped for the refreshments, accompanied by their leader, Mrs. Harold Warford.

Patients at the Continuing Care Unit of the Winchester Hospital enjoyed Valentine centerpieces made by Senior Scouts.

Junior Troop 544, Parkhurst School, packed ice skates and camping gear for an overnight at Cedar Hill on Friday, February 7. Cedarwood cabin, shelter for the night, proved to be large enough for an evening of square dancing.

Senior Scouts Gloria Tatarian and Sally Hayden taught new songs and led old favorites accompanied by their guitars.

A special treat was birthday cake for all, sent from home to celebrate Lauren and Leslie Rentel's birthday.

After breakfast Saturday morning, the girls skated on the pond in the warm sunshine that preceded Sunday's storm.

Junior Troop 504, Lincoln School, enjoyed a winter overnight at Camp Joy in Winchester on January 31. The program included a winter hike and nature game.

Look Back At Malcolm X

An Afro style show, a re-assessment of Malcolm X and a report on blacks in medicine are the features on NET's "Black Journal." Thursday, February 27 at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

The program will be repeated by Channel 2 the following Sunday, March 2 at 5 p.m.; channel 44 will air it Wednesday, February 26 at 9 p.m.

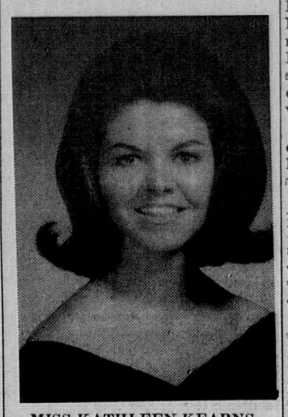

Black Journal reporters put in today's perspective the Black Muslim movement and the philosophy of its late leader four years after he was shot. And Malcolm's widow, Betty Shabazz, talks about her late husband both as a leader and as a man.

The Afro style show compares current fashions with styles popular in ancient Egypt, the Sudan and South West Africa to find out how much ancient dress has influenced current Afro styles.

Teens Need Aid In Winter Driving

Many new drivers are getting their first taste of winter traction from behind the wheel of a car—newly licensed teenagers, for example. This group is the special concern of Police Chief, Joseph J. Derro.

According to the records, the Chief pointed out, younger drivers consistently are involved in more than their share of traffic mishaps. And winter hazards only add to the problem.

Chief Derro cited several reasons for this disproportionate involvement of youngsters in accidents—particularly during winter.

Many of these newly licensed drivers, even those with the benefit of a high school driver education course, take their training in good weather. The result: while they can qualify for a license, they have never really experienced slippery pavements—until now. Consequently, they have not developed a sense of feel for driving on slippery surfaces, and when confronted by this situation for the first time, the result can be tragic.

"The best suggestion I can make," Chief Derro said, "based on recommendations of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, is for these new drivers to practice getting the feel of slippery surfaces on empty parking lots where there is plenty of room to maneuver. They should be accompanied by a parent or other experienced driver, of course."

The parent can also restrict the driving privilege until the teenager has demonstrated his ability to handle winter skid and traction problems adequately.

The Chief said efforts are being made by the national Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards to provide this kind of instructional opportunity through regular high-school driver education courses.

For the past several years the committee has given professional instruction in winter driving techniques to selected driver education teachers so that they, in turn, can provide this type of instruction at the high-school level.

The best defense against skidding on snow and ice, according to Chief of Police Joseph J. Derro and the International Association of Chiefs of Police is plan all maneuvers well in advance and make them gradually. If the car should skid, steer in the direction the rear-end is skidding. But beware of over-correcting. It may cause the car to skid to the opposite direction and not be able to control it.

Local Residents Elected to Board Of Steel Company

The 66th annual stockholders meeting of the Worcester Pressed Steel Company was held in the company offices at Barber Avenue, Worcester, on Tuesday, February 11.

Directors reelected included: Mrs. Mary Louise Wilding-White of 1 Pilgrim Drive, chairman of the Board and Ernest L. Weil of 3 Hillside Avenue, vice chairman of the Board, president and treasurer. Karl J. Komp of 7 Winthrop Street, was elected a director of the Hi-Pac Company, wholly-owned subsidiary of Worcester Pressed Steel Company. Mr. Komp was also elected a vice-president of Pressed Steel.

Mrs. Wilding-White stated in her annual report to the stockholders that she was pleased with the company's program in 1968. She cited the new office modernizations and the successes in automating and modernizing production facilities.

The company's new pressure containers' manufacturing methods and techniques proved beneficial during 1968 and she expects further benefits this year, since these products are attracting much customer interest.

She also expressed appreciation and gratitude for all the cooperation she has been receiving from all employees to make this improved record possible.

Crash

A third passenger in the back seat was Lisa Spang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Spang III of 18 Calumet Road. She was not injured.

The car reportedly was in collison with a logging truck after skidding on ice on a blind curve on a narrow bridge.

Julie, who was pinned behind the steering wheel, received several broken bones and is in traction. Janice, who was thrown through the windshield, received head lacerations and cut ligaments in her arm and a broken arm. Emily fractured her pelvis.

The 14 girls, traveling in three cars driven by Julie, Andrea Blanch and Sue White, were returning to their motel in Eustis about 4:30 p.m. after skiing at Sugarloaf when the accident occurred. They had planned the three-day trip themselves, leaving early Monday and expecting to return to Winchester on Thursday.

Other girls on the trip were Patty Westwater, Marilyn Richardson, Karen Deininger, Lyn Stites, Bev Ericson, Marnie Stearns and Carolyn Roundy.

Dr. Watts Serves World Health

Dr. Nancy T. Watts, of 4 Inverness Road, has been appointed to the expert advisory panel on rehabilitation of the World Health Organization.

Dr. Watts is chairman of the division of graduate studies at Boston University's Sargent College of Allied Health Professions. She is also on the advisory panel to the Emory University committee to plan a graduate program in physical therapy.

In the past year Dr. Watts has provided consultation on physical therapy in the field of graduate studies to the University of Iowa, the University of Indiana, and the University of Puerto Rico.

Moon

"Schweickart's role on the mission is rather dangerous, even by astronaut standards," reports Joseph O'Brien of Andover, a former Arthur Street resident, who researched the story for the Star.

Mr. O'Brien checked with MIT authorities in his search to tie the 33-year-old former captain in the Massachusetts Air National Guard to Winchester. The astronaut holds undergradaute and graduate degrees from the Institute.

Girl's Theft Tip Aids Investigation

An alert Arlington Street teenager gave Winchester Police a tip that may be a clue in a Tuesday afternoon breaking and entering at a Myopia Hill Road home.

Officer Roland Roy was on duty at the station when a woman called reporting that her daughter had recorded the registration number of a blue Cadillac which had pulled up and asked direction to Myopia Hill. She felt suspicous about the car.

Checking with the Registry the officer found the registration belonged to a 1961 brown Chevrolet owned by a Newton man and reported stolen on January 4.

At 12:40 p.m. when the Myopia Hill resident whose home was broken into left her house, she had seen a pale-blue Cadillac at the intersection of Myopia Hill Road and Cambridge Street slow down and turn up Myopia.

The resident reported feeling suspicious because she felt the men were watching her. She did not return to her home, however, as she had young children in the car, she told police.

The woman also told police that earlier in the morning the back door bell had rung and when she went to answer it no one was there.

When the woman returned home at 1:55 p.m. she saw drawers pulled out in the downstairs rooms and went across the street to call police, believing the men might still be in the house.

Officer John E. Guarente, who investigated, found entry was gained by breaking a pane of glass in the rear door.

The intruders had apparently fed the family dog two pounds of meat that was thawing on a kitchen counter.

Missing from the house were a black fur coat, a black fur jacket, jewelry, a color television and several blank checks.

Police Chief Joseph J. Derro praised the girl involved and her mother. He has, he reminded, in the past urged residents to call and report any suspicious persons or actions in their neighborhood.

Post Office Closed

The Winchester Post Office will be closed all day Saturday due to the Federal holiday.

There will be no window services and no deliveries. Pick-up will be in front of Post Office at noon only.

Opponents

Speaking here March 6 will be Professor Edgar M. Bottome of the Boston University government department and Professor George W. Rathjens of MIT.

Professor Bottome, who lives here as 3 Chesterford Road East, is a specialist on American defense policy, on which he has written a book about to be published by Beacon Press. His article, "The Mythology of the ABM," appeared in the October, 1967, issue of "Commonweal."

Prof. Rathjens was formerly deputy director of the Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA) and is a former director of the Systems Evaluation Division of the Institute for Defense Analysis.

Attempts are being made to obtain speakers from the Defense Department and the Army Corps of Engineers.

The Winchester committee will shortly start to circulate petitions asking 7th Congressional District Representative Torbert Macdonald to hold a public hearing in the area before Congress reviews the matter.

In addition, residents of Winchester are being urged to attend a State Legislative hearing called by Senate President Maurice A. Donahue and scheduled for Wednesday evening, February 26, 7:30 p.m., in the John Hancock Hall, Boston.

Interest in the controversial Sentinel anti-ballistic missile system continues to grow despite a recent order by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird which temporarily halted major work on the $5.5 billion defense project.

The order is in effect pending results of a high-level review of Pentagon plans and includes construction which has been in progress at the Reading, Lynnfield, and North Andover sites.

It came in the wake of growing Congressional criticism of plans to deploy megaton hydrogen missiles and was assisted by widespread grass roots pressure.

Marycliff

It asks the Town to authorize them to contract for a 90-day option which would include a fixed price. Officials of the Order of Religious of Christian Education, who own and operate Marycliff, have indicated a preference to sell to the Town.

Special Town Meeting

His report brought the only surprise of the evening and led to the only differences between his board and the Finance Committee:

The pre-published request was for $91,140 to rebuild the dust-collecting system ($38,300); overhaul the crane ($16,800); repair the furnace and chamber refractory ($12,500); repair the draft and temperature control system ($1,250); and repair the existing building and improve the lighting ($18,750).

Surprise

Mr. Doucette added a surprise request: $10,000 more to raise the chimney stack 25 additional feet (it is now 60) in order better to disperse the smoke, and also to augment the draft.

Ormond Hessler, Finance Committee chairman, jumped to his feet with a disapproval of the additional monies.

"We just learned of this on the floor here tonight," he said. "We are in favor of the main project."

He affirmed Mr. Chadwick's interpretation that his committee would like to amend the motion to delete the $10,000.

No Evaluation

"I know nothing about this and the Finance Committee hasn't been able to evaluate it," he said answering Mrs. Sally Kincaid as to whether the objection was based solely on the Committee's ignorance of the subject.

William Kramer, Fay Spofford and Thorndike consultant answered a first question from Mrs. Marcella Smith emphasizing that the added height would be only to disperse the dust better.

He felt it would clear the Muraco School yard easily with this height.

Mr. Kramer told Edward Conley that improvements in the dust collector system should also better the situation.

Mrs. Elizabeth Herberich asked if, since the Selectmen envisaged future improvements other than those to be voted on that night, the new height to the chimney could be constructed later. Mr. Doucette said yes, but the cost would be less if attached to the first improvement authorization.

Contingency Funds?

Richard Thuma next asked Mr. Kramer for his outfit's record over the past 10 years on keeping within its estimates and was told that excepting for where jobs included demolition there was no overrun.

He next queried whether, since the chimney's height is empirical and a seven and one-half percent contingency is projected, the extra work could not be done within the contingency.

Mr. Kramer disapproved of this and pointed out that many of the Winchester incinerator areas do include demolition.

Other Means

In answer to Edward Bingel's question about other means of reducing smoke and soot the engineering specialist described an air "scrubber," and an electrostatic precipitator. Either would be major projects and expensive.

One questioner noted prior freezings of exposed outside pipes and asked had correction of this problem been included. He was told no.

"If we raise the chimney 25 feet, outsiders will know sooner than Winchesterites (when we are burning)..." said Mr. Kramer to bolster his estimate of the efficiency of the contemplated chimney height rise.

Pollution? MDC?

Two look-ahead broader questions were answered during the evening.

To William MacKenzie's query about the possibility of having to change design in the future to comply with projected State or Federal pollution control laws Mr. Kramer noted that the Federal government is presently leaving things to the States; that the State is working on a code. He added that at present this kind of thing relates to sulfur dioxide pollution and that there is none involved with the incinerator.

Richard Freeman asked about projections on MDC-controlled area waste-disposal. Mr. Doucette said that the earliest to the knowledge of his board, would not come for at least another five years.

Questions from Robert Winn pointed up that at the time of incinerator construction the Town was told it would not "last forever."

Discussion in the maintenance area led Mr. Kramer to remind that the men in charge now know a great deal more than when the equipment first came to them.

Vote Of Thanks Due

"The men who operate this for you deserve a vote of your thanks," he said. "It is a wonder the bricks have stood up."

Earl Littleton reminded that Winchester's incinerator was constructed by the man considered to be the best project engineer in the area at the time. He questioned the system of closing down every night after an eight hour run, and was told by Mr. Kramer that it should be run not less than 16 hours a day, six days a week to keep heat constant.

The question of an appropriation for periodic checkups elicited an estimate of about eight to 10 thousand dollars a year.

Michael Saraco reviewed the history of the initial project looking back with a turn-down at a Town Meeting due to site and a two-year-later acceptance.

Support

Joseph Riga was the first to state support of the total package.

"I was surprised that there was at first no mention of the raising of the stack," he said, speaking of the many problems to the persons who live in the area.

"If it would help, let's quit talking and vote the extra $10,000.

Henry Heitz seconded these thoughts.

Mr. Hessler repeated that his group went for the original proposal and pointed to the future expenditures to come on the incinerator.

Sherman Saltmarsh, former Selectman and present candidate for the Board spoke as a member of the Board at the time of the incinerator construction in 1959.

He praised the engineers and stated when the $500,000 mechanism was being built they had said that the Town would have to come in for repairs about five years later.

Despite his sympathy for the position of the Finance Committee, he urged the full appropriation.

Vote Whole

The first vote—on the amendment to subtract the money for raising the stack—was a heavy no vote. There were no nays heard on the main motion.

Authorization to the Selectmen to petition the Legislature for borrowing in connection with "reconstructing and making extraordinary repairs to a municipal incinerator" under General Laws Chapter 44, Sections 7 and 10, was next voted through without discussion or opposition.

Appraisals

Article 2 asking for $5,000 to be expended by the Selectmen in appraising real estate, was next voted subsequently to Mr. Doucette's explanation that some 18 parcels of property would be considered at the annual Town Meeting and that monies for appraising Maryeliff alone could come to $3,000.

Questioned by John Bradley as to why the just-published, Town-wide tax appraisals couldn't be used, Mr. Doucette pointed out that it would not be legal to use them for the Town in event of litigation.

Amend By-Laws

Articles 3 and 4 followed, amending the by-laws of the Town relative to the distribution of political pamphlets, and placards.

Mr. Doucette pointed out that the laws involved have been found unconstitutional on the grounds that they violate the free speech amendment.

The Finance Committee approved.

Town Counsel Leonard Mullen was asked whether this related to sound trucks and said no, they were still prohibited.

The amendments passed unanimously.

Land Approved

Article 5 authorizing the Selectmen to purchase about 14,473 square feet of land and a single residence house at 26 Highland Avenue for $24,500 was also supported by the Finance Committee as "consistent with" Town planning policy.

Its introduction elicited from Mrs. Kincaid a challenge on "a general point" about land takings rather than the specifics. She decried the piecemeal approach with "no long-range plan from the Elementary School Building Committee" and "no master plan from the Planning Board."

"I feel...that the boards on the whole are guilty of not informing the Town Meeting members," she concluded.

This brought Earl Littleton, chairman of the ESBC to his feet. He stated that: his group had waited until after the WHS had been settled before starting on a general plan; that they were still in the dark as to what the School Committee wants; that the ESBC has started re-writing its report for the Town Meeting.

He stated that in his opinion the key to the long range elementary school planning is the future use of McCall JHS and made a strong pitch for its use.

Noting the discussion had "triggered some additional information," Mr. Chadwick called for a vote. It was not unanimous and therefore demanded a standing count which resulted in 133 members in favor, two against.

Jeremiah McCarron moved adjournment at 9:55.

Columban Fathers' Annual Concert Is "Ireland 69"

The Columban Fathers 1969 series of concerts throughout new England will break with precedent and project "Come Laugh with Ireland," in Symphony Hall on March 9, 8 p.m.

The evening to aid the foreign missions, is designed to marry the poets of the past with the performers of the present.

Above all, it is planned around a merry-making core with Hal Roach, acclaimed throughout England ("and that's praise indeed," said the man) as the "Bob Hope of Ireland." Roach is a side-cracker; even those who plan his show never know what is coming next.

Music and the Irish can never be more than a ditch apart and that brings Patrick Cahill, soprano soloist, the Julie Andrews of Ireland, into the picture.

Veering from the vocal there will be the McLaughlin School of Dancers, starring Sean Tolan of Derry City, aged 12, and Ulster champion for 1968. They are Ireland's most televised children.

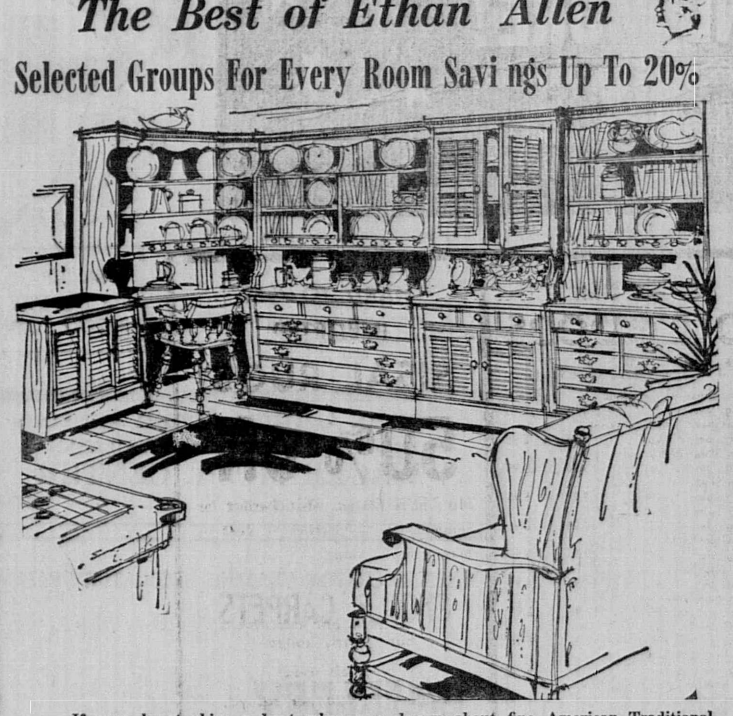

The concert will take one south to Rebel Cork and from the banks of the Lee come the McTeggart Ballad Group—three boys and a girl.

Musical director for the show is James MacCafferty, the well-known accompanist from Derry City, ably aided by Donald O'Doherty on the piano accordian.

The Big? in Carpeting

The first carpet fiber was Wool. Then came Cotton. Nylon and Acrylic followed third and fourth. There were a few other fibers in between but they didn't pan out and were short lived.

Now there are Olifins and Polyesters and blends of all these fibers. Naturally, each chemical company declares their fiber is superior to all the rest.

Who do you believe?

It took many years (hard working years) to build up a knowledge of fibers. We field test each fiber before we sell it. If we can't tell you how a particular fiber will behave . . . we won't sell it.

Financial Watchdogs At Work

GOING GETS TOUGH at Special Town Meeting for Finance Committee members Harry Williams, Richard Cantillon and Chairman Ormond Hessler. (Ryerson photo)

Color It Black

Begin to mark it in red ink then color the whole thing black. Figuratively a paradox, this is still the way to paint the fiscal dismal which stares the Town and the State in the face as we head into 1969.

Two weeks ago two of the Town's paid, inter-departmental municipal employees attended in Boston a standing-room only meeting of the League of Cities and Towns where they shared with their fellow local level administrators the A.B.C.'s of the local-state revenue-expenditure picture—dark and threatening.

Monday they took to the blackboards in the Selectmen's room and reported the story to the Town's unpaid administrators. It was a presentation which all departmental heads should have heard.

James Costello, the Town comptroller, reported the squeeze in which the Town finds itself. There is a one million dollar revenue gap ahead here—or a five dollar increase on the local tax rate—without a single special item coming before next month's Town Meeting. Seventy-one percent of the local budget comes from the property tax as against a national average of 50%.

There has been a 69% increase in the municipal services spending since 1965, according to Executive Secretary Edward Donnelly's figures stated Monday.

In 1967 the State returned $965,000 to the Town on the local aid—via the so-called cherry sheet. In 1968 it was $706,000 What can we look for this year? Mr. Costello believes it likely to be going to be done to about $205,000.

Radical solutions are needed. In what direction do they lie?

Long range inter-municipality, master tax planning reported by Mr. Donnelly looks to taking welfare and teachers retirement costs away from the local aid fund and putting them into the State's general fund; tightening definitions of medical assistance needs; getting the Federal Government to take over medical assistance and welfare and the State to take over education.

But immediately? No answers—unless from Govenor Sargent's reported look to a few years of "consolodation and appraisal."

The Fall Rivers, Lowells, New Bedfords are having it tough enough. But the Westons, Wellesleys, Winchesters are in the biggest squeeze. Single residence tax payers wanting top quality services with no tax base relief.

Something's got to give.

Commendation From A Specialist

The Town incinerator built in 1959-60 at the cost of $500,000 is about to undergo repairs costing just over $100,000.

This is the kind of item that comes under "sky-rocketing municipal expenses." The amount would pay the year's salaries for more than 12 good men to work the machines. It is a must to repair the incinerator. But it is all part of the dark dilemma of Town finances.

One bright spot in the engineering consultant's report to Town Meeting last week deserves attention: the words he had to say for the Town's work force.

"The men now know more than they did when the first equipment came to them and can do a better job, he said. . .(They) deserve a vote of your thanks for what they have done. . . It is a wonder the bricks have stood up as well as they have."

Gift Of Blindness

Karen O'Donnell of 22A Forest Street is presently a Vista Volunteer in Redding, California. She reports having followed the history of METCO here with disappointment. She has just mailed the Star the following editorial printed in the Redding Record under the above title.

"A curiously moving letter to the editor appeared not long ago in the San Francisco Chronical, and we think it deserving of republication.

" 'Recently I had the experience of being totally blind for seven days. I will always be thankful for the experience.

" 'If everyone in the universe could experience this just once in his lifetime there would soon be no prejudice, hate or malice toward one's fellow man, regardless of race, creed or color.

" 'While I was lying in the hospital bed. I was completely dependent on other people for all my basic needs and for a lot of minor needs, such as putting on robes, slippers, feeding me, lighting my cigarette—all of my daily needs, period.

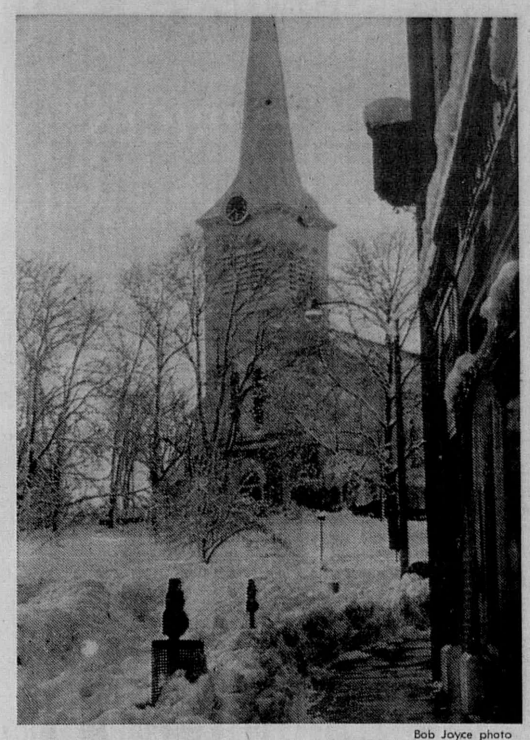

" 'Not one time did it matter a damn whether the person who helped me was white, black, red or yellow. I could not see. I listened to hearts. Kindness and consideration have no color. Neither does love, compassion and understanding. Yet these are the things that we must create and develop in our hearts before we will ever be able to bring about peace and harmony in the world today.

" 'I received much help not only from employes but from fellow patients as well, and when the doctor removed the bandages from one eye the first face I saw besides his was a black male employe with a big smile on his face. Believe me, please, black is beautiful. I am a white man.

" 'If ever in the remainder of my lifetime I allow prejudice to enter my heart, I pray to God that He will return me to darkness because I will really have blinded myself to His truth. Raymond H. Mitchell.' "

BOOK REVIEW

Winchester Public Library

THE LOWEST TREES HAVE TOPS

by Martha Gellhorn

"The chief commodity of San Ignacio del Tule is time, and the people of Tule passionately enjoy wasting it . . . No one works hard enough to be tired, but everyone seems to be busy in a babbling sort of way . . . The air of Tule induces chronic frivolity of mind . . . The residents talk of themselves and each other with a lack of shame that is unnerving to visitors. They are safe in their candour because, while everyone knows everything about everyone else, no one cares. Slander and libel are daily pleasures. Interference with freedom of thought, word or deed is against the ground rules. This tolerance is another result of Tule weather, which weakens the memory. A feeble memory is a sound basis for tolerance, and laziness helps too."

Tule is in the mountains of Mexico. Because of tolerance, the residents (foreigners) and natives are all individuals. There is no conformity. Stereotypes and proselytizers do not last long in Tule, as you will see.

Among the residents are "gardeners, the house-proud, the lechers, the gamblers, the readers, the artistics, the talkers and Raquel." Raquel de Castana is a Spanish aristocrat turned Communist and does her best to help people. She is impermeable to jokes but often very funny herself. She is nobly built and wholly in love with Bartolo, an unregenerate peon silversmith.

The nthere is the honorable Freddie Winyard, 75 years old and determined to die in the arms of a virgin Indian maiden. When he claims to be on his death bed, the residents all flock to visit him, bearing gifts. They are not amused to discover his terminal state is a ruse to get free liquor but they haven't the energy to stay mad.

Mrs. Luella Hatfield, a wealthy and opinionated American, rents a house in Tule, but since she refuses to entertain the unconventional residents or those in trade (which leaves her a very small social circle) and publicly and rudely voices her disapproval, she must go and go she does, in a rage.

This is the time of the McCarthy persecution and three American families seek refuge from it on the outskirts of Tule. Raquel is full of pity for what she supposes must have been their imprisonment and torture and cannot understand it when they deny having undergone any.

The book is a delightful romp from one lively incident to another and so well written. Miss Gellhorn is mistress of the balanced sentence. It a number of her characters are completely immoral, they are also charming and a great deal of fun to know.

Welcomes End Of Nine Years Of Health Hazard

Editor of the Star:

On behalf of my constituents, I want to thank the present Board of Selectmen, the Finance Board, Town Meeting members, and all those concerned in supporting the alleviation of the health hazard caused by the smoke and soot emanating from the town incinerator.

The approval of the appropriation of extra money for the raising of the incinerator stack 25 feet over its present height was applauded by all citizens in the immediate vicinity of the incinerator. All Boards of Selectmen in the past have ignored constant pleas for relief from this unhealthy condition.

However, there is one area in which I stand ready to challenge.

The information given by the consulting engineers of Fay, Spofford and Thorndike as answers to questions asked by Town Meeting members and concerned citizens were in grave error. I have lost faith in this consulting group and hope that some corrections can be made in the future.

Sincerely,
Frederick LaTorella

Anwer To Problem$

Editor of the Star:

A grateful sigh was heard through town.
The housewives all applauded.
"Incinerator will be fixed"
Town Meeting will be lauded.
Trips to the dump on Saturdays
Leaves mother a recluse.
Ah, solitude, while Dad takes on
The kiddies and refuse.
They still can sleep late Saturdays;
All mothers are relaxed.
Yet with their restful leisure time,
They'll still be overtaxed.

Highway Bouquet

Editor of the Star:

We would like to take this opportunity to commend Robert O'Brien, superintendent, and all Highway Department personnel for a job well done on snow plowing and removal.

The Police Department made many requests of the Highway team, due to the numerous dangerous conditions reported throughout the Town. In all probability, the assistance of the Highway Department reduced the number of accidents, as in most instances the children were able to walk to school on the sidewalks.

Realizing the personnel was tired due to the long hours they were required to work, they handled our requests expediently, for which we are most grateful.

On behalf of all members of the Police Department, I would like to say Thank You, for a job well done.

Very truly Yours,

Heartfelt

Editor of the Star:

Through the columns of your paper, I would like to thank the Winchester Police Department for its cooperation, efficiency, and understanding.

On the night of the recent blizzard, my immediate family and relatives (including two babies) were stranded at the bottom of High Street, unable to make the hill to my home at 5 Westland Avenue.

A thoughtful resident called the Police Department and in a matter of minutes, the police, Officer Peter Morgan and his partner, were on the spot to transfer the passengers into the police car and in two trips transfer us to our house. They broke a path through the drifts and personally carried the babies into the house. For their efforts, the officers would accept nothing but a heartfelt thanks which I now wish to make public.

If Winchester has its problems, the Police Department is not one of them.

Sincerely
Mrs. Virginia Belanger

Give Him Time

Editor of the Star:

So many people here in town have raised questions about the interim tax proposals of Governor Sargent that I would like, through your columns if I may, to offer some answers.

The Governor has stressed that the tax proposals are not partisan proposals, nor would they be permanent, nor does he insist that the Legislature pass them unchanged if the legislators have any better ideas.

The Governor was simply required by state law to submit a balanced budget by January 22, only days after he assumed the governorship. He had to deal with the state fiscal situation as he found it.

Having met that legal requirement by the deadline, Governor Sargent is now seeking to set the state's financial house in order.

He has already announced plans in a cutback of the burgeoning Medicaid program which should save $35 million, half in state funds, half in federal. He has announced that he and his staff are looking for more "fat" to trim, and he will have more cuts to suggest in coming weeks.

Furthermore, the Governor has made clear that he shares the view of many other citizens that our whole tax structure needs an overhaul. His proposals, subject to legislative changes, are intended only to bridge the gap in time while the special commission studying the overall tax picture finishes its work and makes its report, hopefully by this summer. The important state government reorganization plan is also pending.

This interim period is an awkward time, particularly for a new governer suddenly taking charge. I am sure the people will give him, the tax commission, and the Legislature the few months they need to do a proper job.

Sincerely yours,
Grace G. Soucek

Never

Editor of the Star:

When I was a boy, in my home town it was a common political expression to say "Whoose Looney now?" whenever events proved a politician had made a major point in the arena.

The Boston Herald-Traveler, Sunday, has confirmed my statements over the past two years.

We are headed toward a Metropolitan School District, so says our new Commisioner of Education, Neil V. Sullivan.

We are headed toward a complete surrender of control of our children to the intellectual planners.

Pay your taxes.
Big Brother, the professor, knows what is best.
For Who? You?
To Commissioner Sullivan—you are a "fighter."
What do you think I'm going to do?
Surrender?

Three Hours To Cambridge!

Editor of the Star:

I think the Highway Department and other town employees who worked on snow plowing and removal during the recent storm deserve an expression of gratitude for a job well done.

On Tuesday, at 7 a.m., the sidewalk on Highland Avenue was plowed, and a little street, Old Oak Lane, where we rent a garage, was cleared, as were all the streets around. I drove my husband and a fellow worker to Medford, and headed for Cambridge. The main streets in Medford were in poor shape, those in Somerville worse, and Cambridge was almost impassable. What is normally a 35-minute trip took three hours.

Returning that afternoon, the first bare road that I saw was as I crossed the Medford-Winchester line.

I have friends in Belmont and Melrose whose streets weren't plowed until Thursday.

Saturday morning it was easy to park anywhere around the Center for shopping, and there seemed to by snow loaders and trucks everywhere tackling the great mounds of snow.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Guy E. Howe

Bouquet, Condemnation

Editor of the Star:

As a citizen of Massachusetts for some 30 years and of Winchester for three, I would like to commend the Town of Winchester for the magnificent job of snow removal during the recent Northeaster.

As we compare notes with the experiences of other towns nearby, we can indeed be proud of the work done here.

On the other hand a town's position and standing in the community depends largely on the intelligence of its citizenry. I heartily condemn those people who clogged telephone lines with calls concerning "no school." All that was necessary, on Monday morning, was to look out the window in order to have that question answered.

Chains Mandatory In California

Editor of the Star:

I have just arrived here from California, and I am not too familiar with this state.

However, we carry tire chains in our car. California law requires chains for mountain travel during the winter months. Even if roads are clear, chains must be carried in the mountains in case of unexpected snow fall.

By keeping the traffic moving, much time and money is saved in snow removal. It would seem that many problems would have been non-existent during last week's storm if Massachusetts had had a similar law.

Raps Insularity, Misuse Of Flag

Editor of the Star:

In March of last year my husband was discharged from the Army. As we are both "dyed-in-the-wool" New Englanders we naturally decided to return to Massachusetts. At the time I considered it quite fortunate that the only acceptable rental that we could find was in Winchester. We had had good reports on the schools and the town was ideally situated for my husband's practice.

As I have stated, we are native to the area. We were both raised in towns comparable to Winchester so that what I am about to say is not the remark of one unfamiliar with N. E. "reserve," if you will.

For the past two years we have lived in the South, a move dreaded by all of us. However, we managed to make good friends and have a comparatively good life. A great deal of our adjustment depended on our new acquaintances. This is not the case in our present situation, with few exceptions.

We have recently bought a house in Winchester. This is our first—and probably our last—home. I regret that this very important decision was made solely on the basis of academic and economic reasons. I think that one should be able to feel a warmth from a town. In the past year this has been sorely lacking. I have traveled and resided throughout N. E. and never have I encountered the disinterest, ignorance, rigidity, rudeness and insularity that one finds here. If the people that I have met—with some few exceptions—are any criteria of the rest of the populace, I feel very sorry for Winchester.

One other thing that I feel I must bring up, small as it may seem. At the end of the last school year I had occasion to see how the U. S. flag was being taken down in one of your elementary schools. It was lowered, unhitched, rolled up and tossed in/on a locker. I subsequently called the principal of this school and had a very nice chat during which I was assured that the children would be more respectful toward this symbol in the future. This year, on two occasions, I have had the opportunity to see for myself how the children have been corrected. The flag is still rolled in a ball and tossed on the top of the lockers.

To most of the good citizens of this town this may seem a petty subject but I think otherwise. My children can see enough disrespect for this country by watching the evening news without finding it in school, deliberate or not. I was brought up in a strong patriotic atmosphere and I apologize to no one for my feelings in this matter.

I realize that what I have had to say may seem harsh but it is the result of 11 months of living, observing and learning. I might add that this opinion has advocates other than myself. I have heard it expressed by newcomers and 20-year residents alike, to one degree or another.

Finally, it seems to me that a town with the potential of Winchester should do much more for and with its so obvious assets. If it does not it is a town in shame. I find it particularly saddening that human communication on all levels—except the essential—is apparently something to fear.

Thank you for your kind attention to this letter.

Sincerely,
Norine P. Friedman

Second Request For Information On Public Works

Editor of the Star:

On January 21, 1969 at approximately 8 p.m., in the Welfare Room of the Town Hall, a report was given by the chairman of the Government Committee, asking for the establishment of a Public Works Department.

Attending this meeting were elected department heads and other appointed board officials concerned with the progress of the town, including Robert W. Armstrong Jr., chairman, who gave the report, and his committee, namely: David J. Ashton, Calvin H. Bowker, Clarence G. Feldmann, Barbara S. Hankins, Edward E. Hicks and Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. Mr. Armstrong's report appeared in The Winchester Star on January 23, and the Woburn Daily Times on January 24.

I questioned the entirety of this report as it was printed and requested in the edition dated January 30, through the editor of the Star, for a more and complete text of the report of the presentation as submitted and approved unanimously by Mr. Armstrong's committee.

On January 30 at approximately 7:10 p.m., Mr. Armstrong phoned me to discuss my letter at which time I told him that I was on my way to a committee meeting and would return his call later. On February 1, I telephoned him and went over certain details, and he agreed to send me a complete text of the report in question. To date, I have not received the report or any answers to my queestions. Why have my requests been ignored?

Again, through your newspaper, I am asking Mr. Armstrong and his committee members, and in particular Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr., to give me a complete text of the report as it was presented on the aforementioned January 21, and to report to the citizens of Winchestes in full the remarks made during Mr. Armstrong's presentation.

Are Mr. Armstrong and his committee members being fair and just to the citizens and taxpayers of the Town of Winchester in withholding all the pertinent information that I am requesting?

Refinery Topic For Macdonald

Congressman Torbert H. Macdonald has announced he has sent letters to both the Secretary of Commerce and the Secretary of the Interior urging speedy approval of the proposals which would enable an oil refinery to be built in Machiasport, Maine.

Approved recently was an application for the creation of a foreign trade zone at Machiasport by the committee of alternates of the Foreign Trade Zone Board.

Mr. Macdonald termed the decision by the alternates "a crucial first step" but warned that the toughest battle may remain to be fought. He was referring to the oil import quota application which must be approved by the Secretary of Interior.

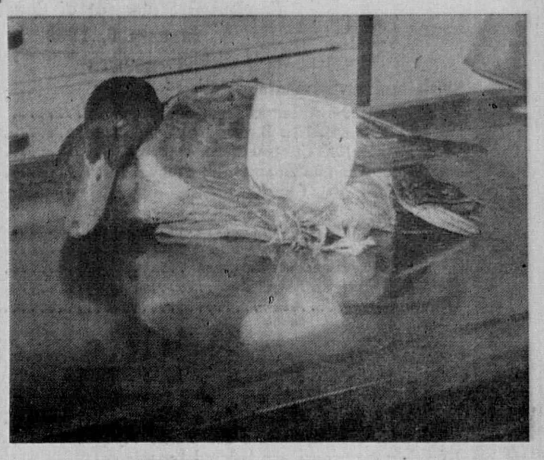

Mr. Macdonald noted that Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel had, as governor of Alaska, joined a suit to block the creation of the Maine trade zone, but the Congressman added that "as Secretary of the Interior he now represents the interests of the entire country and I am hopeful that he will review the situation in a fair and impartial manner."

Mr. Macdonald, one of the earliest advocates of the proposed refinery project and chairman of the House Subcommittee on Communications and Power, said the purpose of this letter to the Secretary of Commerce is to request final approval of the alternates' decision by the full Foreign Trade Zone Board just as soon as possible.

The assistant Majority Leader for New England predicted that "the going will begin to get tough" and expected that tremendous pressure will be brought to bear on key figures involved in the final phase of approval, especially the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. Macdonald stated "those of us that favor the project must join together in a coordinated effort to speak loudly and clearly for the consumer of New England who is currently paying the highest prices in the country for refined oil products."

Still Digging Out

WILD CREATURES, too, were victims of the storm. (Joyce photo)

A MALLARD DUCK from the Mill Pond was one of the victims of last week's storm. The duck broke its wing and was found by children who took him to the Winchester Animal Hospital, 831 Main Street. Dr. Arthur Sandler, the veterinarian there, set the wing and kept the duck while it recuperated.

THE POST OFFICE missed deliveries for the first time in several year. The reasons were many. Only the small amonut of mail which had come in Sunday was on hand to go out; none came in Monday. Also, it was the first big storm since mechanization of the carriers. "Neither snow nor sleet...etc." is all very well for men on foot. When they shift to truck deliveries they are as subject to road conditions and plowing as any other sum of people.

TREE DAMAGE was extensive throughout Town—although, according to Richard Horn who supervises all Town tree care, not as large as during the recent ice storm. Many beautiful trees were lost for good.

NORTHERN ODESSEY. This story involves six Winchester men and one woman. At 5 p.m. Sunday Bert Stockwood set out for the Itek plant in Bedford to rescue Larry Donaghey, one of his staff, detailing his route to wife Peg before leaving. At 1 a.m. no word from Bert—so Mert Ober took Peg and started out to find him. The ramp from upper Washington Street down to 128 was jammed and Mert and Peg were lucky to get back home. At 2 a.m. they called Sherm Saltmarsh, just in from an arduous trip down from New Hampshire. Sherm went back up to Bradlee's on the same route, where he had unloaded his Ski-doo snowmobile and he and young David Stockwood mushed south to find Bert.

Meanwhile Bert, who had tried to get off 128 onto 2, had been blocked and forced to go south down to the Mass Pike turn around and head north on the south-bound 128 route. Somehow he made it back to 93, got off on Montvale Avenue only to end up in a bank there.

Who should come along at this point but George Whitten headed north to his Lord Wakefield Inn with a payloader. George stopped and set Bert's station wagon free. It reached home about 5 a.m.

Sherm and David made it into Bedford, got Larry, and started back looking for Bert all the way. The threesome got into Winchester about 6 a.m. Monday.

WINTER SPORTS SPECIAL. Bill and Bernice Kimball, season-ticket regulars for the Bruins games, decided on storm Sunday that a little snow shouldn't keep them from watching their heroes take on the Seals. They slogged down to Wedgemere on foot and boarded the 5:45 to the Garden. Just after 10 p.m. they arrived in the North Station. It was jammed with Celtic's fans still waiting to go north after seeing their heroes top the 76'ers. From then on it was a sporting affair just to get home. The Kimballs did. Some hours later.

DEL ROSSI

SCHOOL COMMITTEE

Dear Voter,

In the February 13, 1969, issue of the Winchester Star, I discussed my reasons for running for the Winchester School Committee as well as my qualifications for that elective office. In this letter to you, the voters of Winchester, I will discuss the two major functions of the School Committee.

First, the School Committee must be concerned with the financial guidance and supervision of the school system's budget. The Committee shares this responsibility with the Finance Committee and the Superintendent of Schools. This is a constant and important function for our School Committee.

The second function — setting policy guidelines for the school system — is, in my estimation, the most important activity of the School Committee. Once a policy has been established, all other factors: budget, curriculum, and program fall into line. Consequently, a School Committee should devote substantial effort to the process of policy guidelines that affect our children and the taxpayers.

What are the elements in this policy-making process? I believe there are three:

— the Law
— the Individual
— the Public

Let us consider these elements. First, the Law: each School Committee is bound by certain legal regulations—local, state, and federal — with which it must comply. No policy can be altered or formulated without cognizance of these laws. Second, the Individual: each School Committee official must make the best professional and personal judgment while working with the rest of the Committee to set policy guidelines.

Third, the Public: no decision for policy guidelines can be complete without consideration of the attitudes and opinions of the citizens. This, in my opinion, is the most important part of the process whereby policy guidelines are created. It is the citizen who, by his vote, elects individuals to the School Committee. It is the citizen who therefore has the right to be consulted before any policy can be set. I believe it is the duty of the School Committee, as elected representatives, to listen closely to the citizens on matters regarding education policy and operation of the school system before setting any policy guidelines.

When each of these factors: the law, the individual, and the public are thoughtfully considered, policy guidelines most appropriate for the Winchester School System will result.

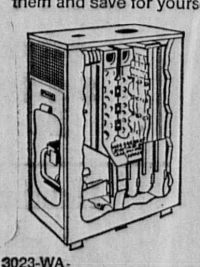

If elected as your representative to the Winchester School Committee, I will be sensitive and responsive in carrying out these two major functions of the School Committee.

Respectfully,
Paul R. Del Rossi
Candidate for School Committee

John Carroll Announces Candidacy

In a series of coffee hours Wednesday evening, John L. Carroll opened his campaign for election to the School Committee. The socials, held in the various precincts, allowed a number of voters to meet Mr. Carroll and hear his views on the current issues.

Mr. Carroll spoke of the concern of taxpayers throughout the state and its relation to Winchester. "The level of government where the greatest drive for economy can be effective is here." The candidate discussed what he described as "excesses" in today's school budget, as well as his thoughts on bringing about better communication between the School Committee and the citizenry.

The need for mature judgment and experience was explaned by Mr. Carroll as he outlined his educational qualifications, receiving his A.B. and M.A. at Suffolk University, and his continuing education at the University of New Hampshire and at Salem State College. Mr. Carroll is presently teaching at Malden High School, Science Department.

John Carroll listed his military record as a qualification of service and experiencs. He cited his varied duties and assignments beginning as a private in the infantry during WW II and advancing to the U.S. Air Corps, where he served as a navigation instructor and bombardier instructor. He presently holds the rank of captain, U.S.A.F. Reserve (ret.).

Mr. Carroll is married and the father of four children, two presently attending Winchester public schools, and has been a homeowner and taxpayer in the town for over twelve years.

Driving Tips For Winter

Chief of Police Joseph J. Derro has reviewed February 9's storm in terms of traffic problems resulting throughout the town.

Chief Derro listed lack of foresight, impatience, and failure to adjust to conditions among the main driver errors that caused vast tieups and fender-bender collisions.

He offered the following tips provided by the International Association of chiefs of Police to help keep traffic moving in severe weather:

—Keep check on winter weather reports. When a storm's reported brewing, even before it hits, adjust driving schedules to give more time to reach the destination.

—Keep alert to announcements of snow emergency routes as designated by your town officials Avoid streets and intersections where tieups commonly occur.

—Allow considerably more distance between cars. Slow down on slippery streets.

—Plan every maneuver well in advance. Accelerate, steer, and stop smoothly. Pump brakes when stopping to maintain both steering and stopping control.

—Get the feel of the road. Know just how slippery that surface really is. Watch for temperature changes. Ice at 30 degrees is twice as slick as it is at 0 degrees.

—Be alert for icy spots. Ice lasts longer on bridges and in shaded areas.

—Equip you car with snow tires or studded tires and use reinforced tire chains for severe conditions.

—Keep all windows clear—inside and out.

—Park off the street during a storm. Let the snow plows get through.

The Chief concluded with this reminder:
"Using safety belts is never out of season."

England Comes To Stoneham

The British Vice Consul joined other dignitaries in Stoneham for the grand opening of the first Chas. Goodlight & Sons, Ltd., Fish & Chips shop to open in America. The shop brings a touch of Olde England to New England . . . specializing in the take-out service of authentic Fish & Chips, cooked as it's cooked in England.

At the ribbon cutting were, left to right, Miss Margaret Hunter, representing BOAC; Mr. Gerald Kent, Vice Consul from the British Consulate in Boston; Mr. Robert Rosenberg, president of Dunkin' Donuts of America, parent company of the new Chas. Goodlight & Sons, Lld., chain; Mrs. Alice DelRossi, chairman of the Board of Selectmen of Stoneham; Mr. Thomas Schwartz, vice president of Dunkin' Donuts of America; Mr. Michael Jayne, BOAC; and a colorful Buckingham Palace Guard.

This shop, the first of many to be opened throughout the United States, is located at 232 Main Street, Stoneham, with plenty of off-street parking.

Americans who've visited homes in London know that ready-cooked Fish & Chips is such a popular favorite with English families, including the younsters, that it's often enjoyed two and three times a week. The fine flavor of this traditional English fare may well make it an equally popular all-family treat in homes in the Stoneham area.

The manager, Richard Caron, pointed out that the fish used at Chas. Goodlight Sons, Ltd., is snow-white cod fillets deliciously prepared in a secret batter. The "chips" are the larger cut, thicker British version of what we call French Fries. Malt vinegar is offered so that you can eat your Fish & Chips in the truly authentic manner. Also, a special giant cooking unit was imported from England to assure the authentic preparation of Fish & Chips in the tradition of Chas. Goodlight.

Even before the opening, people traveling past Main Street in Stoneham may have noticed a brightly lighted globe marked like the British "Union Jack." As the shop slogan points out, "Look for the Goodlight" . . . for the finest in authentic Fish & Chips to take home.

Littleton Reappointed To Designer Board

Professor Earle F. Littleton of 14 Cranston Road, chairman of the Civil Engineering Department at Tufts University, was recently reappointed to his second two-year term on the designer selection board by former Governor John A. Volpe.

He was sworn into office on January 28 by Governor Francis Sargent.

At the reorganization meeting of the board on February 5, Professor Littleton was re-elected to his third consecutive term as chairman of the board.

The board is responsible for encouraging architects and engineers to apply for appointment as projects designers, to assemble and maintain the necessary information, experience and qualifications of designers, and to recommend to the Commissioner of Administration and Finance a minimum of three designers for each project.

The projects under consideration by the board are financed through the capital outlay budget.

LAWRANCE for School Committee

To the Voters of Winchester:
I wish to introduce myself as a candidate for School Committee.
My wife Frances and I have three children, who started at Washington and are now at the Muraco and McCall Schools. I grew up in various Massachusetts towns in which my father, who lived here as a boy, was Superintendent of Schools. An electrical engineering graduate with a Ph.D. in Physics, both from M.I.T., I manage a group designing electro-mechanical computer equipment, and have been granted more than 20 patents.
I am a director of two charitable corporations, member of the Unitarian Church Standing Committee, and Scoutmaster of Troop 506.
First elected Town Meeting Member in 1960, I have not missed a meeting. I am active in Town Civil Defense communications and am an Associate of the Conservation Commission. For the past two years I have attended meetings of the High School Building Committee, and, this past year, School Committee meetings. I believe my background and awareness of current problems qualify me for the School Committee.
I ask for your vote March 3rd. If elected I will do my best for our children and our Town.

Candidates for Moderator: One year term, vote for one

*Harrison Chadwick

1. Government at all levels is reorganizing to upgrade its efficiency.

2. Winchester is not, and should not, be an exception.

3. Because of my experience in government at both local and state levels, I believe I can, as Moderator, be especially helpful in problems relating to the structure of our town government.

Candidates for Selectman: Three year term, vote for one

Frederick LaTorella
74 Irving Street

1. The Town of Winchester, as well as other communities within the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, faces the grave problem of rising taxes. This issue is upsetting to the local taxpayer and more so to the people on retirement, who cannot stand the strain of higher taxes.

2. As we go into the future, we must face our responsibilities concerning changes that will take place that will be beneficial to the citizens of the town. We have long-range programs which have to be implemented to insure the progress of the town. However necessary changes may arise, forcing us to keep within our budget areas.

3. Having served as a member of the Finance Board for three years, I feel that I have had an excellent opportunity to see the waste and inefficiencies in various town departments.

If given the opportunity to serve as your Selectman, I can serve you well. I will endeavor to make recommendations to all the departments in an effort to eliminate waste and to cut costs and keep our tax rate down.

May I again stress that I want efficient operation in all of our town departments, without reducing any of the good services to our town.

Sherman W. Saltmarsh, Jr.
154 Mt. Vernon Street

1. The principal challenges facing Winchester are maintaining the level and quality of Town services which the residents of Winchester expect and desire in the face of escalating costs of government with constant additional pressures on the tax structures of municipalities; revitalizing the business center of Winchester, thereby, broadening the tax base.

2. Some of these challenges seem insoluble. I feel that through greater utilization of the Executive Secretary, and the computer, and more active participation of Winchester residents in Town Affairs, they will be met. Austerity in budgets must be insisted upon; Our Representatives in the General Court and State Senate must be encouraged to have the legislature make a very substantial move, this year, toward total tax reform. Property owners pay an inordinate share of taxes, therefore, are demanding and deserving of these considerations.

3. The following is a brief resume of some of my community and government activities which I feel qualify me to deal with these challeges:

1964-1966—Special Assistant to Congressman F. Bradford Morse
1964—Present M.B.T.A. Advisory Board, Representative, Town of Winchester
1968—Present Executive Committee, M.B.T.A., Advisory Board
1963-1965—Chairman, Transportation Committee, Town of Winchester
1962-1963 — Member, Public Works Study Committee, Town of Winchester
1959-1962—Board of Selectmen, Town of Winchester (Perfect attendance, 3 yrs.)
1961-1962—Chairman, Board of Selectmen, Town of Winchester
1966-1967 — Chairman, Police Study Committee, Town of Winchester
1956-1969—Town Meeting Member, Precinct 2 (Perfect attendance, 14 yrs.)
1968-1969—Member, Town Government Study Committee

6 Bridge Street

1. The key issue in education today is relevancy. How do we relate our traditional curriculum and methods to our modern technological society, while at the same time implementing new curricula that will help the student develop as a person, with individuality, human dignity and confidence that comes with this awareness?

2. Continuous curriculum research and revision which will direct its impact not only at academic development but also present an opportunity to explore seriously the students' relationship with the adult world.

3. My commitment to and belief in our youth; my fourteen years of experience with youth in classrooms and on athletic teams; the continuing extension of my own training through formal studies enables me to offer the Town a valuable asset necessary when school policy is being formed.

Richard B. Lawrance
150 Highland Avenue

1. Our challenge: living within stringent tax dollar limits, to develop as fully as possible the good, useful, creative potential of all our children.

2. Thus, first, we must increase efficiency in matters large and small. Second, since our children differ greatly in aptitudes, interests, and degrees of focus, we should increase emphasis on recognizing unique potential of each child, developing strong points, strengthening weak points.

This places great demands on judgement, competence, and clarity of purpose of our School Committee and school staff.

3. In attending School Committee meetings rather regularly for nearly a year and High School Building Committee meetings very regularly for nearly two years I have developed an understanding of the problems of these groups, also high respect for the intelligence, energy, and effectiveness of many of the persons involved. My qualifications are stated elsewhere. I believe I have the background and experience to be useful to the Town.

George D. Whitten
4 Dartmouth Street

1. and 2. Challenges and possible soultions

1. Better education for the average student particularly in the fundamentals, create a challenge and greater interest for this large group of underachievers

2. Better student-teacher relationships: more interest in one another, dress code, stricter deportment standards, pride in workmanship and scholastic achievement

3. Qualifications

2. 45 years old
3. Three children who have attended three different elementary schools two of whom have attended Lynch Junior High

Candidates for Regional Vocational School Representative: Four year term, vote for one

The principal challenge is the selling of the opportunities at the Regional School. One solution will be the intense work to be done by the couselors in the junior high schools in presenting the new variety of opportunities in secondary education with the lure of profitable employment, and this is especially favorable for the girls.

I hope also to add a series of articles to the local paper to enlighten the students on additional trends.

Taxpayers Forget To Add Surcharge

Many taxpayers have forgotten to compute the 7.5 percent surcharge on their 1968 Federal tax return, Noriar Pahigian, statistician at the Internal Revenue Service, told members of the Winchester Rotary Club recently.

Not only are some taxpayers forgetting to add the surcharge but others are subtracting it, Pahagian said. Taxpayers who fail to compute the surcharge are being sent corrected bills or refunds, the IRS statistician explained.

He told members of the Rotary Club that the IRS this year is making a concerted effort to have Federal taxpayers due refunds file early so IRS can process the refund speedily. Normally a refund check is delivered in five to six weeks after a taxpayer files a correct return.

Of the 18 million returns processed at the IRS Center in Andover last year, more than 8 million received refunds totaling $1,446,000,000 he said.

Patience is the ability to idle your motor when you feel like stripping your gears.

English Jazz-Rock To Play At Newport Festival

The sound of jazz-rock from England will be featured at the Newport Jazz Festival this summer. Producer George Wein has announced he has booked Jethro Tull, Jeff Beck, Led Zeppelin, and Ten Years After to participate in the 16th session of the Newport event.

The groups represent the latest wave of British music to hit the United States. Like previous groups, these are basically rooted in the blues, but are stylistically closer to jazz, with an emphasis on solo virtuosity.

Jimmy Page (Led Zeppelin), Alvin Lee (Ten Years After), and Jeff Beck have all gained reputations as extraordinarily inventive guitarists. Ian Anderson of Jethro Tull leads the group on flute, giving the group a more conventional jazz sound.

Wein believes these groups will bring a new enthusiasm and a new, young audience to the jazz scene and will help bridge the gap between jazz and rock. Conversely, he believes that exposure to the high degree of musicality of jazz musicians will help the rock scene to grow creatively.

Whatever the outcome, the experiment promises to be an important event in the continuing history of jazz and may well point the way to the future for both rock and jazz.

Several American rock groups will also be included in this year's festival and will be announced at a later date.

IRS Offers Tax Service

Internal Revenue Service District Director William E. Williams has announced taxpayer assistance will be available in the Boston office located at the John F. Kennedy Federal Building, Government Center, Monday through Friday until February 28.

On these days, Internal Revenue Service personnel will be available from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. to assist in the preparation of Federal income tax returns.

Mr. Williams urges all taxpayers in need of assistance to complete as much of their return as possible before calling at the office.

Taxpayers desiring telephone assistance may call 223-3441 any time from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on the dates indicated.

Opening dates for the month of March will be announced at a later date.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

One of the bright spots in a small neighboring town was Sam's Cafe. Then one night fire struck. Sam's Cafe was "burned out!" Everyone hoped he would quickly rebuild. But Sam didn't —and people wondered why.

Then a cold fact came to light: Sam had NO insurance! He didn't carry insurance because the premium seemed expensive to him.

But without insurance, Sam had NO money to use in rebuilding and refurnishing the cafe. As a result, Sam took a job in another line of work.

The tragedy of NO insurance is NOT just Sam's, but is felt by the whole community as well. The citizens of the small town will miss Sam's Cafe, a congenial place to meet and eat! And Sam must pursue a new line of work that he doesn't really enjoy. Finally, Sam lost many thousands of dollars.

Insurance premiums may cost money but they simply AREN'T that expensive! Let us help you plan an insurance program that you can pay for on convenient terms. There is no excuse for following Sam's example. May we discuss this with you?

Lincoln Parents Hear Councils On Curriculum

Members of the curriculum councils on math and social studies spoke on the structural changes in the curriculum and outlined the developments that are planned for the immediate future in the Winchester schools at a meeting of the Lincoln School Parents Association recently.

The math council has instituted a coordinated program in grades K through 12.

A cumulative progress record is kept for each child and terminal goals have been set at the third, sixth and twelfth grade levels.

The social studies council noted there has been no major change in the Social Studies program in over 40 years. They are introducing a new approach beginning in grade one which will be more meaningful in our modern world and which will broaden the child's understanding.

Mrs. Morgan, president of the Lincoln School Parents Association, noted the amount of time and effort that has been given by the members of the curriculum councils to these programs.

A second meeting with the science and English curriculum councils planned for February 11 had to be cancelled due to the snow storm and will be rescheduled in the near future.

Guild Plans Luncheon

The February meeting of the Winchester Chapter Guild of the Infant Saviour will feature a hot covered dish luncheon, at 12 noon, Wednesday, February 26, at the K. of C. Hall, Mt. Vernon Street. Members and non-members are welcome.

Mrs. Walter Crotty and Mrs. C. Philip O'Rourke are co-chairmen and will be assisted by:

Mrs. Frederick H. Brigham
Mrs. John D. Duffy
Mrs. John T. Griffin
Mrs. Andrew D. Guthrie
Mrs. John E. Hanlon

Mrs. James W. Kirk
Mrs. George W. McCarthy
Mrs. Albert T. McDougall
Mrs. Oscar E. Merrow

Mrs. Stanley Seaver
Mrs. George F. Winterson

A silent auction will follow the production.

Braking distances on glare ice can be cut in half by using reinforced tire chains, according to tests by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards. But even with tire chains, it takes far longer to stop on ice than on dry pavement, according to Chief of Police Joseph Derro. He warns that much slower than normal speeds are essential.

Lynch Crowns Princess In Haute Couturier Show

by Lois Carr

Plaids, posies plains or prints came across the ramp in stylish short school shifts, skirts and slacks. The audience was enraptured.

Based on an Alice in Wonderland theme, the Lynch Junior High School's "Fashions in Wonderland" Friday night featured the crowning of lovely seamstress, Leslie Baerenwald as Fashion Princess of 1969.

NANCY HANSON sports a print.

Each of the 38 pretty models stepped through the keyhole into Fashion Wonderland in several outfits they had made in sewing classes under the guidance of home economics teacher, Miss Sarah Jones.

To carry out the theme, the younger sisters of some of the talented seamstresses paraded as the White Rabbit, the Dormouse and a busy bumble bee.

Smashing

Princess Leslie, a tall, slim young lady with long auburn hair overwhelmed the judges with her grace and poise in outfits she had made in sewing class.

These included a carefully tailored and fitted black and white herring bone tweed cape and pant suit. The cape had a smashing red pile lining. She also modeled a psychedelic print dress in gay pastel shades and a red overblouse and gray slacks with bell bottoms set.

Joanne Collins, last year's titleholder, passed her crown on to Leslie after the judging of all the 9th grade home economics students in the show held in the Lynch cafetorium.

Commentated by the students themselves, the show was judged by teachers and home economics teachers from other schools.

Walking among the toadstools in Wonderland was second runner-up, Barbara Higgins who modeled her white brocade sleeveless dress and cape ensemble. Rosemary Dunn tailored a beautiful, navy blue wool coat with a white stand-up collar to capture the first runner-up spot.

MARY DOBBINS lights things up with a plaid.

Grooming Counted

The talented fifteen-year old girls appeared in a wide variety of styles displaying poise and good grooming (factors important in judging as well as quality of construction of the garments).

In addition to school clothes, short and long pant suits illustrated casual wear for the teenager. The girls also made and modeled luxurious hostess and lounge long-legged pant dresses. Colorful, rich velvet, silks and brocades were made and worn as glamorous creations for dress-up and evening wear.

Following the crowning of the Fashion Princess the models were hostesses at a tea. Skillful sewing students served sweets prepared for proud parents.

Heart attack is the largest single cause of death in the United States killing more than 500,000 persons each year.

Government Pays $50 Million For Recreation

More than $50 million has been obligated by the Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation's Northeast Regional Office for the planning, acquisition and development of outdoor recreation areas and facilities in the Northeast.

The announcement was made by Rolland B. Handley, Regional Director of the Bureau's Northeast Regional Office in Philadelphia.

According to Handley, 658 projects have been approved for more than $50 million in matching grants from the Land and Water Conservation Fund between January 1, 1965 and February 7, 1969.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund Act was passed by Congress in 1964 and became operational in January, 1965. Since that time it has become an effective force in helping the States, their political subdivisions, and the Federal agencies provide outdoor recreation opportunities for the country's expanding population.

The $50 million mark was surpassed when a project proposal from Manchester, New Hampshire was approved. The Bureau of Outdoor Recreation has obligated some $154,350 to aid the community in the acquisition and development of a ski slope.

Dr. Alpert Seeks State Support To Continue Work At Poison Center

The Boston Poison Information Center is seeking support of a bill in the Legislature to convert to a State public agency, says Dr. Joel J. Alpert of 6 Partridge Lane, secretary of the Center.

Use of the Center has gone to 20,000 persons in 1968 over 200 in 1954, when it was established. This is making the cost prohibitive to the four Boston hospitals which now absorb it, Dr. Alpert explained.

A hearing on the bill was held Tuesday in the State House. "I urge citizens to call or write their representatives in support of this bill," said Dr. Alpert, who also is chief of the Family and Child Health Division at The Children's Hospital Medical Center in Boston.

One In Five

"One in five children are accidentally poisoned once by the age of five," according to Dr. Alpert. "Accidental poisoning of children, who are the prime victims, can result in their death or disability. Better methods of treatment and prevention are mandatory.

If the Center became state supported it would cost about $150,000 the first year, according to Dr. Alpert. With further Federal government commitments in the next five years, however, the Massachusetts Poison Center, hooked into a regional computer system, could serve the entire northeast, he said.

Realignment of the Boston Center, now located at The Children's Hospital, 300 Longwood Avenue, Boston, could eliminate duplication within the State. For example, three poison centers serve the Springfield area, where but one is needed, Dr. Alpert pointed out.

Growing Hazard

Growing numbers and various kinds of toxic drugs, coupled with insufficient labeling and inadequate explanations of ingredients, hamper a physician's ability to cope with accidental poisoning. "A cost-conscious State cannot afford to overlook this growing hazard," Dr. Alpert said.

Under State sponsorship, the Poison Center in Boston would serve as a back-up for Centers in Springfield, Worcester, New Bedford, Fall River and Pittsfield. A full-time staff would be mandatory with four hospitals providing physican coverage as needed.

Currently, coverage of the Poison Center is provided by Children's Hospital, City Hospital, Massachusetts General and the Boston Floating. Resident pediatricians answer calls for information, and a part-time medical director, clerk and secretary, in addition to the resources of the four hospitals, are available, Dr. Alpert explained.

In addition to providing information, according to Dr. Alpert, the Center involves all the teaching pediatric services in Boston, the Department of Legal Medicine of Harvard Medical School, the Massachusetts Chapter of the American academy of General Practice, the Massachusetts Pharmaceutical Association, the Massachusetts Chapter of the Americal Academy of Pediatrics, and the State Department of Public Health.

Mr. Richardson Honored By Boy Scouts At Banquet

More than four hundred adult leaders, representing the three hundred Troops, Packs, and Explorer units of the Minuteman Council, Inc., Boy Scouts of America, attended the Council's annual recognition dinner held at the Hillview Country Club in North Reading recently.

HARRIS S. RICHARDSON JR.

Harris S. Richardson Jr. of 11 Ledgewood Road, president of the Minuteman Council, reviewed the Council's progress during the past year and called particular attention to the fact that more than five hundred additional boys were added to the membership.

Council Commissioner Kenneth A. Cameron of Arlington recognized those units which earned the National Pack Summertime Award and the National Camping Award. He also paid tribute to adults who have gained veteran status in service to youth including Francis Lawton of Winchester, 420 Washington Street who has served for 10 years.

John M. Mugar of Belmont, chairman of the Board challenged those assembled to continue their good work on behalf of youth and noted the ever-increasing need of responsibile participation on the part of young adults and that Scouting contributes greatly to the cause.

Highlight of the evening was the Silver Beaver Court of Honor, convened by John Ryder of Melrose, assisted by Palmer Day of Watertown, Carl Getz of Concord and H. Andrew Brodecki of Reading. This Court was called to bestow the Silver Beaver Award to Scouters who have exemplified the high ideals of the Scouting program in their church, community, and demonstrated exceptional leadership in the Boy Scout Program.

Those honored included Mr. Richardson.

Featured speaker of the evening was J. Harold Williams, former Scout executive of the Narragansett Council, Boy Scouts of America.

The Minuteman Council serves over 12,000 boys in three hundred units located in Arlington, Bedford, Belmont, Burlington, Carlisle, Concord, L. G. Hanscom AFB, Lexington, Lincoln, Malden, Medford, Melrose, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Waltham, Watertown, Winchester and Woburn.

Sponsored by the Winchester branch of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association, the Mother's Morning Out program held at the Methodist Church on February 6th was "a valuable experience," according to many attendants.

About 20 young mothers, many of whom have recently moved to Winchester, enjoyed coffee and talk with one another.

Both meetings will be held at the Methodist Church. The time is from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Baby sitting service will be provided and transportation will be offered. Please call Mrs. Maxwell McCreery 729-2036.

Questions For CONCERN

CONCERN, Winchester's Committee on New Concepts of Educational and Therapeutic Needs, is currently answering under this heading questions mailed to its mailbox, Winchester Post Office Box 93 (signed or anonymous); or questions put to any one of its members.

Today's question is:

"In view of the alarming increase of veneraeal disease throughout the nation, is anything being done in Winchester properly to educate our young people to this hazard?"

The question has been answered in the following way by Mrs. Terri Ostrach, instructor in personal ethics in the secondary schools together with Dr. Walter P. Gleason, assistant superintendent for curriculum:

"The subject of V. D. is discussed with students in Grades 8 and 11 at levels commensurate with their maturity. To assure adequate coverage of the subject, materials on V. D. are distributed to all students attending the Personal Ethics classes. The extension of the Personal Ethics courses into other grades as low as 5th is now being planned. Attention is being given to a statement of the State Department of Communicable Diseases that V. D. instruction should begin by grade 7 at the latest.'

High School Seniors Special Program

With today's competition and pressures, college acceptance often seems like a full-time job. However, acceptance is only the first step. Adjusting to the increased academic demands, where the student must take full responsibility for his academic success, is the next step.

It has been estimated that a college freshman has approximately one million words of required reading, and over three million words of supplementary reading during his first year of college. Reading at an average speed, it would take one month of reading, ten hours a day, without any breaks to digest this amount of printed material.

Each high school senior should ask whether his present reading skills are adequate for the job ahead. Is he familiar with the newest reading techniques designed to develop "reading efficiency" producing the best comprehension at the highest speed possible for the reading task at hand?

The Scholastic Achievement Center of Melrose is offering a special course for high school seniors which will combine speed reading techniques with a review of the most progressive study techniques: such as, how to prepare for and take exams, learn detailed material, write well, do reading assignments effectively. We will double or triple a person's reading speed on technical material and teach each student how to read a novel within 90 minutes.

Leo Boodakian Speaks To Home & Garden

The patterns of Oriental rugs were discussed by Leo Boodakian of Boodakian and Sons, Main Street, in his lecture to the Winchester Home and Garden Club.

Members viewed slides depicting the steps taken in the creation of these rugs. Mr. Boodakian also displayed a variety of rugs. The lecture concluded with the history of a Persian rug displayed for members to examine. The rug, containing many pictures of famous people, is known as the million dollar rug of civilization.

At the business meeting the Club's coming fashion show on April 16 was discussed. Ticket chairmen for the event are Mrs. Walter L. Dignam and Mrs. D. Francis Rimoli.

Bruins Regain League Lead; Coming Up Last Week

The Bruins regained sole possession of first place last week as they knocked off the Maple Leafs 5-3 while the fast charging Black Hawks kept pace one point behind as they dumped the Rangers out of first place to third, with a thrilling 2-1 victory.

The Red Wings whipped the Canadiens 4-2 in the other game played.

There is one week of regular season play left in the big rink with two weeks of playoffs to follow. In the small rink, games will go on for the next three weeks as scheduled. It is also hoped to have a game between the coaches and league officials and the Bantam "A" team. Last year the coaches throughly trounced the Bantams toying with them throughout the game. It is rumored that this year the coaches may not use a goalie in order to give the Bantams a fighting chance.

Tommy Belden's hat trick paced the Red Wings to an easy 4-2 victory over the Canadiens.

The Red Wings, who were at full strength for the first time in four weeks, kept the pressure on the Canadiens throughout the whole game. Their first line of Jimmy Dale, George Evans and Tommy Belden was just too much for the Habs to cope with.

Dale, who tied for the League's top scorer, had two assists while George Evans had one. Rich Maggio scored the other Wings' goal with hustling Bobby Ungaretti picking up an assist. Ron Martignetti and Jackie Brennan had the scores for the Canadiens, both unassisted efforts.

The Canadiens coach Bevan O'Callagahan missed the game. He was in Arizona.

The Black Hawks ended the Rangers' five-game winning streak and stayed in second place one point off the pace with a stunning 2-1 win.

The Hawks' team leader Billy Harris had a hand in both of the scores, netting the first one himself and setting up Mark Siegfreidt for the winner. Rick Murphy had the Rangers' only score, an unassisted effort. Dennis O'Donnell and Jim Grenier were the two netminders in this game and both played outstanding hockey in this battle between two high-flying clubs.

Offense Clicks

The final game of the day saw the fine offense of the Bruins open at full throttle as Coach Bob Murray had his boys up for this one as they ended their two-game losing streak by downing a spirited Maple Leafs team 5-3.

The Bruins, who led the league in goals scored, also showed what great balance they have as five different players did the scoring.

Jim Beck, Doug Parkhill, Bill Gannon, Bobby Gill and Joey Penta had the scores for the B's, with Gannon and Gill picking up assists along with Dave Frongillo and Rick "The Blur" Coakley who was called up in an emergency fill in role for the Bruins.

Coakley became the third goalie to play a forward position this year, having been preceded by Rich Maggio and Dennis O'Donnell. This shows the fine skating ability that goalies must have and these boys possess. Jim Grenier another goalie was a forward before he was converted to don the big pads and can skate with most of the front liners in the league.

Mike O'Leary and Cliff Falla are the other two guardians of the nets are also fine skaters and probably take an occasional shot at the forward position in the near future.

Paul Whitney had two of the Maple Leafs scores and moved into a first place tie with Jimmy Dale of the Red Wings for leading scorer, Jimmy Graham also lit the lamp for the Leafs putting in Johnny Murphy's rebound, while Mike Sandford picked up an assist on Whitney's second goal.

Flyers Roll On

In the small rink, the Flyers continue to make a runaway of the race as they routed the Blues 6-0 in the first game and then were held by the spirited North Stars to a 1-1 tie. The North Stars gained a 2-0 victory in their other game over the Seals.

The high flying Kings were the most successful of anyone as they won both of their games 1-0 over the Seals and 2-1 over the Blues. With their great performance, the Kings moved into sole possesion of second place, two points ahead of the North Stars.

Highlight of the week in the small rink was the fine all-around play of the Flyers in their 6-0 romp over the Blues.

Willie Paglia and Bud Rau had two goals apiece while Rau's linemates Jon Pettee and Bob Coppins each had a goal. For his fine play of the day, Bud Rau was chosen as player of the week. Since the opening of the season, Rau is one of the most improved players in the small rink and is skating well.

Tommy Belden's hat trick earned him player of the week in the big rink. Belden, who has been out of action for a couple of weeks, returned in a blaze of glory to the hockey wars. Tom shoots right-handed and has probably the hardest shot in the league.

Tracksters Close Season With Loss

Wakefield High's powerful dual meet team turned in its best performance of the year last Saturday to win the closing meet of the year from the Sachems by a score of 71-15.

Mike Deshler, sophomore sprinter, was the only local boy to cop a first place while Co-Captain Rick Mobbs in the hurdles and Bob Doty in the 300 were second in their events.

The remaining Sachem points were won by Les Fabuss in the shotput, Mobbs in the high jump, Marty Hill in the hurdles, and Ronnie Allard in the 600, all of whom finished third.

Such Winchester reliables as Co-Captain Neal Benshimol a consistent winner in the 1,000 yard run and Ken Tully who had a string of seven consecutive seconds in the two mile run were bypassed by the onrushing Wakefield runners, who finished the season in third place beaten only by the champion Melrose team and runnerup Lexington.

After beating Lexington 55-31 the Middlesex League trophy was presented to the champions, to add to their State Class B and B.A.A. awards.

The summary:

Bantam 'A's' Win 2, Lose 1

The Bantam "A" team record is now 7 wins and 2 losses.

Arlington dealt the Sachems their second loss of the season 2-1, in a fast paced game. After Arlington went ahead, Pete Sandford set up Steve Spang for the tying goal with Spang scoring on a great effort. Arlington won it in the third period despite some great play by Bill Gannon, Paul McCormack, Mike Sandford, Ed Pierce and the aforementioned Spang.

The team snapped back with a high-flying victory over a good Peabody team 6-3. Steve Troiano led the scoring with 2 goals and 2 assists. Ricky Murphy, the best two way player that Winchester has had in many a year, had a goal and a pair of assists. It's a treat to see this hustling center on the ice putting out 100% and his coach predicates he will be a great addition to the varsity when he moves up to the High School next year. Big George Evans set up by Bobby Carroll, ever improving Ed Pierce and Paul McCormack assisted by Tom Belden were the other scorers.

In a thrilling game that was settled only five miuntes from the end, the Winchester club set back South Boston 4-3, in their first meeting of the year. They meet again March 1, at Hockey Town at 8:50 p.m.

Winchester started quickly scoring three goals in the first period. Rick Murphy opened the scoring on a great individual effort snapping a wrist shot from 20 feet out into the lower left hand corner of the net. Murphy scored again after being set up beautifully by his wingers Dave Frongillo and Steve Toriano.

Shortly thereafter, Joe Penta sent the puck back to the point and Ed Pierce boomed it in.

There was a big letdown after that, and after South Boston tied it up, late arriving Jim Dale won it, being set up by Pete Sandford and Kevin Pierce. Incidentally, Jimmy's family will be moving at the end of the school season and it will be a big loss to Winchester as hustling Jim has great ability and is sure to be outstanding in High School.

The Bantams play Malden at Hockey Town on Saturday February 22 at 8:50 p.m. and close their season a week later at the same time against South Boston.

Concord Tops Hoopsters Who End Tied For Fourth

The curtain dropped on the Middlesex League basketball season last Friday and the Sachems lost to Concord 70-59 to end up in a triple tie for fourth place with Belmont and Reading all fiinishing with 6-8 records.

The final game of the season will be at home with Woburn next Wednesday.

Taking into account the non-league victories already posted over Woburn and Arlington the slate is now exactly even. A win over the Tanners who have had their troubles this season would find Winchester on the right side of the ledger by 9-8. Coach Vandy French is working the boys hard and hopes for a good turnout for the finale.

Concord bested the local team on some sharpshooting by Mark Ambrose of the football playing brothers Mike and Mark. He netted 23 points to top all scorers and was ably backed by Gilfeather and Clark who tossed in a total of 31 to account for most of the home team's total.

Coach Hayes did not use his tight ball control game which had worked to good advantage against Lexington and resulted in a 42-21 win over Melrose. However, the Concord quintet did succeed in limiting Capt. Tom Workman to a season's low of 13 markers and kept Jack Papadinis to five floor goals and 10 from the foul line.

On February 12th the Valentine prizes were won by Jo Russo and Ina Manson for being the most pins over their averages. Over one-third of the bowlers were absent and of the ones present, Betty Morgan's 104 was the only string of 100. Too much shoveling, no doubt!

Captain Lee Arsenian of the Yellow Birds had the morning's high series, 280, in a 2-2 split with the Deadwoods. The two games the Birds lost were by only one pin each, which is rough for the Yellow Birds, but the Deadwoods are not complaining.

Ball Boys Help Present This Week's Tennis Show

Several Winchester boys are functioning in very important roles in the tourney as they assume their duties as "ball boys" at the 1969 Women's Indoor National Lawn Tennis Championships at the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center through Sunday.

The boys have the responsibility of seeing that the pace of the tournament is maintained by clearing the court of loose balls and seeing that balls are readily available to the players without delay. The challenge is to perform this with as little distraction as possible to the players. These boys work to blend in with the total atmosphere of the tennis court.

Ken Tew, tennis professional at the Tennis Center, oriented the boys to their job with practice sessions. The actual task of assembling, assigning and supervising the ball boys rested with Brad Lindgren of Winchester, chairman of this committee.

Ball boys receive no compensation for their services but the opportunity to view the matches from a near to the action vantage position.

Pee Wees Lose To Arlington 7-4

The Winchester Pee Wee B hockey team played their first game of the season this past Sunday but lost a thriller to the league leading Arlington 7-4.

The local team trailed by a single goal with five minutes to play but two late goals put the game out of reach.

Arlington scored first although the first and second lines put continuous pressure on the Arlington net. Late in the first period Will Paglia took the puck away from an Arlington defenseman in the corner and wheeled behind the net and deflected his shot into the net.

Arlington went ahead early in the second period. Dave Dolan tied the game again when he won a face-off and skated into the Arlington zone to beat the goalie with a fine shot. Arlington again went ahead with just five seconds left in the second period.

Arlington scored twice more early in the third period as they threatened to break the game wide open. Winchester rebounded, however, as Frank Ryan stickhandled behind the Arlington goal until he found Dave Dolan in front of the net. Dave's wrist shot found the corner for his second goal of the night.

Several minutes later Allyn Stillman skated in from right wing but his shot was stopped by the Arlington goalie. Allyn put his rebound behind the net to Boo McKenzie who fell to the ice but swept the puck into the net while prone on the ice.

Winchester came close to tying the game several times after this. Defensemen Kevin Pronski, Tom Allyn, Mark Milley and Charley Deroo turned in fine efforts as did winger Kevin O'Neill.

Mike O'Leary did well in the nets but did not have much luck as several shots trickled in after Mike made the initial save and several more were poked in from under Mike after he had covered the puck.

The next few weeks will find the team making a bid to finish in the first division. Next week's opponent is Acton at 5 p.m. in Bedford.

Sachem Girls End Season Victoriously

The Winchester Girls' Basketball team ended their season last Friday with a 49-28 win over Concord.

Co-captains Cathy Niles and Marcia Barrow led the team with 16 and 14 points respectively. Kimbar of Concord was high scorer for her team with 12 points.

Although handicapped by the loss of guards Lynn Stites and Jean Hoyt and sophomore Sue Goodwin, the girls out-played the opposition in every quarter.

Juniors Merily Ober and Debby Doyle replaced the two seniors as guards and provided a strong defense, allowing only 12 points in the first half as compared to Winchester's 24. Junior Janet Peterson also saw varsity action as a guard.

Forwards Lynn Anderson, Kathy Harris and Sue Swanson each played a strong game and their plays baffled the Concord defense.

Although much of the rebounding was controlled by the tall Kimbar, the forwards were always in there and Kathy Harris managed to grab the ball several times.

The girls' season ended with four wins and three losses.

The Junior Varsity, again handicapped by the loss of Alicia Paulson and Joan Sullivan, handily defeated Concord 28-8. They ended the season with a record of five wins and two losses.

Dooley, Thomas, Webb Qualify For State Meet

The Winchester High wrestlers coached by Tom Kline, took part in the regional finals held last week at Newton South High School. This meet is the final qualifying round for the annual State Meet to be held this week end at Lowell Technological Institute.

Several of the boys turned in good performances and Mike Dooley, Bob Thomas and Noel Webb will represent the Sachem team in the final round. Mike, who wrestles in the 105 pound class was winner in his class by making two pins and winning once by a decision. This duplicates his feat of last year when he won his division as a sophomore.

In the 112 pound class Bob Thomas finished second and in the process he defeated Jerry Silva of Lexington, division winner last year and second in the 1968 State Meet. Noel Webb also did well in the unlimited class and made fourth place to enter the finals tomorrow and Saturday.

2-2 Hockey Draw vs. Lexington

Lexington provided the opposition in the Saturday hockey game and when the final whistle sounded the teams were deadlocked at two goals apiece.

The first period was a nightmarish one for the Sachems as they couldn't seem to get together offensively or defensively. Joe Chapman poked the puck into the cage for Lexington after only two minutes had passed.

Joe Hyde added a second marker after less than a minute of the second period on an assist by Chapman.

Winchester finally started to move the puck around and Jay O'Leary tallied for the Sachems with Ben Dolan getting an assist. The same pair also combined for the second and deadlocking local goal with the lamp being lighted this time by burly Ben.

By this time the defense had found itself and for the remainder of the game neither side was able to penetrate the opposing alignment.

Melrose moved to within a single game of the League title by downing second place Stoneham 5-3.

Coach Kelley's ice men face a rugged schedule this week as they faced off against Concord yesterday and are journeying to West Point today for a game with the Army Plebes.

They will be back for a Saturday game at 3 against Watertown in a game which will have much to do with their final rating in the Middlesex League.

Middlesex Hockey League News

by Frank Burns

Melrose became the first team in the Middlesex League to qualify for the State Hockey Tournament with their win over Stoneham Saturday. The Red Raiders need another win to clinch at least a tie for their fifth straight league title and sixth since the league was started 10 years ago.

The Red Raiders will have to wait until a week from Wednesday, however since they have drawn a bye for next Saturday's round.

Stoneham could qualify for the Tournament with a win or tie over Concord. They meet the Patriots in the opening game at 12:30. Reading and Belmont will clash in another crucial game at 12:55. Both have four losses and another loss would eliminate them from a tournament bid. They are also fighting for third place in the league.

Watertown and Winchester meet in the third game at 3 o'clock while Lexington and Wakefield will close out the program at 3:25.

Steve Dolloff of Melrose still holds a 13-point lead over teammate Joe White in the battle for individual scoring honors. Dolloff has 16 goals and 27 assists for 43 points.

This verse is part of the Bible Lesson-Sermon titled "Mind," and will be read in all Christian Science churches this sunday.
One of the selections to be included from the denominational textbook is the following: "Mind is not necessarily dependent upon educational processes. It possesses of itself all beauty and poetry, and the power of expressing them. Spirit, God, is heard when the senses are silent" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy).

Winchester Duplicate Bridge Club

On Wednesday, February 12th, the week of the big storm, a sparse crowd was expected, but apparently everyone had been snowbound long enough and was eager to see friends and swap tales of the record northeaster before settling down to rest their shoveling muscles at the bridge table. Twenty-two tables were in play.

Paul Sanderson reports some results from the first round of team-of-four games played in the homes.

The Lelands and Holmes won from the Hawley-White team.

The Mingolellis and Stiteses were winners over the Root-Butterfield pairing.

The Norman Houldings and guests Messrs. Palo and McCown came out ahead in their game with the Cincotta-Larsen team.

The William Duryeas and Ray Browns won their match against the McNeills playing with June Redding and Dan Blanchard.

The Sandersons and guests Messers. Sherff and Karnath were the winners after an evening's play with the Lynch-Murphy team.

These matches are scored by the cumulative scoring of International Match Points instead of each board counting equally as on Wednesdays; in short, your big hands count more than your little ones.

In Section A, Ida Finlay and Bill Duryea squeaked out a very close win North-South, a mere half point ahead of the Blacklers. East-West Elodie Flewelling and Ruth Hagan had the only big game to come in first.

Jim Bradley and Bob Fiske	122½

In Section B Nancy Atkinson and Paul Sanderson had the best score in both fields.

Board 19 in Section B (rotated for convenience) is a prime example of how easy it is to bid knowing what is in your partner's hand. Look at all four hands, and it is obvious that in a heart contract North-South can take all the tricks. The club finesse works, but there is no point in risking it, for the South hand can take out the trumps, play the Ace of clubs and ruff the suit until he can discard his losing spades on the remaining good clubs.

With a little extra thought, however, by South, when the dummy goes down, there is a safer way to make the seven. For if hearts break 3-1, there aren't enough leads to the North hand to set up the clubs without the possibly losing finesse. Just concentrate on getting rid of the losers in the South hand, namely three spades. One will go on the Ace of diamonds, and two can be ruffed by North. Check first of course for enough leads, and away you go.

There are variatons to the play depending on the opening lead, but the general approach is as follows. Take out one round of hearts with the Ace before leading toward the Ace of spades and ruffing a spade. Then over to the King of diamonds and ruff the second spade, back to the South hand with the Queen of diamonds. Now take out the trumps with two leads if necessary, lead to the board with the Ace of clubs and discard the last spade on the Ace of diamonds. (If a club is led originally, you have to discard the spade on the Ace of diamonds the last time you are in the North hand, which involves playing the Queen of diamonds first; you come back to the South hand with a club ruff to lead out the trumps.)

Now back to the bidding. Pick your favorite partner and see if you would reach the slam in hearts. In actual competition no one bid the cold seven, and only three of the ten pairs bid six. All of which only proves what any bridge player knows,—a partner you can communicate with so that you know where the cards are, whether by a straightforward system, a complicated one, or varying degrees of E.S.P., is a joy and delight and worth his weight in milled gold.

To Halt The Staggering Waste: A Bold Approach In Mental Health

In search of a better way to help people needing mental health and mental retardation care and to halt the staggering waste of manpower and human resources, the Massachusetts Legislature passed into law one of the most compassionate and enlightened programs effective March 28, 1967, entitled: "The Comprehensive Mental Health and Retardation Services Act."

Now serving from Winchester to implement the act are Neil H. Borden, Reese E. James and the Reverend Henry Marquardt.

They are members of the Mystic Valley Area Board working with professional and lay representatives from Arlington, Burlington, Lexington and Woburn, the other towns in the area.

They are working on many new approaches.

Behind the State law is the belief that persons afflicted with mental illness or retardation should be cared for and treated, whenever possible, in their own community.

Too often due to the lack of facilities close to home, patients must be sent to distant hospitals, cut off from families, friends and jobs. As a result they are forced to cope not only with their mental condition, but also with the strangeness and loneliness of a large institution. Long-term, in-patient care often has adverse effects, especially where custodial care has not been supplemented by programs of rehabilitation and training.

Mystic Valley Community

The Commonwealth has been divided into 37 areas. Winchester's is the Mystic Valley. In addition to a director, each area is administered by the area board composed of 21 citizens who live and work within the area and who have demonstrated an interest in the problems of the mentally ill and the mentally retarded.

The concept of community care will establish in each area a comprehensive program eventually to provide 24 hour day and night care, both in-patient and outpatient, for long or short periods of time, for children and adults.

In establishing comprehensive services in each area, the emphasis is on care, not on buildings. Existing community facilities will be used and expanded wherever feasible.

The area boards serve as official agencies of the Commonwealth, within the Department of Mental Health to represent the citizens.

Mystic Valley's board members have been meeting monthly assessing the needs of the five communities and planning for future services.

To assist in this direction, there are now two sub-committees: the Mental Health Services Advisory Committee and the Mental Retardation Services Advisory Committee.

1970 Budget

The Mental Health Services Advisory Committee has had the availability of a State-wide directory of services published by the Massachusetts Mental Health Association—a help determining all on-going programs in Mystic Valley. This committee, working together with Dr. Morton B. Newman, director of the Mystic Valley Children's Clinic, submitted to the State a specific proposal to expand the services offered by the Mystic Valley Mental Health Center and to offer needed adult outpatient services here. They called for an increase in the 1970 Mental Health Budget for this area of $186,500.00. The area board is awaiting action on its request.

The Mystic Valley MHA and the MHA of Central Middlesex have in co-operation with the Metropolitan State Hospital carried out since 1965 the Mental Health Case Aid Program. One morning a week is required for a minimum of one year for case aide work. The aide works with the patient on a one-to-one basis in an effort to return him or her to the community.

Case aides are supervised by a psychiatric social worker who works closely with the volunteer, patient, and the staff of the hospital.

Retardation Directory

The Mental Retardation Services Advisory Committee has met monthly to determine services and programs available.

Since there is presently no directory of services available here, it worked searching out desired information. The committee is now compiling a new Directory of Services for the Retarded in and around the Mystic Valley.

It is right now trying to contact all parents and custodians of the retarded so that a copy of the directory may be forwarded when completed. Of great importance is the need to communicate with parents regarding the group's activities, and further the need for parents to inform the committee as to needed programs and services so that recommendations can be made to the area board.

Parents Needed

In an attempt to reach all parents of the retarded, letters are being distributed through school departments and social agencies. Attached to the letter is a form which parents may fill in to request a copy of the Directory of Services for the Retarded. Also attached is a list of names, addresses and telephone numbers of members of this sub-committee so that parents may call for information or assistance.

Anyone knowing of a parent of a retarded person whom the committee may not be reaching, is asked to suggest that they contact Joseph A. Buonomo, 31 Tomahawk Road, Arlington.

Toastmistresses' Speech Contest

One of the highlights of the year for the Winchester Toastmistress Club is the annual speech contest.

Mrs. Harold Gibson, speech contest chairman, has announced this year's contest will be held Monday, February 24, at 8 p.m. at the Church of the Epiphany, 70 Church Street.

Competing this year are Miss Lois Hamilton, Mrs. Charles Tyner, Mrs. Robert Garneau and Mrs. Aldo Pietrantoni all of Medford. Subjects for the contest will be given to the contestants one week prior to the contest.

The winner of the Winchester Club's contest will meet the winners of other local Toastmistress Clubs in competition at the Council No. 3 International Toastmistress Club Speech Contest on April 26, at the Framingham Motor Inn.

Guests are invited to attend.

Lockout Or Strike Bills Are Opposed

A number of bills to provide unemployment benefits to employees during lockouts or strikes were opposed before the legislative committee on commerce and labor recently by the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Attorney William F. Joy, chairman of the Chamber's Labor Committee, told the legislators that the so-called "lockout" bills (S. 217, H. 2654, H. 3194 and H. 3433) "would be contrary to elementary principles of justice to require an employer to finance a labor dispute in which he is involved."

"A lockout is just as much a labor dispute as a strike," Joy said. "In the context of collective bargaining, both union and employer have the same objective, namely, the reaching of an agreement."

"The proposed legislation," he said, "would represent an unwarranted intrusion into the bargaining process, in effect, denying to an employer the use of the lockout, the counterpart of the strike, in derogation of the statutory scheme of collective bargaining."

He said the lockout bills would align the state on the side of the unions in collective bargaining, compel employers to subsidize unions during disputes, deny employers legitimate techniques to implement collective bargaining and impose intolerable and impractical burdens on the Division of Employment Security and the Courts in defining each lockout case.

Joy also opposed three strike benefit bills, H. 484, H. 2656 and H. 977.

The heart and blood vessel diseases are responsible for more industrial lost time than strikes and work stoppages.

TENNIS QUEENS HERE THIS WEEK

Special to the Star

Winchester is the women's tennis capitol of the United States this week as for the third straight year John Koslowski's East Street Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center is the home of the National Women's Indoor Championships. Matches began yesterday and run through Sunday afternoon. They start each day at 1 p.m. Tickets are available at the Center.

Fourteen of the top 20 gals in the U. S. national rankings, plus three prominent stars from overseas, are presenting their credentials at the capitol, which has made this tournament an increasingly popular event since it was moved to the "Winchester Cathedral" in 1967.

From All Over

This year girls have come from Texas and California, Johannesburg and Amsterdam—and places in between. With them they have brought schoolbooks, hair dryers, good luck charms...and all kinds of racquets. And they are all hoping to leave with a very special souvenir—the handsome cup which symbolizes supremacy in one of the four major U. S. women's championships.

Some of the girls have their own followings here, too. The word about Winchester's hospitality has spread among the female nomads of tennis. Many of the contestants stay with the same family each time they come here, and the typical result is mutual admiration.

Wide Open

This year's tournament should be a wide-open scramble. Billie Jean King of Long Beach, California was the winner last year, subduing Rosie Casals of San Francisco in the finale for her third consecutive Indoor singles title. Both B. J. and Rosie have departed from the amateur ranks, though, leaving a number of well-balanced players to chase after the silverware.

The pre-tourney favorite was Mary Eisel of St. Louis, who won the championship in 1964 at the age of 17. The stylish Missourian, who holds the No. 4 national ranking, was in top form last weekend, when she won the New England Indoors at Agawam without losing a set.

Hard To Beat

Mary Ann, who has been ranked in the top 10 nationally for six years in a row, combines power and graceful artistry with her racquet. If she remains on her game, she could be hard to beat.

The second-seeded American is 18-year-old Kristy Pigeon, a Danville, California star who has dynamite in her racquet. Kristy, the National Junior champion and sixth-ranked woman in the U. S., used her explosive serves and volleys to blast her way into the semi-finals at Agawam.

The No. 3 seed is seventh-ranked Peaches Bartkowicz, a 19-year-old college sophomore from Hamtramck, Michigan. Peaches did not play at Agawam, but she could make her presence felt here—her game is highly unorthodox, but her strokes are usually as accurate as they are unusual. She likes to attack from the backcourt, and she does so ferociously.

The No. 4 seed is also a backcourt roamer—petite Stephanie DeFina of Hollywood, Florida. Steffy looks forward to playing on the slow, Neoturf courts at Winchester—they are perfectly suited to her defense-oriented game.

A semifinalist here last year, Miss DeFina could be the sleeper in the field. A tireless crowd-pleaser, she will run all the way to Boston if need be to retrieve shots that other players would just stare at.

The three remaining domestic seeds are all Californians: Patti Hogan of Lajolla, a hard-hitting, 19-year-old pre-law student from the University of California at Irvine; Ceci Martinez of San Francisco, a San Francisco State senior majoring in psychology; and Betty Ann Grubb of Santa Monica, an attractive 18-year-old blonde who attends UCLA. Seeded fifth, sixth, and seventh, this trio ranks 10th, 11th, and 12th in the nation respectively.

Debut For 'Dutch Treats'

Three foreigners have also been seeded. Leading the group is good-natured Esme Emanuel of South Africa, a big-hitter who rooms with Miss Martinez at San Francisco State. Seeded second and third are a pair of giggly, charming Dutch girls—Astrid Suurbeek and Judi Salome—who are making their first trip to the United States.

Miss Emanuel was a finalist at Agawam, where she put up a determined struggle before bowing to Miss Eisel. An outgoing young lady off the court an ever-hustling battler on it, Miss Emanuel is bound to capture the fancy of the galleries.

The tournament officials and spectators at Agawam were unanimous in their opinion of the two visitors from the Netherlands—they were "just delightful" and were quickly dubbed the "Dutch Treats."

Miss Suurbeek, a 22-year-old child psychology student, scored two fine wins at Agawam (over the 14th and 17th ranked American girls, Denise Carter of Palo Alto, California and Peggy Michel of Pacific Palisades, California). before losing to Miss Eisel. She was the unanimous selection for the tournament's Sportsmanship Award.

Wimbledon Jr. Champ

Miss Salome, a cute, pert, 20-year-old secretarial student, was the Junior Wimbledon champion in 1967 and is ranked No. 4 in Holland, two notches behind Miss Suurbeek. She was bothered by a cold last weekend which impaired her breathing, but she never complained and refused to default.

"I think I just need some sunshine," smiled Judi, who seems to have brought some of that along with her from Europe. At any rate, she will see the sun burning down very soon, for the girls move on to the Caribbean circuit next week.

In fact, the Winchester tournament and its "sister" event at Agawam are considered to be the opening events of the Caribbean circuit. That might not make sense to a geographer, but it does to the schedule-makers, who know that this is the week that "Winchester Cathedral" has its place in the sun.

It makes sense also to Thomas L. Raleigh Jr. of Winchester, president of the Youth Tennis Foundation of New England, which uses proceeds from the tournament to support its junior development and public parks tennis programs. Raleigh is co-chairman of the event with Bud Collins of the Boston Globe. He and his committees have been hard at work making arrangements. And as a result, the tennis played through Sunday's finals should be as torrid—and enjoyable—as the sun that shines on "the other Caribbean."

Troop 506 Goes Winter Camping

Scouts of Troop 506 built a snow igloo for Scoutmaster Richard B. Lawrance during their weekend polar bear excursion—and he needed it. The temperature dropped to zero while the boys slept under the stars at Camp Oak in Bedford.

The 19 boys, accompanied by fathers James Kent of Madison Avenue and Stephen Parkhurst of Ridgefield Road, were the first to enter the campsite on the Shawsheen River since last week's snowstorm. Arriving Saturday morning, they stayed through late Sunday morning.

The igloo, built during Lawrance's absence to gather supplies Saturday, was made in traditional style from snow blocks, and covered with canvas. A single candle provided heat and light through the night. Outside, the boys, some in tents, some in sleeping blankets, utilized an all-night campfire to keep spirits and blood temperatures up.

One advantage of the weather, keeping the food frozen, was offset when some food was too frozen to eat, and when some of the troop members went home in pajamas because their clothes were stiff with icy cold.

Day Of Prayer To Be Held March 7

An ecumenical committee representing all churches in Winchester has been working on plans for participation in the World Day of Prayer to be held March 7, Friday, at 1:30 p.m.

Host church this year will be the Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church Street.

The date for this worldwide event is now fixed by international agreement as the first Friday in March and is a time when people are brought together across all the boundaries—denominational, racial, national, and cultural—to pray for the needs of the world.

The same basic service is used in 127 nations and territories, and this year was written by women from African countries and has the theme "Growing Together in Christ."

Working on the planning committee for Winchester are Mesdames Ralph Swanson, Malven Oliver, Donald Wilkins, William Towner, Frederick Herberich, Jenness Eugley, W. E. Underwood, Ralph Meigs, Margaret Harrigan, Janet S. Willis, Richard C. Sheppard, Thomas H. Kuhn, and John Elliott.

If you are thinking about joining the Marine Corps, but keep putting it off, waiting for next month, then the Marine Corps has the plan for you, the delay entry program.

The advantages of this program are:

1. Enlist now, and pick the day you want to leave, up to four months from now. This enables you to take care of your personal affairs before leaving for active duty.

2. Once enlisted in this program, you are exempt from the draft, and you cannot be inducted into the service.

3. The time you spend in this program counts towards your military obligation, even though you attend no military functions.

4. You will automatically receive a pay raise when you leave for active duty.

When you think of serving your country in the Armed Forces, think of the Marine Corps. See your local Marine Corps representative today, and ask about the delay entry program.

FREDERICK LaTORELLA FOR SELECTMAN

To the Voters of Winchester:

Through this medium I would like to reach the many readers of the Winchester Star and any other interested citizens of the Town, to give them a brief personal sketch of myself and family.

I was born, raised and educated in Winchester. My wife Lucy and I have four children who have attended the schools in Winchester. Two of my children have graduated from the high school. Barbara will graduate from Boston University in May and will enter the field of teaching. Albert served in the U.S. N.A.F. with the Sixth Fleet and is presently employed in the U.S. Postal Service in Winchester, as a career man. My two younger boys, William and Frederick Jr. are presently attending Winchester High School.

At the present time I am employed by the firm of Baldwin Lima Hamilton Electronics, Waltham, Mass. as an Electronics Mechanical Technician.

I was elected Town Meeting Member of Precinct 1 approximately twenty-five years ago and have served faithfully to the present time. These years of service have made me aware of the many problems Winchester has to face in the future. In 1966 I was appointed to the Finance Board and am presently completing my full term (3 years). I feel through this experience that I have gained I can qualify to serve you wisely as your Selectman.

Very truly yours,
Frederick LaTorella

LWV Views The Candidates

The League of Women Voters, backed to the wall time-wise with no date to which they could postpone, went with their Tuesday night Candidates' Night and brought about 100 hardy citizens to the McCall auditorium.

Moderating the meeting was Dr. John Gibson, director of the Lincoln Filene Center and professor of political science at Tufts and the Fletcher School of International Law.

Introducing the night was LWV president, Mrs. Charles Miller. Thanking the candidates for appearing and "putting themselves on the block," was Mrs. Richard Thuma, LWV Voters Service chairman.

The meeting will be broadcast by WHSR-FM tomorrow night at 7:30.

All candidates but one for contested Town-wide office were present. John L. Carroll, out for School Committee, had indicated to the moderator that he would not attend the meeting. (His prepared statement appears at the end of this report.)

Audience questions kept coming back to School Committee candidates, who were queried about everything from long hair and school lunches to use of McCall and fiscal planning.

Town Elections Due On Monday

Town Election Day is Monday. Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. in the six precincts. Candidates for all Town-wide offices are on the ballot and those for 11 open places per precinct for Town Meeting Member. There are only three Town-wide contests.

At the top there is a two-way race for the spot to be vacated by retiring chairman of Selectmen, Charles Doucette Jr.

Frederick LaTorella, Finance Committee and Town Meeting member, is going against Sherman Saltmarsh Jr., former Selectman and chairman in 1961, Town Meeting member and member of several Town committees.

Lawrence Beckley and John Dolan are retiring from School Committee, leaving a five-way race for the two spots they leave open. Two teachers are among the candidates: David G. Kline of 6 Bridge Street and John L. Carroll of 19 Tufts Road. Mr. Kline, 36, is on the Stoneham High School faculty; Mr. Carroll, 50, teaches in the Malden Schools.

Paul Del Rossi at 26 is the youngest candidate in several years for School Committee. He is an educational consultant for the Arthur D. Little Company, a native and product of the Winchester schools.

Richard Lawrance, 49, a Town Meeting member for over 10 years is a physicist and electronics engineer who is department manager for Honeywell. George Whitten, 45, also a WHS graduate, is treasurer of Assembled Homes in Winchester, active in building and developing in several area businesses, is also a former Town Meeting member.

The third contest is for Library Trustee with Edward F. O'Connell, assistant to the dean at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts and Harvard challenging incumbents Andrew Nichols, a lawyer, and Robert Whitman, a Harvard University administrator and a former trustee of the Hopedale Library, both after second terms here.

In precinct Town Meeting member vote there are contests in all areas but Precinct 2. That precinct also expects a write-in vote for a two-year vacancy for which there is only one candidate registered.

WHSR Broadcast Of Election Monday Night

Monday, March 3, Town Election night, WHSR-FM, the High School station at 91.9 megacycles, will begin broadcast of election results at 6:45.

Brief biographies of candidates, outlines of their ideas and recordings of parts of the Candidates Night speeches will also go on the air.

Emergency Prevails As Storm Stays

A town-wide emergency prevails as the worst storm in memory and quite likely in history continues to hit Winchester.

Highway crews have been at work since 4:30 a.m. Monday. Yesterday at noon there was no end in sight.

Board of Selectman Chairman Charles Doucette said yesterday, "Patience is the word. Ask the people to continue being patient. The highway crews are getting very tired."

Superintendent of Streets Robert O'Brien asked the same.

"We have had more difficulty hiring outside equipment during this storm than that on February 10 . . . also the snow has drifted and is wet." He repeated that his men are getting very tired. He asked anyone with mechanized plows or bulldozers to get in touch with his department.

Fire Chief Francis Amico is seriously disturbed:

"This is very, very serious for the whole town. I plead with the people to clear their hydrants and to mark them . . . Also they must clear two exits from their homes and do their best to keep paths round the houses clear.

"Most important is exceptional fire prevention care . . . We can have such a serious situation if we do have a fire . . . loss of power could bring the use of candles and other fire hazards."

Superintendent of Schools Donald A. Klemer again asked parents yesterday to keep their radios tuned for the local decisions, made usually between 6 and 8 p.m. of the evening before a given school day.

Yesterday morning he still hoped to resume school today and tomorrow, with elementary schools on single sessions. But the situation was changing rapidly when he was contacted.

Police, Fire and School Departments all reported many fewer calls for school information and expressed gratitude to citizens for complying and not calling.

The Selectmen have issued a general order to both police and firemen to tell any callers politely but firmly that they have no information.

One local death was attributed to the storm, Joseph P. Collins, 52, of 8 Thornton Road collapsed in his home from a heart attack after shovelling snow Monday.

The storm dumped approximately 22 inches of snow between Monday morning and Tuesday night. Another seven inches were added during the night Tuesday. According to the Highway Department, the Northeast Weather Service in Bedford, which provides reports used by the Highway Department, predicted another three to six inches of snowfall by today. The weather service also predicted the storm would taper off by noon today.

Tax Revolt Action Saturday

Persons representing the statewide taxpayers' revolt will be at the Town incinerator this Saturday to collect signatures.

Anyone interested in backing this movement is invited to seek them out.

Fire Sunday Imperils Tenants In Older Home

Six women tenants of the large three-story frame house at 361 Main Street were all out of the house when Firefighters answered a call which came at 11:40 a.m. Sunday.

Reminiscent of that which took place on Washington Street the night of February 4, the fire originated in the cellar of a large, older, frame house remodelled into multi-family units. The deep snow, however, added a difficult factor for the Department vehicles.

Married - Two Children

Dear Voter,

During this campaign for School Committee I have had the opportunity to visit all eleven of our schools, to talk with all the principals, the Superintendent of Schools and his staff, many teachers and students, and numerous parents. I have been impressed by the tremendous potential of the Winchester School System. I am convinced that the task of the School Committee in Winchester is to build upon the efforts of these individuals to make this school system achieve its potential.

I sense a great vitality within our people and within our community. We must work together to develop that vitality, to blend our town and individual resources with our educational resources to effect a more viable and complete education for the students of Winchester.

In the course of my educational consulting work for Arthur D. Little, Inc., throughout this country, I find the most exciting school systems are those in which there is a partnership among the youth, the parents, and the leaders of the community. I believe that such a partnership can be achieved in Winchester.

Respectfully,
Paul R. Del Rossi

GEORGE D. WHITTEN
School Committee

GEORGE D. WHITTEN

Voters of Winchester:

I would remind you of some of my qualifications for School Committee. I have 3 children, ages 19, 15 and 10, who have attended Winchester schools over a 14 year period. I would like to see our schools continue to maintain their reputation for excellence but be willing to recognize their weaknesses and failings. We do need to give more help and support to the average student and underachiever. My residence here of 28 years stimulates a pride and interest in our town but I am most interested in the product—our children.

I have been in the building business, residential and commercial, for 22 years, so I feel that I am more than qualified to be critical of our physical plants and any proposed ones. I have served on several community building committees, remodeling and new construction. I attended Winchester High School, followed by 3 years of military service, and then Tufts College. I have served as a Town Meeting member. I was chairman of a Boy Scout troop. My office is in Winchester.

I will have an open door or telephone line for students', parents' or teachers' problems but I need your help in the voting booth to give the help I would like to, to our Winchester children.

Troop 507 Has Polar Bear

On Saturday, February 15, 15 experienced Troop 507 campers set out to Jaffrey, New Hampshire, for a Polar Bear. Pulling authentic homemade sledges, each patrol follower a course of roughly two miles through waist-deep snow, using a set of compass bearings to get to the campsite.

Each patrol, the Silver Foxes, the Mustangs and the Cobras, then proceeded to set up a campsite. Everyone then relaxed or went sledge racing for the rest of the afternoon. All scouts spent the night warmly after eating a good supper, and there were no apparent casualties in the morning.

After eating a hot breakfast, the morning activities were started. The snowshoe race was one event, and six very happy winners, Scott Knopf, John Farrell, Peter Reynolds, Andy McKenzie, Peter Rigney and John Kohr received tickets to a Celties basketball game. Everyone ate a very large and well-cooked meal at lunch, after which camp was broken and awards were presented.

The Polar Bear scout was John Sutherland. Awards were also given to the winners of the race, the Silver Foxes and the Mustangs.

Thomas Raleigh and Wayne Kell were members of the Electric Blanket patrol and slept indoors.

Some people say that wool is the only carpeting to buy. Some say you just can't beat the man-made fibers. Which one is right?

Neither one! There is a place for wool carpeting in certain textures and colors and so too, with synthetic fibers.

Now for the big question. Who determines which carpeting is best suited to your particular needs? After 30 years of selling and servicing rugs we say, when you deal with Koko Boodakian "the rugs you pay for — the advice you get for free."

Massachusetts CPA Society Offers Timely Help To The Taxpayer

(This is one of a series of articles prepared by the Massachusetts Society of CPAs on money-saving tax "tips" in the preparation of the 1040 Federal Individual Income Tax Return.)

Did you deduct 50 percent of your premiums (up to a maximum of $150) for medical and hospitalization insurance policies on your return last year?

Many taxpayers overlooked this deduction, according to George Brody, CPA, chairman of the Committee on Federal Taxation of the Massachusetts Society of CPAs, who adds that a similar allowance for such premiums paid during the 1968 tax year is permitted on returns due on or before April 15.

The balance of such payments in excess of $150 are to be treated as ordinary medical expenses, entitling you to a further deduction in the event your total medical expenses are in excess of three percent of your adjusted gross income.

Here's how it works:

You paid $280, for example, for Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage in 1968. Your adjusted gross income was $6,000. You also paid $30 in doctor's bills for your 67-year-old dependent father who was not covered by insurance or Medicare.

You can deduct $140 (50 percent) of the $280 paid in insurance premiums. This is your total allowable medical deduction, since the balance of premiums ($140) and the payments to your father's doctor ($30) are less ($170) than three percent ($180) of your adjusted gross income.

Assume, however, that your father's doctor bills were $300. In this case, you can claim a deduction of $400. ($140, as before, plus $260 representing the balance when $180 (3 percent of your adjusted gross income) is subtracted from the $440 total of the rest of your insurance payments ($140) and the $300 paid your father's doctor.)

Taxpayers frequently fail to take other allowable medical deductions, overlooking such expenses as:

Transportation charges for visits to the doctor's office, such as taxi fare, or a mileage allowance of five cents a mile when driving your own car. Airline and railroad fares are also deductible for visits to a specialist in another city for diagnosis or treatment of a specific illness or disability.

The cost of artificial teeth, eyeglasses, hearing aids, orthopedic shoes and braces, elastic hosiery, etc., are also deductible.

If your wife lost her crowning glory as the result of an illness, the cost of a wig or artificial hairpiece will be allowed by the IRS. The costs of hairpieces or toupees for men are not deductible, however, since baldness is a natural condition for men, according to the IRS, and not one that is likely to be seriously injurious to the male ego.

Vitamins If Special

You cannot deduct payments for funerals, illegal operations or narcotics.

The cost of birth control pills are deductible when prescribed for a woman whose mental or physical health would be endangered by having a child.

The cost of whiskey, when prescribed for a patient suffering from a chronic heart condition, is deductible. The cost of a special diet for the same patient, even though ordered by a physician, is not, since it is considered a substitute for the food he would normally eat.

The cost of installing an elevator, which does not increase the value of a home but is ordered by a physician for use by a cardiac patient, can be deducted as a medical expense. The cost of swimming lessons to improve the patient's general health is not deductible, however, since the regulations hold that deductible medical expenses must be incurred in the cure and treatment of specific illnesses and disabilities.

(Again this year, the Massachusetts Society of CPAs will sponsor its DIAL A TAX EXPERT program. On week-nights between March 10 and 28, you will be able to telephone questions on your personal income tax to a society-operated center in Boston, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Watch the newspapers for other details, including telephone numbers.)

Vocational School Opening To Be Delayed Six Months

A six-month delay in the opening of the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational High School is announced this week in an official release put out under the name of its chairman, George E. Lodgen of Malden.

Originally planned to open next September for 1,200 students from 11 area towns in addition to Winchester, the school will not be ready before January, 1970.

A breakdown in work schedules was blamed by the chairman, who said that "the failure of the general contractor, Frasca Construction, Inc. of Lynn, and some subcontractors to complete scheduled work in the fall caused the postponement. Since then, the situation has been complicated by adverse weather conditions."

Budget Reductions

His announcement pointed to small reductions in the 1969 budget assessments to the communities which could be looked to due to the delay.

Marshall Kincaid of 12 Prospect Street, has been Winchester representative on the area School Committee for the past four years and is due to be replaced next week by Edward Sharkey of 220 Forest Street running for the office Mr. Kincaid did not seek again.

Mr. Kincaid repeated, as he was reported thinking by the Star of September 12, that in his opinion the delay in construction was due primarily to a hold-up in a sewer easement through the property of a Wakefield abutter.

He also told the Star that the delay in the appointment of a director amounts to "a complete state of impass," due to State red tape relative to the choice of out of State personnel in this job.

Architect Blamed

Chairman Lodgen's report added that architects Korslund, LeNormand and Quann of Norwood have warned the Committee of possible strikes among some of the construction trades this spring, which could delay the work and consequently the school opening even longer.

In addition he blamed the firm for "not insisting that the scheduled work be performed," saying they must take part of the responsibility for the delay.

Action to reduce the budget is expected to come at the next scheduled Regional School Committee meeting, on March 13 at the Malden High School.

This is the night of the opening of Town Meeting here.

Take Time

In the time it takes to read this announcement, you could call 729-2300, your Winchester Red Cross chapter, for an appointment to give blood.

For the sake of your life, please make the call.

Apolloman

ASTRONAUGHT Russell Schweickart, one of three heading into moon-oriented earth orbit tomorrow, lived here while doing some of his graduate research at MIT. "Rusty" is designated to take a two-hour space walk between the open hatches of the cone-shaped Command Module and the spidery Lunar Module while they are still linked. He will test both the space-suit and life-supporting unit to be used on the moon landing. He will also test the emergency plan for re-entering the Command Module if the preferred "docking" system cannot be effected. He is the husband of Clare, and the father of Louise, nine, Elina, seven and twin sons Russell and Randolph, eight. (MIT photo)

Fire

Careless disposal of fireplace ashes in an uncovered metal barrel has been blamed for the Sunday fire, potentially dangerous to homeowner Mrs. Betty Perry who lived on the first floor as did Mrs. Nelson; to Miss Gladys West, Mrs. Helen Quigley and Mrs. Agnes Kent, tenants of the second floor; and to Mrs. Peggy Eagan a third floor resident.

The fire was discovered by one of the residents at about the same time others began smelling smoke.

Attempts to call the Fire Department were thwarted by wires already burned out. The ladies instead called to a passer-by, who rang in the nearby street box.

The fire apparently started from the ashes, which had been put on refuse under the cellar stairs. It burned the stairs and on up to the second floor through interior partitions.

Firefighters worked two and one-half hours to get things under control.

Damages from the fire are expected to be over $10,000.

Accident Injures Two Women

TWO PERSONS were injured in this accident Sunday noon at the intersection of Church and Bacon Streets. Mrs. Jeanne F. Cook of 10 Mayflower Road was operating her car east on Church Street when the vehicle was in collision with one operated by Marie G. Seminatore of Somerville, who was traveling north on Bacon Street. Both women were taken to the Winchester Hospital in the police ambulance. Mrs. Cook was treated for a broken collarbone and lacerations. Mrs. Seminatore was also treated for lacerations. (Bill Ryerson photo)

FREDERICK
LaTORELLA
FOR SELECTMAN

To the Voters of the Town of Winchester:

At this time I wish to make a statement to all of my fellow townspeople as to why I am seeking the office of Selectman for the Town of Winchester. My interest in town government started when my wife, Lucy, and I were raising our family and I took great interest in guiding the children's future through school functions, heading a number of committees. This also led to my serving in several other areas, whereupon I gained diverse experience in town government.

My constituents in town affairs, being cognizant of my ability to serve well have, therefore, encouraged me to take this step, as they have confidence in me.

If given the opportunity to serve you, I plan to insure and support self-government for the town.

During my past three years as a member of the Finance Board, I have found there to be waste in department expenditures. I feel that constant surveillance over all departments is essential, and I suggest that one way to help the situation is to keep close communications with all boards, committees, and town meeting members. When emergencies or controversies over appropriations arise, it would be helpful to have further meetings between the concerned department heads, town meeting members and selectmen of the town. I feel it is important to the taxpayers to keep the tax rate as low as possible and still give them their dollar's worth. With regard to town employees, I feel that the town should hire and maintain good employees by paying good wages, for which the employees in return are obliged to the taxpayers to do a good job.

Austerity is in order at this time, We must consider our responsibilities toward the elder people who have been lifelong residents of the town and who will be greatly affected, and possibly forced to move, if taxes prove too high. This is a good town.

Because of the aforementioned facts, I feel that I can face the challenges and serve the Town of Winchester to the best of my ability.

Sincerely,
Frederick LaTorella

Editorials:

Up To The Individual

As this last piece of copy for today's paper is being written (2 p.m. Wednesday) the large interest, the spectacle and the fun of the storm are disappearing fast and the nightmare aspects are taking over.

It would seem likely that the State will go under Civil Defense regulations as soon as severe situations build. If it hasn't, it should have.

Oldtimers are more accustomed to fending for themselves and less accustomed to depending entirely upon the public services. They are not usually the ones first to call in the complaints to the police, the highwaymen, the selectmen.

The magnitude of the storm is making oldtimers of all of us in the sense that we must for the sake of our own and our neighbors' families take on responsibilities as though we had no fire department, no police, no public plows.

The pleas of the Fire Chief today seem to us of highest priority. The men can no longer do it for you: clear your hydrant, clear around your home, but most important of all, see that no fire gets started.

Each citizen must also see that his own and his neighbor's car is not blocking plows and therefore police cars and fire engines.

Young people have a lot to say these days about their elders' faults. They have been reported very helpful in many ways and places in the last few days. Today they should all be out shovelling their own and their neighbors paths not for money but as though their lives depended on it.

The Candidates

In Monday's vote Town-wide offices will be elected. Of these, there are contests for three: Selectman, School Committee, Library Trustee. On Monday night all but one of the candidates were present at the League of Women Voters' Candidates' Night.

Our impression there was that the good, strong, fiveway run for the school board had done what it should do—sharpen the attitude of the candidates and the interest of the attendants. The candidates took turns getting a good hand—many times with almost equal response.

There were many areas of agreement—many of difference. Messrs. Del Rossi, Kline, Lawrance and Whitten appeared to stand the closest together when asked what their attitude would be if asked, as school board members, for more guidance people and psychologists. It is a reflection of the growing understanding of what Mr. Lawrance called "the nub for many children," that realization of the importance of this adjunct to education is increasingly understood.

Mr. Kline articulated the background for need when he said, "the kids are searching . . . they are saying will somebody please help me" and expressed his feel for the importance of building better adults. The guidance services appeared to fit into Mr. Whitten's overall pleas for aid to the underachiever.

It is also a highlight on the dilemna of the services vs. fiscal crisis situation in many Town municipal departments that, as Mr. Del Rossi cited, already $9,000 of 1969 Winchester School Department budget allocation has been deleted from the budget (at the insistance of the Finance Committee).

Mr. Del Rossi had earlier stated that Winchester is using I.Q. tests dated 1936 and has a 300 to 1 counselor ratio in the secondary schools and an 1100 to one ratio for elementary students.

The office of Selectman is being sought by a member of the present Finance Committee and by a former member of the Board. When Mr. Saltmarsh first announced his candidacy the Star erroneously said he would be the first to run for office a second time. We had in mind since 1938, when three-year terms were initiated and must qualify now to say that during the war years there were irregular terms and some second terms.

The important fact is that in the present race there are two qualified men running. Mr. Saltmarsh's prior service should not be held against him. Traditions are going by the board in other areas too, as challengers appear to question the establishment. This is to the good. Monday's vote for Selectman offers two good candidates. The Town is fortunate.

A Tip In Time

Two-way radios, inter-town police teletypes and alert police officers still can't apprehend looters if clues to their identity are missing. But given a nice clear registration number and a description of a car and the inter-organizational communications work well.

Last week Tuesday a young Winchester teenager told her mother about the suspicious feeling she had about a group of young men driving a light blue Cadillac and asking questions about Myopia Hill Road. The mother did what Police Chief Joseph Derro has been asking citizens to do for a long time: she acted on the hunch.

Her call came into the desk at Police headquarters here just about the time Officer Roland Roy was recording the story of a break and theft from a householder on Myopia Hill. A few hours, several town boundaries, one police chase and several gunshots later three young men (two from Medford and one from Somerville) were arrested by Newton police in Weston. They were the ones about whom the young lady here had felt suspicious. The Cadillac was running on plates from a car previously stolen in Newton. Many of the items missing from the West Side Hill home here were found among the possessions of the young men.

The area-wide epidemic of breaks and thefts has every police officer and every householder worried. It is increasingly serious. Chief Derro repeats again that his men would rather follow up a lead to nothing than miss one which gets their man.

But A Shooting Chase?

Commendations go unqualified to the teenager mentioned above and to the Winchester Police.

But—what about the high speed chase from Newton into Weston with, apparently, guns ablazing? A Newton police car racing up Commonwealth Avenue (Route 30), through Auburndale Square, across Route 128 and into Weston. According to the Globe, "A two-mile, highspeed, bullet-punctuated car chase?"

Just one of the cars going out of control could have killed five or six people. A stray bullet? Aren't they all stray under those conditions? And had there been a fatal accident, was it worth it to apprehend the young men and recover some TV sets and fur coats, etc.?

This is the dilemma of the police all over and the answers are not easy. But we still contend that all police auto-chases must be condemned and outlawed and that not until it is done will the law protection departments develop better the alternatives to catch their prey.

Mr. Armstrong Responds To Mr. LaTorella

Editor of the Star:

This letter is in response to a letter from Frederick LaTorella published in the Star last week, questioning the report of the Town Government Study Committee as presented at a meeting at the Town Hall on January 21, 1969.

To go back a bit, the Town Government Study Committee unanimously voted to present to the Annual Town Meeting an article favoring the creation of a Department of Public Works. Before this was publicized, we thought it would be only fair to inform the members of the boards which would be affected, as to exactly what our plans were, before it was presented to the Annual Town Meeting.

We invited the board members of the Park, Cemetery, and Water and Sewer Departments to a meeting, as well as representatives of the Finance Committee, the Planning Board, the Personnel Board, the Town Counsel, the Town Controller, and the Town Moderator.

At this meeting, I read a draft of a report which was printed in the Star on January 23. After I read this report, the meeting was thrown open to general discussion, and there were quite a few comments from the Park and Cemetery Commissioners, and from others present. The Winchester Star had a reporter there who took notes and reported some of the comments of the speakers in an article which appeared in the Star on January 23.

Around nine o'clock that night, the invited members left, but the members of the Town Government Study Committee remained, along with the reporter from the Star. At that time, several technical changes were made in the text to clarify the wording, but no substantive changes whatsoever were made. This was an open meeting throughout. When the changes were completed, a copy was given to the reporter from the press, and the meeting was adjourned.

We did not make a transcript of what was said at this open meeting, and Mr. LaTorella was present at the meeting, as was the reporter from the Star, to report anything she thought pertinent.

Mr. LaTorella now has the report of the Town Government Study Committee which was read at the meeting, and I trust he has had time to compare it with the report as printed in the Star, to put his mind at ease that there were no substantive changes whatsoever made in the report.

I am at a loss to understand what further information Mr. LaTorella wants, especially since he told me he was essentially in favor of a Department of Public Works.

Sincerely,
Robert W. Armstrong, Jr.
Chairman
Town Government
Study Committee

Special Thanks For Storm Aid

Editor of the Star:

I would like to send special thanks to Police Officers Thomas Kennedy and Richard Fisher for their emergency efforts to help my wife.

On the night of the recent storm she needed to be taken to the hospital quickly. The officers got her there with hard work and also much kindness.

Sincerely,
William McGinty

Homeowner Grateful

Editor of the Star:

My sincere thanks and gratitude go to the Fire Department of Winchester for its quick and efficient work at the fire in my home at 361 Main Street on February 23.

The firefighters prevented a much greater spread of the fire than did take place. Not only that, but they cleaned up much of the refuse afterwards.

My neighbors were also very kind and helpful — offering a place to sleep and eat for my dog and me. It certainly meant a lot.

Sincerely,
Betty Alden Perry,
361 Main Street

Thanks From CONCERN

Editor of the Star:

The CONCERN Committee wishes through your pages to express their thanks and appreciation to the anonymous donor for the gift that was recently sent to this committee.

ABM Meeting Planned For March 6 At Hadley Hall, Church Of Epiphany

The information meeting planned to present the pros and cons of the controversial Sentinel Antiballistic Missile System will be held March 6 whether or not there are subsequent announcements on the part of the government indicating a slow-down or cancellation for the system.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in Hadley Hall of the Church of the Epiphany.

Plans call for speakers representing both sides of the issue, followed by a question and answer period.

Local opponents of the system, are however, reporting difficulty finding qualified speakers, from the Boston area or elsewhere, who will speak in favor of the national project.

Already scheduled to speak in opposition are Prof. George W. Rathjens of MIT and Prof. Edgar M. Bottome of the Boston University government department. Prof. Bottome resides here at 3 Chesterford Road East.

According to Mrs. Robert Danley of 2 Fenwick Road, the sponsoring group has spent more than two weeks of effort directed at locating supporting speakers.

Government agencies, the academic community, private groups engaged in defense research, and businesses engaged in defense research and development have all been approached with no success as yet.

First requests were made to the Defense Department and the Army Corps of Engineers. According to a spokesman in the Defense Department public relations office at the Pentagon, present policy prevents that department from debating or discussing matters of established national policy, such as the Sentinel Antiballistic System.

The same reply was received from Walter Mackey, information officer at the Army Corps of Engineers in Waltham, who relayed the request to headquarters in Huntsville, Alabama. Both agencies also rejected the offer of a platform, rather than a panel discussion or debate, with no questioning permitted from the audience.

One prominent member of the Hudson Institute, a research group which has been a leader in antiballistic missile development, has indicated he will address citizen groups for an honorarium of $500. Others, who have been publicly critical of colleagues opposition to the $5.5 billion project, are also expected to request a fee to defend the system. The local group has rejected the possibility of attempting to raise the sum. Equally prestigious opponents are speaking all over the country for no fee, they point out. Attempts will be made, however, to pay travel expense for a willing speaker from outside the Boston area.

Mrs. Danley states that efforts to obtain protagonists will continue until next week. In addition, the possibility of a "devil's advocate" is being investigated.

Sunday Morning Fire On Main Street

AT A MULTI-DWELLING HOUSE at the corner of Main and Herrick Streets six women were evacuated when a cellar fire burned its way up to the second floor by means of interior partitions. Careless disposal of fireplace ashes has been blamed for the fire. At the left the ladder is raised to the third floor. To the right firefighters extinguish burning materials from the cellar. BORN TO TROUBLE

by Joyce Stranger

In these days when the novel seems to take the form of a number of explicit sexual adventures tenuously strung together by the maunderings of tormented minds "telling it like it is," it is almost surprising to find a story of people whose lives are not all grief nor all joy, who cope with the one and savor the other.

The action of the story takes place on a farm in Cheshire, England, where the kitten, Casey, who is "born to trouble," arrives as one of the four offspring of a pedigreed Siamese cat and his farmyard mate.

"The world fascinated him from the moment he opened hazed baby eyes, flexed minute but sturdy claws, rolled over his smallest sister, stretched, and fell out of the box in which Midge had so carefully placed him. From then onwards it was a battle between Casey and Life . . . Sometimes Tartar would obligingly lift his small son out of danger by the scruff of his neck, but for the most part he left Casey to learn the hard way."

Joe and Liz Wayman are the farmer and his wife. Their joy is that they love each other and their farm, their grief that Liz was frightened by the farm bull when carrying her first child, lost it and can never have another. The bull, Sultan, is a pedigreed Jersey, very valuable and bad-tempered, only soothed by the simple Lew, a young farmhand.

"The bull was sleepy. Lew had fed him and soothed him . . . Casey, bored with the yard, and seeing Lew, sidled up to him. Lew bent to stroke him, but the kitten wanted more than that and leaped to the boy's shoulder. Here, startled, he gazed straight at the bull, and the bull started back. Lew was paralyzed, waiting for disaster. He moved away, but Casey leaped to the half-door and patted the bull's face with in inquisitive paw. Sultan snorted and glared at the kitten. Liz, turning, saw the pair of them and caught her breath. One more second, and the bull would sweep Casey out of the world with his horn . . . Casey started to purr . . . The bull closed his eyes. The companionable noise pleased him. Casey sensed warmth. The bull's hide was soft. His neck looked comfortable. The kitten jumped and, landing, curled himself up small, his purr throbbing even more loudly . . . Sultan turned and eyed the cat. He could just reach the little animal. He stared at the kitten for a moment and then his long tongue came out and licked Casey's head . . . That night, Casey slept on the bull's back, and from then onwards, if he was ever missing, he was sure to be found in the bull's pen, the pair of them utterly content. Casey's blissful purr filled the air, and the bull every now and then would turn and lick the little beast, finding in him the companion he had always lacked."

The relationship of humans and animals is affectionate but seldom sentimental. Michael Flynn, a retired mounted policeman, who has lately come to live in the neighborhood, settles down with pleasure to help Joe with the horses.

"He had taken over Starlight for Joe and kept the big hunter exercised, which was a blessing for everyone, as his long treks every day not only kept him fit but kept him placid. Liz was always afraid that Joe, riding the horse after a break of a week or more, would be thrown. Starlight was both determined and frisky when he had a mind."

Joe and Liz become attached to the two children of their neighbors, a family named Fenton, and when the parents are killed in an accident, leaving the children with no close relatives, Liz takes them in.

"Often too, Jane woke up in the night, and Liz found herself exhausted by a screaming child who alternately clung to her and hit her, as if unable to resolve her own feelings at all. Sometimes Joe could quiet her, and sometimes Peter came in and stood wide-eyed and silent, and then crept back to his own bed and lay staring into the darkness.

"On one of the worst of these nights the bull began lowing, and Liz carried Jane downstairs and out into the yard, anxious to find out what was wrong. Unusually, Casey was outside, prowling, unable to get to his companion because Joe had shut the half-door. Jane watched quietly as Liz opened the door and let the cat inside, and grinned in spite of her tears when she saw Casey settle comfortably in the straw and start to wash the big beast. 'Sultan was lonely,' she said, 'I'm lonely in the night too.'"

The story ends when Casey himself becomes a father.

"A bird sang from the coppice, and Casey chattered at him and then picked up his smallest son and returned him purposefully to the dark sanctuary of the stable. Casey had had a lot of trouble in his own short life . . . He put the kitten down in the straw and sauntered towards Liz, aware of a job well done. Behind him, a small and enthusiastic fluff of black fur staggered out of the stable and yowled. Casey turned and smacked the kitten with an angry paw and picked it up again . . . Joe came from the field. 'Have you ever thought,' he asked, 'what life here is going to be like with Tartar and five Caseys?'"

LWV Presents Candidates Night

Selectmen Open

Selectmen's candidates led off with formal statements.

Both Frederick LaTorella and Sherman Saltmarsh Jr. led with their personal and experience qualifications.

Mr. LaTorella emphasized the need for cooperation within departments and of "adjusting our spending to our ability to pay." He mentioned the importance of programming better for the elderly.

In question period he reiterated his feelings that there is considerable waste and the importance of interdepartmental cooperation in answer to a question about broadening the tax base.

Sherman Saltmarsh had brought with him two charts, one demonstrating the climbing Town budget over the past 10 years, the second the ups and downs of returns from State monies, with the anticipated continuing cutback for 1969.

He, too, emphasized the serious fiscal situation. He cited his extensive experience locally, as a former Selectman and member of several Town committees. "I feel I have good knowledge. I don't have all the answers...but I think experience counts."

On taxation, he answered the questioner that locally he looked to austerity and central purchasing. He added that he felt we must force the State toward a total reform of the tax structure.

Asked to review his position on overturning the long-standing local policy of Selectmen not running for a second term, he noted he was strongly against any officer perpetuating himself in office but that he felt the job had changed and become more complex and that he could now contribute quite a bit.

Citing a Star article of January 1968 in which the past 10 chairman of the Board were quoted taking differing positions on the one-term tradition, Mr. Saltmarsh said that all 10 were supporting his candidacy.

Mr. LaTorella did not comment on this issue.

A query asked Mr. Saltmarsh's comment on Mr. LaTorella's charges that the Town Government Study Committee report had not been given him. He said he felt the final report was in his opponent's hands. Mr. LaTorella reported that he had received it just that morning.

For Schools

Candidates for School Committee each made initial statements:

— Paul Del Rossi, speaking first, noted the policy and planning areas which concern him as an educational consultant; his extensive interviewing here with administrators, teachers and students, to get the feel. He stressed the fiscal responsibility of the system and the need better to assess the programs which must be kept or initiated;

—David Kline, defining himself as a social studies teacher, presently teaching problems in democracy, spoke for the importance of the teachers' voice on the Committee as to the relevant areas of education. He emphasized his interest in the "end product," the child, and the need to make education more relevant in the world today;

—Richard Lawrance looked to find the balance between desirability and feasibility in school planning; he noted his attendance over the past year of a high percentage of school and school building committee meetings, and his work with young people as a Scout leader;

—George Whitten asked the voter consider the need for a businessman on the school board; stressed better attention to the underachiever and the "lack of discipline." He also looked to his own Scout leadership as of value.

McCall?

Asked about the future use of the McCall JHS, candidate Whitten asked more non-school use and particularly for underachievers; Mr. Lawrance wanted it kept for educational purposes; candidates Del Rossi and Kline stood against it being used for elementary schools, the former suggesting a possible "swing school," the latter stating the need for whole-Town, not just school planning to be in on the decision.

To a questioner wanting his new school committee member to look for better education for no lower costs, Mr. Del Rossi and Mr. Kline both stressed improving teacher training. Mr. Del Rossi wanted each program looked at from the point of view of underachievers and accepted if for them, rejected if not. Mr. Kline cited better use of improved methodology and "the exciting ways of relating today's problems."

Mr. Whitten said Winchester could save on building costs and administration but must not cut back on teachers; Mr. Lawrance felt it difficult. "There is no panacea," he said.

Lunches?

Would they favor in-school lunches for elementary school children? Mr. Whitten: no, it's the parents job. Mr. Lawrance: I think there is some justification, especially for working mothers. Mr. Kline: basically a parents' decision, if they want it, it will be done and can be aided by State and Federal monies. Mr. Del Rossi: Federal monies are for lunch, not facilities. It's hard for the children in the snow, but the cost is also hard.

On long hair and dress codes. Mr. Del Rossi: parents' job, not schools. Mr. Kline agreed and saw no connection between long hair, etc., and education. Mr. Lawrance: School Committee must set rules and they should be followed. Mr. Whitten: neatness starts in the schools.

On their vote for more guidance and psychological help:

Mr. Whitten would first ask local professionals what they think, acknowledging the aid this can be to students; Mr. Lawrance would give sympathetic consideration to such suggestions; Mr. Kline would consider combining with other Towns once the need was proved; and Mr. Del Rossi cited the very low ratio Winchester now has in this area and the fact that $9,000 has been cut from the present budget for this kind of aid.

For Library

Library Trustee candidate Robert Whitman pointed to his experience as a Hopedale trustee and his high commendations for Winchester's facility and his desire to keep it this way as qualifications.

Andrew Nichols, also going for re-election as is Mr. Whitman, spoke of his value as an attorney and his particular interest in personnel matters, particularly his aim to keep the local staff at its best without going overboard as regards current dictates for degrees.

Challenger Edward O'Connell noted he has been a college administrator and is presently studying further. He spoke of the importance of new ideas and his feeling the town is receptive to them.

At question time Mr. O'Connell suggested Saturday summer hours as a possibility to extend Library use and wanted consideration of high school student employment in this area.

The evening ended with informal discussion over coffee in the McCall lounge. Town Meeting members present were questioned here.

Mr. Carroll's statement reads:

"Being in the field of education very naturally makes me keenly interested in the education of our young people. This is our primary concern as parents. There is nothing of greater importance to us than the total welfare of our children.

"Today we are faced with a major problem of education in the Metropolitan area. Our new Commissioner of Education, Dr. Neil Sullivan, has stated recently that he proposes a Metropolitan School District. I am opposed to this because I firmly believe that this multi-million dollar educational program, in Winchester, should be administered by locally elected school official.

"We are all concerned about our schools—we want to have and maintain the best school system possible. Yet we are aware of the rising taxes which affect us all. Since half of our tax dollar is spent on schools, it is necessary that we receive a dollar's worth of education for every tax dollar spent.

"We want the best education for our young people but we must face the problems realistically and decide what is really important, while we eliminate any wasteful or unnecessary practices. This realistic approach brings us to a very timely issue that is of great importance to the people of Winchester; the possible acquisition of the Maryeliff Academy property. At this time I will say that there will be a Special Town Meeting on the Maryeliff situation, and I am in full agreement with the School Committee, the Board of Selectmen and the Planning Board in the approach they have taken.

"Our main purpose should be to concentrate on good teaching and good teaching methods; which are the fundamentals of education. There should be more emphasis placed on a basic curricula fitted to the needs and abilities of the average student; with sufficient latitude to continue our accelerated program for advanced students, this is to encourage each student to achieve his full potential.

"With this brief statement of my position I ask for one of your two votes for School Committee. I want to thank the League of Women Voters for allowing me the opportunity to speak to you tonight."

John L. Carroll

EDWARD F.
O'CONNELL
FOR LIBRARY TRUSTEE

EDWARD F. O'CONNELL

I am a newcomer to Winchester. I know that in some quarters this is suspect. Yet in my heart I really know that Winchester is not a Peyton Place suburb of Boston. It is a vital town, keenly interested in the welfare of all its citizens and receptive to the new ideas and views that come with new blood. I feel somewhat like the father of an adopted son who decides when the boy reaches 12 to tell him the facts of his adoption. In doing so he tells the lad that in normal circumstances a father must accept what ever child is delivered to him but in this instance there was a special selection made and therefore a special love exists.

So it is with my adoption of Winchester. I didn't happen just to land in this town. I chose it because of its tradition of concern for education and community affairs. I have enjoyed the advantages of its schools, its library, its recreational facilities and unfortunately I recently had the good fortune to be grateful for its excellent hospital. But just as the farmer must replenish the soil from which he harvests his crop, I do not wish to receive without giving in return. I wish to do something for this town in an area where my talents and energy may permit me to make an effective contribution.

Why stand for Library Trustee? For the past 20 years I have been engaged in educational and international affairs in this country and abroad. My experiences have included writing textbooks and providing technical assistance on the preparation of teaching materials. No one holds a library in higher esteem than I do. I view our Town library as equivalent to a great university where all of us, young and old, may go in quest of particular knowledge and of the sheer pleasure that comes with reading. As the frontiers of knowledge push forward, I would like to help guide our library into new, imaginative areas. Today's library is a much more complex institution than it was when you and I were children. To illustrate this dramatically let me suggest that in the future such functions as language laboratory, retrieval of information and programmed learning will be concerns of our library staff.

"Why vote for Ed O'Connell?" you may well ask. My answer is that by doing so you will get your vote's worth in terms of my dedication to the job. If I had not injected myself into this campaign, there would be no campaign. If nothing else my competitive spirit is too strong to consent to a situation where people back into office. I seek the office and here in public pledge myself to full service if elected.

On several January evenings I crawled over the ice, nomination papers in hand, and knocked on doors to give the voters of Winchester a choice in this election. Won't you now give me a chance to redeem my pledge?

College-Bound Seniors

College catalogs, application blanks, reference forms, campus visits, interviews, SATs, Achievements have all been very much a part of each senior's life this past year, a step in being accepted to the college of one's choice.

With today's competition and pressures, college acceptance often seems like a full-time job. However, acceptance is only the first step. Adjusting to the new freedoms of college life, and the increased academic demands, where the student must take full responsibility for his academic success, is the next step.

It has been estimated that a college freshman has approximately one million words of required reading, and over three million words of supplementary reading during his first year of college. Reading at an average speed, it would take one month of reading, ten hours a day, without any breaks, to digest this amount of printed material.

Each high school senior should ask whether his present reading skills are adequate for the job ahead. Is he familiar with the newest reading techniques designed to develop reading efficiency, producing the best comprehension at the highest speed possible for the reading task at hand?

The Scholastic Achievement Center of Melrose and Newton Centre is offering a special course for high school seniors which will combine speed reading techniques with a review of the most progressive study techniques. This course will help seniors bridge the gap between high school and college. Strong study techniques and reading skills will assure the senior of academic success, provide extra confidence, and take the grind and worry out of college life.

Bishop Cronin To Speak At St. Mary's Church March 12

The Most Reverend Daniel A. Cronin, S.T.D., Auxiliary Bishop of Boston, will celebrate Mass and speak following the communion supper at Saint Mary's Hall on March 12.

The Mass will be celebrated, starting at 7:00 p.m.; in St. Mary's Church. Immediately thereafter, dinner will be served in the parish hall directly across Washington Street.

The communion supper is an annual affair, and is once again sponsored jointly by the parish Holy Name Society and the Mr. and Mrs. Club.

Co-chairmen and ticket chairmen for the event are Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Lilley of 25 Lebanon Street at 720-0820, and Mr. and Mrs. John J. McInnis of 117 Mt. Vernon Street, 729-7949. Tickets are available now.

Bishop Cronin, who is pastor of West Medford's Saint Raphael's parish as well, was appointed Auxiliary Bishop of Boston and consecrated just last year. The Bishop served in Ethiopia for more than four years (1957-1961) prior to his appointment to the office of Secretariat of State, Vatican City.

During this tenure Pope John XXIII named him a Papal Chamberlain with the title Very Reverend Monsignor. He is 41 years old and both his parents now live in Cambridge.

A native of Newton, His Excellency graduated from St. Peter's School, Cambridge, Boston College High, Saint John's Seminary, and the North American College in Rome, where he studied at the Pontifical Gregorian Unuiversity.

Ordained in Rome, at the North American College in 1952, he holds the degrees Licentiate and Doctorate of Sacred theology (STL and STD) earned at the Gregorian University, and is fluent in several languages. He served from 1961 until 1968 in the Vatican and therefore had an opportunity to be close to the Council and an exciting period in church history.

As a curate, following his 1952 ordination, Bishop Cronin has served in parishes in Salisbury, Lynn and Waltham.

Championship Pits Bruins Hawks In Youth Hockey

The Bruins and the Black Hawks, who have been running neck and neck throughout the season, will meet for the championship next Sunday morning at 7:40.

The Bruins hold a slim one point edge over the Hawks. They defeated the Canadiens 2-0 last week while the Black Hawks trounced the Red Wings 4-1. The Rangers and the Maple Leafs battled to a 1-1 stalemate.

Bobby Gill and Phil O'Connell were the marksmen for the Bruins as they shutout the Canadiens 2-0. Dave Frongillo and Tommy Carr picked up assists on Gill's goal while O'Connell's was unassisted.

Both teams turned in fine defensive efforts, especially the Canadiens. The Canadiens, who have had trouble finding the scoring range this year, kept the League's most powerful offense in tow most of the game. Goalies Jim Grenier and Dennis O'Donnell were outstanding in the nets.

The Black Hawks kept right on the heels of the Bruins as they blasted in three goals late in the third period to defeat the Red Wings 4-1. Chris McCarthy passed from behind the net to Dave Dolan to put the Hawks out to an early 1-0 lead only to have Tommy Belden tie it up for the Wings three minutes later with an unassisted effort.

Billy Harris scored what proved to be the winner for the Hawks as he combined with Dana Peterson and hustling Dave Dolan. Mike Siegfriedt had the Hawks third goal, unassisted and set up Jimmy McCormack for the final tally, a blazer from the point.

Rangers, Leafs In Standoff

In a fast and well played game, the Rangers and the Maple Leafs fought to a 1-1 stalemate. The Murphy brothers took care of the Rangers score as Steve set up Rick, while Steve Troiano tallied for the Leafs.

The Leaf's fine defenseman Mike Sandford and the League's top point getter Paul Whitney assisted on the score. Goalies Ricky Coakley and Jim Grenier constantly thwarted the opposing forwards. Coakley didn't give up any goals in the game he worked while Jim Grenier worked two games and was very impressive in both. Dennis O'Donnell, Rich Maggio and Mike O'Leary turned in superb jobs.

Bruins Favorites

Coach Bob Murray's Bruins must rate as the favorites over Jay O'Leary's Black Hawks. The Bruins possess the most potent offense in the league having scored 37 goals while giving up 23, also having five men among the top twelve scorers in the league.

On the other hand, the Black Hawks have scored only 24 goals but have shown the best defensive record in the league giving up only 16 goals. Billy Harris is the only Black Hawk among the top scorers, tied for fifth place.

Senior goalies Dennis O'Donnell and Rich Maggio have been nominated by Director Bill Cruwys to man the nets for "the game."

Flyers Win

The Flyers continue to be the class of the Pee Wee Division as they won both of their encounters, 2-0 over the Kings and 4-1 over the Seals. Mark Milley played outstanding on defense for the Flyers and had the winning goal in the victory over the Kings.

The Kings bounced back to trounce the North Stars 3-0 in their other game of the day. It was a big win for the Kings as they moved into second place, three points ahead of the North Stars. In their other game, the North Stars and the Blues played to a 1-1 tie.

Coach Al Milley's Seals, the tough luck team of the year, and the Blues ended their game deadlocked at 2-2. Between the Blues and the Seals they have seventeen ties, and had either team been able to notch these as victories, could have been well up in the standings.

Goalies Superb

To pick this week's top player, one would have to chose the goalies. All the boys did a fine job as the scores indicate. Rick Coakley didn't give up any goals in the game he worked while Jim Grenier worked two games and was very impressive in both. Dennis O'Donnell, Rich Maggio and Mike O'Leary turned in superb jobs.

McCall Basketeers Win Championship With 11-1 Record

Coach Earl Johnson's McCall courtmen rambled through their 12-game schedule amassing 11 victories against a single defeat.

This record clinches them at least a tie for the title pending the result of the final Concord-Lexington game. If the Minutemen are winners, the locals are winners and if Concord comes out on top it will mean a McCall-Concord joint title.

This year's McCall team was a rangy and well coordinated group who averaged 61 points per game while limiting their opponents to a 43 point figure.

Most of the players were around the six foot mark and with normal growth they should provide a fine nucleus for Sachem Coach Vandy French in the next few seasons. The junior varsity also had a highly successful campaign compiling a 9-3 slate

Led by Co-Captains Bob Hicks and Bob Wolfe, they won most of their games quite handily except for a three point defeat by the Minutemen and a squeaker in the opener when they bested Melrose by a single point.

They were the only team to defeat Concord and played a very sensational game with Belmont when they came from an 18 point fourth period deficit to win the contest.

Besides being the high scorers, the co-leaders kept the team on its toes by excellent inspirational play.

Hicks doubled at the pivot position whenever necessary and Wolfe was a real bearcat on defense. Besides his tap-off assignment, Dana Peterson was among the top rebounders and combined with Wolfe to help McCall dominate the boards.

The floor general and ball control work fell largely into the hands of Tony Adams, and he directed the offense and also the defensive array. He was ably assisted by Wally Gorman and as a result of the fine work of this pair McCall had very few turnovers. This is one of the key factors in any hoop team's success since every time the other team gets the ball you lose a chance to score two points and the opposition has a chance. Therefore, a turnover can often mean four points lost and thus the ball control men can make or break a team.

Most hoop teams count heavily on their sixth man and the local champions had in this spot John Procopio whom Coach Johnson terms as his Havlicek. What "Jarring John" is to the Celtics, Procopio is to McCall. He plays equally well at forward or guard, offense or defense, in short an ideal player to fill in wherever needed and to give you his share of points and of rebounds.

Although not starters on the varsity Pete Pirani, Rich Powers, Ricky Eriksen, Eric Strout, George Geannaris, and Mark Mellen played a part in most of the varsity games. They also played for the junior varsity as occasion demanded and as a result gained a great deal of valuable experience while contributing to the success of the team.

The scoring records of the starters:

	Points per Game
Co-Capt. Robert Hicks	15
Co-Capt. Robert Wolfe	12
Dana Peterson	10
John Procopio	8
Tony Adams	7
Wally Gorman	5

Team members other than those mentioned above include:
Wayne West
Lance West
Larry Penta
Steve Hodgson
Jay Zerwekh
Alan Greene
Frank Pichler

The managers were Al Sampson and Keith McPhail.

Carnival Ball Ends Week; Barrel Jumping Postponed

A highly successful Carnival Ball and crowning of a queen put an end to vacation week and the sports events which had marked it as the third Winter Carnival here.

Lisa Spang, of 18 Calumet Road, was crowned queen of the ball by Jim Mallon a '69 classmate at WHS and the president of the Student Government Association.

Queen is annually chosen by a vote of the boys of the class. Miss Spang succeeds Lynn Jones, the 1968 nominee, and received gift certificates from Chitel's and the Colonial Perfumers.

Race Due Saturday

The ski race in the Fells came off as planned with Frank Levesque and Michael Carrigan tying in the run.

A Skimobile donated by the Winchester Power Equipment Company on Main Street was used by Recreation Director Donald Spinney as judge's car.

Postponed, however, was barrel jumping.

This contest will take place at 2 p.m. this Saturday instead, rink condition permitting Slush and snow precluded it being run off last week.

Draff Young went over big at the basketball clinic which opened the carnival at the Lynch JHS courts, February 15.

The huge, former pro was in charge of the Bob Cousy clinic which drew 85 local hoop aspirants to the clinic-contest sponsored by the Herald-Traveler and Randolph Manufacturing.

Shooting, passing and dribbling took over the gym from 10 a.m. until 11. Draff was assisted by local court experts Vandy French, Joseph DiIorio, Paul Mulgrew and Charles McMonagle.

After the hour's workout the contest started with three age category breakdowns.

Trophies are to be presented at a later date.

But winning the shoot were Greg West in the 13-17 year group; Mark Heffernan among the 10 to 12; and Michael Murphy, ages seven to nine.

Mike Hills Starts Squash At Dartmouth

Freshman Mike Hills of Winchester has just completed a good season with the Dartmouth College freshman squash team which was 2-6 on the season, according to a report from the College.

Playing as the number two man on the ladder, Hills posted a 3-5 record in matches and also posted a 10-15 mark in individual games won.

"We knew that we would have our problems this season," said Coach John Kenfield. "Not one boy had played squash before he came to Dartmouth. They made tremendous progress and I feel that they will help us in the next few seasons."

Hills is a former Winchester High soccer and tennis player and his older brother Gerry is the number five player with the Dartmouth varsity team. Mike's father, Arthur Hills, and his brother Jeff, Class of '67 at Dartmouth, were tennis players for the Indians.

Little League Tryouts Scheduled

Henry A. Petrillo of 52 Allen Road, chairman of the Little League player agent committee, has announced that the first day for Little League tryouts will be March 29 at Ginn Field and West Side Field.

The opening day of the season is planned for Saturday, April 26.

The player agent committee is composed of the four player agents who plan, operate and administer the tryouts and the player draft. In addition to Mr. Petrillo, who is also the player agent for the Senior American League, Aldo M. Ungaretti of 27 Holton Street is Senior National League player agent, Edward M. Sandford of 18 Clearwater road is player agent for the Major and Minor American Leagues, and David R. Cox of 20 Eaton Street is player agent for the Major and Minor National Leagues.

All Winchester boys between the agens of nine and 15 are urged to fill out application forms for participation in the 1969 Little League season. Whether or not they played in Little League last year, all boys must fill out and turn in their own application forms so that the proper records can be compiled for their active participation.

There will be two tryout days, and candidates must attend at least one session to be considered for team positions.

Fathers are expected to come to the tryouts with their sons, to assist in the operation of the field day and to insure all pertinent data on their sons' applications.

Application forms will be available only at the Winchester Sport Shop at 43 Church Street and the Winchester Hobby Shop at 555 Main Street.

The forms will be available beginning Saturday, March 1, and continuing until Saturday, March 22.

All application forms must be returned to the Winchester Sport Shop or the Winchester Hobby Shop no later than March 22 to be considered for Little League in 1969. No applications will be accepted later than the close of business on that date.

Mr. Petrillo stated that the Major and Minor League tryouts will be conducted concurrently. Those boys living in Precincts 1, 3 and 5 will report to West Side Field (behind Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm), with its entrance on Wildwood Street, just west of Cambridge Street.

Those boys living in Precincts 2, 4 and 6 will report to Ginn Field (Bacon Street at Mystic Valley Parkway). These are the "home" fields of the American and National Leagues, respectively.

Senior League tryouts will be conducted at Shore Road Field, (Skillings and Shore Road) starting on Saturday, March 29. All candidates must bring their own gloves. Other necessary equipment will be provided by the League.

The following is the official tryout schedule:

Major and Minor Leagues, American League, West Side Field — March 29 and April 5 — March 29 and April 5.

Major and Minor Leagues, National League — Ginn Field — March 29 and April 5.

Senior League, American and National, Shore Road Field — March 29 and 30 April 5.

There will be six new teams in Winchester Little League this year, so there will be many more opportunities for boys to make a team. All members of last year's teams and new candidates, as well, are urged to get the application forms as soon as possible, and return them, properly filled out, as soon as possible.

Agnes Bixler To Head New Athletic Program At U. Delaware

The Athletic Council of the University of Delaware has approved the establishment of an extramural sports program for women to begin in September, 1969, with Agnes Bixler, instructor in physical education, chairman of the new program.

Miss Bixler, a graduate of WHS and Smith College, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bixler of 31 Fells Road.

"There is already in existence at the University a strong, full class program to give instruction to all students with a wide variety of sports to choose from. There is also a well-established intramural program for all interested students and this will continue," says Miss Bixler.

'70 Varsity Beats Seniors

Winchester basketball fans have much to look forward to in the coming years. This year's seniors, on their way to compiling the first winning record in Winchester basketball since the early 60's were upset by next year's varsity squad, 68-64

Two free throws each by Peter DeNatale and Bob Bigelow in the closing seconds were the margin of victory. Bigelow also led the Sachems in scoring with 18 points. John Reardon added 15 and Chuck Rotondi 13 points.

Jack Papadinis hit for 25 points in a losing cause.

The freshman team, led by a highly touted McCall quintet which lost one game all season, went two overtimes before dropping a cliff hanger to the Sachem JV's.

Down two points in the closing seconds of regulation play and in the first overtime the freshmen tied the score on key baskets by Bobby Hicks and Dana Peterson.

Up one with six seconds left in the second overtime, the freshmen appeared to have won but Peter DeNatale dropped in a bomb at the buzzer giving the undermanned JV's a 53-52 victory.

Sachem Pucksters Split— Hoop Team Tops New Prep

by John F. Parrell

The Sachem hockey team dropped another squeaker to Concord-Carlisle losing in the last minute of action 3-2. However, they returned from their trip to West Point for the long Friday game in time to upset Watertown by 3-0 and thus pushed the losers into the Middlesex League cellar.

In a non-league contest which was added to the schedule Coach Vandy French's quintet bested New Prep by a count of 84-65. This was by far their best scoring performance of the season.

Returning to the hockey action the Winchester team played a nip and tuck game with the Patriots from start to finish.

The game was a scoreless draw at the end of the period, a 1-1 tie at the end of the second stanza, and 2-2 with 53 seconds to play when Phil Carrigan of Concord, assisted by Bob Driscoll and Howard let fly a long shot that went into the local nets for the deciding marker.

Both Winchester tallies were the result of good combination plays by Capt. Doug Dalton who assisted Jimmy Beck who popped them into the cage.

3-0 Win

Fred Cammon was at his best in the goal and kept Watertown at bay in the Saturday afternoon game which saw the locals come out on top by a 3-0 count.

Capt. Doug Dalton opened the scoring before the game was one minute old by banging one in and later added another in the third period. Billy Harris chipped in with a third marker and these were more than enough to clinch the verdict. Assists on these scoring efforts went to Brian Bowen, Jay O'Leary, and a pair to Richard Shanahan.

The next hockey game was played last night with Reading and the long season will terminate on Saturday, March 8, when Wakefield will be met at 12:30. It is hoped that a good crowd of supporters will be on hand since this is the only athletic event of the week, all other winter sports teams having completed their seasons.

84-65 For Frenchmen

The basketball game with the preparatory school boys from Cambridge saw the Sachems grab an early lead of six points at the end of the first period and hold it throughout the balance of the contest.

By half time it had stretched to ten points and this advantage was maintained as Capt. Tom Workman hit his seasonal high with a 34 point outburst, 16 of these coming on foul shots These combined with major contributions of 20 points by rangy sophomore Bigelow and another 15 by Jack Papadinis constituted the bulk of the winning attack.

In the meantime the balance of the team was playing a smart floor game and showing a good defensive effort which kept the scoring of the visitors down

The final game of the season was played last night at the local gymnasium with Woburn furnishing the opposition in a non-league game.

Army Plebes Beat Sachems By 7-2 At West Point

Coach Ted Kelley's hockey team trekked to West Point for a Friday game with the first year men at the military academy. Although they came out on the short end of a 7-2 score the Winchester puck chasers gave a fine acount of themselves against superior manpower and experience. Accustomed to 12 minute periods or a 36 minute game the boys played 20 minute sessions for a full hour of ice action.

Army's playing surface is the largest in the country and made the task of the locals even more difficult. In spite of these factors the Kelleymen were at their best in the third period when they played the young cadets even with each team tallying twice. The plebes took a four goal first period edge but thereafter the Sachems played their best game of the season to keep things much closer.

Twenty boys made the trip and every one had a chance to play, even if for only a few moments. Rich Shanahan, who hopes some day to be a cadet himself, notched the first Winchester tally on a pretty solo dash. Jay O'Leary, who is beginning to find his shooting eye in recent games, added the other marker also on a nice individual effort. Fred Cammon in the local nets held off the plebes by some sensational work.

The Winchester team was entertained royally and had four meals with the cadets in the mess hall. They were taken on escorted tours of the entire Academy and everything possible was done to make them feel at home. Besides the game they enjoyed a Thursday practice session on the famous ice surface.

All in all it was both an enjoyable and educational trip as well as an opportunity to play a game under nearly ideal conditions which were quite a contrast with some of the sessions in the confines of the Lynn Indoor Rink where the Middlesex League is forced to play its games.

Accompanying the players were several local Sachem fans, including Mrs. Lawrance Dalton, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cammon, Mr. and Mrs. John O'Leary and Mr. and Mrs. John Shanahan.

Wrestlers Score 15 Points In State Tourney

Winchester tallied 15 points in the State wrestling tournament held last weekend at Lowell Technological Institute.

This winds up the season which saw the team post a winning record and make a very creditable showing in the regionals and the final State competition. Coach Tom Kline's boys met the best including the Chelmsford High State champions; and although not always winners, they were never outclassed.

Mike Dooley, wrestling in the 105 pound class went to the finals at Lowell with Earl Cole of Longmeadow. The latter won a 4-0 decision but Mike was struggling for a pin up to the final moment when he had to settle for second place. To reach the final round he pinned Beauregard of Westford after 3:59.

The other local scorer was Bob Thomas in the 112 pound class. This boy has come a long way this season and his vast improvement found him make the semi-final round where he was outpointed by William Koziara of Pittsfield in a hard fought match losing the decision by a 5-2 margin.

Lehigh Hockey Is Aided By Peter DesMeules

Peter DesMeules, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. DesMeules of 378 Main Street, had the hat trick and three assists to help the Lehigh University hockey team clinch the Middle Atlantic League title in their meet with Villanova.

The team, coached by Bill Riley, a former Boston University star, has had seven victories in seven loop starts, including two over defending champion Rutgers. Lehigh has one league game remaining.

Lehigh beat Villanova on the Villanova ice, 15-3.

Coach Praises Fine Outlook Of Lynch Hoopmen

Despite the fact that the Lynch Junior High basketball squad did not complete its schedule on the winning side, Coach Frank Provinzano has much praise and pride in his group. A fine attitude and spirit distinguished the season, according to Coach Provinzano.

The Lynch team lacked height and bench strength

The varsity would find itself in trouble when a sixth man was called for to rest the regulars, or to replace a player when removed from the game after committing the fifth personal foul.

The boys made an excellent selection in placing their confidence in left guard Art Ceruolo to represent them as their captain, and Art will do well in high school ball.

He is 5 ft. 8 in., but is a good ball handler and play-maker. He averaged 9 points per game and hit double digits in four games.

He also was the star quarterback on the football team.

Heffernan Standout

Leading the pack in all-around basketball knowledge, play-making, scoring and foul shooting is eighth grader John Heffernan, right guard who also stands 5 ft. 8 in. but his presence was felt all over the court. He did an excellent job in averaging 13 points per game and hit double digits in all but three games during the season. He has an excellent outside one-hander and certainly will be a good man to have around another year.

Right forward Steve Deshler at 5 ft. 6 in comes next in the scoring column where he averaged 10 points per game and he did an ecouraging job on defense with his cat-like moves. He was also a stalwart on defense as a linebacker in football.

The tallest man on the starting unit at 5 ft. 11 in. was Neil Callahan, center, who certainly showed much improvement as the season rolled on. He learned to control the backboards and did a fine job handing off.

He did not score much but he stayed right in there and should develop in another year. Neil did a fine job as offensive center in football.

Right forward Peter Garrity at 5 ft. 9 in. and Steve McManus at 5 ft. 8 in. were the fifth men on the A squad and completed their four periods of play during the day playing on the junior varsity squad. Peter averaged 4 points in the varsity game and 5 points for the junior varsity Steve hit for an average of six points for the varsity and five points for the junior varsity.

The sixth man on the varsity club were Bill Logan, center, who stood at 5 ft. 10 inches and was most outstanding as a defensive player and good team man and right guard Craig West who was 5 ft 7 in. and for the junior varsity he hit in the double digits. His best game was against McCall when he hit for 20 points.

Improvement

Lynch had its most difficult game in the season opener, but following that big loss the team came along strong and found itself leading in half time in several contests only to have troubles in the latter parts of the games trying to keep up with the strong opposition when adequate replacements were not available.

This is where Coach Provinzano pats each one of his players on the back. "They just did not give up and were right in there trying their best," Sometimes it can be said, "It's not whether you win or lose the game but how you played it," reminds the coach.

On the junior varsity squad the high scorers were Pete Garrity, Steve McManus and Craig West who were mentioned above. Following them in the lineup were Mark Forte who showed much improvement as time went by. He is a fighter and hit double digits in two games.

Larry Wright, a left hander, came along and had a good shot from the left corner and hit for 10 points in one game and averaged 3 per game for the season.

Steve Klemer is an eighth grader and did a fine job defensively and play-making.

Bill Forte was quick on defense and set up the plays nicely.

Dick Swanson had a very slow start because of doctor's orders, but inmproved in each game.

Tom Raleigh was a regular substitute. He too, showed great improvement.

Others making up the junior varsity team and getting into competition as much as the various situations permitted were: Randy Fincke, Dave Leland, Bob Jackson, Maurice Ponti, Charles Tatarian, Brian Cullen and Mark Laughlin.

The managers were Dave Welles, Torrey Wallace, Wayne Pooler and Ron Manganaro.

Modern chemicals will destroy weeds without harming grasses, according to turf agronomists at Amchem Research Farm, Amber, Pennsylvania. Bentgrass and St. Augustine are exceptions and should receive half the lower rate recommended on the label. Also, Zoysia and Bremuda grass tolerate chemical sprays well except when they are just beginning to green up in early Spring.

Sachems Down New Prep 84-65

Led by the shooting of Captain Tom Workman, who set an individual scoring mark with 34 points, Winchester downed New Prep, 84-65, in a non-league game.

The Sachems led throughout and increased their lead during every quarter. This marked the first game of the season that the Sachem offense has scored more than 80 points.

In hitting for his 34 points, Workman sank nine of 13 floor shots and 16 of 17 foul shots.

Sophomore Bob Bigelow threw in 20 points and Jack Papadinis added 15.

The Sachems overall record is now 9-8, going into the last game with Woburn here, yesterday afternoon.

Pee Wee A's Are Undefeated

The Winchester Youth Hockey Pee Wee "A" team, undefeated Hockeytown Divisional Champions, completed its regular season last Sunday by beating the Melrose Pee Wees five to three at the Hockeytown Arena in Melrose.

Jimmy Graham got the hat trick by scoring three of the five goals, and Tommy Brennan, soloing in from the blue line, got the other two.

Melrose was one of the strongest opponents the Winchester team had to face during the season, having defeated Charlestown, the only team to tie Winchester, by the lopsided score of 6-1 only the week before.

On Thursday, February 20, the Pee Wee "A" team also played the Cambridge Pee Wees. Winchester won by a score of 11-0, with six of the eleven goals scored by Richie Jacobs, two by Johnny Murphy, two by Mark Siegfriedt and one by Charlie Evans.

Both the Melrose and Cambridge games were played after the "A" team learned that it had won the league championship in the Hockeytown Pee Wee program.

Throughout the season the Winchester team displayed an extraordinary will-to-win and spectacular come-back powers, aided in large part by excellent skating and a very strong bench.

Credit for the undefeated season goes to Coach Jim Murphy of Westland Avenue, and to the goaltending of Cliff Falla and Michael O'Leary.

The team's record is as follows:
Winchester 3; Marblehead 2
Winchester 5; Winthrop 3
Winchester 9; Peabody 1
Winchester 3; Charlestown 3
Winchester 9; Cambridge 0
Winchester 4; Melrose 2
Winchester 9; Woburn 1
Winchester 2; Marblehead 1
Winchester 3; Winthrop 2
Winchester 5; Peabody 3
Winchester 4; Charlestown 3
Winchester 11; Cambridge 0
Winchester 5; Melrose 3

All members of the Pee Wee "A" team are under 14 years of age, and some of them are well under 14.

The "A" team is one of the four teams representing Winchester Youth Hockey in inter-town competition, which include the older Bantam "A" and "B" teams and the younger Pee Wee "A" and "B" teams.

The roster of the Pee Wee "A" team is as follows:
Tommy Brennan
Dave Brenton
Dave Dolan

Cliff Falla
Jimmy Graham

Gerry Kivney
Ron Martignetti
Johnny Murphy

Pee Wees Tie Acton

The Winchester Pee Wee B hockey team was tied by Acton 2-2 in a thriller this week at Bedford.

Winchester broke on top in the first period when Dave Dolan stole the puck while fore-checking in the Acton zone.

Dave passed to Frank Ryan who held the puck until he saw Larry O'Grady in front and then flipped it to Larry who put it home in the open side.

Acton tied the score in the second period but Winchester bounced back to take the lead when Dave Putnam deflected in Phil Neergaard's shot from the point.

Acton tied the game again in the third period while Winchester was short-handed.

Goalie Pete Frongillo played a fine game in the nets making several saves that were spectacular. The third unit played one of their best games of the season with Mike Donnellan, Phil Neergaard, Dan Whitney, Dave Putnam, Mike Jeannette and Jay Frongillo all playing well.

Next week's opponent is Billerica at 5 p.m. Sunday in Bedford.

Coach Mansfield Looks Back

"Of all the teams I coached in Winchester, I have pictures of all but five."

Out of the past and up from Hallandale, Florida, comes these words from former WHS Coach Manny (Wendell) Mansfield.

He'd like help. His collection of pictures is missing this list:

Charles Hill Winner At Mt. Cranmore

Charles R. Hill Jr. of 11 Alden Lane received a bronze medal (third prize) in a controlled downhill time race held on the "North Slope Rattler" at Cranmore Mt. Sunday, February 16.

The race was held by the Eastern Slope Ski Club of North Conway and the 25 racers were timed by electric timers.

Dave Williams Is All-East Hockey Nominee

Sophomore Dave Williams of Colby College, son of Mr. and Mrs Walworth B. Williams of 15 Ledgewood Road, was nominated for the all-East Division II hockey team of the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

As a wing on the third line, Williams collected the hat trick, three goals, in an 11-2 lashing of Amherst last Saturday.

He prepared for Colby at Belmont High School.

"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the Bible Lesson-Sermon to be heard at Christian Science churches this Sunday. The Golden Text is from Ephesians: "Ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone."
Correlated passages from the denominational textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, will include the following: "Christianity as Jesus taught it was not a creed, nor a system of ceremonies, nor a special gift from a ritualistic Jehovah; but it was the demonstration of divine Love casting out error and healing the sick, not merely in the name of Christ, or Truth, but in demonstration of Truth, as must be the case in the cycles of divine light."

Winchester Duplicate Bridge Club

On next Wednesday, March 5th, the Hevey's Pharmacy Challenge Bowl will be placed in competition at the annual Mixed Pairs Championship to be held at the Club. This is always a popular event, and a good field is expected.

On Wednesday, February 19th, Jane and John Davis were well ahead North-South in Section A's nine tables with Donna Redpath and Steve Haseltine the winners East-West.

North-South

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cincotta Jr.	110½

Hard Luck Story

Although the factor of luck is lessened in duplicate by having everyone sitting in a given direction play the same cards, you still need a rabbit's foot in your pocket. Board 19 in Section A is a good illustration. East-West is vlunerable with South the dealer.

NORTH
♠ J 2
♥ Q 6 5 4
♦ J 7
♣ K Q J 4 3

WEST — East
♠ 3 — ♠ 9 8 7 6 5 4
♥ A K J 10 9 8 — ♥
♦ A 8 5 4 — ♦ 10 9 6 2
♣ 9 8 — ♣ 10 7 5

SOUTH
♠ A K Q 10
♥ 7 3 2
♦ K Q 3
♣ A 6 2

South with his excellent 18 points opens the bidding with one no trump. West overcalls with two hearts, and North has to decide whether to double West After all, with his partner's 16 to 18 points plus his own 10 and the four hearts, surely North-South can garner 500 points for setting West two tricks doubled while a non-vulnerable three no trump game North-south is worth only 400 points. Still, North figures distribution can be tricky and surely his clubs will be worth more in no trump, everyone else will be in game North-South anyway, so North bids three no trump, and everyone else passes. If North says two no trump, South will bid the three.

There is no problem on the play. West leads the Ace, King of hearts and a third heart, planning to get in with the diamond Ace and run his good hearts. But South has the heart Queen, five clubs and four spades to make four no trump before letting West take a trick.

And as North-South put their cards back in the board for the next unsuspecting pair, they feel they were in the right spot, until they open the traveling score slip. Alas, making four no trump for 430 points is a sorry result. Of the nine North-Souths playing the hand, four are in three no trump making four, but are doubled, thus making more; four contracts are in hearts by West, doubled and being set from 500 to 1100 points, again better than the mere game; and the ninth contract was in five clubs by North, down one. They thus score only one match point for the hand, because they did better than only one other North-South.

Oh well, you may as well shrug your shoulders and hope for a gift later on to make up. It's just your hard luck you didn't have a doubling player in the West spot.

On the other side of the coin, I was sitting East with not even one Jack in my hand, not too conducive to a good board, you would think. However, possessing a partner who decided not to double the three no trump bid was worth most of the match points in this case.

THE MOST IMPORTANT DISCOVERY YOUR CHILD CAN MAKE

Children are natural "discoverers." They love to learn about, and to use new ideas. They like to solve problems. They want action.

This is why children love Christian Science. It involves action. It also involves discovery, the most important discovery of all: the nature of God and man's relationship to Him.

In our Sunday School children learn how to search for Truth, and to find it: how to act on these discoveries, and to prove their worth.

Your child will enjoy being with the "discoverers" in our Sunday School classes. They are welcome, any time.

Day Of Prayer To Be Held March 7

The moving words of the African spiritual "Kum Ba Ya" will resound throughout the Church of the Epiphany at the World Day of Prayer service on Friday, March 7, at 1:30 p.m.

Ann women are urged to attend this ecumenical service joining women in 130 countries and territories in a common plea to overcome prejudices and responsibility utilize their increasing knowledge for the sake of, rather than against, one another.

Speaker for the service will be Dr. Emma L. Benignus of the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge. The service itself was written by a committee of African women and stresses unity in diversity.

Church women have recognized the need for unity and understanding since 1887, when they first set aside one day in which to join in a single symbolic voice of prayer.

Offerings received on this day will support a number of projects which strengthen the outreach of the ministry of the church in the world and include: support for fourteen colleges for women in Asia and Africa; a hospitality program for students coming from abroad to study in the U.S.A.; a ministry of reconciliation in Vietnam and eventually in other lands in the Indochinese peninsula; aid to migrant farm workers and to Indian-Americans; and a ministry of reconciliation to our own nation in time of urban crisis.

Tea will be served in Hadley Hall following the service.

Your Heart Fund dollars played a vital role in the dramatic decline of cardiocascular death rates for persons aged below 65 that has taken place in this country since 1950. The overall decline amounts to 18.4 per cent.

S. O. I. News

Sunday, February 16 was the date for the annual S.OI. Sports Night.

Al Fiorilli, master of ceremonies, started the night off by introducing the head table guests, Don Spinney, Paul Amico, Joe Paonessa and Albie MacDonnell.

Softball manager Sam Bellino presented his brother, Mike, with the team's "Most Valuable Player Award." Mike was selected for the award by his teammates.

Moose Bellino, chairman of the sports committee, presented the lodge with a memorial plaque and trophy for the late Frank Procopio Sr.

The plaque denotes the history of the softball league from its beginning in 1940 to the present day. This will stay in the club. The trophy is for the current softball champions and will be presented each year to the winning team.

Bill Fiore, S.O.I. Venerable, recalled some of the lighter moments he had playing softball with "Hokie" Procopio. He mentioned the contributions made for the softball league as well as for the S.O.I. by Hokie and the many friends he made in town.

Bill also recalled some old names such as: former high school teacher and coach, Ted Bartlett, who was the first softball league director. Paul Connors, good natured, and for years the colorful player-manager for the V.F.W. He mentioned a store who sponsored a team, a team that defeated the "Ten Old Men" and became the first Town of Winchester Softball Champs back in 1940. The store was the Economy Grocery and was located next to the Winchester Drug. The Son's eleven championships, five in a row at one point, was brought up and the present champions, who have won three in a row, the Elks was noted.

Manager of the Elk's softball team, Richie Mawn, accepted the trophy for his team. He had some kind words to say about Hokie and the S.O.I. He said he hoped to be back next year to pick up the fourth trophy in a row.

An appreciation award was given to Manny Marshall for coaching Winchester High's football team to their first Middlesex League Championship in recent years.

A "professor," who turned out to be a stand up comic, kept the boys in stitches.

Vic Gatto followed the "professor."

Red Hannon, a former Winchester boy, kept the boys laughing with his true life adventure stories. Red replaces Babe Rubenstein at Rockingham Park this year.

George Sullivan, sports writer for the Herald, told many anecdotes about sports and Jon Morris, Patriot's center poked fun at the Pats as well as himself.

Moose Bellino ended the speaking part of the program by thanking his committee of Boss Dattilo, who did an excellent job as chef, Jake Ciarcia, Joe Capone, John Dattilo, Bob Fiore, Al Fiorilli, Paul Lentine, Frank Provinzano, and Dick Tofuri.

Special Music For Unitarians

The Winchester Unitarian Choir, under the direction of Mary Ranton Witham, will offer six choral Lenten programs in the church chancel at 10:40 a.m. preceding the Sunday 11 o'clock services.

On March 2nd the following program will ge sung:

1st Anthem
Come Thou, Oh Come — Bach
Male Choir

2nd Anthem
Lamb of God — Haydn
Quartette and Choir

Postlude, 2nd English Suite
Bourree arranged by M.R.W. Bach

The Downs Memorial Carillon will be played by Linda W. Nichols.

Members of the Unitarian Quartette are: Estelle McNeely, soprano; Barbara Wood, contralto; William W. Jeffery, tenor and Sidney C. Blanchard Jr., baritone.

John W. Baldwin is assistant to Mrs. Witham.

Education Workshop Underway

The issues of the urban education crisis—community control of schools, psychology of prejudice, private community schools—are the focus of a 15-week workshop at Boston State College already commenced.

Community leaders, educators, teacher union officials, psychiatrists and others will participate in the weekly program entitled "Significant Issues in the Urban Education Crisis."

Massachusetts Education Commissioner Neil Sullivan and Boston School Supt. William Ohrenberger are among those speaking.

Boston School Committee Chairman John Kerrigan and Louis Vangel, president of the Boston Teachers Union will give "The Case Against Community Control of Schools" on March 11.

Boston State College President John J. O'Neill; David Owens, Boston schools, Harvey Pressman, educational consultant; and Jerry Weinstein, U. of Massachusetts, will speak on "Teaching in the Urban Schools" on April 15.

Mr. Guild Named Executive For State Club

Richard S. Guild of 5 Glengarry Road, a member of the Guild Associates Inc., has been named executive secretary of the State Club of Massachusetts and will direct the Club's activities from his 715 Boylston Street office in Boston.

Club President Laurence Eliot Bunker announced the appointment.

The post of executive secretary is a newly created position. Mr. Guild takes over the functions of the office formerly held by Douglas Lawson who founded the State Club in 1949 and who passed away in January.

The Guild Associates Inc., founded in 1933, is a professional association management company with client associations in the concrete, file, marine, nursery, weekly newspaper and vending industries.

Mr. Guild is a past director of the American Society of Association Executives, vice president of the Multiple Association Management Institute and a member of the Defense Orientation Conference Association.

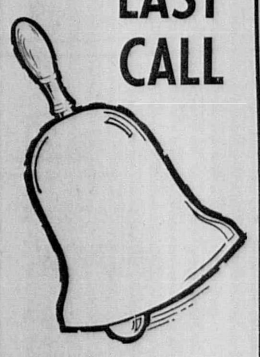

He is married and has two daughters.

Miss Cunningham Heads Workshop In Michigan

Miss Martha Cunningham, principal of the Lincoln School, conducted a three-day workshop in Michigan February 19 to 21.

Miss Cunningham was invited by Science Research Associates in Chicago, Illinois, to conduct the session on the reading program in the non-graded school.

The Lincoln School was the first school in Winchester to adopt the non-graded concept when the school implemented a modified Joplin Plan several years ago.

Missourian Takes Two National Titles At Indoor Tennis Center Here

Mary Ann Eisel of St. Louis, the attractive 22-year-old brunette who ranks fourth among the nations female tennis players says she must be "a Bostonian at heart."

Miss Eisel won the National Women's Indoor singles championship Sunday with a hard fought, 6-3, 4-6, 6-2 victory over Stephanie DeFina of Hollywood, Florida at the Indoor Tennis Center on East Street.

She then teamed with Valerie Ziegenfuss of San Diego to win the doubles title in a 6-1, 6-3 romp over Californians Patti Hogan of LaJolla and Peggy Michel of Pacific Palisades.

After the double triumph, Miss Eisel was presented with a pair of miniature silver tennis balls, which are given by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association to symbolize victory in each of its national championships.

Mary Ann now has ten of these balls in her collection, all won in Greater Boston, three here at Winchester Cathedral and seven at the Longwood Cricket Club.

"I really like to play in Boston," laughed Mary Ann. "I've been coming here for the last seven years and I always seem to do well in this area."

Mary Ann won the singles championship at the age of 17 in 1964, when the tournament was played on the fast, linoleum surface of the Longwood Covered Courts.

14 Of 20 Here

This year's triumph was much more satisfying, however. The field, which included 14 of the top 20 players in the nation, was much more representative than the one which she prevailed five years ago, and the victory came on a type of court which is not well suited to her game.

The slow, Neoturf courts on East Street favor a back court player with sharp, round strokes, rather than a net-rusher like Mary Ann with powerful serves and volleys. But, in the final, Mary Ann was able to use her excellent play at the net to defeat Miss DeFina, a tireless, back-court retriever whose defense-oriented game is best on this type of surface.

Two Upsets

The exciting final capped off a week of fine tennis.

"This surface is good for spectator interest," said Tory Fretz of Los Angeles, who pulled two upsets to reach the semi-finals before losing to Miss DeFina. "To win here a player must have good ground strokes and a fairly complete game." There were lots of long rallies and good points in all the matches, and that is great for spectators."

Tory ousted fifth-seeded Miss Hogan and second seeded Kristy Pigeon of Danville, California, on successive days by the identical scores of 6-2, 6-3. It was a happy return to Winchester for the tall, 26-year-old blonde who broke her ankle on her first try on these same courts in 1967.

Miss Fretz has just returned to competition after taking six months off to revamp her entire game.

"I've been working five or six hours a day to improve all my strokes," she said, "but this is the first time I've had a chance to try them out in tournament competition...The result was very encouraging."

Another Heroine

Another heroine for the galleries was the 21-year-old Cecilia Martinez. She battled gamely for three sets before bowing to Miss Eisel in the semi-finals, 7-5, 2-6, 6-2. Ceci's determination and bubbly personality captivated the onlookers who were pulling for her throughout the tournament.

The camaraderie which keeps the contestants in good form is reportedly especially high in Winchester play, and much credit for this goes to the background support of the Winchester Tennis Association and its community-oriented outlook.

This year's Nationals did lack some of the whomp and wallop of the tourneys of '67 and '68, however Billie Jean King's irrepressible competitive drive was always infectious to the whole crew. She was a pace-setter, hard to beat.

YOUNGER CONTESTANTS were Sue Goodwin of Winchester and Jade Schiffman of Riverdale. Their doubles match was finally defaulted, however, due to Miss Schiffman's illness. (Ryerson photo)

Tax Credit For Gasoline Is Available

People who use gasoline on farms, for boating or any other non-highway use are entitled to a credit for Federal gasoline excise tax they pay.

The Internal Revenue Service has said this credit can be taken when taxpayers file their 1968 Federal income tax returns.

The credit is two cents for every gallon of gasoline bought for use in boating and other non-highway uses. Farmers are entitled to four cents a gallon credit for gasoline used on a farm for farming purposes.

The IRS said that the gas tax credit is computed on Form 4136, computation of credit for federal tax on gas and lubricating oil. This form should be attached to income tax returns.

Bus systems which provide regular service may also be entitled to a gas tax credit.

Additional information on the gas tax credit is contained in IRS Publication 308, Farmer's Gas Tax Credit, and Publication 378, Federal Gas Tax Credit, or Refund for Non-Highway and Transit Users. Send a post card to District Director, Internal Revenue Service, J.F.K. Federal Building, Boston, Massachusetts 02203 for a free copy.

North Shore Group Presents Shakespeare

For its seventh annual Shakespeare program, the North Shore Community Arts Foundation will present Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" beginning May 5 at the North Shore Music-Theatre.

Broadway stage director Philip Lawrence, returning for his third season, will direct a professional New York cast in 24 morning and afternoon performances of the rollicking Shakespearean comedy.

Mr. Lawrence's skillful staging of "The Tempest" two years ago and his widely acclaimed "Hamlet" last spring won high praise from drama critics and enthusiastic student audiences. He received a Ford Foundation grant in recognition of his work in the theatre.

This year, the Foundation's Shakespeare Program will be lengthened from two to three weeks, May 5-24, in order to accommodate requests from schools throughout the six New England states.

The Music-Theatre is located off Route 128 at exit 19 in Beverly. A brochure containing details of the seventh annual Shakespeare Program for Students is available from the North Shore Community Arts Foundation, Box 62, Beverly.

Amateur Florists Urged To Exhibit At Spring Show

Amateur gardeners will have a chance to show off their indoor gardening skills at the amateur horticultural competition section of the 98th New England Spring Garden and Flower Show March 15 to 23 in Boston.

Here the amateur grower can show to best advantage his skill with flowering plants, foliage plants, hardy Dutch bulbs, African violets, miniature geraniums and hanging baskets. The list is designed to embrace all plants that an amateur could grow and exhibit.

For a complete schedule of classes just call or write: Betty Levine at the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, telephone 536-9280. Why wait until summer to show off skill with growing things.

'On Being Black'

WGBH's own $750,000 black drama series premieres this week with Abbey Lincoln as star of the first production written by the noted author and actress, Alice Childress.

Miss Lincoln is the heroine of Miss Childress' moving play "Wine in the Wilderness," the first of 20 dramas in the Channel 2 series "On Being Black" which has for its theme what it's like to be black in white America.

The series has been funded by a grant from the Ford Foundation. The plays will be aired weekly, Tuesdays at 9 p.m. starting March 4 on Channel 2. Channel 44 will repeat the drama Wednesday, March 5 at 9 p.m.

Edison Crews Work Hard During Storm

Frank Staszesky, executive vice president of Boston Edison and the "Generalissino" of the restoration effort during the recent storm, said that many people had already lauded the line crews who battled snow drifts, unplowed streets and bone-chilling cold through three nights and days to get the power back on.

Mr. Staszesky told of one man ...John Monahan who lives in Medford...who was unable to get out at all when summoned Sunday night. "He showed up Monday morning," said Staszesky. "He had walked nine miles from Medford to our Waltham Service Center. "He's a truckman and we sure were glad to see him."

On the 33rd floor of the Prudential Tower where the Company's phone crews were manning the 96 trunk lines answering customer calls, one high note of irony occurred. An irate caller wanted to know why he couldn't have his lights back on. "They're on in Canton—why not in Jamaica Plain?"

The young lady was doing her best to explain that restoration was taking place in an orderly manner —something about primary circuits first, and so on and so forth.

It was the kind of question and the kind of understandably upset customer she had handled hundreds of times since she had come on duty.

Finally, the customer blurted, "Don't kid me Sister, if I were one of those blankety-blank blacks in Roxbury I bet you'd have my lights back on."

"I beg your pardon," said the young lady, but the man had hung up. The young lady is Sherry Bowman. She's an Edison customer-clerk. She lives in that area. She's black.

Chairman Charles F. Avila spent much of the storm at his post in the Prudential Tower or out touring the system as did President Tom Galligan.

Mr. Avila told of report after report of people driving long distances to get to their emergency posts. "One of our men, John Atkinson, was called at his home Sunday night down in Mattapoisett, over fifty miles from Boston. It took him three hours to get up to his emergency post at our Main Operations Center in Roxbury," said Mr. Avila, "but he got there. He got there Sunday night. And he stayed there through Wednesday."

Edison workers are just now getting around to sending congratulations to Larry Murphy, a Company draftsman who lives in Dorchester and normally works out of the Walpole Service Center.

Larry is the proud father of a storm-born daughter Joann. While the baby was being born on Tuesday, Larry was on his emergency duty in Dedham as part of a crew surveying damage.

"I had taken my wife, who used to be an Edison worker, to her mother's house on Raven Street, just down the block from St. Margaret's Hospital," says Larry, "This was Sunday night. I didn't know at the time that my office was calling me, but I showed up for work Monday morning and I've been there ever since."

Social Security

A misconception about Social Security is: Since at least five years of Social Security covered work in the 10-year period before disability are needed if payments are to be made, the young disabled worker who never had a chance to work that long is left out in the cold. "This has not been so since the 1967 amendments to the Social Security Law," Mr. Lonergan of the Cambridge office has said. "As the booklet, "If you become Disabled," points out, a worker becoming disabled before age 24 now needs credit for only one and a half years of work in the three-year period ending when his disability begins. A worker 24 through 30 needs credit for having worked half the time between 21 and the time he becomes disabled. It is only when he is 31 or older that the five years are needed, but even then the years need not be consecutive or in units of full years."

Town's Children To See 'Man In The Moon'

Live theatre is announced today for youngsters of Winchester, on Saturday, March 15.

The Winchester Community School Association will present the Emmerson College Strolling Players in their production of "The Man in the Moon" at the Winchester High School Auditorium at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Tickets for both these performances will be on sale at all the elementary schools on Wednesday and Thursday, March 5th and 6th. As this theater production is open to all children in town, as well as out of town guests, tickets may also be purchased at McCormack's and Hevey's pharmacies.

"The Man in the Moon" is a space-comedy spoof about an absent-minded Professor Plum and his daughter, Fiona, who embark for the moon in an old fashioned balloon. Their adventures are complicated by the appearance of two gremlins who board their balloon and puncture it.

For years the theater committee of the Community Schools Association has tried to present the finest in entertainment and to provide the best possible conditions for the enjoyment of such.

Because of the large number of children attending, adult proctors are always present to assist the children in the auditorium and to maintain order. The number of children has increased each year and for this reason the committee suggests that, where possible, adults accompany children.

This year Mrs. Robert F. McNamara has undertaken the chairmanship of the theater committee and has the following representatives from each of the elementary schools assisting her: Mrs. Karl Sorger, Lincoln; Mrs. David G. Large, Noonan; Mrs Alexander Samoiloff, Parkhurst; Mrs. Ralph G. Norton, Mouraco; Mrs. Barry Saxe, Vinson-Owen; Mrs. John L. Doucet Jr., Washington; Mrs. James Barger, Wyman; and Mrs. Nicholas H. Fitzgerald Jr., Mystic.

Farrell Was Native

Town Worker Dies Aiding Snow Removal

William J. Farrell, 47, a well-known native temporarily working for the Town on the snow removal force was killed early in the morning a week ago today on the east side of Church Street, between the junctures of Waterfield and Rangeley Roads.

Mr. Farrell, who was found in a snow bank suffering from muliple injuries including a fractured skull, crushed chest and lacerations, was last seen alive while directing the 6 a.m. traffic so as to assist the snow removal work of a snow blower, a Gradall and one or two other vehicles working together in the Center.

Police, Highway and medical authorities have worked together trying to construct exactly what happened that led to Mr. Farrell's death. They have been unable to come up with a definitive answer.

The son of retired Police Officer James E. Farrell and the late Angelina (Drapeau) Farrell was pronounced dead on arrival at the Winchester Hospital, where he was taken by police ambulance just as soon as the accident was discovered.

Large Family

Mr. Farrell had been living in Woburn. Flags here were at half-mast for Mr. Farrell however, who had been educated in the Winchester schools and later served in the European theater of World War II.

He was active in veteran's affairs and a member of the Loyal Order of Moose in Woburn.

The father of a daughter, Denise, 11, Mr. Farrell is also survived by his wife Rita (Cinicola) and by eight brothers, all well known in the area; Edward, Richard and John, all of Stoneham; Clarence of Wakefield; Francis of Brookline; Robert of Melrose; Joseph of Woburn and Louis of Miami, Florida. His one sister, Mrs. George Wells, makes her home in Woburn.

Many Town officials attended the solemn high Mass celebrated for him at Saint Mary's Church on Monday morning.

The fatal accident came last week as tired workers and strained vehicles were at work trying to rid the Town of the second fall of about 24 inches in as many weeks. This week Monday saw about six more inches come down in 12 or 14 hours.

Highway Superintendent Robert O'Brien announced the first storm to have cost the Town about $63,000.

"The second will come to more, and it is hard to say about the third, and now hard to separate one from the other costwise . . . I am going to have to go up before the Board for more money, I know that as the whole thing so far will come to around two or three times what has been estimated."

Equipment Buffeted

Mr. O'Brien noted the fact that much of Winchester's snow-fighting equipment is off the road now for repairs.

Monday Fire Points Up Great Hazards

"This had the makings of a very bad fire," said Fire Chief Francis Amico in telling of the Monday fire which started in the cellar garage of a home at 158 High Street.

Owners Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Frate and their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Frate, were at home with the latter's four-month-old twin boys when the children's father saw smoke coming through the floor.

They took the babies and went outside into their car for protection.

The chief points out that had this fire been at night, with only one exit from the house shovelled, the family might have been in serious trouble. The only way out was toward the burning area of the home, and given a little more time exit would have been difficult.

Elementary Building Com. To Present Plans March 11

The Elementary School Building Committee met Tuesday night and has announced an open meeting on the long range plan for the town's eight elementary schools for Tuesday, March 11 at 7:45 in the McCall auditorium.

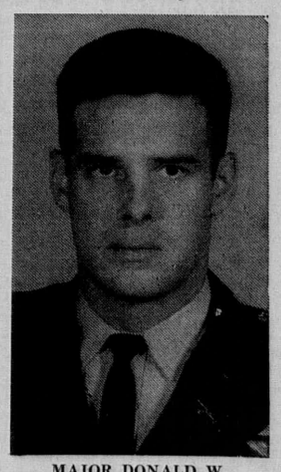

Chairman Earle Littleton notes that copies of the Committee's report are being distributed to Town officials.

The report deals only in a short way with the possible acquisition of Maryeliff Academy. However it is assumed that at the very least the projected time table of adding on to the other schools would be effected.

Emergency Alerts

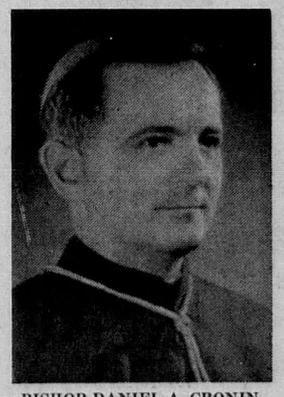

The Fire Chief: Please clear the hydrants. A trip around town showed him many blocks with not a single hydrant visible. Also please clear two exits from houses. The fire hazard is still great.

The Superintendent of Schools: Please continue to clear sidewalks in front of homes so that school-age children can walk safely. Parents are also asked to remind children to walk on the sidewalks where available and if necessary to walk in the street, to do so single file and on the left side.

Oil companies: Emergency deliveries are being held up as extra time must be taken to clear snow before home deliveries can be made. Oil customers are asked to aid those in greater need by making their own pipes more available.

Former Envoy To Vatican Speaks Here March 12

The Very Reverend Daniel A. Cronin, recent envoy to the Secretariat of State in Vatican City and presently pastor of West Medford's Saint Raphael's parish, speaks here Wednesday night, March 12.

BISHOP DANIEL A. CRONIN

Bishop Cronin is sponsored here by the St. Mary's Mr. and Mrs. Club and Holy Name Society. He will celebrate Mass and speak following the communion supper planned in the parish hall immediately thereafter.

Bishop Cronin was appointed Auxiliary Bishop of Boston and consecrated just last year.

No topic for his talk has been received by his sponsors. They remind, however, that the neighboring prelate served from 1961 to 1968 in the Vatican and therefore was close to many developments in the Vatican Councils.

Both Sides Speak At Tonight's ABM Meeting

The public meeting tonight at 8 p.m. in Hadley Hall, Church of the Epiphany, will definitely include speakers favoring the deployment of anti-ballistic missiles as a deterrent to nuclear war.

This has just been announced by the Winchester Citizens Committee on ABM, a group of residents opposed to the controversial Sentinel anti-ballistic missile system, who have set up the meeting.

Although qualified opponents were immediately available, efforts to obtain proponents took three weeks of intensive effort, reports the group.

Appearing tonight as a proponent will be Patrick J. Freil, vice-president of Block Engineering, a Cambridge firm. Mr. Freil was recently deputy assistant secretary of the Army for Ballistic Missle Defense, and is a former director of the Army Advanced Ballistic Missile Defense Agency. He advocates a "thin, thin" ABM as a realistic and adequate deterrent to Soviet missiles.

Also supporting missile defense is Prof. Paul Kecskemeti, a sociologist and political scientist teaching at Brandeis and MIT. Prof. Kecskemeti was with the Office of War Information during WWII and is a former member of the Rand Corporation He has published books correlating international political developments with military strategy.

Opposed

As previously announced, speakers opposing the proposed multi-billion dollar defense project are Prof. George W. Rathjens of MIT and Prof. Edgar M. Bottome, Boston University government department.

Saltmarsh Wins Big; Del Rossi, Lawrance Elected For Schools

Saltmarsh, Del Rossi, Lawrance, O'Connell and Nichols were the winning contestants Monday in a blizzard election day which brought only the hardy and committed out to the six polling places. Of 12,003 registered voters, 2,786 or 23.2% voted in the Town's new officers and legislators.

The snow-filled polling hours saw Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. become the first Winchester Selectman to be elected to a second, regular three-year term.

The man who at 28 in 1959 was the youngest Board member and the youngest chairman in 1961, Monday defeated Finance Committee member Frederick LaTorella, 2,099 to 614.

Mr. Saltmarsh, with a formidable support of several past Board chairmen and a strong vote throughout the six precincts, brings to the job also his experience as the Town's representative in the area-wide Advisory Board of the MBTA.

An insurance broker and a former B. C. hockey player, Sherm's campaign boasted perfect attendance in three years on Winchester's administrative board. His wife, Marcia, is also well known here.

Young and Native

Next highest vote getter in Town-wide contests, a native (as is Mr. Saltmarsh) and another Town athlete, was Paul Del Rossi, who at 26 is one of the youngest men ever to be elected to the School Committee in many decades.

Mr. Del Rossi's first town press came as a member of the 1955 championship Little League team. He went on to be a star pitcher at WHS and Harvard and become a Yankee bonus player in 1964. Paul spent two years on AA teams but never got the final call and decided to return to Cambridge to Harvard Business School. He is presently an educational consultant at A. D. Little, married and the father of two children.

Second winner for School Committee was Richard B. Lawrance, 49, with 1091 votes, who edged out Malden teacher John Carroll by just 85 votes.

Dick Lawrance is a group director in electronic data processing design at Honeywell's Waltham plant, and father of three in the local schools. Elected Town Meeting Member in 1960, he prepared hard for his candidacy by attending multiple School Committee and School Building Committee meetings over the past two years.

Though not a native, Mr. Lawrance has long-time association here. His grandfather held the pastorate at the Unitarian Church at the turn of the century. His father, later to become a superintendant, grew up here and remembers helping to tend the goats which at that time grazed on the present McCall School site.

Businessman George Whitten and Stoneham government teacher David Kline ran fourth and fifth for School Committee, with 513 and 474 votes respectively.

Another Athlete

Surprise top winner for Library Trustee was Edward O'Connell, who moved here recently and is assistant dean at the Fletcher School of International Law and Diplomacy at Tufts. Another star athlete, a former Tufts track captain, he polled 1457 votes to go in with attorney Andrew Nichols, who won a second term with 1355. Ousted from the board was another educator, Robert Whitman, close behind with 1274 votes.

MR. LAWRANCE'S work at dump paid off.

Insurance Voted

"Shall the Town extend contributory group hospital, surgical, medical insurance to elderly persons retired from the service of the Town and to their dependents with fifty per cent of the premium cost and a portion of the administrative expense and the payment of a surcharge rate to be paid by the Town?"

The one question on the ballot was adopted by the voters 735 to 648.

Vocational Committeeman

New to office among uncontested winners is J. Edward Sharkey, who goes in as the Town's School Committeeman on the 12-man area board for the Regional Vocational School.

Mr. Sharkey is a former State Department of Education vocational supervisor, who is also a retired Navy captain with extensive educational and training experience. He holds a bachelor's and master's degree in education; has taught in and administered trade schools; and was once a tradesman.

Two Town Meetings Scheduled March 13

Two Town Meetings are set to start a week from tonight: the annual Meeting and a special Town Meeting. The latter is expected to be dealt with first.

On Thursday night, March 20, a second special warrant goes before the Town's legislators. Aggregate warrant articles come to 37, as the two special meetings deal with one subject and only one or two motions each.

No estimated budget announcements have been made. The Finance Committee report is delayed and still not in the mails. Outstanding at this writing also is a salary agreement with the Firefighters—which subject is one expected to be aired in some way on the floor.

The special Town Meeting next week is that dealing with a committee to start action for the Town on a possible Maryeliffe Academy purchase. That on the 20th has been inserted by the Conservation Committee more quickly to have a decision on the purchase of property on Cambridge Street, near the Woburn line.

30 Attend Hearing On School Budget

Thirty residents attended the budget preview presented by the School Committee and School Department on Thursday, February 27.

Fifteen were Town Meeting representatives, all of whom were invited by letter to attend the session and to present questions on the budget prior to Town Meeting.

More meetings on the budget are planned beginning this noon at Rotary and running through a meeting at the Noonan School March 12 at 1 p.m. (See story page 4.)

Chairman of the School Committee Mrs. Barbara M. Walsh explained that the budget has been cut by $300,000 since it was first presented, and she stressed the Committee's understanding that quality education costs but it is their responsibility to provide this education and they have done so at the most reasonable cost they could manage.

Macdonald Names WHS Students To Service Sch'ls

Congressman Torbert H. Macdonald has announced two Winchester young men among those receiving nominations as principals and alternates to the nation's service academies.

John J. McGuigan III has been named principal to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis and Richard J. Shanahan an alternate candidate to the Military Academy at West Point.

Both young men are seniors at WHS and both won their honor on the basis of high scores on the qualifying examination held for service academy candidates, according to the Congressman.

Mr. McGuigan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. McGuigan Jr. of 9 Grove Place. He is a WHS Band member and played basketball here. He is also a member of the St. Mary's CYO and has worked as a summer camp counselor.

Mr. Shanahan, an honor student, is a member of the WHS traffic squad and a student math tutor. He was vice president of his junior class. In sports he has played varsity soccer and hockey, and lacrosse.

DPW Challenge Comes From 3 Departments

Members of the Park, Water and Sewer and Cemetery Commissions today published a statement challenging and raising questions about the projected plans for a Town Department of Public Works.

The plan will come up for vote in Town Meeting as part of the Town Government Study Committee's Article 9.

The Committee is unanimously behind the DPW plan. It is also supported by the Selectmen, who voted four to one Monday night with Chairman Charles Doucette, and members Paul Amico, John Sullivan and Ralph Swanson affirmative, Edmund Williams voting against DPW.

At their Monday meeting the Selectmen met with Chairman Robert Armstrong and three other members of the Study Committee for further discussion of the DPW plan.

They heard Mr. Armstrong reiterate his group's persuasion that "We feel these things will make the Town run better," and cite the experience of other towns as argument.

Mr. Williams challenged the contention that a DPW would bring overall economies to the Town.

'Noiseated?' It's No Wonder

Have you had that "noiseated" feeling lately?

Do you feel headachy, irritable, frustrated, and just not able to get your work done as well as you would like?

Then listen around you. It could just be the fault of that power mower, jackhammer, booming rock music, raucous radio, or screeching plane overhead. We are paying a high price for the rising noise level of our society today.

Medical investigators have shown that excessive noise can interfere with your digestion, break up your sleep, tire you out, and add to your nervous strain.

According to the U. S. Public Health Service, noise may adversely affect as many as 16 million U. S. workers. But most Americans are unaware that noises at home can be just as harmful. Measuring home noises, Dr. Lee E. Farr of the University of Texas found the kitchen to be the loudest room of all.

"The sound is at such a level of intensity," Dr. Farr reported, "that if one were exposed to it for a full working day over an interval of time, acoustic damage would result."

Noise, defined as an unwanted sound that irritates, is measured in decibels, units that describe levels of acoustic pressure, power and intensity. About 35 decibels (db) is acceptable for a classroom; 60 for a sports arena; 90 can be tolerated only for short periods; 100 can cause physical discomfort.

According to a survey made by the makers of Bayer Aspirin, a power mower alone has 107 db; a kitchen blender, 93. In a "quiet" suburban home, a blender, an automatic dishwasher (60-70 db), garbage disposal unit (70 db) and refrigerator (30-40 db)—as well as a radio, air conditioner and washing machine—may be "sounding off" all at once.

While some sounds drown out others, the typical result is an average decibel level of 80, much higher than that of a sports arena and equivalent to that of a big city street corner.

Cacophony

To help quiet down our cacophonous world, Congress is pondering bills to control aircraft decibels and various noises in industry. California has led the way in limiting motor vehicle noise, and New Jersey may pass similar legislation. But these are drops in the noise bucket.

What can you do about offsetting or preventing the decibel bombardment? Dr. John D. Dougherty of the Harvard School of Public Health, suggests that we think about the noise level of any appliance we might buy for our home, and cut down the time we spend in any noisy environment. One noise researcher also recommends that we wear ear plugs when using a power mower or an outboard.

To achieve a heavenly hush in your home, acoustical engineers quietly offer these practical hints:

1. Be sure your home has sufficient carpeting. Carpeting can absorb more than half of your internal and airborne noise. Upholstered furniture likewise soaks up sound.

2. Curtains or draperies can be helpful in preventing hard wall surfaces or a large expanse of glass (such as a picture window) from reflecting noise.

3. Acoustical ceilings in the kitchen and playroom may absorb up to 75 per cent of excess noise energy.

4. Air conditioners, which keep out much outdoor noise, should have proper vibration mounts to prevent rattling.

5. If your dishwasher or washing machine is causing sound pollution, mount it on a felt, cork or rubber mat, to absorb vibration. Make sure the appliance is level on the floor.

Tax Deductions Average $2,380

Residents of Middlesex County who are working on their federal income tax returns and itemizing their deductions may find it advantageous to compare their figures with those of other people at the same income level.

Are their deductions above or below the average? Are their listings of charitable contributions, interest, taxes and medical expenditures relatively high or low?

For the individual taxpayer, to know how his deductions compare with those of other people in his income bracket could be helpful.

Some light is shed on the subject by the Commerce Clearing house, national authority on tax and business law, and by the Internal Revenue Service. They have released data showing what the deductions have generally amounted to in recent years at each income level.

Where average earnings are of the size of those prevailing in Middlesex County, it is found that the deductions come to approximately $2,380, or about 17 percent of the adjusted gross income.

In families with lower-than-average earnings, the amounts deducted represent a larger portion of their income. Conversely, for those with higher incomes, the percentage deducted is smaller.

For example, those that gross $5,500 a year deduct about 22 percent normally. The ones that are in the $17,500 class, on the other hand, have deductions of only 16 percent.

Local families who are in the $6,500 income category will be deducting about $1,380 this year if they have had average outlays. At the $12,000 income level, the deductions will be around $2,160.

A breakdown of the $2,380 in deductions claimed by most taxpayers with incomes equal to the Middlesex County average shows that $365 of it represents contributions, $785 is for interest on loans and installment debt, $805 for local taxes and $425 for medical expenses.

It is pointed out that the figures are solely a guide to what most people are listing as deductions and the proper records must be available to back up all claims. (Park Row News Service)

State Costs Need Examination With Tax Hike

Any increase in state taxes should include provisions for a thorough examination of existing governmental programs and the establishment of strict expenditure controls, the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce told the Joint Legislative Committee on Taxation Friday, February 21.

Atty. William J. Speers of 2 Fernway, a member of the Chamber's Taxation Committee spoke for the organization. He said a new tax bill should require the immediate establishment of a joint executive-legislative review committee to examine the levels of existing social or other governmental programs, establish priorities consistent with the Commonwealth's resources and adopt appropriate methods to strictly control expenditures.

Mr. Speers is also serving on the special Ten-Year Master Tax Plan Study Commission.

Look To Sales, Income

To meet the fiscal needs of Massachusetts, the Chamber suggested that increases and adjustments in the sales and personal income taxes be explored and called for the elimination of the deduction presently allowed for one-half of the federal income tax paid.

Mr. Speers said the Chamber was in "serious disagreement" with some aspects of Governor Francis W. Sargent's tax recommendations, "primarily the tax on business corporations and on unearned income."

The Governor's bill (H. 4628) he said, "contemplates rates so far out of line with those prevailing in many comparable industrial states that Massachusetts would be placed at a serious competitive disadvantage in the constant struggle to maintain and expand its tax base.

"The most important requirement of any tax program for Massachusetts is that it place the smallest possible obstacle to the growth of our economy. If Massachusetts cannot expand so that it is able to offer more and better jobs, pay higher wages and earn more income, the only source of our tax dollars will dry up. We will be forced to impose higher and higher tax rates on an ever-decreasing tax base," Mr. Speers said.

"The needed revenue," he argued, "must be sought in those areas where the Massachusetts tax burden is relatively light in comparison with comparable industrial states and where increases would not have the effect of driving tax-paying capacity—individual or corporate—out of the state. These conditions are met only in the case of the sales tax and the personal income tax."

Attorney Speers said the elimination of the deduction now allowed for one half of the federal income tax paid on earned income should be a "primary target" of any tax program.

The Chamber commended Governor Sargent for recognizing the need for $77.3 million for the Local Aid Fund for the cities and towns and supporting his recommendation to add two cents to the cigarette tax to meet debt service requiremens.

Priorities Needed

Mr. Speers said there were two solutions to the fiscal dilemma confronting Massachusetts—federal-state tax-sharing and the establishment by the state of priorities wherby spending programs would be evaluated in terms of the state's ability to pay for them.

While the latter means harsh demands, "we must always keep before us one most important and often overlooked fact. Nowhere does the full force of government's dominion over the affairs of the citizen so clearly demonstrate itself as when it takes money, through the tax structure, from some citizens and spend the money to benefit others."

"This ultimate power of government must be used with the greatest restraint and with the fullest understanding of the extent to which it is being utilized," he concluded.

Don S. Greer Is Elected Bank President

Directors of Harvard Trust Company announced yesterday the election of Don S. Greer of 82 Arlington Street as president and chief executive officer of the Harvard Trust Company to take the place of Thaddeus R. Beal who has been president of the bank since 1959.

DON S. GREER

They also announced the election of Samuel Fogler as executive vice president and director of the bank. The latter will take effect at the bank's annual stockholders meeting on March 18. Fogler has been associated with the bank for the past seven years and was elected a vice president in 1964.

Beal is resigning to become Under-Secretary of the Army and will move to Washington.

Mr. Greer was the owner of J. W. Greer Company, manufacturers of machinery for the food industry. He sold this company to the Joy Manufacturing Company.

Mr. Greer served from 1952 to 1965 as a director of the Winchester Trust Company and during the past four years he has been a director of Bay State Corporation.

Legislation On Tax Reform Filed By Cong. Macdonald

Congressman Torbert H. Macdonald announced today that he has introduced tax reform legislation aimed at reducing the tax burden on low—and middle—income families.

Cong. Macdonald's bill seeks to close 13 existing tax loopholes in an effort to raise an additional $9 billion which would make the proposed extension of the 10% income tax surcharge unnecessary.

The Congressman pointed out that more was at stake than merely achieving a reasonable degree of equity in the tax laws.

He said that "many of the loopholes themselves cause inflation in the very sectors of the economy which are most inflation-prone." He cited the 7% investment credit as an example of this type of loophole and as one which his legislation would eliminate.

Among its other provisions, Macdonald's bill would reduce the oil and mineral depletion allowances, eliminate special tax treatment for stock options, eliminate benefits derived from multiple corporations, and tax capital gains presently untaxed at death.

Hearings on Macdonald's bill and other tax reform measures were scheduled to start February before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Dr. Seminatore is also a composer and singer of folk music; his recently released record "The Music of John Seminatore" is soon to be on the commercial market. Another facet of this young man's character is a talent for sketching. Animal portraits decorate the walls of his office.

Hostess for the afternoon (which officially begins at 1:30 p.m.) is Mrs. George Bramley of 12 Canterbury Road. Tea, served by Mrs. Park Hoyt and Mrs. Norman Weeks, will close the meeting. Members and friends are invited.

When putting on liquid makeup base, use (surprise!) downward strokes...it prevents fluffing up the almost invisible downy hairs and your skin will look smoother.

In Paris, it's usual for men to go to the same beauty salons as women...a woman having her hair done often finds herself sitting beside a man having a shave, haircut, or manicure!

Frown-removing trick: place two fingers firmly between eyebrows and try to frown. This strengthens the muscles...even in less than 30 seconds. Same principal as isometric body exercises.

Water Gardening To Be Shown At Flower Show

Spring comes early with the arrival of 98th annual New England Garden and Flower Show at Suffolk Downs in East Boston on Saturday, March 15, and continuing for nine days through March 23

This early arrival brings many facets of gardening and landscaping as well as all the innovations in equipment and methods to New Englanders.

For instance, many people with a lack of backyard space have turned to a new indoor hobby—water gardening.

Paradise Gardens of Whitman, specialists in aquatic plants, will illustrate all forms of this new horticultural trend including indoor water gardening, growing plants around pool outdoors, and in marshy soil.

Large plastic pools may be utilized for indoor gardening, or may be sunk into the ground for outdoor units. Waterplants and gold fish are usually the first addition to the filled pool.

Shallow water plants should be placed near the edge of the pool. Imperial taro, papyrus and water iris are excellent for this purpose. Parrot feather can be used to climb over the edge of the pool, concealing the plastic container.

To keep the water of an indoor pool clean, use oxygenating plants such as anacharis and cabomba, which grow beneath the surface.

The location of the indoor pool is very important. Full sunlight is desirable, since most water lilies will not bloom with less than six hours of direct sunlight.

An indoor gardener finds that moving water accents any pool. This can be done with the use of a small recirculating pump. No plumbing is necessary, and this pump can operate a fountain, filter and even spout forth a charming miniature waterfall.

Kiwanis Hears School Officials; Makes Contribution To Rome Program

Your child could be one of 25 to visit Rome this summer

Wednesday evening, February 19th, the Winchester Kiwanis Club had as its guests, Dr. Donald A. Klemer, superintendent of schools, and Dr. Stanley Haas, director of the American School in Rome.

Dr. Klemer and Dr. Hass have been making arrangements through the State Department to have 25 Winchester students spend six weeks at the American School in Rome this summer.

The School is primarily comprised of children of the United States and United Nations representatives, embassy officials, film makers and businessmen.

Dr. Haas explained that the program has been designed to establish a better understanding on the part of local students towards the American student abroad, and the culture of the area in which the American student lives. To accomplish this end, the Winchester students will study at the school, and take field trips to surrounding areas of cultural and historical interest.

In order for the program to be carried out, public financial support is necessary. There will be a $700.-00 expense for each student.

It was with pleasure that President Sonny Cannava made a contribution for this program in behalf of the Winchester Kiwanis Club.

On March 16 at 4 p.m. Mrs. Sherwood Collins, organist at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church, will present a program of organ music at Crawford Memorial Church. Mrs. Collins has been organist there since 1962, with a year's leave of absence during 1966-67.

Mrs. Collins began her piano study at the age of five, and has been playing either the piano or organ ever since. With her twin sister she gave duo-piano recitals and concerts throughout the Midwest. They both majored in music at the University of Wisconsin, receiving the bachelor of music degree with a major in piano and a minor in organ. Mrs. Collins studied with Egon Petri at Mills College in Oakland, California, and at the Juilliard School of Music in New York. After graduation from the university Mrs. Collins worked at the university radio station as an assistant to the director and also with the in-school radio program of music appreciation and vocal training for elementary school. She served as organist at the Westminster Presbyterian Church and the First Baptist Church in Madison, and at Lake Park Lutheran Church in Milwaukee before moving to Boston.

Since moving to Boston in 1961, Mrs. Collins has been organist at Crawford Memorial and has also served as musical director for the Tufts Arena Theatre production of Stop the World. Spring Thing

"UNDER HIS WING, POOR THING." We swear it, the first robin was reported here Friday. "Do you know what a robin looks like?" we asked the caller. "Oh yes, and I had my bathing suit on when I first saw it, too." (Headed to the Wakefield Y for a swim, she was. Not coming home late from a party.)

"THE CROCUS," says the authority, "usually blooms in March in Massachusetts, poking its head up to be one of the first harbingers of spring." A long poke this year, little croci.

* * *

PARISH PLAYERS' tryouts are Monday and Tuesday. The play? "Barefoot in the Park." Good luck to them, too.

"SPRINGTIME - GARDEN FUNTIME!" is the theme of the annual "mammoth floral showcase due at Suffolk Downs" two weeks from today. Flower Show, no less . . . for dreamers only.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC flunked its February tests and perhaps doesn't deserve further consultation this winter. However, for those who like to be scared, its look-ahead forecast says, "March and April will be raw, uncomfortable, unseasonable, disagreeable . . . the one really big storm (hah!) of the winter may be the one during the last week of April . . ." Or, later on in verse form, "March was adverse, April will be worse." !!

The student-organized, student-run Drop-In Center, headed by student President Bob Joyce, has been plagued with problems this year in the areas of money, chaperones and membership.

Bob hopes the closing will be temporory and that the Center will re-open shortly.

In answer to this appeal, the response was tremendous.

Anyone wishing to donate coupons is requested to leave them in person or mail them to Koko Boodakian, 1026 Main Street.

Storm Driving To Be Avoided, Warns Chief

With little question remaining over the severity of the last two storms, Chief of Police Joseph J. Derro has announced that all available officers were out working critical sections of streets and highways to keep traffic moving during the storm. Winchester's road crews also worked steadily to keep streets open.

"Whether or not we come to a complete standstill during a storm depends on the help we get from all motorists," Chief Derro said, urging all drivers to take these emergency measures in any future storms:

Cancel all unnecessary driving. Use available public transportation that's less likely to be affected.

Get cars off the street. Give plows a chance to get through.

If you must drive, use tire chains and be sure your car is in good mechanical condition. Be sure it has a full tank of gas. This is no time to risk running out of gas.

"We can't clear roads that are clogged with stalled cars," Chief Derro warned. "Yet we must keep ambulance, fire and emergency services moving!"

Intersections (and hills) where spinning weels polish ice and snow into a deadly glaze produce major tie-ups quickest.

Fortnightly Has Luncheon

The Fortnightly, the Federated Woman's Club of Winchester, presented "Luncheon with Helene" on February 24.

Helene Miller, owner and director of "Luncheon with Helene," and also TV and radio food publicists, prepared and served a large variety of foods, after which each product served was discussed for quality and for future meal planning.

Door prizes and drawings for food products were given to complete the program.

On Monday, March 10, in Gifford Hall, of the Crawford Memorial Church, at 1:30 p.m., the Fortnightly, will have as its guests, the Winchester High School Band, under the direction of Frederick Murray.

Tea will be served at 1:00 p.m. by the socail hostesses Mrs. John E. McCarthy and Mrs. Albert M. Thompson

Wyman Pupils To Demonstrate Reading Program

A reading demonstration by Wyman School pupils in grades 1 to 4 will be given in the Wyman classrooms on Friday evening, March 14, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Parents and guests will be able to observe current techniques used to teach reading in the elementary grades.

Students will report directly to their classrooms while parents are asked to gather briefly in the auditorium for Wyman Parents' Association announcements.

A demonstration by the students in grades 5 and 6 at the Wyman Annex will be held at a later date.

All Wyman children in kindergarten through grade 6 will have an opportunity to participate in the Wyman Book Fair, which will be held in the auditorium on Monday, March 17, and Tuesday, March 18, during school hours.

Sponsored by the Wyman Parents' Association, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Michael Fixler and Mrs. George Nielsen, each child will be able to buy and order paperback books of his choice. Parents and classroom teachers will have the opportunity to guide each child with his selections.

Unseasonal Wins By Seasoned Winners

It was a flood, drench and drears sort of day, Monday. Voters who got out were the very committed; the relatives of the nominees ;and persons out of bread.

There were only three town-wide contests for office, which is disappointing. The School Committee race was the best. Next to that, the contest for Town Meeting Member in Precinct 5 deserves credit. On the whole many reasoned there was just not that much to leave the house for. Eleven offices went automatically.

Some good things came out of the vote:

—Laid to rest for good is likely to be the Winchester tradition that a Selectman will not run for a second term of office. Mr. Saltmarsh saw to that and others are sure to follow suit.

—Paul Del Rossi, who was graduated from the High School just nine years ago, looks to be going to break the age barrier for School Committeeman much the same as did John Sullivan with the Selectmen last year. It is particularly meaningful that he left Winchester for Harvard with a Winchester Scholarship Foundation start, and that he is returning quickly to pay back this investment with service to the Town.

—Edward O'Connell's victory tells the story that one need not be established to get in. To the issueless Library Trustee race he brought a determination to win—with door-bell ringing, days at the dump and poll politicking giving to that office a sense of importance.

—Two teachers ran for School Committee, each making good inroads with voters of different persuasions. No one questioned the right of a teacher to be considered for this important board.

If there is something special to read into Monday's three top wins, it is from the fact that all three men were and are still stellar athletes. Sherm Saltmarsh shot swift and sure as a right wing on B.C.'s nationally top 1953 sextet. Last summer, as previously, he won top racing honors with the Winnipesaukee Water Ski Racing Association. Paul Del Rossi started cutting down batters on the Manchester Field mound, did it across the Ivy League and pitched for two years in the New York Yankee's farm system. Ed O'Connell, a former Tufts' track captain and U.S. champ in the 12 mile run, last year took the New England title in the MA Master's mile.

Competition pays off and the Town now appears to have a winner for all seasons.

A For Effort, Z For Attendance

"We don't want to ram it down your throats, that's why," was the answer of a School Committee member when asked at the department's budget review hearing a week ago tonight why the administration and Committee chose to put themselves on the block on their budget when by State law they have the authority to go ahead with or without Town Meeting vote.

Thursday night six Committee members and four school administration members faced only about three times their number in an audience at McCall JHS. Their preparation was complete, well articulated. It followed no less than three working sessions with the Finance Committee trying to pare the budget. School people, apparently under the instigation of Dr. Klemer, are making every possible effort this year to communicate with the public. For this they score a straight A.

The storm aftermath was some excuse for not attending Thursday. People are too tired to absorb. But the appallingly small number at a hearing, the material of which represents $.47 of every tax dollar, seems like more than the bad luck of a storm. It is an apathy hard to understand given the portent of the largest budget, put together with the grim State fiscal situation.

Mr. Schroeder's discourse on the untenable situation for School Committees, as the Teachers' Associations on the one hand get higher salaries within bargaining and on the other pressure the State for minimum salaries and hold on to tenure, was listened to hard. John Dolan's take-off on the subject of bargaining and where it is heading over the next 10 years, had close attention. A lot of you would do it too, in your own businesses, he reminded the audience.

Dr. Klemer was consistent and firm. He is fighting for a constructive and practical program. He pointed out the poor distribution of tax burden in Massachusetts relative to other states, but also its high per-capita wealth—ninth. Feeling for the positive on the teachers' pay questions, he said, "It is not all grim. There is a qualitative difference (developing in teaching) . . . It is going up because of the competition . . ."

The whole evening was a panorama of the schools' place in the Town budget with more than half the time saved for questions. It is a crime more were not there. Several other smaller meetings are announced this week. One hopes the voters make some amends.

Symbolic Loss

The loss of Bill Farrell while aiding the Town in working against the all-enveloping, ponderous and treacherous snows is personal to many and symbolic to us all. Every so often nature reminds us of who is really boss. The past 30 days she has spoken her unqualified mastery.

The tragedy of this death holds many lessons for us all. Most especially it points up the continuing abnormality of storm aftermath no matter how much we like to think otherwise—and of the dangers inherent throughout. The superintendent of schools has exhorted householders to clear sidewalks in front of their homes so that children will be safer going to school. He and the Police Chief beg for extra care in driving. The Fire Chief asks we extend ourselves and clear all hydrants. He is upset about the lack of public response to fire emergency threats. Every danger factor deserves constant and sustained attention.

Dial Help, Dial Comfort

About 19 days ago, between storms No. 1 and No. 2, a major fire took place in a large, old, multi-family home at the corner of Main and Herrick Streets. When the fire was discovered, the telephone wires had already burned and cut quick communication to the Fire Department. The five women who lived there were lucky. Someone happened to be walking by who quickly rang in the box alarm for them.

The story points up, however, our dependence on the telephone as help for the S.O.S.'s in our lives. And it seems appropriate this week to commend the New England Telephone Company, for the percentage of service kept across the state during the last three storms. Yes, a lot of wires went down; yes many lost service; yes the wires should go underground. But above (or should it be below?) these minus marks, goes a high compliment for the phone service we do get.

The call for help is the easiest to appreciate. Next to this, however, comes the large comfort of being able to check with isolated family and friends and make sure they don't need help—let them know, as the Company says, you are there in spirit.

Without the phone, we'd be a lonely lot.

Starred by the Star:

Thanks to the diligence and fair-mindedness of the local citizens fighting the ABM system installment in Reading and across the nation, tonight's 8 p.m. meeting at the Epiphany Church will have ABM proponents as well as opponents. As planned it should do exactly what is needed: add some depth understanding of what the program means for the country. If it's good for the country, it's good for Reading and Winchester. If it's bad for the country, it's bad for Reading and Winchester. The one thing we feel absolutely sure of is that it's high time the military have to face up to non-military probing on programs with heavy diplomatic portent.

A notice in Police Department headquarters says that the Drop-In-Center is closed and the key is not to be given out. It is too early to sort out the order of problems which have combined to threaten a permanent close of the student effort to meet their own needs. And it is too early to say whether these problems can be overcome. But the outlook is cloudy.

Clarification of a comment last week: We intended to exhort young people to clear hydrants and safety exits without asking money, not to discourage student snow clean-up as a paid job. Many young people are out working hard, and earning needed money at the same time. Congratulations to them, too.

Kudos to WHSR-FM for its Candidates Night and Election Day coverage. In the former instance particularly, they gave a direct service to Town government by bringing to the many who couldn't make it downtown, the direct feel of those candidates who appeared—all but one. The sponsoring League of Women Voters deserve the first appreciation of course. Through their untiring efforts candidates get free, town-wide exposure—essential ingredient of a healthy democratic system.

Thinking of transformations of some of the headliners of 1969, one cannot help but look forward to April 23 when Terrible Ted will return to Fenway Park in the guise of a Washingtonian. All the local press Ted-baiters to the contrary, old number 9 will never look like anything other than a Bostonian to most of us—an improper Bostonian maybe. But, as Joe Gargiola on the Today Show said, "Ted excites things just when he says 'hello'," and it's good to have him back.

Our own personal storm note is too good to go unpublished. Bright and early Monday morning during the full blast of storm No. 3, your into-the-second-half-century editor set out from the lowlands of Rangeley up toward Church Street and voting booths at Wyman School. Cloaked in the anonymity of the storm, a hooded jacket and old ski pants and boots, she made her way up the hill with work material slung over her shoulder in a book bag, the better to use the hands to keep the balance. At the top of the hill, an oil company delivery man whistled, and in a perfectly straightforward and helpful note called out, "Hey sister, there's no school anywhere, today!" We blew him a kiss.

THE BRANDYWINE TRADITION

by Henry C. Pitz

Chadds Ford lies on the bank of the Brandywine creek twenty-six miles southwest of Philadelphia in a pastoral setting of hills and valley. For some sixty years, the major growth industry has been the Wyeth family, starting with N. C. Wyeth, the illustrator of children's classics, as well as an outstanding pictorialist of the early Wild West. His son, Andrew Wyeth is now considered America's foremost practitioner of the representative style in art and Jamie Wyeth, Andrew's son, already at 22 has had nation-wide exhibits of his portraits.

The author, an art professor in Philadelphia and a native, discusses their regional tradition by introducing the reader to the early colonization of the valley. The fame of the Conestoga wagons built by the German immigrants, the introduction by the Sweded of the log cabin, and the Revolutionary battle fought there, have produced a strong sense of the American past.

Mr. Pitz discusses the influence of N. C. Wyeth's teacher, Howard Pyle on his pupil as well as on less well-known illustrators. Howard Pyle is perhaps best known for his dual talent of writing and drawing. His early exposure to London's Punch, Illustrated London News as well as Harper's monthly helped in later years to fuse his concept of pictures springing from literary ideas. During the 1890's when the United States was eager for pictorial illustration he filled this need prodigiously. His depiction in illustration and narration of the medieval legends in his King Arthur series were certaily well known to all school children. His books continue to remain in print. In his role as teacher he formed an unusual art school in Wilmington, Delaware, charging no tuition and handpicking a group of young artists who fast became his disciples, and his studios at Chadds Ford became a thriving art school during the summer months.

Newell Convers Wyeth left a Boston art school in the early 1900's after hearing glowing accounts of Howard Pyle from two friends who had been his pupils. He immediately took to his teacher, although of an entirely different temperament. Pyle was introspective and quiet, Wyeth, blustery and gregarious. Under Pyle's tutelage he became an important contributor in illustration of the period and the Brandywine valley became the subjects of his easel paintings carried on by his son and grandson. Pyle, N. C. Wyeth as well as Andrew Wyeth have had to overcome the doctrinaire critics who use the word "illustrator" as a denigrating label. As of the moment, Andrew Wyeth is becoming a "national culture idol" as Katharine Kuh, the art critic states it derogatorily. When the public were aroused by Frost's poems, the critics pounced, but reconsidered later. Whether Andrew Wyeth's works will survive time and the critics remains to be seen.

The Brandywine Tradition is an interesting view of an illustrious family of artists and includes some lovely reproductions of their art.

Challenge To Sidewalk Plows

Editor of the Star:

I feel that sidewalk plows have long outlived their usefulness except around the center of town. There are very few sidewalks in town plowed anyway. What about the few people who do walk on the other streets in town.

My particular "beef" is that the sidewalk plow fills in all the driveways and front walks in its path which have already been shoveled several times, and this is very frustrating, particularly when the job done by the plow is to no avail anyway.

I shoveled practically all day Tuesday and Wednesday to get my car out to keep an important appointment at the Winchester Medical Laboratory Wednesday afternoon. Believe me I was weary after all that shoveling.

Imagine my anger when I returned about half and hour later and found that the sidewalk plow had been around and filled in both sides of my driveway as well as the front walk—more shoveling to get into the house again. The sidewalk is no better than it was before they came, and yet people who want to walk are walking.

If the town feels that the sidewalk plow should be retained, how about having a crew follow on foot after it shoveling out driveways and walks that have already been plowed or shoveled at great effort and expense to the owners?

Gratitude

Editor of the Star:

The family of the late Mrs. Frances Errico wish to extend their deepest gratitude to the Highway Department for the immediate attention accorded them for snow removal from the residence during their recent bereavement.

We are also deeply grateful to our Police Department for the excellent escort service received during the time of the funeral.

Unfortunate

Editor of the Star:

I would like to take this opportunity to commend the School Committee for their efforts in trying to communicate with the Winchester Citizens on such a very important issue as their budget.

How unfortunate it was that there were not more than 20 people in a town of approximately 22,000 interested enough in their tax rate to attend. I personally hope that the School Committee will accept the recommendation of the Finance Committee.

I would like especially to thank Mr. Beckley and Mr. Dolan, the two outgoing Committee Members, for the time and effort they expended in their past term. Although I have not always agreed with them, I think the Town of Winchester owes them a great debt of gratitude.

Sincerely,
Manuel J. Rainha

Please, Please Have Her Spayed!

Editor of the Star:

In a very few weeks now will come the annual spring population explosion of kittens.

Thousands of helpless furry mites will be born into a world which has no home for them. Everybody loves cunning tiny kittens, but kittens grow up and let's face it there just aren't enough good homes available for adult cats. So please have your female cat spayed before it's too late. Do it now!

You can't afford the full price of spaying? An organization called Friends of Animals is dedicated to helping you. Simply call one of the following numbers to receive an application for financial assistance: UN 4-0180 or 254-3851 or 776-5729.

Yours truly,
Winchester Animal Welfare

Mr. LaTorella Expresses Thanks, Congratulations

Editor of the Star:

I wish to extend my hearty congratulations and best wishes to Mr. Sherman Saltmarsh in winning the election for Selectman.

I wish also to take this opportunity to thank all of my supporters and friends who worked on my behalf in my recent candicacy. And I sincerely thank all of the voters who cast their votes for me on March 3rd.

Sincerely,
Frederick LaTorella

Some Place To Go?

Editor of the Star:

We the teenagers of Winchester want some place to go!

Right now we have the Drop-In Center and its run by Bob Joyce, but he's been thinking of closing it (Drop-In Center) because of financial and disciplinary problems.

We don't blame him, the opening of a youth center should be up to the Town and its citizens. The Town of Winchester is supposed to be one of the richest towns in the state of Massachusetts but you wouldn't know it!

When the Drop-In Center is closed there will be no place to go. If we want to meet downtown and hang around in groups and talk, we are told to move on and that we cannot hang around downtown.

The older generation is saying, "What can we do to help our teenagers?" and "How can we keep them off the streets and from getting in trouble?" Well here's one soultion—get us a place to go.

If every resident of Winchester donated money to the Drop-In Center it could be open.

We don't know if this letter will have any effect on people who run the town and also the citizens, but we hope so because we need a place to go and it's up to you, the citizens of Winchester, to help out.

John Penney,
Joe Campbell
9th graders,

Thoughts From Mr. Lawrance

Editor of the Star:

Through your columns I would like to express my thanks to three groups of citizens in our fine Town.

First, to all the voters who, despite the severe storm and great personal inconvenience, went to the polls to cast their ballots.

Second, to Mr. Del Rossi, Mr. Kline, Mr. Carroll, Mr. Whitten and their supporters for giving the Town a very live and healthy set of choices. Choices and active voter interest contribute essentially to the best functioning of our Town form of government, which to me is a very precious thing. The Town is fortunate in all the candidates, and would have been well served by any of them.

Third, I wish to thank the many friends, new and old, who supported my candidacy and worked so hard. I will try to serve the Town to the best of my ability.

Richard B. Lawrance

Priority Plowing?

Editor of the Star:

My recent letter to the Star praised the efforts of the Town of Winchester, for clearing the roads of the first Northeaster. Now I have something to add about the second, and much worse, one.

I am personally acquainted with a good many of the doctors who live and work in Winchester. Many of these fine men were unable to get ploughed out during this storm. Somehow, they all managed to get to the hospital—one even walked! This is certainly a matter of life and death. If doctors can't get to the hospital, what happens, or could happen to their patients?

Why not top priority ploughing for doctors and perhaps other hospital personnel?

Mr. Carroll Speaks To Voters And Winners

Editor of the Star:

I wish to thank all those who supported my candidacy in the recent election and the many who worked so willingly on my behalf.

I congratulated the winners, Mr. Del Rossi and Mr. Lawrance, election night and now wish to publicly say "Congratulations."

Sincerely,
John L. Carroll

Help The Furred

Editor of the Star:

May I take a few lines of your space to ask Star readers not to forget our furred creatures during this wintry weather.

Spaces under porches or inside barns or sheds could have been places of refuge during the storms only to become traps as snow drifts piled high.

Please let us be sure openings are not obstructed so that any animals so trapped may escape.

Mr. Saltmarsh: Thank You

Editor of the Star:

To my fellow Winchester residents I want to say thank you for electing me a Selectman.

For the invaluable assistance given by many men and women who generously contributed time and energy in my behalf, I am deeply grateful.

With your continued advice and support, I am confident we will meet our problems head-on, with a goal of making our Town a better home for all of us.

Sincerely,
Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr.

Alert Police

Editor of the Star:

This is to express my appreciation to the Winchester Police Department for their alert response to a recent accident which occurred at home last week.

While stranded in Boston due to the snowstorm my little daughter had an accident and the Police Department (Officer Perritano) responded immediately to her mother's telephone call for help. My daughter is now well on the road to recovery.

It is comforting to know that we are fortunate to have such a responsive, courteous, and efficient police department.

Gratefully,
Earl B. Lindquist Jr.

Appreciation From Mr. Whitten

Editor of the Star:

Through your columns may I express my sincere appreciation to the Winchester citizens who supported my campaign for School Committee in the recent election.

I wish the successful candidates an effective and worthwhile term of office.

Meeting On School Budget For JHS Parents

On Monday, March 10, at 1 p.m. in McCall Junior High Auditorium, Dr. Donald Klemer, superintendent of Winchester schools, will speak on the Winchester school budget.

Parents of students at Lynch and McCall are urged to attend.

Storm

"It is beat," he said, adding that only one sidewalk tractor out of four — the Bombadiers—is available, and this is at a time when all effort is being made to clear the walks to keep the children safe.

The Department also reported having much more difficulty hiring outside equipment as time goes by. Plowing in the last two storms has been more difficult, too, as the snow drifted much more and was wet, according to the superintendent.

The Winchester Post Office has missed three days of delivery in the past 10 days.

According to Carrier Foreman Coleman Foley, the lack of mails has been due to the recent mechanization of the department.

Trains Carry On

Railroad schedules were curtailed last week and somewhat on Monday — with service to Woburn cut Monday morning and all passengers from that town directed to Winchester.

Budd cars have been going through town escorted by Diesel engines both fore and aft. But for the most part they have been going.

Complaints on plowing or the lack of it has lessened as the residents have slowly become acclimated to the abnormal conditions. Those from Nassau Drive, however, continue.

Building Comm.

At other meetings Mr. Littleton has appeared less enthusiastic than either the School administration or School Committee about Marycliff. The subject is expected to arise at the open meeting Tuesday.

The published report bases its projections on a total school population of approximately 3,800 in the elementary school by 1980. (Present capacity of school buildings is 2,840.) It indicates where school facilities ought to be expanded to accommodate the population increase.

The ESBC bases its analysis of the increase on the Snow Report previously done for the Town which estimated the number of houses that could be built on the available land in Winchester under existing zoning arrangements, and multiplied by the number of children expected in each dwelling based on prior experience.

The recommendations call for an expansion of Mystic School to a population of 550 from its present capacity of 347; expansion of Washington School from 327 to 550; Wyman School from 333 to 550; Vinson-Owen School from 550 to 700; and Noonan School from 220 to 300.

McCall

The ESBC indicates that McCall School should be used primarily for the accommodation of upper elementary grade pupils and for temporary additional classrooms as additions are planned and built.

Its report recommends Lincoln School ultimately be retired due to its age and the fact that the area does not need three 550 pupil schools, classrooms are small and it would be expensive to put it into good up-to-date condition.

Commenting on Marycliff, the report notes its acquisition would probably obviate the necessity of expanding the Wyman School from 333 to 550 pupils.

Land Needed

In order to satisfy, at least partially, the requirements of the State for acreage for the additions to various schools the report calls for planned acquisition of property adjacent to the Washington School, Wyman, Vinson-Owen, Noonan, and Mystic.

Police Chief Gives Tips On Winter Driving

Chief of Police Joseph J. Derro has deflated the "old wives' tale" that letting air out of tires increases traction on ice or snow.

Reducing tire pressures does virtually no good, he emphasized. It only increases tire wear. Moreover, the loss of the tire's rigidity makes the car more unstable and can actually promote skidding.

Chief Derro cited another misconception drivers should weigh carefully as a winter driving technique—the one saying that added weight in the trunk will give the car more traction and pulling power.

While it is true, he said, that extra weight in the trunk will increase traction a small degree, unfortunately it also increases the tendency for the car to go into a side skid; and it makes controlling a skid more difficult once it does start.

"People believe these mistaken ideas. Yet they have been tested and found wanting by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards," he said.

There's a dangerous way and a safe way, he said, and he quoted better solutions to winter traction problems recommended by the skid-testers.

To get going in snow or slush, first turn the front wheels from side to side to clear the sides of the tires. Then use the gas pedal gently. Start in drive, or use second gear with a manual transmission. Try to apply just enough gas to turn the wheels.

Spinning the wheels only makes things slicker and digs the car in deeper.

Rocking the car back and forth by shifting to forward and then reverse can help get the car underway—but read the owner's manual first for advice on how to rock the car without damage to the transmission. Sand, salt, or a metal mat, or a piece of carpeting under the rear wheels can help.

But to keep from getting stuck in the first place, carry tire chains in the trunk and put them on when the going gets tough and before the car gets bogged down in deep snow.

Once underway, stay steady. Avoid sudden changes in either speed or direction.

If the car starts to skid, steer immediately in the direction the rear end is sliding. Don't oversteer. The instant you feel the car coming out of it, straighten the wheels.

DPW

"The name of the game is efficiency," replied Edward Hicks. But the Committee also admitted it is hard exactly to estimate savings.

Adopting a DPW necessitates Legislative action and the warrant article asks authority to go ahead on this.

The released statement from three of the commissions involved in the proposed change follows:

"We read with interest the report of the Town Government Study Committee for a Department of Public Works printed recently in the Star. With the conclusion of the Committee, and its recommendation to establish such a department, we cannot agree.

"While a Department of Public Works may appear to be good for the Town, it should not come to pass in the manner suggested. The disadvantages, in our judgment, outweigh the advantages.

"Some of the arguments made in favor of the plan are that the Town would save money; increase efficiency; better coordinate departments; enjoy central purchasing; center control in the hands of a top-grade, well-paid, director of Public Works; place eventual responsibility upon the five-member Board of Selectmen, which would therefore, stimulate interest and participation in Town elections. These are high-sounding principles but as a practical matter, consider the disadvantages.

"Nowhere is there conclusive evidence a Department of Public Works would save money. The Committee's proposal does not go into finances and specific savings. What is to be the salary of the director? Will he not have assistants,—which he will select, probably not from your Town labor force,—and at what figure? What then becomes the position of your present foremen and supervisory help in the existing Town departments concerned?

"Please bear in mind also that your Personnel Board has not only a salary structure to which the Town is committed, but also job descriptions. Do we now restructure both?

"Relative to efficiency and coordination of departments, we suggest there exists complete departmental cooperation now. Witness the care and custody of our Town as contrasted with those around us during the recent storms. This was accomplished by cooperation.

"But not all help is interchangeable. For example, a meter reader in one of our present departments which would be affected, could not necessarily be expected to operate a snow plow. Yet a director of a Public Works Department could order him to do so.

"The present proposal would concentrate in the hands of five selectmen complete control of all departments concerned,—Water and Sewer, Park, Cemetery, Sanitation, Forestry, Custodians, etc. The Selectmen are already overburdened. To relieve them of some of their duties we now have a full-time executive secretary. Shall we now give them more duties to perform?

"Would not the reduction from 18 elective positions on the various boards involved to five such elected positions, decrease interest in, knowledge of, and participation in Town affairs rather than increasing the same? We think it would. There exists, moreover, a continuity on some of these Boards which we consider beneficial to our Town. This continuity would disappear with the loss of valuable experience in Town affairs if the Committee's recommendation is accepted.

"In sum then we object to the Committee's suggestion because it places planning and administration in the same hands; it requires state action and therefore can be altered by state action; its alleged benefits are illusory. It fails to mention that increased help for school grounds maintenance would be necessary.

"The above is submitted by us for your consideration. We urge a vote against the Committee's recommendation.

Respectfully,

Farnham

In addition, Major Farnham holds every Army Unit award and the Navy Unit Commendation Medal for his service in Vietnam. He has flown in excess of 2000 combat hours against the insurgent forces in Vietnam.

Major Farnham, 27, the son of Robert S. "Bud" Farnham, plant supervisor at the J. O. Whitten Company gelatin factory on Cross Street, has completed three tours of duty in South Vietnam.

In recent ceremonies, Major Farnham received an additional award of the Army Commendation Medal for exceptionally meritorious service while serving as a Flight Commander Instructor and Academic Instructor in the Aviation Armament Division, United States Army Aviation School, Fort Rucker, Alabama.

The citation reads in part: "Major Farnham demonstrated determined leadership, unexcelled professionalism, and superb competence in the performance of his duties...His participation in a Joint Services Tactics Working Group, as the sole Army member, to develop and document operational doctrine which was heretofore not part of service doctrine exemplifies his unusual talents and versatility...By his example, he has vividly presented how effective leadership, and indefatigable desire to excel can produce unsurpassed results..."

Additionally, Major Farnham received the coveted "Outstanding Instructor Award" from the United States Army Aviation School.

Major Farnham has recently completed the Infantry Officers advance course at Fort Benning, Georgia, where he graduated in the top 20 percent of his class. He is now in attendance at the University of Nebraska, where he is studying for his degree in business administration and economics.

A career officer, Major Farnham enlisted in the Army 11 years ago at the age of 17. He underwent paratrooper training and rapidly rose to the grade of staff sergeant in 28 months. He applied and was accepted at the Offiers Candidate School at Fort Benning, where he was graduated and commissioned a second lieutenant of Infantry. He attained his present grade of major last June..

Major Farnham is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Farnham and is married to the former Betty Small, also of Wilmington. The couple have two sons, Scooter and Skipper, and are presently living at 630 South 68th Avenue, Omaha, Nebraska.

Fire

The alarm was called in by police at 1:09 p.m. Engines 2, 3, 4, the ladder and rescue trucks and the chief's car responded, with Capt. Peter Galuffo in charge of the men and equipment.

Upon their arrival, the firefighters found cardboard cartons of clothes and shoes burning in the garage under the house. The fire damaged ceiling construction and destroyed wiring. The house contained heavy smoke.

The fire was contained in the garage and firefighters returned to the station at 1:58 p.m.

School Budget

Slides were presented showing charts and graphs which showed the various items in the budget. Superintendent Donald Klemer and Assistant Superintendent Clark explained the illustrations in a Huntley-Brinkley type presentation, taking turns on the different areas of the budget.

According to Dr. Klemer, new programs begun during the year which the School Committee and Administration feel should be continued and are included in the budget include: the personal ethics course, social studies and science kits, handwriting program, in-service programs for teachers, English composition program and the learning disabilities program.

Charts showed that 83.3% of the budget goes to salaries of employees, both professional and non-instructional, and that these amounts are settled upon through negotiation by law and cannot be altered.

Dr. Klemer stated that negotiations in collective bargaining settled upon a salary schedule for teachers with a first step bachelor's degree teacher receiving $6,900 and a first-step master's degree teacher receiving $7,400.

Asst. Supt. William Clark presented instructional supplies data, citing low expenditure over the years for textbooks and supplies with a resultant condition of not having enough books with which to work. He suggested the false economy of not providing enough tools of learning when we spend such a large percentage of the budget on the teacher yet fail to provide proper equipment for him to do his job well.

Dr. Klemer explained the need for additional specialists in art, music, and physical education at the elementary level due to the large number of pupils these people must serve. He also explained the problem of having only two elementary guidance personnel for over 3,000 pupils and the request for additional personnel in this area.

Mr. Clark explained the increase in the maintenance budget showing figures over the years which were well below the 1% of evaluation recommended for such a budget.

A five-year plan has been designed to maintain the buildings at the 1% and first steps of this program were incorporated in the 1968 budget. The program is carried on to a limited extent in the 1969 budget. He said the school budget shows an increase of 17.35% over last year, approximately the same increase as the budget of 1968.

Dr. Klemer presented the break down of salaries of personnel at the professional level showing.

86.3% of the Winchester tax dollar goes to teachers' salaries

1.9% to Superintendent and four who report to him

3.5% to Principals' salaries

1.5% to Assistant Principals' salaries

.2% to Art, Phys. Ed specialists

1.9% to Department Heads

3.4% to Guidance personnel

1.3% to Library personnel

The superintendent added that Massachusetts is ninth in average personnel income in the nation; Winchester contributes $.47 of its tax dollar to the schools; as a state, Massachusetts is 22nd nationally in percent of income going to schools. Of the 14 communities usually used for comparison Winchester is eighth in its ability to pay.

Questions from the residents were answered by the School Committee and Administration and included such topics as where cuts had been made; what was the Finance Committee's position on the budget; how were teachers evaluated; what is involved in tenure; what can be expected in the future as a trend for the budget; will there be more language teachers at the junior high schools, etc.

Town Meeting representatives in attendance commented on the quality of the budget preview presentation. Many expressed disappointment that more concerned citizens had not been present.

March 15 Tax Crisis Meeting State-Wide, Selectmen Sponsored

The Massachusetts Selectmen's Association will hold a special open state-wide town meeting on the current tax crisis at the Stoughton High School, in Stoughton, Massachusetts, Saturday, March 15, from 2 to 5 p.m. This meeting is co-sponsored by the Association of Town Finance Committees and will be open to the general public. Other municipal groups and interested municipal officials have been invited to attend, including mayors and assessors.

A special report will be presented by H. Bernard Monahan, of Rockland, chairman of the Selectmen's Tax Study Committee. Following this special report, a warrant containing articles on tax problems will be presented for discussion and action.

In calling the meeting, Selectmen's President Everett C. Small, of Chatham, pointed out that many municipalities in Massachusetts have control of only 25 per cent of their total operating budget because of mandatory minimum salaries, collective bargaining, school costs, bond issues, abatements, and in some localities MBTA assessments.

Tax Chairman Monahan said that municipal officials must join together to impress the Legislature of the need for a stabilized cherry sheet for budget planning purposes.

Mr. Monahan further stated that the Massachusetts Selectmen's Association had warned of the potential tremendous cost of welfare and Medicaid as early as 1967. The use of the Local Aid Fund to underwrite programs that are essentially State programs must be stopped.

Second Break Reported At Scotch Wash

The Scotch Wash on Main Street was broken into February 26 for the second time since its opening.

Stolen in the break were $50 from a cigarette machine; $15 in change from a desk and a wall telephone.

The break, still under investigation, was reported to police about 11 a.m. on the 26th.

Due to the storm, the firm had been closed and vacant from 6:30 p.m. on the 24th until 10:30 a.m. on the 26th when the break was discovered by an employee.

Entry is believed to have been gained by knocking out a door knob in the rear door, according to the report of Officer John E. Guarente, who investigated.

21-in. Classroom On 'Drugs: Use And Abuse'

What do young people today want to know about drugs?

Thirty-five thousand Massachusetts teenagers sent WGBH their questions, questions that will be answered candidly and factually on a special five-part series beginning Monday, March 17, on Channels 2 and 44.

"Drugs: Use and Abuse" is being produced by the Education Division of WGBH in cooperation with the 21-in. Classroom.

To be broadcast several times each, the series may prove to be of equal value to teachers, students and parents.

The first program, an hour-long broadcast for instructors, will be followed by four programs for students which seek to explore why people take drugs and to answer questions most frequently asked by teenagers.

Taking part will be the series hosts Dr. Graham Blaine, chief of psychiatric health service Harvard University, and Robert Masland, chief of the adolescent unit, Children's Hospital. It will be aired 13 times during the week of March 17, starting Monday at 2 p.m. on Channel 2. The student broadcasts start the following week, March 24, and every program will be aired eight times, as follows: Channel 2 Mondays and Wednesdays 2 p.m.; Tuesdays 10 a.m.; Thursdays 9 a.m.; Fridays 8:15 a.m. and 2:15 p.m.; Channel 44 Tuesdays and Thursdays, 7:30 p.m.

So that teachers may make maximum use of "Drugs: Use and Abuse," Drs. Blaine and Masland will lead regional conferences during the week of March 17 as key locations throughout the Commonwealth so teachers and administrators may question them directly. In addition, a special teacher's manual is available to any teacher in the state who requests it by writing Drugs, WGBH, 125 Western Avenue, Boston, Mass. 02134.

Boy Scouts Begin Drive For Members

During the month of March, the all-out effort of the entire membership of the Minuetman Council, Boy Scouts of America, will be focused upon the annual sustaining membership enrollment program.

Oliver T. Bergstrom, council finance chairman, reports that this year's goal is 6,000 participants contributing $100,000 for the 20-community territory that the Council represents.

The first phase of this year's S.M.E. effort will be conducted on two Sundays, March 9th and March 16th.

This year's sustaining membership will increase our membership to over 13,000 boys including some 5,000 new boys. Support of Scouting will expand camping opportunities and establish 35 new Scout units in the area. An S.M.E. membership will provide additional training opportunities to all adults and will make possible planning of activities like shows, camporees, and rallies for 8,000 boys.

Support to the Council S.M.E. program will assure continuance of effective service to the 325 Packs, Troops and Posts, as well as provide a full-time staff with adequately manned service center that provides many important supporting services vital to the Scouting program.

Harris S. Richardson Jr. of 11 Ledgewood Road, council president, stated, "the total operating budget of the Minuteman Council, B.S.A., for 1969 is $172,000. This total budget is the result of careful study by many volunteers and represents the minimum needs for this year's program. Each year the Council receives a small amount from its trust fund and profits from activities. Unfortunately, the gap between total needs and support from the United Fund is greater in the Metropolitan Boston Area than any other area in New England. The $61,000 allocation from the Massachusetts Bay United Fund this year represents an increase of 5% in the ten-year period 1959-1969.

Richardson continued, "Over 60% of the money required to maintain our Council program in 1969 must come from sustaining memberships. Our Council's budget has been increased to provide those necessary additional services for our expected increase of 700 boys this year as well as to cover modest increases in cost of present services."

Released Time Rescheduled For March 19

Released time for elementary schools originally scheduled for Tuesday, March 11 has been changed to Wednesday, March 19.

Elementary students will be released at noon on Wednesday, March 19.

Teachers will meet at Muraco School to hear Dr. John S. Gibson, Winchester resident and director of the Lincoln-Filene Center for Citizenship and Public Affairs, Tufts University.

Dr. Gibson will show the teachers a film entitled "Something That's Real" dealing with black people and their reactions to their struggle against discrimination.

Dr. Gibson's talk will deal with work being done in the field of inter-group relations, the development of group attitudes toward other groups, particularly minority groups.

Winchester teachers who took the in-service training course taught by Dr. Gibson at after-school sessions during October and November on the subject of inter-group relations will serve on a panel with Dr. Gibson.

The group will discuss and explore the implications of inter-group relations for the Winchester curriculum. Questions from all elementary teachers will be discussed.

Girl Scouts Celebrate 57th Anniversary

This week the more than 10,000 girls and 1400 adults in the Mistick Side Girl Scout Council are celebrating the 57th anniversary of the Girl Scouts of U.S.A. starting with the Girl Scout Sabbath on March 8th and Girl Scout Sunday on March 9th.

The Girl Scout National Board of Directors has urged all Councils to study the report of the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders, and to implement in every way possible through the Girl Scout program "the creation of a 'true union—a single society and a single American identity.' "

Throughout the country over the summer and fall, Girl Scouts have reached into economically deprived areas to help out with day-care centers, day camps, activities and recreation. They have also extended their membership into such areas, affording teenage girls a new breadth of experience and a wider range of opportunity.

Girl Scouts do more than sell cookies and go camping, although these are important parts of the program. The first is the one way that they give service to their council, and the second is a fun way of learning self-reliance in the out-of-doors.

They roll up their sleeves to help in hospitals, nursing homes, nursery schools, homes for the aged, museums, and help with handicapped children.

Girl Scouting is a program that gives girls a voice in planning, a program that gives a girl a chance for fellowship with other girls from different backgrounds, that gives girls and adults common backgrounds to work from and common goals to work for and maybe help bridge that "generation gap."

In 1920 the War Department established the principle of granting shoulder insignia to all units of division size or higher. In exceptional cases a unit smaller than a division is authorized its own patch.

State Hockey Title Play Sees 34 Schools At Arena

John F. Parrell

The sprawling State Hockey Tournament is now under way, with action continuing all this week and next as a prelude to the eventual final game, to be held March 17.

These games match big schools, small schools, fast leagues and slower ones all in one great melting pot. There is always one chance in 100 that some representative of a tiny school in a poor league will come out on top, but it has never happened in the entire 25 years that the tournament has been held.

It is high time that some effort be made to split the teams up into at least two or maybe three classes so that smaller schools with good teams in their own class way have a chance for victory.

Once in a while they may spring an upset and win against better opposition, but these are the exception rather than the rule. One such game was many years ago when a capable and talented Malden Catholic team went down before Danvers 1-0. The Turnpike boys had only three shots in the entire game but caged one while the fast-skating Catholic crew had 41 but just couldn't tally.

These facts are pointed out to improve the opportunities of the smaller schools with less gifted squads. As in basketball, the choice of tournament competition should be determined by the coach and officials of the school concerned so that should a Lynnfield or Burlington or Arlington Catholic elect to step up to play in a faster division the door would be open. Another possible change should be the requirements to qualify from the present 75% to include tie games to a more realistic figure such as 65% victories.

History has proven that if given a chance to select eight teams before the puck has been dropped to start the season, the quarter-final groupings will include at least three of the following: Melrose, Arlington, Needham, Walpole, Norwood, Malden Catholic, Marblehead and Auburn. These are perennial qualifiers as shown in 36 out of a possible 50 cases.

By the time that you read this, ten games will have been played so that you can check out the progress of the action. But at this point only one of the big eight will have skated — Needham. As the action continues into next week the pattern will probably continue, and it will be a great shock if many have fallen by the wayside by the time you read next week's issue of the Star.

He's Been There

He is a former basketball coach at Malden Vocational and was the first hockey coach at Malden Catholic. Hoop Madness Reigns In Garden As 44th Annual Tech Play Opens

by John F. Parrell

The greatest basketball show of the season is now under way at Boston Garden as the best of the Eastern Massachusetts schoolboy teams collide in the 44th annual Tech Tourney.

Henry McCarthy Sr., father of the Stoneham coach, started it all 44 years ago, and he will once again run the show with his familiar tweeds and sporty hat.

It has grown to be the hallmark of success to "Make the Tech," and every game that a team wins in it is another feather in its cap. The chance to play in the Garden and before a large crowd against top notch opposition often causes teams to rise to previously unreached heights and come out as winners.

Play is held in four classes, based mostly on the size of the schools and the type of opposition that they have met. Qualifying is based on a 70% victory record over a schedule announced before the start of the campaign. If a team thinks that it can move up to a higher class it is free to do so, but this does not happen very often.

Winchester did try to make it in Class A in the mid-fifties and Silver Lake jumped from Class C to A in 1961, but neither came out with the title.

Lexington Stands Out

This year the Middlesex League will be represented by the gifted and rangy Lexington quintet coached by Ronnie Massimino which has swept through 17 games without tasting defeat.

John Killilea, a veteran of the tournament wars, will send a good sound Melrose team onto the floor, but it seems that the underclass players are probably at least a year away, and they have failed to cope with Lexington twice in regular season contests.

Coach Fred Hergat of Braintree has always put a clever club on the floor and is a regular contender. Twenty-two times a qualifier and three times a winner, the South Shore entry has made the finals three times in the past 10 years, only to lose. If anybody is going to upset Lexington, the smaller but well trained drilled and traditionally strong Braintree team might do the trick. Lexington last won the Tech in 1943.

The only thing that has ever marred play in the Tech has been the actions of some of the fans. In times past bands, cheer leaders, sign and banner carrying supporters and veritable blizzards of paper added to the color of the scene. Combined with the excellent play it was an outstanding spectacle. But eventually bottles, spikes and other objects showered down onto those below and injuries mounted so that the paper deluge was barred. Then came obnoxious signs and this sounded the death knell for all identification markers.

Vandalism increased and roving bands ran amuck injuring other spectators, band players, cheer leaders and even the players. A Durfee player was once attacked as he entered the Garden for his game. One of the more recent things was the introduction of off color cheers by some of the intown school supporters. It should be noted that in many cases these included "Subway alumni," dropouts, and just plain trouble makers. The Somerville crowd hundreds strong generally walked or marched the few miles to their home town after their victories in a monster parade.

But as the years went by and Somerville ceased to be a perennial winner they became destructive of cars, property and anything in their way even in their own home city. As a result Principal Albert Giroux threatened to keep the team out of the tourney and things quieted a bit. But just as in the past things were abused by a few and so the headmaster has insisted that all early Somerville games must be played at 6:30 at the latest.

By B & M It's Easy

Don't be discouraged from going by the foregoing because the games are always of high order and the keen competition cannot be matched by anything else in basketball. The best way to go from Winchester is by train, you are in your seat in less than 20 minutes, and back home again without having to buck the crowds.

Somerville which has qualified 28 times has won the title six times, Durfee has been in 25 times with 5 championships and Brockton has also been on hand 28 times. Other teams have been frequent contenders for short periods of time, and even winners, but these three stand out and all are back again. It has often been said that in the Tech there is no substitute for experience and these three teams show it because win or lose they are always hard to upset.

Choices to win this year are Class A: Catholic Memorial with Durfee and Brockton as well as Boston English and Boston Tech rated worthy challengers.

Lexington is almost everybody's Class B selection but Braintree and Hyde Park will bear watching. North Andover and Holy Family of New Bedford are tops in Class C with undefeated Dover-Sherborn showing the way in Class D where unexpected opposition may develop from any one of three good Cape Ann League teams: Ipswich, North Reading and Rockport.

Five Class A games will have been completed before today's Star appears. Catholic Memorial, coached by Ronnie Perry, and featuring Fran Costello at 6 feet 7 inches who has a career total of over 1,000 points, figures to best Waltham a late qualifier but often clever on defense. Brockton is favored to down Malden but Art Boyle is a resourceful coach and his team is fresh from five victories required to qualify in its last six games. Paul Abare at 6 feet 7 inches and Jim Pagliccia 6 feet 4 inches and 215 lbs may throw in enough points and their tough rebounding should slow down the Shoe City boys. Dick Barriss, whose brothers paced Malden's two Tech titlists in 1960 and 1964 is a clever play maker and has a very dangerous shooting eye.

Boston English, 1968 winners, although not as flashy as last year's quintet appears to have too many guns for Lynn English, especially since the North Shore League has been unable to make the finals in years and their representatives usually are first round casualties. Somerville and Lynn Classical appear fairly even but Classical has a marvelous shot in Pete Mazareas who has averaged 30 points per game. This is by no means a great Somerville team but experience, pride, and a legion of devoted supporters may carry them through in spite of a none too impressive defense.

North Quincy headed by a great play maker and competitor, Bob Sleeth and with a pair of sharpshooters in Constantine and Jellison should best Archbishop Williams. But Coach Bob Nolan must slay the jinx that has haunted nearly two decades of North Quincy teams—they are consistent winners through the season, play excellent ball, and have all kinds of spirit, only to fade out in the early stages of Tech play.

In the other three Class A games Boston Tech should toy with Attleboro which after qualifying was well beaten by Class C North Attleboro, a non-qualifier, for the first time in twenty-two years. Boston College High and Rindge Tech could prove interesting but the Cambridge club seems to have a bit the better of it. Medford which hasn't qualified in some 14 years is willing but Durfee is strong and tournament wise, so a Medford win would be an upset for the Tremblay coached Blue and White Mustangs.

There will be plenty of fast action in all of these contests, maybe some upsets, but for any true schoolboy hoop followers these games make pro basketball a hum drum affair.

Coach Marshall To Show Films Of Melrose Game

Coach Manny Marshall will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the St. Mary's Holy Name Society Sunday morning at K of C Hall. The members will attend the 7:45 Mass and the meeting will follow.

COACH MANNY MARSHALL

As a special feature the films of the Sachems' game with Melrose will be shown. This game was one of the most exciting ever played by a Winchester eleven and will be a conversation piece throughout the years. By this victory the local eleven established itself as the true champion of the Middlesex League by holding the high-flying eleven to eight meager points as contrasted to its season's average of over 40 per game.

The meeting is open to all who are interested in watching the films, and many of the boys who played are planning to attend. A continental breakfast collation will be served.

Faculty Basketball Game March 14

The annual game between the basketball team and the faculty which was to have been played last Saturday will be held at the high school gymnasium the evening of Friday, March 14, weather permitting.

This contest is an annual feature and brings out plenty of interesting action. Both sides are working hard this week to develop offensive and defensive tactics to outsmart the opposition.

Of course the school team members feel that they have it all over the faculty group, whom they know once were good players but who have been slowed by the passage of the years. The teachers, on the other hand, believe that they have the class and know how to outscore their pupils. A good crowd is anticipated for the renewal of this traditional rivalry.

Hockey Team To Close Season Saturday At Lynn

The final Middlesex League hockey game of the 1968-69 campaign for Winchester will be held Saturday afternoon at the Lynn Arena. The Kelleymen will play Wakefield and faceoff is scheduled for 12:30.

The Reading game, which was scheduled to be played last week, was cancelled due to the heavy snowfall and perilous driving conditions. Since no question of standing or tournament eligibility was involved it was felt that there was no need of risking accidents in order to have it played.

Although the season has not found the local sextet in the victory column too often, it has played a sound and interesting type of hockey which merited a much better standing. It is hoped that a good group will be on hand to entertain the local fans.

Peter Kaufmann Places Second At Graves-Kelsey

Peter Kaufmann of 8 Wedgemere Avenue finished second at the 22nd annual Graves-Kelsey wrestling tournament held Saturday, February 22, at the Roxbury Latin School.

Wrestling for Belmont Hill at 160 pounds, Kaufmann was able to win in every round except the finals.

In the first round he defeated St. Mark's Putnam by a score of 4-0. The second round saw the defeat of Bristol from St. George's Academy, also at a score of 4-0. Unfortunately Peter was defeated in the last 20 seconds of the finals by Shoepfer from Browne & Nichols by a score of 2-4.

After a fine season of nine wins and only two losses, Kaufmann provided some of the needed points at the tournament that allowed Belmont Hill to upset Milton by a score of 63-62. This is truly a high point for wrestling at Belmont Hill.

Dave Boyle Named to Head Xavier Hockey

Dave Boyle, native and WHS grad but now of Woburn, has been named the head coach of hockey at Xavier High School, Concord, succeeding Jack Cusack.

Mr. Boyle will assume his post immediately to start preparations for the 1969-70 season.

The Concord boys lost a heartbreaker in the state hockey tournament Monday afternoon when they were edged out in double overtime by Boston Tech 3-2.

Sandy Milley of 58 Hemingway Street, one of the two standout scorers of the Xavier team, registered the second Xavier goal assisted by his teammate, Jay Connors.

Helping It Into The Basket

Bob Joyce photo

IN THERE WITH THE ACTION is this segment of the loyal WHS fans who have helped the Sachems to a 10-8 season this year. Friday night's win over Woburn ended the season.

Sachems Belt Woburn Here 64-45 To Climax A Winning Season

John F. Parrell

The curtain fell on the basketball season as Coach Vandy French's quintet walloped arch rival Woburn 64-45 Friday evening at the local court. The victory closed out a winning season with the final record being 10 wins against eight losses. Many of the defeats were by very narrow margins with a basket or two being the margin of the loss.

The first period saw both teams playing cautious games with airtight defensive tactics, and when the final second ticked off the home team led by a single point, 9-8. The same style of play continued through until half-time with the Sachems pulling out a bit more to lead 21-17.

With the coming of the third session the Winchester gunners started to hit on a greater percentage of their shots, and a press forced the Tanners into many turnovers which were converted into valuable points.

These tactics saw the Sachems racking up 21 points against eight for Woburn. With a 16-point lead the home team relaxed into more of a point-for-point game, and although it hung up 22 final-period points, Woburn was almost equally successful with 20 to make the final count 64-45.

Workman Top Scorer

Captain Tom Workman led the scorers as usual with 25 points, and Jack Papadinis netted a dozen.

No member of the Woburn clan was able to tally in double figures against the tight Winchester defense. It was a wonderful farewell for senior squad members Captain Workman, Papadinis, Pete Knight and Tom Flaherty, because any victory over the Tanners in any sport is a cherished memory.

The lineups:

Bantams Win League Title

Victories in their last two games gave the Winchester Bantam "A" team the league championship at Hockeytown USA.

It was the second week in a row that a Winchester Youth Hockey entry has won a championship, with the Pee Wee "A's" winning their division the previous week.

On February 22 the Bantam "A's" beat Malden 8-4. Rick Murphy opened the scoring on a set-up from Dave Frongillo and Steve Troiano. A few minutes later, Rick again scored, with an assist going to Troiano. Ed Pierce then sent Jim Dale in all alone and Jim slammed it by the goalie. The first line then went on a scoring rampage, putting five goals in in rapid succession.

George Evans, playing one of his finest games of the year, set up Bob Carroll twice, with Paul McCormack also picking up an assist on the second goal. George then passed to Bob Carroll, who in turn flipped it over to Tom Belden. Tom blasted it in high in the upper left corner.

Belden and Carroll collaborated in setting up Evans in front and George tucked it by the helpless goalie. Belden then got his second of the night, with assists again going to Bob Carroll and Paul McCormack. The first line picked up 12 scoring points, Carroll five, Evans four, and Belden three, in their biggest output of the season.

Needing a victory in their next game to win the championship, the Sachems squeaked by Canton 5-4 on Saturday, March 1.

The winner was scored by Steve Troiano on a backhander with 20 seconds to go in the game. He was given the puck in front by Rick Murphy, who had been fed from the blue line by scrapper Dave Frongillo. Both teams had played shorthanded for the last two minutes, and the forechecking of Murphy, Troiano, Frongillo and Spang kept the puck in the opponent's zone till Troiano scored.

In probably the most exciting game of the year, the score seesawed back and forth. Canton opened the scoring but Rick Murphy set up Steve Troiano, who tucked in Rick's rebound. After Canton again took the lead, Chris McCarthy, on an unassisted effort, knotted the count.

Canton again scored, only to have Rick Murphy score two in a row. Steve Troiano set him up for the first, and Dave Frongillo the second. Canton tied the game with six minutes to go.

The play continued to speed from one end to the other until Troiano potted the winner. Cliff Falla and Ricky Coakley played well in the nets, and every member of the team contributed to the victory.

A tip of the hat should also go to Coach Nick Troiano, who had a big hand in guiding this team to the championship. Nick has given up his last ten Saturday nights to handle the team, and the league title was a fine reward.

Queens Cadets In Competition This Saturday

The Immaculate Conception Queens Cadets Drum and Bugle Corps will be in competition this Saturday night for the Eastern Massachusetts circuit color guard championship finals.

The local color guard will face five other groups in the A-1 class including present champions, the St. Anthony's Imperials from Everett.

Hawks Down Bruins 3-2

With their backs to the wall and a must win game, the Black Hawks came up with a team effort to beat the Bruins 3-2 and set up a rematch for the championship next week.

Although the game was originally scheduled to be the championship game, and with two weeks remaining of ice time, Director Bill Cruwys informed Coaches Jay O'Leary of the Hawks and Bob Murray of the Bruins, that there would be a game next week if the Hawks were victorious. Had the Bruins won, they would have been three points in front and would have wrapped up the title.

Jim Beck got the Bruins off to a quick 1-0 lead converting Bob Gill's pass only to have Jeff Wilburn tie it up with Mark Siegfreidt drawing an assist.

Bill Harris' unassisted effort put the Hawks into a 2-1 lead but Phil O'Connell tied it up for the Bruins and that is the way things stood till late in the game.

Siegfreidt Scores Winner

The Bruins, who have the League's most potent offense, kept the pressure on the Hawks defense throughout the last period and while doing this, Mike Seigfreidt broke loose and skated in all alone on the Bruins goalie Rich Maggio. This was the second time Mike had broken loose. He was foiled the first time, however, by Maggio, but this time he was not to be denied and slipped the disc behind the prone Maggio for the winner which setup next week's rematch.

Scoring Crown

The first game featured the Maple Leafs and the Red Wings with the league's two top scorers, Paul Whitney of the Leafs and Jimmy Dale of the Wings. The Leafs won the game 4-2.

Whitney picked up three assists and won the league scoring crown.

Dale picked up one goal for the day as he converted Tom Belden's rebound for the second Wing goal. Charlie Evans had the other Wing's goal, coming unassisted.

Steve Troiano played his finest game of the year for the Maple Leafs as he placed two goals and an assist, including the game winner. With his three point effort, Troiano tied for third place in the scoring race.

Johnny "Whitey" Murphy and Dave Brenton had the other Maple Leafs' goals with Brenton picking up an assist on Murphy's goal.

For Dale it had to be a disappointing finish for his youth hockey years. Dale had the lead throughout most of the season up to the final two weeks only to be caught by the fast charging Whitney. Dale will be moving out of town at the end of the school year and his loss will be felt.

Rangers

Chris McKenzie had a goal and three assists as he led his Rangers to a 4-2 win over the Canadiens. Rick Murphy had two goals and an assist and finished tied for third in the scoring race. Rich Maggio, who was a fill-in for the Rangers, scored his first goal of the year in a Ranger uniform, a blazer from 20 feet out.

Tommy Brennan and Jimmy Chase had the goals for the Canadiens with Frank Ryan picking up an assist on Brennan's goal. Brennan, one of the youngest players on the Canadiens, led them in scoring. Tom also has been playing lately under a handicap having to wear a football helmet to protect an ear injury suffered while playing in outside competition.

The Bruins and the Black Hawks will meet for the championship next Sunday morning at 7:00 a.m. Right after this game at approximately 8:00 a.m. the Coaches and the Bantam "A" team will play. Last year the coaches handed the Bantams a 2-0 setback so the Bantams should be seeking revenge this year and really flying.

Hoehn Wins Tennis Tourney

Ted Hoehn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Hoehn of 11 Pine Street, recently became the 1969 New England Men's Indoor Singles tennis champion when he defeated Chum Steele of Cambridge, 3-6, 8-6, 16-14, at the Suburban Indoor Tennis Center in Randolph.

The tournament marked the first time in the history of the U.S.L.T.A. that professional and amateurs were allowed to compete in a sanctioned tournament.

Hoehn, 27, who is a teaching professional at the Windridge Tennis Center in Jeffersonville, Vermont, hadn't played in a tournament in more than a year and a half, and entered the final as the underdog to the favored Steele, who is currently the number-one amateur singles player in New England and number 32 in the United States.

The match lasted nearly three hours, and both men had their chances to win in the third set. Steele led 5-4 with his serves coming up, but Hoehn managed to put together a string of fine passing shots to even the match.

Steele saved match points with his powerful serve in the 22nd and 26th games, but finally succumbed to Hoehn in the 30th game on a passing shot and a low return of service to end the marathon match.

After the match Hoehn said, "It feels great to be back in competition again. I'm very fortunate to be living in an age where the men who make the rules are open-minded. I have always wanted to combine teaching and playing, and now it's finally a reality."

In the summer Ted and his father, "Red" Hoehn, are co-directors of the Windridge Tennis Camp in Jeffersonville, Vermont.

The camp is for boys and girls ~~ages 10-16,~~ and the Hoehns' aim is to produce more New England champions on a national level.

Several Winchester youngsters are already enrolled, including Mike Buros of Cabot Street, Kathy Alfano of Everett Avenue, and the Kell boys of Yale Street.

Church Group Joins With Service Center

The Dorcas Health and Welfare Society of the New England Memorial Church of Seventh-Day Adventists has joined the Neighborly Community Service Center at 136 Elm Street, Stoneham.

Other organizations in the Center include the Stoneham Red Cross, the Salvation Army and the Saint Vincent DePaul Society.

Mrs. Arnold Sparks, Dorcas Health and Welfare Society leader, wants the people of Winchester to know how grateful she, and those who work with her, are for the help of those in Winchester.

Many in the Society have helped in caring for local calls as well as in overseas projects. Mrs. Sparks went on to say, "To date, we have 730 leper shirts (one worker has completed 566) and 199 knit leper bandages, which have been sent to three African leper colonies. Five hundred fifty-five pounds of processed greeting card pictures have been sent to children in Vietnam, Singapore, Jungles of Borneo, and Philippines."

It seems endless the things that people are doing to help—many are making things to be sold at two planned sales—one in the spring and one during the summer—which will help to pay the postage for sending these shirts and bandages to the leper colonies as well as the card pictures for the use of the children overseas, she said.

Several groups and individuals are contributing financially and also are making home made articles.

If there is any one who wants to have a part in something like this, why not contact Mrs. Sparks at the Neighborly Community Service Center in Stoneham.

'In The Mirror'

Two friends meet the problem of alcoholism in very different ways when "Face in the Mirror" premieres on Channel 2 Tuesday, March 11, at 9 p.m. (repeat on Channel 44 Wednesday, March 12, at the same hour).

Stars of the drama are Robert and his friend Buddy, two winos who spend their lives working at odd jobs, earning just enough money to pay for the wine they drink. Almost as an afterthought, they apply for a factory job, assuming that since they are black they will not be hired. But they are chosen for the company's training program, a program which could lead to steady employment if they can stay with it.

Local Volunteers Help Channel 2 Prepare Auction

Volunteer friends of Channel 2 are preparing for the fourth annual Channel 2 TV-Phone Auction.

More than 1,200 volunteers are canvassing the viewing area for goods and services to be sold to the highest telephone bidder May 31 through June 7 during this fund-raising event.

Mrs. Andrew Nichols of 11 Fenwick Road has been named volunteer chairman for the north suburban area which includes the towns of Billerica, Burlington, Lynnfield, Malden, Medford, Melrose, Reading, Stoneham, Wakefield, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn.

Assisting as team captain for Winchester is Mrs. John Reno of 22 Ravine Road.

Any Winchester merchant, manufacturer or private citizen who would like to contribute to the 1969 Channel 2 Auction is urged to get in touch with Mrs. Reno (729-7520) as soon as possible.

During the auction an auctioneer shows the item on the air and describes it on camera. The viewers at home telephone in bids as often as they want. It's important to act fast for the items are sold quickly to the highest bidder. This person is notified on the air and also by confirming phone call. The highest bidder then comes to the WGBH studios as soon as possible to pick up and pay for the item.

'Multiply?'

Americans, it seems, are taking literally the Lord's command to "Multiply . . . and Subdue the Earth."

At least that's the opinion of regional planners who are concerned lest the expected U. S. population will irreparable pollute, rather than subdue the earth by the year 2000.

To see what can be done to keep this from happening PBL presents a 90-minute special report produced for the Public Broadcast Laboratory by Channel 2's Austin Hoyt. It will be seen across the country in color Sunday, March 9, at 8 p.m.

New Center Is Opened For Drug Addicts

Lawrence D. Gaughan, administrator, Drug Addiction Rehabilitation Board, Commonwealth of Massachusetts and Mrs. Elizabeth Cole Smith, superintendent, Massachusetts Correctional Institution at Framingham, have stated that an intensive-care treatment center for female drug addicts was opened at this institution on March 2.

This unit consists now of a twenty-bed inpatient ward for persons committed under the drug laws.

The Board intends to provide treatment centers for all of the drug addicts in the Commonwealth with diversified facilities structured to treat specific patients.

The opening of this additional intensive-care unit reflects the policy of the Board that addicts in Massachusetts will receive treatment whether they are at liberty in the community, hospitalized or incarcerated.

Other facilities available for the treatment of drug addicts are: Boston City Hospital, Boston State Hospital, Springfield Hospital Medical Center, and Northampton State Hospital.

Presently, surveys are being conducted in Essex, Middlesex, Plymouth and Bristol counties to determine the epidemiological characteristics of the drug addiction population and the suitable resources available.

Tax Deduction Supporting Par'nts

Special tax rules apply when children jointly support their father or mother, William E. Williams, district drector of Internal Revenue for Massachusetts, has said.

Even though not one of them provided more than half the parent's support for the year, tax laws provide that one of the children may claim the parent's exemption for tax purposes, Mr. Williams said.

To do this, the child claiming the exemption must have contributed at least 10 percent of the parent's support and the other dependency requirements must have been met.

Mr. Williams said that in these circumstances, the children can decide among themselves which will claim the tax exemption. The others are then required to fill out a special form stating that they will not claim the exemption. These forms are filed with the return of the one claiming the exemption.

IRS Publication 501, "Your Exemptions and Exemptions for Dependents," which furnishes more detailed information on this subject, and copies of Form 2120, Multiple Support Declaration, may be obtained by dropping a post card to the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, J.F.K. Federal Building, Boston, Massachusetts 02203.

Mental Health Adds Services For Young Retarded

Thirty seven new pre-school nursery clinics for mentally retarded children have just been established by the Department of Mental Health, bringing to 70 the number of facilities now serving about 800 children throughout the state.

They were made possible by a special act of the Legislature. They are geared to prepare the mentally retarded child for special classes in public schools.

"Most of our pre-school nursery schools are not located on state property," said Director John Ogonik of Medford. "They are in churches and neighborhood houses. The state pays the salaries of all teachers and of most of the assistant teachers. The remaining assistants' salaries are paid by local associations for retarded children."

The state and the local school departments split the cost of transporting children to and from the nurseries.

The yearly cost per child attending community clinical nursery school is about $1,000 plus transportation costs. This amount, according to Mr. Ogonik, provides for the salaries of the teacher, the assistant, the custodian, one eighth of a supervising head teacher's time, and one-half of a clinical staff person's time to provide supporting clinical services.

This amount—about $18,000 for a unit serving 18 children—includes the initial equipment necessary for a nursery school, annual replacement of equipment and yearly supplies. Not included in these costs are rent of the facility, central supervision of the program, clerical staff, special instructors, and research and evaluation costs.

Morning nursery classes are limited to 12 children. Smaller groups of children who need a modified program meet in the afternoon in some communities.

Home Teaching

Home teaching services are offered to children under four in some areas.

Mr. Ogonik said that the Department of Mental Health received a grant of $42,000 from the Department of Education's division of special education to establish seven day-care centers—one in each of the seven mental health regions—for mentally retarded children between seven and 16. The Department will soon seek legislation approval of 14 additional day care centers, he said.

"Up to now," said Mr. Ogonik, "parents had no alternative but to keep these youngsters at home, since they were excluded from public schools. Day care centers are an alternative to institutionalization, and an incentive for the parents of mentally retarded children to keep their children in the home."

"The overall goal of the nursery school programs, pre-school and day care, is to enable each child to achieve his maximum potential and to support and strengthen the parents in fostering the child's growth," he added.

William A. Fraenkel, Ph.D., assistant commissioner for mental retardation, said:

"Retarded children can be helped. The majority of our pre-school youngsters go on to the special classes in the public schools; and, with additional education and training, most can become productive workers."

'Make Way For Ducklings'

LANGUAGE ARTS in the Winchester schools have a helping hand from students' mothers including Mrs. Ginger Parsons, foreground, Mrs. Ann Russell, left, and Mrs. Ruth Rozelle, right. The women, with Thomas Morse, rear, of the School department, are preparing kits used by the children on a field trip to Boston. The language arts project is based on the book, "Make Way for Ducklings," and the kits provide maps and pictures which enable the children to trace the ducklings' route through Boston when they make their field trip. Fifty parents are helping in the project. (Lois Carr photo)

Hospital Starts Program To Train Junior Volunteers

Winchester Hospital has announced a new orientation-training program for girls who are interested in doing junior volunteer work at the Hospital.

The program, to be directed by Mrs. James Hollinshead, director of Volunteer Service, will consist of three classes to be held on Friday, March 28 and Thursday, April 3 from 3:15 to 5 p.m., and Saturday, April 12 from 10 a.m. to 12 noon at the Russell House, the Winchester Hospital Nurses' Home, 20 Fairmount Street.

Reese E. James, hospital administrator, will speak at the opening meeting. Also at this time, applications for volunteer service, the junior volunteer handbook, and hospital literature will be available.

The course will cover Hospital ethics, rules and regulations, responsibilities of junior volunteers, and job descriptions. Since each session is planned to cover different aspects of hospital volunteer work it is expected that prospective volunteers will attend all three meetings in order to be adequately trained for their jobs.

Interested girls, who are 14 years of age or older, are invited to call the Volunteer Department at Winchester Hospital for an appointment for an interview prior to the above dates.

Shovelsful Of Prevention

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT CUSTODIANS worked both Saturday and Sunday shoveling snow from school buildings. Above six of the crew work on Washington School's accumulation. Saturday was spent at the Muraco School unloading that flat roof before school children returned to class. Maintenance supervisor for the School Department, Nicholas Luongo, expressed his concern for the safety of the children if the conditions were allowed to exist. He added that the gutters had already begun to buckle from the heavy snow load and that a big vote of confidence should go to the men who were willing to devote their Sunday to the job. Tax Returns Should Go To Correct Address

If a refund is due on a 1968 Federal income tax return, a sure way to slow it up is to mail the return with an incorrect address.

William E. Williams, district director of the Internal Revenue Service, stated that Massachusetts taxpayers should mail returns showing refunds directly to the IRS Service Center, 310 Lowell Street, Andover, Massachusetts 01812.

A preaddressed envelope for this purpose is included with the tax-forms package. If it was mislaid or lost, a new envelope may be obtained from the nearest IRS office.

Williams stated that taxpayers whose returns show a balance due should mail their returns to: district director, IRS, John F. Kennedy Building, Government Center, Boston, Massachusetts 02203.

Checks or money orders in payment of the tax should be made payable to the Internal Revenue Service.

Taxpayers are reminded to be sure and compute the 7.5 percent surcharge on line 12b if filing the 1040 form and on line 8b on the 1040A form. Failure to include the surcharge accurately will delay refunds and cause recomputations on the returns.

Law Violations Primary Cause Of Accidents

More than 60% of drivers involved in fatal accidents were violating traffic regulations at the time of the accident, points out Motor Club of America's safety department.

Further, noted MCA, fatal accidents in which these drivers were involved each year make up more than 80% of all fatal accidents.

Four out of 10 drivers involved in fatal accidents, for example, exceeded the speed limits or safe speeds; one out of six involved in fatal accidents failed to keep right of the center line; and one out of 10 went through stop signs or disregarded signals.

Other statistics include:

40.5% of all fatal accidents are caused by speeding.

Driver was left of center in 15.9% of all fatal accidents.

A stop sign violation accounted for 5.3% of all fatal accidents.

Drivers disregarded traffic signals in 2.7% of such accidents.

Of the pedestrians killed in motor vehicle accidents each year, approximately 37% are struck while crossing the street at intersections, 46% while crossing between intersections and another 11% are killed while walking in the roadway.

While the pedestrian death total has dropped sharply in the past 20 years, pedestrian deaths still account for nearly 45% of all urban deaths. Crossing between intersections is by far the most dangerous pedestrian act, showing 46% of those killed in cities while crossing streets were crossing between intersections.

Police Guide To State Laws Is Published

The first criminal procedure handbook geared to the on-the-job needs of the police officer has been sent to every policeman in the Commonwealth by the Committee on Law Enforcement and Administration of Criminal Justice, according to Sheldon Krantz, the committee's executive director.

The pocketsized "Enforcing The Criminal Law," prepared by the Criminal Division of the Attorney General's Office, states and interprets the State laws and procedures for arrest, search and seizure after arrest.

The Sears-Roebuck Foundation has funded the initial printing of 30,000 copies of the handbook which covers the State's 15,000 policemen. Copies will also be sent to sheriffs, district attorneys, chairmen of boards of selectmen, judges, the Department of Correction, the Department of Probation, the Parole Board, the Division of Youth Service and the attorneys general and criminal justice planning agencies in other states.

Mr. Krantz explained that the ultimate goal which will be implemented by the Committee of Law Enforcement is a small loose-leaf binder with separate sections to be continually updated as criminal laws and procedures change.

He added that new material covering such topics as crowd control and civil disorders will be added.

The handbook took the Criminal Division six months to prepare, according to Mr. Krantz, with the guidance and support of, among others, the executive committee of the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association; the executive committee of the Massachusetts Police Association and the members of the Attorney General's Advisory Committee on Civil Rights and Civil Liberties.

Lawn Care Kills Weeds

A weed-free lawn this year is possible without devoting hours of weekend spare time to digging and shoveling. Regular mowing and good lawn care practices will eliminate most weeds in a year or two without any special treatment.

A few stubborn weeds, however, can live in short grass and will thrive even in thick well-established lawns. Other types of weeds will grow in thin, unhealthy lawns where grass is not growing strongly enough to resist invasion.

Basically, any practice that encourages a thick turf discourages weeds. Good cultural practices such as proper feeding, cutting and watering are essential to weed elimination. Such a program combined with modern chemicals will produce a weed-free lawn.

Unless the lawn is completely invaded with weeds, don't dig it up and reseed. Planting a new lawn will simply produce a new infestation because every foot of topsoil contains thousands of weed seeds. these seeds never germinate unless they are brought to the surface and exposed to light, air and moisture.

Spring is the proper time to apply a preventive "pre-emergence" crab grass killer, according to turf agronomists at Amchem Research Farm, Ambler, Pennsylvania. Used in early spring, this pre-emergence crab grass killer will give 95 per cent or more control. If the crab grass has already appeared, it can be eliminated with such chemicals as Weedone crab grass killer.

Modren chemicals react rather quickly upon the weeds. Under normal growing conditions, a twisting and curling of weeds should occur within a day or two after chemical application.

Regardless of the reaction time, the application of modern weed-killing chemicals will eradicate serious weekend weeding problems.

Motorists Urged To Prevent CO Poisoning

The Massachusetts Division of the American Automobile Association has advised motorists to check their cars and their driving habits against the danger of poisoning from carbon monoxide exhaust fumes.

The recent announcement by General Motors to recall nearly five million cars for service to prevent possible exhaust emissions from entering the vehicles demonstrates that carbon monoxide can seep into a car's passenger compartment even through the smallest holes, said Robert S. Kretschmar, general manager of AAA's Massachusetts Division.

Mr. Kretschmar pointed out that the symbol for carbon monoxide is CO. "That's easy to remember because gas is colorless and odorless. It is also tasteless.

"A hatfull of carbon monoxide inside your car can kill you. A cupfull will bring on sickness."

Warning signs of carbon monoxide poisoning are:

- Gradually becoming aware of a headache
- Tightness across the forehead
- Trouble with vision — harder to see and to focus
- Creeping feeling of nausea

Here are some suggestions from the AAA to prevent carbon monoxide poisoning:

- Never run the motor while the car is in a closed garage. Open the door before starting the car, but remember that leaving the garage door open may not be enough to prevent a build-up of the dangerous fumes.
- If the car is buried in snow, make sure the exhaust tail pipe is uncovered and open before turning on the engine.
- When sitting in a parked car, shut off the engine.
- Keep distance from the car ahead when held up in traffic. Carbon monoxide can enter the car from the exhaust of the car ahead. This is especially true if the car heater/defroster is turned on.
- Drive with a car window partly open, when there is a possibility that the car's ventilation is blocked with snow.
- Have the exhaust system of the car inspected to eliminate seepage.
- Buy one of the carbon monoxide detectors available from automotive supply stores and mail order houses (approximate cost $1) and put it inside the car. The small plastic or cardboard device contains a chemical spot which changes color when CO is present, then changes back to the original color when CO has gone.

The AAA official said that the greatest danger of carbon monoxide is that a driver can't detect its presence — often until too late. "Breathing carbon monoxide fumes even in small amounts may impair driving actions and judgment enough to lead to an accident," he said.

"During the recent snowstorms, many motorists who drive to and from work sitting in tightly closed cars for long periods of time found themselves tired and groggy after their trips. They may have had a slight touch of carbon monoxide poisoning."

Duplicate Bridge Club

The Club tradition of running a game no matter what the weather was maintained on Wednesday, February 26th, the week of the record storm. Only one small section was expected, but bridge players are a hardy lot—or just stir-crazy after being snowbound, and two sections did materialize, six-teen tables in all.

One of the Club's most faithful couples, Evie and Bob Blackler, were first North-South in Section A, while Lolly Smith and Muriel Davis had a really big game to win East-West.

Board 17 in Section B separated the swingers from the pessimists with the former going down to defeat.

North is the dealer with no one vulnerable.

Look over the North-South hands and review your bidding style. Would you make an optimistic game try with either the North or South hand? It's certainly a borderline situation.

At our table my partner North opened one diamond, East passed, and I bid one spade. (We had decided to name any four-card major suit after a one club or one diamond bid.) West passed, and North with those lovely spades and more than a minimum opener could say the cautious two spades or stretch to three spades. My partner bid two spades, East passed, and I was faced with the same problem,—a more than a minimum hand. Would you say three spades or pass? I looked at that terrible spade suit, downgraded the hand slightly because of its lack of Aces, and passed.

This time we were lucky; the swingers who bid game either in spades or no trump went down. Our two spades made two, and one no trump bidder had a plus score. The only other one North-South was setting an optimistic two hearts by one East-West pair.

Co-op Banks Show Growth

Unprecedented competition for thrift deposits has failed to stunt in any appreciable way the healthy growth of Massachusetts' home grown thrift and mortgage lending institutions, the co-operative bank system.

A year-end review of the co-operative banks' specialized activities revealed that during the twelve months of 1968 the rate of growth in assets of the 154 member banks had jumped from 4.39% to 6.30%, bringing the total growth in assets for 1968 to $120,500,000 and the combined assets of the banks to an all time high of $2,033,400,000.

Growth in combined savings deposits showed an even greater rate of increase from 5.55% in the previous year to 6.21% on December 30, 1968, or an increase of $105,400,000, bringing the total of savings deposits up to $1 billion, 804 million belonging to 889,000 depositors.

On the other side of the ledger the co-operative banks issued new mortgages amounting to $88,300,000 for an increase of 5.46%, raising the total home mortgage investment to $1 billion, 705 million dollars.

NEEDED
As Winchester doesn't have housing for its elderly I need 2 rooms or 3 and bath with private entrance. Cannot pay more than $60 per month. Need same by May 1st. Write to P.O. Box 17, Winchester, Mass., or call 729-4257 nights.

NOTICE OF LOST PASS BOOK
In connection with the requirements of Chapter 167, Section 20, of the General Laws and Acts in amendment thereof or supplementary thereto, notice is hereby given of the loss of Pass Book No. 54218 issued by the Winchester Savings Bank and that written application has been made to said bank for the payment of the amount of the deposit represented by said book or for the issuance of duplicate book therefor.

Women Urged To Join Air Force

Jobs in almost every imaginable field are opening up to young women who elect to join today's aerospace team, according to Sergeant Nolin, the local Air Force representative.

Previously, women in the military held menial jobs but their dedication in the past has proved to the American public that they are capable of nearly any job men can do.

In keeping with equal employment policies, positions in electronics, communications, photography, avionics, computers and many others are now open to qualified young women on the aerospace team.

Despite the increase in numbers of women in the Air Force, the standards of selection remain rigid. The WAF of today is composed of women who have the highest potential of any selected group in the nation.

Many recent changes have taken place in the WAF uniform. They are now more feminine, comfortable and practical. It gives the image of the wearer being a "professional amongst professionals."

To learn more about the new WAF of today contact Sergeant Nolin at 19 High Street, Medford, or call him at 396-5109 for an appointment.

Memorial Gifts Go To Heart Fund

Announcement has been made of those in whose honor memorial gifts have been given to the Heart Fund between October, 1968, and January of this year.

Dr. James A. Bougas, president of the Greater Boston Chapter of the Massachusetts Heart Association, made the announcement.

"Heart Fund memorial gifts are a very worthwhile way to pay tribute to friends and family who have passed away," Dr. Bougas said.

"These gifts honor the memory of those who have died and at the same time give hope to those of the future through support of research, education, and community service programs of the Heart Association. The gifts make remembrance of the person last forever," he said.

Any amount may be given as a memorial through the Greater Boston Chapter, Massachusetts Heart Association at 677 Beacon Street, Boston, 02215.

These late friends and relatives of Winchester residents have been honored recently with Heart Fund memorials:

Mrs. Lillian Ainsworth, Louise Anderson, Mrs. Frances Beranek, Krikor Boodakian, Mr. Brevich, Robert R. Burnham, Mrs. Nora M. Callaham, Mrs. Loretta G. Carter, Frank Del Gaizio, Fred S. Doyle, Constant A. Dreano, C. Fred Eberle, Edward J. Grady, Mrs. R. J. Grenzeback, Clayton M. Gwynn, William Hirschfeld, Paul C. Hoffman, Rupert Jones, Peter Kramer, Lt. Col. Presly O. Lucas, James Mackechnie Jr., Esther Manuel, Andrew H. Mattisen, Mrs. Anna Millican, Thomas Mulcare, Esther Norman, Enrico Sarno, Harry Schutzberg, Mabel A. Shalline, Karl Peterson, Robert Proctor, Charles E. Vautrain Sr., Mrs. Marjorie L. Wagner, Harison Wagner, Walter Winship and Edna A. Wood.

Prejudice In India

Channel 2 repeats "Passage to India" starring Dame Sybil Thorndike Friday, March 21, at 8:30 p.m., because there have been so many requests for a re-showing.

The famous E. M. Forster novel may well be the greatest story ever written about prejudice in India. Adapted for the stage by Indian writer Santha Rama Rau, it will be repeated by Channel 2 Sunday, March 23, at 3 p.m., and by Channel 44 Monday, March 24, at 9 p.m.

Seascape Art To Be Shown

The Winchester Art Association will present a demonstration of painting a seascape in oil at its regular meeting, to be held Thursday, March 6 (please note change of day), at the Winchester Public Library at 7:45 p.m., it was announced by President R. N. Watts.

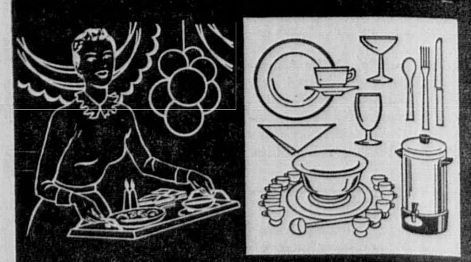

Edgar T. McKenney of Saugus will be the speaker. He is an artist specializing in landscapes, seascapes and semi-abstractions.

A member of the North Shore, the Lynn, the Duxbury, and the Burlington Art Associations, Mr. McKenney also teaches at the Saugus High School. He has had shows at the Copley Society, Boston, and at the Ogunquit Art Center, Maine, in both of which organizations he holds a membership.

Mr. McKenney has won the Woodman Prize for the best painting of the Maine coast at Ogunquit, and was selected to be represented on the 1968 calendar of the American Mutual Insurance Company.

The U.S. Army flag, for higher echelons of command, and the Army field flag, for lower echelon organizations, are symbolic of the Army as a whole. The former is white with yellow fringe and the Department of the Army seal in the center in ultramarine blue; the latter is blue with the seal in white.

Town Meeting Tonight - Where The Action Is

Look To $44 Tax Rate As Town Meetings Open

Winchester can look to a tax rate of about $44.00 — or a jump of $6.60 over last year, according to the Finance Committee's report, in the mail yesterday barely in time for tonight's Town Meetings.

The gavel for the Meetings comes at 7:45 in the High School auditorium. Moderator Harrison Chadwick is expected to move into the Special Town Meeting warrant on the Marycliff Academy study and then go into the 35-article regular session.

Delays on the printed Finance Committee report came close to postponing the Town Meeting—as has been the case this year in one or two other area towns.

Acting chairman Robert Grenzeback of the Finance Committee reported that Town Meeting members earlier received typed copies of the Fin Com report through article seven of the warrant.

Many citizens may not yet have received the report, which was to have been distributed to Town Meeting Members yesterday.

The estimated tax rate is further complicated by the fact that the State's so-called "cherry sheet" is not expected to arrive with the Town's reimbursement notice until well after Town Meeting.

"Things got bogged down in logistics," said vice chairman Mr. Grenzeback in speaking of the sum of factors which delayed the report. He is acting in the absence from town of Ormond Hessler, Finance Committee chairman.

On the Air

Tonight's Town Meetings will be broadcast over the High School radio station, WHSR-FM at 91.9 megacycles.

Marycliff

The one-article Special Town Meeting which should open the evening was introduced jointly by the Selectmen and the School Committee.

It asks the Town study the acquisition of Marycliff Academy for use as a school, and for an option authorization so that this can be done.

It reflects the high interest in Town in the subject and the enthusiasm of the School Committee and administration and the Selectmen.

At a hearing on the long-range planning report of the Elementary School Building Committee Tuesday night in the Town Hall, that group's chairman, Earle Littleton, noted the ESBC's intention to support the study.

Mr. Littleton, however, continues to qualify his enthusiasm for the purchase.

"Some people think that if we buy Marycliff, we won't have to do anything else," he said, going on to state that since there is no State building assistance with the purchase, it should be assessed against the price of new construction by adding the purchase price to estimated renovation costs and divide by 350 estimated pupil capacity.

"You shouldnn't pay more than $500,000 for it," he said.

The Tuesday school building hearing, attended by about 45 persons, also brought out the fact that, in the Building Committee's opinion, Marycliff would serve to house only pupils from East of Cambridge Street.

"We have got to enlarge Vinson-Owen anyway," Mr. Littleton said, and reiterated his group's plan for the enlargement of Mystic as its first step.

(The Town Meeting discussion of the over-all elementary planning is included in Article 30 of the regular Town Meeting and not expected to be met in the first two sessions.")

Personnel Report

Tonight's meeting should hear the report of Chairman Robert Ericson of Personnel, and include bargaining reports. The written final report of this Board details the new educational "self-improvement" program for the Police (which will later apply to Firefighters) and Mr. Ericson is expected to tell the Town's Representatives about this plan.

An expression by the Firefighters' local union as to their position on salaries and why they have not signed, is also anticipated here.

The Planning Board will look to aid for the business district in its article (7) asking a committee study this question.

School Budget

Budgets come up for a review under article 8. The School Department budget, up 17% again this year, will go to the floor with a cross suggestion from the Finance Committee that it be cut $100,000.

"We want them to cut from their programs money allocated into new programs," said Mr. Grenzeback on this subject.

Under number 8 the Town will also hear the details of the whopping big snow and ice cost this year—expected to go well over $300,000.

Article 9, under Town Government Study Committee sponsorship, should see a broad discussion of the issues involved in the suggested move to a Department of Public Works.

Although seasoned observers do not expect the Meeting to get beyond article 9 in its first two sessions, they are optimistic that the 1969 Town Meeting will be done in many fewer than the marathon nine-session 1968 session.

Some Of The Big Ones

Below are capsuled articles among those expected to be reached at Town Meeting this week.

Special Town Meeting, Article 1, asks appointment of a committee of five voters to work with the Permanent Building Committee looking into the feasibility of acquiring the Marycliff Academy buildings and nine and one-half acres of land.

Article 1 Annual Town Meeting is the reports of the Finance Committee and other Town officers—which should give a look-ahead to the tax rate.

Article 4 is the report of the Personnel Board which will include data on all bargained and non-bargained salaries and a statement about what the failure to reach agreement with the town's Firefighters means procedurally.

Article 7 looks to establish a committee to work on strengthening the business center.

Article 8 is all departmental budgets, including schools.

Article 9, the report of the Town Government Study Committee, will ask a vote to authorize the Town to file with the Massachusetts Legislature for permission to establish a Public Works Department here.

Articles 14-17 are Conservation Commission articles, three of which ask land purchases for conservation purposes.

Article 18 would create a committee to study the establishment of a Housing Authority here.

B&M Trains To Halt For WHS Underpass

A 59-hour halt in Boston and Maine through rail traffic is set for Friday, March 21 as engineers for the Secondary School Building Committee and those of the Railroad get ready to build the pedestrian tunnel to connect the new high school building with its playing fields.

From 6 p.m. Friday until 5 a.m. Monday, March 24, B and M passengers heading north of Winchester will be bussed around the road-bed block up to the Winchester Highlands stop. Southbound travel will do the reverse.

A special plow detail last Friday started the operation. Saturday the area was loaded with gravel.

This week workers start bringing in and assembling the sections of galvanized steel pipe from which are being constructed the 13-foot in diameter underpass.

At the go-signal at 6 p.m. on the 21st, B and M engineers will lift the tracks. The banking will be removed; the pipe pulled into place by heavy equipment; and the bank then replaced.

According to Arthur E. Dunbar, chairman of the high school Building Committee, the operation will go on, barring heavy flooding.

"The cooperation that the Boston and Maine has given us in planning for this operation has been excellent," said the chairman, "We would like publicly to compliment them on their assistance and public spirit. Both have been invaluable to the Town of Winchester."

The SSBC has been meeting every week recently with the Permanent Building Committee and with architects and engineers. Snow conditions could add some time onto the spring date for putting out bids. The builders still hope, however, for a mid-April bid date.

Football Coach Hall Of Fame Names Knowlton

Athletic Director Henry Knowlton, who coached the WHS football team for 26 years, will be inducted into the Massachusetts High School Football Coaches Hall of Fame on Saturday night.

The Maxwell Road resident, a former WHS halfback who captained the Sachems in 1927, will receive the big honor at ceremonies in the Harvard University Cage.

After his playing years at WHS and Springfield College, Mr. Knowlton coached at the New Hampton School and Plymouth High School before taking over here.

His overall record is 204 wins, 72 losses and 17 ties.

The Sachems were State champs in 1942 and 1946 in the "C" grouping and in 1951 in the "B" class. They were undefeated in 1942, 46, 51 and 55.

Mr. Knowlton was New England Coach of the Year in 1961.

ABM Meeting Hears Pros, Cons Of 'Sentinel'

"If we built the ABM, we would fantastically escalate the arms race," Boston University Professor Edgar M. Bottome told about 150 residents at a meeting Thursday night sponsored by the Winchester Committee on ABM.

Five panelists, with credentials from engineering, sociology and political science, lectured the group at the Church of the Epiphany on the pros and cons of the proposed ABM system which would involve sites in North Andover and in Lynnfield.

Richard W. Freeman Jr. of 14 Franklin Road, in introducing the speakers, told the group the committee hoped to "provide a better understanding of both sides of the ABM problem."

In his introductory remarks, Mr. Freeman reported Congressman Torbert Macdonald hopes to have a Seventh District hearing on the ABM before Congressional hearings on the subject begin.

Prof. Bottome, an assistant professor of political science at B. U. and a specialist in American defense policy, told the group, "We have already spent more money on ABM than we spend in an entire year on federal aid to education."

His only concern, he added, is not with the cost but with the fact that it "does not add one iota to the basic security of the country."

Snows To Cost More Than $1 On Tax Rate

Before the Board of Selectmen Monday Highway Superintendent Robert O'Brien defined the monetary come-uppance of this winter's snows when added to what we can look at for 1969 as a whole year: more than $1 on the tax rate.

As a sample, the salt budget alone had been estimated at $69,000 through December, 1969. Through last Friday, $67,000 had already been spent.

Total budget to go before Town Meeting will be over $353,000, or more than a 50% jump from 1968.

This includes substantial amounts for equipment. "The sidewalk machines are really beat," said the superintendent, noting blades, transmissions gone. He is asking for two new sidewalk plows.

Guidance Needs Reported To School Comm.

Guidance programs at the elementary and secondary school levels in Winchester were the subject of discussion Monday night at a regular meeting of the School Cimmittee at the McCall Junior High School.

At the same meeting, Dr. Donald Klemer, superintendent of schools, told the committee he feels the town will be given permission by the State Commissioner of Education to waive the 180 day requirement. In the elementary schools, the present calendar is two days short as a result of storm days.

Mrs. Gloria R. Keville, elementary school guidance specialist, in her report told the committe ". . . of our 3,000 students, probably 1100 of them need some kind of guidance."

Guidance should involve all children, not just the problems, Mrs. Keville said.

She added that future failure was most easily prevented in the elementary grades and that guidance efforts should stress the elementary grades.

Eugene I. Prior, guidance department head at the High School, commented on the "school-career explo" presented by the guidance department this year.

Orange Stakes: Leave Them

Fire Chief I. Francis Amico has urged parents to tell their children not to play with the orange stakes placed around town to mark the location of fire hydrants.

The stakes have been placed by the firefighters to mark all hydrants, including those already free of snow, clearly to indicate their locations.

Welfare Announces Medicaid Cutbacks

by Nancy N. Bishop

Winchester residents registered with the Public Welfare Office as eligible for Medicaid have been sent a letter notifying them of changes in policy relating to eligibility, according to William P. Supple, director of the office here.

In line with the proposed cutbacks in Medicaid, the State has notified the local offices that the $65 per month alloted for employment expenses in figuring available income will be eliminated.

According to the new policy, only compulsory deduction of Social Security taxes and Federal and State income taxes, retirement contributions, health insurance premiums and employment expenses of $2.50 per week, may be deducted in figuring income available for payment of medical expenses.

Mr. Supple reports that from the inception of Medicaid on September 1, 1966 through June 30, 1968, some $496,514 was paid in medical assistance for Winchester residents.

At the present time, there are 190 families with 691 children on the list of those Winchester residents eligible to receive Medicaid payments. (This figure does not include those families receiving Aid to Dependent Children).

Committee To Ask For Closed Rink

Chairman William Kimball of the committee to study the feasibility of an artificial skating rink for the Town appeared before the Selectmen Monday night to report his group will ask for, in Article 28 of the warrant, a closed artificial skating rink.

The committee is requesting the closed rink or, as a second choice, a semi-enclosed rink, to increase the usage of the area, both in terms of number of possible days of use and in terms of adult usage.

With a closed rink, it would be possible to have year-round skating, although the committee is suggesting in its report that it be used for tennis seven months of the year.

Budget For Vocational Schl. May Reimburse

"Winchester can expect an additional $58,660.26 in state reimbursements for school aid this year because of the town's participation in the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School project, according to figures released by District Treasurer Anthony C. Moschella of Revere.

"The town's share of the 1969 regional school operating budget is $18,443.25 and its proportionate share of the capital outlay for this year amounts to $21,011.26 for a total assessment of $39,454.51.

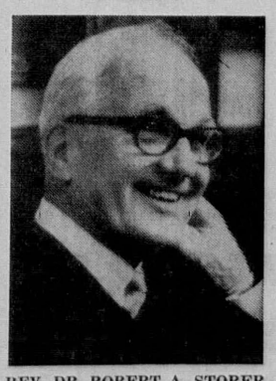

"This means Winchester will actually show a net gain of $19,205.75 in state aid this year, for being a part of the regional project.

Dr. Storer Resigns Unitarian Pulpit; Needham Pastor Is Named For September

The 104-year-old Winchester Unitarian Society voted Sunday officially to accept the resignation of its tenth minister, Dr. Robert A. Storer, and to elect its eleventh minister, the Reverend Jack Daniel Zoerheide.

RETIRING

REV. DR. ROBERT A. STORER

The Rev. Mr. Zoerheide will take over the office September 1, the date Dr. Storer's resignation is effective. Mr. Zoerheide has been minister of the First Parish Church in Needham since 1957, and before that was the Unitarian pastor in Hingham.

Dr. Storer, who completes 19 years in the local pulpit, was elected minister emeritus on Sunday. The resignation, presented by Dr. John D. McLean, chairman of the Standing Committee, was accepted by the parishioners "regretfully." In addition, the parish voted a resolution which said,

" that we recognize the concerned, energetic, and meaningful service which Robert A. Storer has rendered the Society during his ministry. We know that the vital and effective spiritual influence with the Society has upon the community is due in large measure to his inspiring leadership and his untiring devotion."

George B. Redding moderated the Society meeting.

Chosen from 50

Mr. Zoerheide was presented to the meeting by Thornton Stearns, chairman of the Pulpit Committee of seven which has been at work since January, 1968, when Dr. Storer announced his pending resignation to parish leaders.

Questions For CONCERN

CONCERN, Winchester's Committee on New Concepts of Educational and Therapeutic Needs, is currently answering under this heading questions mailed to its mailbox, Winchester Post Office Box 293 (signed or anonymous); or questions put to any one of its members.

Today's question is:

"What is being done in the Winchester High School to curb the drug problem?"

Peter Knight, president of the senior class at WHS and member of CONCERN, reports the following:

"Sponsored by the Student Council, a committee of high school students was formulated to investigate the drug problem. It was found that the major factor in solving this problem was to educate the students.

"Sophomores were to be the main target of the education because, for the most part, juniors and seniors already have fixed ideas concerning drugs.

"It was thought that discussions with sophomores on a small scale led by knowledgeable committee members was the answer. The discussions leaders were not to take part in the discussion but were merely there to stimulate it. Views pro and con were brought up, as a one-sided discussion would leave a great many doubts and false impressions.

"As of this date two discussions in each sophomore English class has taken place.

Sgt. John O'Neil Home On Leave From Helicopter Action In Vietnam

"How do you know the hamlet is under the V. C. before you go in?"

"Because there's not a man or boy over 14 around . . . Our 'Psyops' (Psychological Warfare) team usually has myself or someone like me on communications—I carry a speaker on my back when not airborne—my interpreter, a doctor and a couple of medics.

"Often, along with leaflets and posters, I'll take along a volleyball to keep the kids busy, or play some carnival-like music . . . that let's the doctors have time to help the other people . . ."

Sergeant John H. O'Neil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry O'Neil, is home on extended leave at 11 Webster Street. This is why he speaks in the present tense.

A member of the First Air Cavalry, O'Neil has been in Vietnam since May 21. He is scheduled to go back April 6 and be in action until January, 1970.

Military Honor

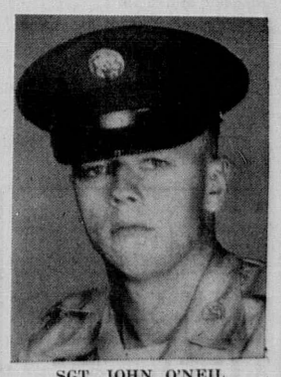

For his work in the Chiew Uoa —or Open Arms—project, a multi-faceted program which fights to get the Vietnamese villagers away from the Viet Cong and on the U. S. side, the sergeant was just awarded a Bronze Star Medal and Presidential Air Medal for "meritorious achievement while participating in sustained aerial flight, in support of combat ground forces in the Republic of Vietnam."

He had previously earned his flight wings and a combat infantryman's badge.

His latest citation reads:

"During the period of 9 October '68 to 9 November '68 he actively participated in more than 25 aerial missions over hostile territory in support of operations against communist aggression . . . he displayed the highest order of air discipline and acted in accordance with the best traditions of the service.

"By his determination to accomplish his mission, in spite of the hazards inherent in repeated aerial flights over hostile territory, and by his outstanding degree of professionalism and devotion to duty, he has brought credit upon himself, his organization, and the United States Army."

SGT. JOHN O'NEIL

He was honored at 6th Pysops headquarters at Bien Hoa on February 8.

Jack's family met him at Logan airport the night of last week's big storm.

Guidance

During the discussion period following the reports, Paul Del Rossi, attending his first regular meeting since his March 3 election, questioned both Mrs. Keville and Mr. Prior on present programs in the area of vocational counseling.

Mr. Del Rossi asked if anyone on the staff had a degree in vocational counseling and was told that a degree program in that field was not available.

English Composition

Following the guidance program report, Richard J. Sullivan, head of the English Department at the High School, spoke on the composition program in grades seven through 12.

He reported to the committee on the one-to-one counseling instituted this year in the English departments in both the junior highs and the high school.

Under this program, the English classes met four periods a week with the fifth class period left for scheduled individual pupil-teacher sessions. Through this program, the teachers meet with each child approximately once every 10 weeks to discuss composition work.

The program also involves some small group discussion of composition work with the students reading and criticizing the work of fellow students.

Slow Student

In the discussion that followed, Mr. Del Rossi questioned what was being done in the program for the slow student, since the group discussions centered around the above-average students. He questioned whether the individual conferences really were new to the English program.

Mr. Sullivan replied that this was the first year conferences had been a compulsory part of the English classes' schedule.

In other business, the School Committee heard reports on the response to the budget meeting for parents and also discussed the snow days.

Life Span Longer Now

Of the many young couples who will be getting married this year in Winchester, what proportion of them will live to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary?

The answer, based upon recent national studies, is—more than a third of them. The assumption that goes with it, of course, is that no divorce or annulment intervenes along the way. In that event, all bets are off.

The likelihood that both husband and wife will survive to mark that 50-year milestone is more than twice as favorable as it was for their grandparents, when they got married.

The improvement in the prospects for a longer life span is the result of spectacular achievements in the fields of health, biology and medicine during the last few decades.

Just what the chances are of a person's reaching the various landmark stages in life are detailed in the latest studies made by insurance statisticians and others.

For the average Winchester couple just getting married, where the bridegroom is 22 and the bride 19 (there are some 190 young men and 210 young women locally at those ages at present)—the odds are about seven out of 10 that both of them will be around in the year 2010 to make the bride's 60th birthday.

For their grandparents, the odds were only 5 out of 10 that they would reach that point.

The prospects of living to the retirement age of 65 are also greater than ever, the figures show.

Of the 200 young men in the local area who are now 18 and are going to work or into the armed forces or to college, the indications are that some 140 of them will reach 65.

At that point, their chances of living an additional 10 years are listed as better than six out of 10.

Of particular importance to a man are the first 30 years or so of married life, when there are likely to be dependent children in the family. It is a period of maximum economic responsibility.

For the 190 men in Winchester who have arrived at age 22 and are at the marrying stage, the statistics show that no less than 89 percent of them will be on hand to witness the marriage of their youngest children. This occurs, on the average, when the father is about 53 years old.

First Aid Course Starts March 27

A standard first aid course will be given by the Winchester Chapter of the American National Red Cross beginning Thursday, March 27.

Carlton Totman, instructor, will conduct the course on Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Red Cross Chapter House. They will continue through April 24.

To register for this first aid course call the Winchester Chapter, 729-2300. Registration will close Monday, March 24.

CONCERN

"The first was primarily concerned with marijuana, while the second had to do with the more harmful drugs such as Speed, LSD, and Heroin.

"The discussions have been so successful that they will soon be given to the ninth-grade students at Lynch and McCall Jr. High Schools.

"The ultimate goal of the Student Council is to educate the elementary school students, but in the meantime the committee will concentrate on the Junior High Schools level."

CONCERN adds a reminder this week that the series of programs entitled "Drugs: Use and Abuse" being presented by the Education Division of WGBH in cooperation with the 21-in. Classroom will begin on Monday, March 17, with an hour-long program for instructors. The broadcast will be repeated Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at 5 p.m.; and Monday and Thursday at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 44.

CONCERN feels that this is an excellent opportunity for all to acquaint themselves with the problem as our students see it, in as much as the programs are based on questions submitted by teenagers throughout the state, including Winchester.

Mass. Taxpayers Stand Against State Pay Raise

"Each state worker should be paid the going rate for his work—no more and no less," Massachusetts Taxpayers Foundation Executive Vice President Frank J. Zeo said when he recently testified before the General Court's Public Service Committee in favor of a proposed $41.6 million state employee's pay raise.

Mr. Zeo called the $88 million pay boost sought by the state employee's union "unrealistic and wasteful." He said the Foundation is opposed to it because state workers would then earn substantially more than they could earn for similar jobs outside.

Mr. Zoe said the Foundation recognizes the need to make state salaries fully competitive job-for-job with salaries outside the state service "but, with the state payroll increasing at a rate of more than $3 million per month, we must also consider the needs of the state, and the hard-pressed taxpayer."

He said the union's pay increase plan, which calls for 20 percent or $20 per week whichever is higher, is "unrelated either to consumer price levels or to pay rates in outside employment."

"Underpayment of our state workers—even with the job security and very liberal fringe benefits that the state offers—is as short-sighted and foolish a policy as the overpayments which the unions would impose on us," Mr. Zeo said. He said the Foundation believes that the bill filed for the Bureau of Personnel will bring about an adjustment of pay scales that will eliminate inequities and permit the state to compete for the talent needed to manage its billion dollar operation.

Mass CPA's Define Losses Which Count As Deductions

(This is one of a series of articles prepared by the Massachusetts Society of CPAs on money-saving tax "tips" in the preparation of the 1040 Federal Individual Income Tax Return.)

Did the rains last spring cause your cellar to flood and ruin the new playroom?

Was your wife's handbag and its contents, including $142 in cash, stolen while she was Christmas-shopping last December?

Damage to personal property by storms, floods, fires and other natural acts are known as casualty losses, as are losses due to theft. Damage to your auto is also considered a casualty loss unless the accident was caused by your own willful negligence.

On income tax returns due on or before April 15, you can deduct personal casualty losses and losses due to theft in excess of $100 which are not covered by insurance, according to George Brody, CPA, chairman of the Committee on Federal Taxation of the Massachusetts Society of CPAs.

Only the owner of the damaged or stolen property can claim the deduction. In the case of the stolen purse, you cannot claim the deduction in the event your wife files a separate return. In addition, you should also be able to prove that you actually suffered the loss (reported it to the police, for example) and be able to establish the amount of the loss (fair market value, cost of repairs, etc.).

Casualty and theft losses to business property which are not covered by insurance are deductible without regard to the $100 limitation.

Debts Differ

A bad debt must be claimed in the tax year or it becomes worthless. Gifts cannot be claimed as bad debts. Neither can loans to children, as the Internal Revenue Service says they must be considered gifts.

Non-business bad debts are deductible as short-term capital losses and should be reported in Schedule D and offset against short-term capital gains. These in turn are subject to the limitations on deductions for capital losses.

In the event a non-business bad debt is the only item reported in Schedule D, it can be deducted from reported income to a limit of $1,000. If it is more than $1,000, the excess can be carried over as a short-term loss on next year's return and the year following, if necessary, until it has been deducted in full.

Taxes Count

You can deduct most state and local taxes when you itemize your deductions. This includes payments withheld from wages for state or local income taxes, as well as payments made on estimated state and local income taxes during 1968.

State and local gasoline taxes can be deducted, as well as personal property and general sales taxes. Real estate taxes can be deducted only by the owner of the property.

Other items you can deduct include: dues to a union or professional society, the cost of tools and equipment needed in your job when furnished at your own expense, the fees paid to employment agencies for help in finding a new job.

You can also deduct the cost of professional courses and instruction needed to maintain or improve professional skills. You must have been employed or self-employed at the time the courses were taken and been able to meet the minimum standards of skill and proficiency required by your job or profession.

Salesmen who use their own cars for business and are not reimbursed by their employers for travel expenses can deduct ten cents a mile for the first 15,000 miles traveled and seven cents a mile after that. They should be prepared, however, to substantiate any deduction claimed with a detailed record of their actual business mileage during the year.

Living With Your Heart

Peter Bent Brigham Hospital

Angina (angina pectoris) is a recurring, distressing discomfort usually felt in the chest when the heart is called on to do more work.

Its symptoms—usually distinctive—sometimes are difficult to identify, making what you tell your doctor especially important to his diagnosis.

Angina pain has been described as a squeezing sensation, pressure, burning, tightness, heaviness, oppression. Usually felt behind the breastbone, it sometimes spreads to arms, neck, jaws or upper back.

It's important to remember not all chest pain is due to angina. It could be simple heartburn or indigestion. Only your doctor can tell.

Physical effort—walking up an incline or hurrying for a bus—can produce anginal discomfort. Emotional upsets, a heavy meal, bracing a brisk wind can bring it on. Ironically, it can come, too, when you're lying in bed.

Study has shown in a majority of cases of angina the coronary arteries have been affected by atherosclerosis (hardening of the arteries).

The heart pumps blood through the arteries, nourishing and bringing oxygen to the body cells. To do this, it must have a continuous flow of blood through its own network of arteries, the coronary arteries.

In atherosclerosis inner linings of the arteries become thickened and roughened by fatty deposits such as cholesterol, narrowing the passageway and interfering with blood flow.

Angina can come from other things besides atherosclerosis. Many people have angina, but do not have any currently recognizable forms of organic disease.

Between 15 and 20 percent of my patients, when studied by angiography, (visualization of the blood vessels of the heart, a means of determining presence of atherosclerosis) exhibit perfect blood vessels.

FBI's Report Says Crime Rise UP 17% In 1968

Serious crime in the United States increased 17 percent in 1968 when compared with 1967 according to figures made available today through the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports and released by Attorney General John N. Mitchell.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said all Crime Index offenses registered substantial increases in volume. Crimes of violence were up 19 percent, led by robbery up 29 percent, murder and forcible rape up 14 percent each, and aggravated assault up 12 percent. The crimes against property rose by 17 percent as a group. Individually, larceny $50 and over in value rose 21 percent, auto theft up 18 percent, and burglary was up 13 percent.

Mr. Hoover stated crime increases were reported by all city population groups, with the sharpest change in volume noted in the large core cities 250,000 and over in population up 18 percent. The suburban areas recorded an overall increase of 18 percent, while the rural areas were up 12 percent in volume.

The crime increases, according to Mr. Hoover, were constant throughout the United States. The North Central States had an overall increase of 13 percent, the Southern States 16 percent increase, the Western States 18 percent increase, while the heavily populated Northeastern States recorded an average increase of 21 percent.

The FBI Director noted that the violent crime of armed robbery had a sharp upswing of 34 percent and armed robbery made up 61 percent of all robbery offenses. Serious assaults where a gun was used as the weapon rose 24 percent and nearly one out of every four aggravated assaults was committed with a gun.

The figures released by the FBI disclose that in 1968 police arrests for all criminal acts, excluding traffic offenses, increased 4 percent. Arrests of adults rose 3 percent, while arrests of juveniles continued to climb in 1968 with an 11 percent rise.

Final crime figures and crime rates per unit of population will be available in the detailed annual Uniform Crime Reports scheduled for release in the Summer of 1969.

DPW: Facing The Hard Facts?

The concept of a Department of Public Works will be before the Town Meeting tonight or Monday and we can think of few things on the warrant which deserve a more full and dispassionate discussion.

Under article 9, the Town Government Study Committee (created by the 1968 Town Meeting) will ask the Town Meeting to vote to authorize the Selectmen to file a petition with the General Court to establish a Public Works Department.

"The Town Government Committee. . .feels that Winchester has reached the point now where a (DPW) will give the citizens of the town a more responsive and efficient operation," concluded the TGSC's report, published in the Star of January 23.

"You have to keep restructuring government," said Moderator Harrison Chadwick in support of DPW before the Selectmen in January. He pointed to the effectiveness of DPW in several surrounding towns and noted, "It's hard to see how anyone can feel you won't gain in strength by (this). . ."

Chairman of Study Committee, former Selectmen's chairman and business executive Robert Armstrong, has led the push for DPW, emphasizing efficency in planning, economy in purchasing and best use of personnel.

The plan asks the new department include the departments of Highway, Sanitation, Forestry, Water and Sewer, Cemetery, Park, and the custodians of the Town Hall.

It would put the Board of Selectmen to serve as the advisory board of Public Works. It would appoint a director of Public Works. It would dictate that the Town's labor force in these combined departments be reduced only by attrition.

The study group's report reviewed the history of the development of the Town's multiple boards, noting, "As these services developed, Town Meetings often created a new entity to assume the responsibility. . ."

Results, contend DPW proponents, make for duplication of purchasing and lack of coordination of effort. They reflect an approach to government which leaves much to be desired when compared to that of any business of comparable—or nearly a million and a half, budget.

Publicly opposing the DPW are the commissioners of Cemetery, Park and Water and Sewer Departments who call the "alleged benefits" accruing therefrom "illusory" and who point to the multiple citizen involvement in the separate boards and the continuity which exists in many as arguments in favor of retaining the structure as is.

Whereas the pro-DPW persons cite the fact that presently there are two departments (sometimes more) planting grass, two digging up the streets and four purchasing; the anti-DPWer points out that "a meter reader in one (department. . .) could not necessarily be expected to operate a snow plow."

The Town is growing by leaps and bounds. Its services and budgets increase rapidly month by month. So far, it has had a history of good return for the money.

Unless some more telling arguments are presented against what appears to be a logical restructuring in the name of better government, practical centralization and less expenditure, we would hope to see Winchester accept the cold, hard facts of growth and go for the change, albeit reluctantly.

The Legislators

Called by the Town Clerk, Precinct III Town Meeting Members vote tonight to resolve the 11th place tie vote between 75-year-old Lowell Smith, elected last week to a fourth consecutive five-year term on the Cemetery Commission and 48-year old Robert Danley, who has lived in town for a relatively short time.

Aside from its inherent interest, the vote on the tie points up the responsibility of precinct leaders in other instances where a resignation or death dictates a replacement. For the most part the precincts have a good reputation for proper procedure and adequate consideration of persons who have shown their interest by getting nominations and running for office. There have been cases reported, however, wherein some very cavalier treatment has been given defeated nominees.

As Winchester's business gets bigger, its governing process must constantly improve. Particularly as its administration becomes more centralized, must its town-wide legislators be strong, articulate, diverse and faithful in attendance to give true representation.

Starred by the Star:

Use Experience, Involve Public Is Exhortation Of Dudley Kimball

Editor of the Star:

For more than 15 years I have expounded the idea that the greatest weakness in Winchester government was the unwritten rule that no finance committeeman will be reappointed and no selectman will run for reelection. It was gratifying to see such an impressive roster of former selectmen endorse the idea that experience is a virtue.

The voters also have overwhelmingly agreed to the idea the first time they have had the opportunity. It surely follows that those responsible for the appointive office of finance committee will read into this a mandate to reappoint or draft former members to add experience to that most important body. Appointment of a full complement of new faces would be a disastrous setback to the concept that experienced people is our greatest need in these trying days. The Moderator, chairman of the Selectmen and chairman of the Finance Committee have this responsibility. To them the voters have, by implication, assigned the task of selecting the best available experienced people to serve again. None has denied that a member of the Finance Committee reaches his full effectiveness only in the last year of his three-year term.

I cite many other signs of progress. No longer is the Finance Committee an echo of the Selectmen. No longer do we have a "rubber stamp" Town Meeting. More members seem to study and understand the warrant articles. They do more independent thinking. Nor do they seem to worry quite so much about controversial standing votes. In my day, too many members really didn't understand some articles. That posed the problem of how unobtrusively to vote on the winning side, as that seemed more important than to decide which position was correct.

We began to publish attendance figures, whereupon many members of long standing who never went to Town Meeting suddenly decided not to run again. The one big step needed is for the citizens to know the voting record of their representatives. We could then quickly really obtain what we call representative government. Maybe that will come. . . .

Reducing the time spent in town meetings is a challenge for all. Greater experience through longer service on the part of members of the Finance and the Selectmen's office should help. I would also welcome the practice of having various members of the Board of Selectmen take part in handling some of the articles. Besides the general knowledge which they have, each could have a bit of expertise in a fewer areas, which should be beneficial to the town.

The school budget about which we all mutter but do little to grasp, since we have been powerless to influence it, seems to invite open discussion this year. The School Committee wants to climb from its ivory tower and seeks a consensus. We have not seized the opportunity. Perhaps we do not think it is for real. . . .

Now that it has started, the School Committee should continue its efforts to involve the public, disappointing as its first efforts have been. If its approach continues, the relationship should improve, and what the majority wants for its school system will be reflected in the budget. We are faced with an impossible task of reconciling a huge capital budget with an expanding and improving operating program. Any compromise is bound to mean a bigger budget regardless—how much bigger will at least be by a more widespread intelligent appraisal.

Public participation in problems of curriculum and other operating facets of our school program seems to rest in a Citizens Advisory Committee. This like Topsy, seems to have just grown. I visualize that it might be restructured to insure that it properly represents various points of view. It must avoid being a sounding board for the School Committee. It could well make independent reports more frequently and be the balance wheel of public opinion.

In conclusion, we have had progress, but more on the order of too little too late. Many problems had been postponed just because Selectmen passed on their problems to their successors, as they knew they wouldn't be on hand to help solve them. Further delay on the part of the inexperienced newcomers to face up to them just meant further postponement and higher costs.

Let us continue to put our house in order, for even the most complacent of our electorate are beginning to realize what it has and can continue to cost to be indifferent.

Sincerely,
Dudley F. Kimball

Ups And Downs Of Town Out-Go, State Income

BAD NEWS might be the title of this photo showing Winchester's budget rise over the past nine years (top) and the State returns to the community — or cherry sheet figures below, with the estimated sharp drop in the latter coming up this year. Certified Public Accountants Clarify Charitable Deduction Rules Of IRS

(This is the second of a series of articles prepared by the Massachusetts Society of CPAs on money-saving tax "tips" in the preparation of the 1040 Federal Individual Income Tax Return.)

Are you claiming a charitable deduction on your Federal income tax return for that portrait of "Uncle Leo, the General," which you donated to the State historical society in 1968?

Then you should know that the Internal Revnue Service has tightened up its procedures for establishing the fair-market value of art objects for which such deductions are claimed, according to Robert Boyer, CPA, president of the Massachusetts Society of CPAs.

The IRS now requires a description of the donated work of art, how it was acquired, cost, proof of authenticity, and a signed appraisal, if any, in all cases of donations worth more than $200.

In general, you can deduct up to 20 percent (30 percent in many instances) of your adjusted gross income for contributions to qualified charities. Be prepared, however, to verify such contributions in the event you are called in for an audit of your return. In addition to the expert's appraisal mentioned above, cancelled checks, money-order stubs, receipts, etc. will do fine.

Facts On Charity

The IRS has now announced, official policy on what it will allow for charitable contributions in the event you are unable to substantiate the fact that they were made in the amounts claimed. In the past, however, it has been known in certain districts to attempt to limit charitable contributions which a taxpayer cannot substantiate to $78 a year ($1 a week for church donations and 50 cents a week for miscellaneous charities.)

Your chariatble contributions must have been made either in money or property. Stocks purchased for $200, for example, but worth $600 when donated to your church building fund last year, are claimed as a $600 donation.

Contributions must be claimed for the year in which they were made. A $10 charitable donation made by check and mailed as late as last December 31, should be claimed on your return due on or before April 15, even though it did not clear your bank until January 5.

You cannot deduct contributions to friends and relatives, political organizations or candidates in 1968, social clubs, labor organizations and chambers of commerce.

No Blood Count

The market value of blood donated to the Red Cross or a hospital blood bank is not deductible. Neither is the value of the time or service given voluntarily to a charitable organization or agency.

You can, however, deduct out-of-pocket expenses in donating such services. For example, if you regularly drove volunteer donors to a Red Cross blood bank in your car, you can deduct a mileage fee of five cents a mile as a charitable contribution. Reasonable expenses for meals and lodging while away from home on volunteer service for a charitable organization are also deductible.

Tuition paid to a parochial school for your child's education is not deductible as a contribution to a religious organization. It is a personal, non-deductible, living expense, according to IRS.

Contributions to a nonprofit cemetery, where the funds are irrevocably dedicated to the perpetual care and maintenance of the cemetery as a whole, are deductible care of a particular grave, crypt ble. Not so contributions for the or burial plot, however.

In certain instances, to cover donations to charities receiving their support from the general public, such as churches, tax-exempt educational institutions and hospitals, medical research facilities, and college endowment organizations, as much as 30 percent of your adjusted income can be claimed as a charitable deduction.

Carry-over

In the event your contribution took you above the 30 percent ceiling, you are entitled to carry over the excess as a deduction on your return for the 1969 tax year. It would well be worthwhile, however, to consult your local Internal Revenue office, a CPA or other qualified tax authority on the proper procedure for filing this year's return.

This carry-over privilege, which can be spread over the next five years, applies only to contributions to organizations and institutions supported by the general public. It does not cover contributions made to most private foundations.

(Next: How to make the most of your medical deductions. Again this year, the Massachusetts Society of CPAs will sponsor its Dial A Tax Expert program. On week nights between March 10 and 28, you will be able to telephone questions on your personal income tax to a society-operated center in Boston, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Watch the newspapers for other details, including telephone numbers.)

THE WINDING STAIR

by Jane Aiken Hodge

This is the time of year, what with shovelling snow, making out income tax returns, taking exams and all the other vexations of late winter, that a good melodramatic adventure story is just what is needed. The Winding Stair by Jane Aiken Hodge is just such a tale.

Juana Brett is a half-English, half-Portuguese young lady living in the early nineteenth century. She is miserable because she has been uprooted from warm, sunny Portugal, where she only now realizes how happy she was, and brought to England to live with her father and his new wife and her two pretty daughters. She dislikes the cold, damp, English climate. Her stepmother is shrewish and her father a weakling who cannot or will not stand up for her. Her stepsisters are pink and white doll-like creatures who, she feels, contrast to their advantage to her tall figure and dark strong features. Her worst cross is that she stammers when she speaks English.

It is at this point that the mysterious Gair Varlow enters her life and changes it completely. It is through his intervention, although she does not at the time realize it, that she returns to Portugal and the romantic castle on the rock where her despotic Grandmother Brett rules her descendents with an autocratic hand. The family consists of Juana's mad Aunt Elvira, Uncle Prospero and Uncle Miguel, who is a suspicously impious priest. Besides there are two young cousins, Robert and Peter, rather foppish young men attached to the Portuguese court. Juana finds to her surprise that now she must call them Roberto and Pedro, stressing the Portuguese side of the family and playing down the English.

Although Portugal and England had long been friends and traditional allies, conditions were beginning to change in the beginning of the 1800's. Napoleon was rapidly swallowing up Europe. England, fighting a war of survival, had hoped to organize Portugal's resistance to French demands. The Portuguese royal family, the House of Braganza which at the time consisted of the quite insane Queen Maria, who was kept locked up, her not very intelligent son, Dom John, who ruled in her stead as Prince Regent, and his Spanish wife, Carlota Joaquina, who despised him and openly plotted against him, was not a rallying point for Portuguese patriots. The government was weakened with indifference, incompetence and downright treachery.

It was against this background that Juana Brett found herself assisting her grandmother as a secret agent for England along with Gair Varlow, who had unaccountably turned up in the vicinity. Unwillingly she had fallen in love with him. Her reluctance is understandable considering his unblushing pretense of courting her in order to pass on secret information. This was the only way a man could have even a slight chance of privacy with an unmarried young woman, and according to the strict rules of etiquette of the time even this was frowned upon.

Juana's life became even more complex when a handsome young cousin appeared unexpectedly and fell madly in love with her. Through him she was given a terrifying glimpse of what was in store for her as her aging grandmother became less and less able to handle the burdens of being an undercover agent.

There is plenty of excitement in this story, enough love interest for the romanticist, and a smattering of history. Altogether it is suitable for a leisurely evening at home when you are snowed in.

Mrs. Brink Notes Inadequacies Of LWV Candidates

Editor of the Star:

I enclose for reprint a copy of a letter sent recently to Mrs. Richard Thuma, chairman of the Voters' Service group of the League of Women Voters.

"Dear Mrs. Thuma,

"Since the League of Women Voters is dedicated to providing non-partisan voters service, may I suggest ways in which I believe this service could be improved?

"When planning next year's Candidates' Night, could the date be set far enough in advance of the election so an alternate "storm date" could be designated? Many citizens in town were astonished that Candidates' Night of February 25 had not been re-scheduled, since many town streets were still unplowed, and since we had all been urged to avoid all except the most critical travel. It is interesting to surmise how different results of the 1969 election might have been had more voters had the opportunity to see and hear the candidates and ask questions of them.

"Another suggestion is that the Star publish the answers to the League's question to candidates for Town Meeting concerning what the candidate wished to tell the voters in his precinct about himself. Those answers from candidates for town-wide offices, i.e. Selectmen, School Committee, etc., were printed in the Star. However, Town Meeting members answers were distributed only at the poorly attended Candidates' Night I think it was planned to have the mimeographed sheets distributed to homes in town by Girl Scouts, but because of the extreme problem of snow this was not done. At least no distribution was made in my neighborhood. It seems that the Star should print the answers from the candidates for Town Meeting as a public service.

"It is very important that the League and the Star provide complete and impartial information to the voters. Only if we have an informed citizenry can we have truly effective town government.

Sincerely,
(Mrs.) Mary M. Brink
33 Samoset Road"

(Ed. note: the Star concurs heartily with the writer's suggestion that the League of Women Voters non-partisan voters service try in the future to schedule Candidates' Night so that there is at least one day left for a postponement. It notes, that the paper's report of the meeting would have been entirely precluded had it been postponed this year. It was an effort to get there, but worth it for those who went, and again we publicly commend the efforts of WHSR-FM to increase the coverage.

As related to Town Meeting member questionnaires, the decision not to print them in 1969 was that of the paper, not the LWV, and was the result of multiple complaints in prior years from candidates whose information did not make the deadline, etc., and to criticism of "unfair" treatment for this reason and others. The members' questions and answers were available at the Candidates' Night but the primary distribution was door to door in the precincts and reports indicate that a good percentage of the homes were covered.)

Wants Recording For Signals On No School

Editor of the Star:

In the event of a snowstorm, the citizens of Winchester are told not to call either the Police Department or the Fire Department about school cancellations. This I can see as a safety precaution. We are told to listen to the radio.

Why, then, is Winchester always the last school to phone in the message? We are either kept up until 11 p.m. listening to repeats from all our neighboring towns, or we are forced to wake up at 6:45 a.m. in order to hear the fire horn.

Is the Winchester School Department unable to determine snow conditions until after the rest of the county have made their decisions?

One way to solve all these problems is to have a phone number that can be called in the event of an emergency, telling whether or not there will be school.

Sincerely,
Jon Suneson
10 Blossom Hill Road

Only signed letters will be considered for publication in the Star. On rare occasions however, and to avert what might be damaging personal repercussions, the Star will, on request withhold the submitted name.

DEADLINE: Monday, 5 p.m.

All letters must be typed and double spaced for consideration.

Newcomer Is Grateful

Editor of the Star:

My expression of gratitude to the voters of Winchester for having elected me Library Trustee on March 3 has purposefully been delayed one week. To be honest, I had to wait until I could read the results in black and white in the March issue of the Star to believe that it had really happened. In voting me into office the people of Winchester destroyed the myth that a newcomer cannot expect to be given the opportunity to serve the town. In the finest tradition of competitive American politics my fellow Winchesterites showed their willingness to judge me as an individual on the basis of the campaign which I took to the public.

The experiences of the campaign increased my knwoledge and understanding of Winchester. Whether I had won or lost, my life would have been richer because of the many wonderful people that I had the chance to meet. I am grateful to the League of Women Voters, the high school students staffing radio station WHSR and the Winchester Star, all of whom made it possible for the public to be informed of the issues and candidates involved in the election. Most of all I am grateful to the 2786 citizens, whether they voted for me or not, who did not let miserable weather deter them from getting to the polls. This democratic participation is the essence of town government.

Sincerely yours,
Edward F. O'Connell

Teenagers: Credit Side Of The Ledger

Editor of the Star:

When so many of the older generation are critical of today's teenagers, I am taking this opportunity to rise to their defense—for the following personal reason:

Listening to a radio station—W.B.Z. this past Wednesday evening, I heard an announcement: "If folks are unable to obtain help to shovel out walks or driveways in Winchester, (etc.) they may call 729-9882 and obtain help."

I called, and a Steve Boodakian answered. He sounded rather young—but what he said, I shall never forget.

He advised me that this offer was in connection with the 50th Anniversary of the Winchester Chapter of the DeMolay—Even tho the hour was late, five boys, Steve Boodakian, David Olson, Ralph Parson, Bruce Finethy and Harry TenHeusen drove to 95 Beverly Road Arlington and did an excellent job on our driveway. They left a note: "Compliments of Winchester DeMolay."

So, Winchester citizens, you can understand why we are all for this upcoming generation. We are also sending a small contribution to their Chapter.

Just a small way to express our Thanks to five wonderful boys.

Margaret L. McCarthy

Pat-On-Back For WHSR-FM

Editor of the Star:

I should like to commend all the High School students on the staff of the Winchester Student Radio Station WHSR-FM who did such an outstanding job of covering the town wide elections on Monday, March 3rd.

They had an up-to-minute running account of the votes as they came in from each precinct, while news Director Chris Barlow and Winona DiNitto along with station managers Brian MacDonald and Sara Dillon, lined up interesting interviews with many of the victorious candidates who braved the snowstorm to stop by the High School radio station.

I understand that Town Meetings and High School sports events are broadcast by WHSR-FM in addition to their regular schedule of music and news on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons from 3 to 6:30 p.m.

The "Wake - Up Winchester" Show, conducted by Chris Barlow from 6:45 to 8:00 a.m. Monday through Friday is worth tuning in, for the latest news and weather and lots of good music. Brian MacDonald takes over the show from 8 to 9.

These hard-working young people devote many out of school hours to the demanding routine of running a successful radio station, and deserve your support and encouragement, so tune in to WHSR-FM, 91.9 Mc. whenever you can!

Yours truly,
Mrs. Mac Carter Adams
5 Myopia Hill Road

Asks 'No' Vote

Editor of the Star:

May we take advantage of your columns to ask all Town Meeting members to vote 'no' on Article 30 of the March 13th Warrant? This article would authorize the Elementary School Building Committee to purchase, or take by eminent domain, one third of our residential property, as well as that of several other residents.

From the point of view of the general public interest this may be a sound proposal or it may not; but no one from the School Committee, the Planning Board, the Selectmen, or other agency had ever suggested to us that such a thing was contemplated until we read it in the Warrant one evening last week. We still know no details whatsoever, for instance does the scheme involve land alone or will we also lose our house?

Such a manner of proceeding seems to us one which all residents have an equal stake in rejecting. Thus, whatever Town Meeting members' ultimate judgments may be about the wisdom of the proposals, we urge a negative vote until such time as the Elementary School Building Committee outlines, the long range plan of which this land taking is a part, and gives all concerned a chance to consider and discuss it.

Sincerely yours,
Edward L. Pattullo
48 Fletcher Street

Mr. Del Rossi Welcomes Advice

Editor of thet Star:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my thanks to those individuals who worked in my behalf during the recent School Committee election. I would also like to thank those hardy voters who managed to vote on Election Day despite the inclement weather.

During the course of the campaign, many concerned citizens expresed their feelings to me as a candidate. Now, as an elected School Committeeman, I would hope that they and all other individuals might continue to offer their suggestions and advice.

Finally, I would like to thank the other candidates, Mr. Lawrance, Mr. Carroll, Mr. Whitten, and Mr. Kline for offering the people of Winchester an excellent choice of individuals for the School Committee.

Sincerely,
Paul R. Del Rossi

No Greater Glory

Editor of the Star:

It is with a heavy heart and filled with emotion that we wish to express our thanks and gratitude for the wonderful sympathy cards and prayers that are being offered in memory of our son, Ronald.

We should pause a moment to remember that in a foreign land today, young men, regardless of race or creed, are laying down their lives for a cause in which they believe, as our son has done. Regardless of race, color, or creed.

No greater glory can come to any parents of servicemen, knowing that our men prove a lasting credit to their country, their church, their family, and especially to themselves.

Gratefully yours,
Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Zenga Sr. and Family
209 Cambridge Street

Good Example?

Editor of the Star:

Unfortunately for a local family last week a beautiful mongrel dog was hit on Pond Street.

The adult driver of the car continued at a high rate of speed and didn't even stop to see whether or not the dog was badly injured.

The young people of the neighborhood were concerned and remarked about how the man behaved. (Sadly enough, many pets have met their doom between Norfolk and Woodside Roads.)

The next morning a young man heading for Lynch Junior High came to the door and asked me to call the police and report a dead dog on the sidewalk. (He also went to the trouble to get the license number on the dog's tag.)

This young man lived up to his responsibilities—Why couldn't the driver have done the same?

Hills are traffic traps when the roads are slick because of ice and snow, according to Chief of Police Joseph J. Derro and the International Assn. of Chiefs of Police. "Pace yourself with other traffic so you can get up enough momentum to carry you to the top of the hill without stopping if possible," advises Chief Derro. "But ease-up as you get to the crest and before you start on the downgrade. There may be stalled or skidding cars ahead."

Welcome To Winchester

THE REVEREND JACK DANIEL ZOERHEIDE was welcomed to the Unitarian Parish Sunday at a reception held subsequent to a parish vote to name him its eleventh minister. Mr. Zoerheide will take over the pulpit on September 1, the date that the resignation of Dr. Robert A. Storer becomes effective. Shown to his left is Mrs. Zoerheide. Going through the line are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Roberts. To the rear is Pulpit Committee chairman, Thornton Stearns. (Ryerson photo)

Pastor

In a report to the parish this Committee noted they had interviewed 30 candidates of 50 who had been considered, and had listened to 12 men preach.

In addition they had sought the guidance of the parish through a series of 18 meetings set up for the purpose.

The incoming pastor for the old stone church at the corner of Main Street and Mystic Valley has been president of the New England Unitarian Universalist Ministers Association and president of the New England Unitarian Ministers Association as well as a member of the Unitarian Universalist Committee on Aging.

He is a recipient of the Boston Brotherhood award of the National Conference of Christians and Jews; and among many other community leadership roles, he helped to found the Greater Boston Chapter of the Unitarian Fellowship for Social Justice and the Needham Fair Housing and Civil Rights Committee.

He has also served the board of the Needham Red Cross and of the Roxbury Project Committee.

Area Youth Leader

In youth-oriented activities the Reverend Mr. Zoerheide has been on the Liberal Religious Youth Activities Committee; a founding member of the Needham Drop-In Center; a scoutmaster in Boston and youth leader in the North End's Settlement House.

The new church leader is married and the father of five children and will move into the parish house at 33 Glen Road on September 1.

He was born 44 years ago in Michigan and attended Western Michigan University, which he left to join the Navy in 1943.

After serving in both the Atlantic and Pacific theatres of World War II, he enrolled in the Harvard Divinity School and was graduated in 1950 with an S.T.B. degree. While studying, he was student assistant minister of the Arlington Street Church.

Mr. Zierheide preached here for the second consecutive Sunday this week. A reception was held for him after the service.

Dr. Storer Community Leader

The retiring minister is well known throughout the town for his broad commitment to the whole community. He has been a leader and is a past chairman of the Winchester Ecumenical Council.

Dr. Storer, a bachelor, came here from the First Parish in Dorchester September 1, 1950.

A recipient of an honorary doctor of divinity from Tufts in 1961, he strengthened the religious education program within the local Unitarian Church and himself taught high school Bible classes. The church school now enrolls about 300 students.

To accommodate church school and other activities, Dr. Storer led his parish to enlarge church building facilities. The Metcalf Hall wing was reconstructed in 1958 after a lay committee, without professional assistance, raised $120,000.

In 1952 the Players group was reinstituted, due to Dr. Storer's interest in the theatre. The players have prospered. Dr. Storer, an accomplished actor, has directed many productions himself.

A pioneer in the sacred dance, the retiring pastor organized and directed the Motion Choir and gave interdenominational impetus to this art in the Boston area.

In 19 years the budget has increased from about $30,000 to $70,000. In 1950 the Permanent Funds stood at $81,000, with a debt, due to necessary building renovation, of $33,000. In 1969 the debt is cleared and the book value of the Permanent Fund is $203,000.

Dr. Storer plans to travel for a year and then return to live in the area.

Committee

The Pulpit Committee, which recommended Dr. Storer's successor, included, in addition to its chairman, Thornton Stears, Warren Breckenridge, Mrs. Herbert Jaffe, Herman Meissner, Henry Perry, Mrs. William Spaulding and Mrs. Sears Walker. Serving as alternates were Edward Barker, Ernest Dieterich and Mrs. George Kimball.

Ice Rink

Possible sites chosen by the committee include at the new high school on Shore Road; behind the Knights of Columbus Hall and adjacent to the Town parking lot, or on Manchester Field.

If the rink is constructed on school property, the committee suggests the School Department should have control and responsibility for it. If, however, it is constructed elsewhere the committee suggests it be placed under the jurisdiction of the Recreation Committee.

Besides Chairman Kimball, the committee includes Arthur F. Carr, William W. Cruwys, Barbara L. Joslin and James J. Russo.

Vocational

"The additional aid to the 12 participating cities and towns is authorized under Chapter 719 of the General Laws. The amount each community will receive this year, for the first time, represents 15 per cent over the state's Chapter 70 reimbursement or school aid, as it is commonly called.

"Winchester's Chapter 70 entitlement is $390,225.60 so that the additional aid under Chapter 719 will entitle the town to a new total of $448,885.86 which may be used in reducing local costs.

"This additional windfall, which comes directly to the local communities participating in the regional school project, is separate from the 40 per cent state reimbursement for construction costs, and the state's 50 per cent share of the operating costs of the school.

"Even more aid is forthcoming from the state, according to Moschella, in the form of 100 per cent reimbursement for transportation of students, as well as federal assistance towards project plainning costs, construction and equipment. . ."

Medicaid

Also on the list of those eligible for medical assistance here are 85 persons over 65 years of age and 12 receiving disability assistance.

No cases presently on the eligibility list will be eliminated, according to Mr. Supple. Assistance each month, however, will be less, since the new method of figuring available income will lessen the amount Medicaid will pay on medical bills.

The Medicaid program, however, as it stands now can be a "mecca for dishonest people," according to Mr. Supple.

In many cases, the opportunity for dishonesty in obtaining Medicaid funds comes in the application procedure. The form requires the applicant to state income and resources; however, the Welfare officials may not check the information without permission of the applicant.

If Welfare officials question the validity of the figures, and the applicant will not give permission for the figures to be checked, the only recourse for the Welfare officials would be to declare the applicant ineligible, according to Mr. Supple.

Effect Of Cutback

The amount of medical assistance in Winchester can be cut without hurting those who really need the aid, Mr. Supple said.

The Medicaid program is presently designed to assist in meeting the medical bills of those people who have a steady income but whose wages are not sufficient completely to meet medical expenses.

For those eligible for the program, Medicaid assists meeting medical bills which the applicant is unable to pay in a given month.

Professional people, including doctors, nurses, dentists and druggists, are paid directly by Medicaid according to a fee schedule established by Medicaid with help from an advisory committee of medical people.

The fee schedule allows Medicaid to pay $5 per office visit for a general practitioner and $7 per office visit for a specialist; $7 per home visit for a G. P. and $10 for a specialist. If the general practitioner's regular office fee is $9 a visit, the person on Medicaid must pay the difference between the amount paid by Medicaid and the amount of the fee charged. Consequently, it is difficult for a professional to charge an exorbitant fee with the feeling "Medicaid will pick up the tab."

Some Problems

In Winchester, according to Mr. Supple, some problems have arisen with doctors who refuse to send bills directly to the Welfare Office rather than to the patient. The Welfare Office pays the bills directly to the doctor without going through the patient.

Since the Winchester Welfare office is small, its staff is able to audit every bill received for services rendered to patients on Medicaid. This is not possible in larger cities because the large number of accounts handled and only spot checks on the bills are run by such cities as Medford, Boston and Somerville.

Earlier reports of the Welfare scandal in Boston could have been the result of people taking advantage of this spot-check procedure, Mr. Supple said.

Commenting on the study of Welfare programs called for by State Senator Beryl Cohen of Brookline, Mr. Supple said the Commonwealth should have looked at the program in terms of cost more carefully before it was begun.

Sgt. O'Neil

With his parents were his sister Janice, 18, a freshman at Fitchburg State, his brothers, Bob, 16, a WHS sophomore, and Steve, 12, at St. Mary's.

Jack himself was born in Everett Christmas Day, 1948, and moved here when he was four. He went through St. Mary's, for a year at McCall, and through the High School.

He was graduated June 11, 1967, and enlisted and off to train at Fort Dix on June 19. For his training in the specialized psycho warfare work, he was at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, seven months.

He reached Vietnam May 21, 1968. And since, as a soldier in an air mobile unit, he has been all over the country—from Saigon to the DMZ. His promotion from Specialist 4 to sergeant was given him just a month ago.

Choppers, Pilots Are 'Fantastic'

"They're fantastic," says Sgt. O'Neil of the U. S. helicopter pilots who have carried him into many a tight spot and out again.

The Chieu Hoi (Open Arms) has been set up by the Vietnamese Government and is directed both at the Viet Cong and NVA fighters.

"Our job is to give them an invitation to come over . . . and when we go in by chopper, often at night, we'll come down in to from 500 to 800 feet with all our noisemakers going and then broadcast from our loudspeaker units . . . the system can be heard from 1,200 to 2,000 feet—it's very effective."

When going in by air the sergeant's units drop leaflets—maybe 270,000 a drop. And if fired on, they'll get out as fast as possible. this is where the Winchester soldier's appreciation of the chopper pilots developed.

"A lot of them are very young," says the 20-year-old "They treat the choppers like hot rods—have Snoopy drawings and flowers all over them and on their helmets. . . They'll go in anywhere to get somebody in trouble. . .They really have guts. . .The choppers are as reliable as their drivers.

When on ground maneuvers, Sgt. O'Neil gets closer to the natives and likes them very much. He admires the way the U. S. military is striving to take care of the civilians in its care and feels very close to the children especially.

"We bathed her and made her a dress out of an old T shirt," he related of a seven-year-old girl found with her young mother as a VC captive when his unit took over a base area.

"She'd never seen a G. I.—but she clung to me all day and wouldn't let me go. . .They're a very emotional people."

On His Metal As English Teacher

—One time Jack ran into a priest who talked him into helping for a month or two with teaching some children.

His experience led him to know how bright are some of the young South Vietnamese. "They caught on quicker than you'd believe—and would ask me questions I had to work to answer."

Red Letter Day

A high point for Jack was the day he was riding back into Quan Loi after a patrol operation.

He looked up, and there crossing the street on crutches was WHS classmate Dan McGee.

"I couldn't believe it. . .it was fantastic. . .we nearly went crazy." said Jack who had a whole day to spend with his former class president, neighbor and childhood friend, who was on crutches only

The sergeant is an admirer of because of a fall.
how the military is managing things in Vietnam. After catching up on the home front, he expects to go right back into action.

Museum Visits Now Must Be Reserved

Children from Winchester will no longer have to stand in line at the Children's Museum, Route 1, the Jamaicaway, Boston, because the Museum is the first in the country to organize a reservation system for its visitors

The new visitor center with its numerous innovations has been so popular since the opening in October and has attracted such large crowds that a reservation system became necessary.

The Museum is open to the public by reservation only on weekends, Boston public school holidays and vacations from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Reservations may be made up to two weeks in advance by calling 522-4800.

The U.S. Army flag, for higher echelons of command, and the Army field flag, for lower echelon organizations, are symbolic of the Army as a whole. The former is white with yellow fringe and the Department of the Army seal in the center in ultramarine blue; the latter is blue with the seal in white.

ABM

Any Difference?

Challenging the group, Prof. Bottome said, "By 1975 China will have 25 ICBM's (intercontinental ballistic missiles). Does anyone here think they will be so irrational as to drop one? And if they did, would our ABM make any difference?"

Prof. Bottome, also told the group, "We are going to have to learn to live with the Chinese as a major thermonuclear power."

Dr. Patrick J. Friel, vice-president of Block Engineering, Cambridge, and former deputy assistant secretary of the Army for Ballistic Missile Defense, speaking in favor of a "thin, thin" ABM system, cited four possibilities in the area of defense against China.

The areas include defending ourselves by massive attack (bombing); by using counterforce (sending out our own missiles); by having a limited defense against their missiles (ABM); or by doing nothing.

If the U. S. and the Soviet Union both built a limited defense system, it would make it prohibitively expensive for countries with less resources to enter the thermonuclear club, Dr. Friel said.

Advocates Limited Defense

Te told the group he believes there are good reasons for a limited defense system, but the ABM at present is too complex to use in such a system.

Dr. Friel would advocate simplifying the present ABM by changing the missiles slightly, to provide a thin defense against such countries as China.

The system could then be located in the central United States away from the population centers. This would defend against small forces; the others would take something else, he added.

"It's a little hard to know how to oppose the system, "Prof. George W. Rathgens of MIT said.

The former deputy director of the Advanced Research, Projects Agency and the former director of the Systems Evaluation Division of the Institute for Defense Analysis, Prof. Rathjens feels the government should not go ahead with the ABM project.

Knowing how to oppose the ABM is difficult, he said, because no one has a concrete idea what it's to be used for.

The government's ideas for its use have included defense against China; defense against Russia, which it couldn't provide; and defense of our own Minuteman missiles in the Midwest, according to Prof. Rathjens.

His technical arguments were that even the Chinese could render the system useless; with decoys and blackout techniques and that the system can never be adequately tested since no one knows what actual conditions will exist.

Political Aspects

Discussing the political aspects of the problem was Prof. Paul Kecskemeti, a visiting professor of sociology and political science at Brandeis University and MIT. A former member of the Rand Corporation, Prof. Kecskemeti is the author of "Strategic Surrender."

Prof. Kecskemeti believes that the ABM will have a de-stabilizing effect on the political balance currently established.

Since none of the countries are at this time completely monopolistic, Prof. Kecskemeti feels no single country would commit national suicide by using total nuclear aggression.

The countries are interwoven economically, and to ruin another country would cause ruin in the first, he said.

The ABM's de-stabilizing effect would occur, according to Prof. Kecskemeti, if only one country had it.

Howard Hubbard, who is with the MIT Instrumentation Laboratory, warned that the United States was already beginning a stronger defense system involving multiple warhead missiles which could strike more than a single city at a time.

The question and answer period was short.

Chief Derro Attends Dinner For Agencies

How Much Should You Pay for Carpeting?

If your family is large and the area you want to carpet is subject to heavy traffic, the more you pay, the longer wear you will receive.

Some people expect 15 years of wear from $8.00 per yard carpeting. In a bedroom, maybe, but in peak traffic areas — you'll never make it!

What's the answer to the question? Visit our salesroom and talk with Leo or Mike. With 30 years' experience behind them, they'll give the right answer . . . and you will be surprised to find how little it may cost to carpet your area!

Mr. Savage To Be Honored By Church Group

Philip S. Savage of 61 Harvard Street is one of 82 men to be honored by St. Joseph's Retreat League of Charlestown when it presents "A Tribute to the Roman Catholic Working Man" Sunday, March 16, at 2 p.m. at Boston College High School, Dorchester.

He will receive a plaque as a pioneer member of the 21-year-old league.

The Very Rev. William G. Guindon, S.J., superior of the Society of Jesus' New England Province, and Joseph O'Donnell, director of the Trade Union Program at Harvard, will speak.

The league's founders, Rev. Paul Murphy, S.J., and Rev. Edward L. Murphy, S.J., now professors at Boston College, will return for the occasion.

Through the league, men meet weekdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. to discuss such issues as the role of the laity in the Catholic Church, the status of Catholic schools and world hunger and to attend Mass and devotions.

Members have also raised funds to feed the poor in Jamaica and South America.

Dog Obedience Course To Start

The North Suburban Y.M.C.A. announces a new ten-week dog obedience course under the direction of Thomas Flynn, owner of the Canine Country Club of Burlington. Classes begin Friday, March 21, with two one hour novice classes at 7 and 8 p.m. and an advanced class at 9 p.m.

Under Mr. Flynn's expert guidance the most unmanageable of dogs can become ideal house pets regardless of pedigree, according to dog owners previously involved. According to Mr. Flynn, dog owners "cannot fully enjoy the companionship of an unmanageable and ill-trained dog. Assuming the proper skills in handling his pet will benefit both owner and dog greatly."

For those interested in show training, Mr. Flynn will also teach the basic skills necessary to participate in this fine sport.

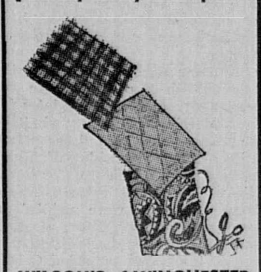

For additional information and to register, please phone the Y.M.C.A. at 935-3270. All fees must be paid at the start of the course unless previous arrangements are made.

Car Radio Antenna Could Save Life

The Automobile Legal Association today urged motorists to tie a bright piece of cloth to their car radio antenna so it can be seen above high snow banks.

"High snow banks, particularly at intersections, have become a serious hazard to motorists unable to see approaching cars. A bright cloth, or some other object on the top of an extended antenna could prevent a serious accident," Philip C. Wallwork of Jefferson Road, ALA safety director, said.

Sunday, March 16
"Will God indeed dwell on the earth? behold, the heaven and heaven of heavens cannot contain thee; how much less this house that I have builded?" This verse from I Kings is part of a Bible Lesson-Sermon titled "Substance" to be read this Sunday in all Christian Science churches.
One of the selections to be read from the denominational textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, is the following: "The everlasting I Am is not bounded nor compressed within the narrow limits of physical humanity, nor can it be understood aright through mortal concepts. The precise form of God must be of small importance in comparison with the sublime question, What is infinite Mind or divine Love?"

COR To Sponsor Vietnamese Dinner

An authentic Vietnamese dinner to benefit the Committee of Responsibility will be held at the Winchester Unitarian Church on Main Street on Friday, March 28.

Sponsored by the Couples Club, the dinner will be followed by a short movie, entitled "The Survivors."

The Committee of Responsibility is a non-profit, non-political organization which brings war-burned and war-injured Vietnamese children to the United States for medical treatment.

By enlisting the aid of physicians, particularly plastic and general surgeons, and securing hospital beds, the Committee of Responsibility hopes to bring additional injured Vietnamese children, who cannot be adequately cared for in Vietnam, to this country.

"The Survivors," in color, documents medical conditions in Vietnam. The film details the plight of civilians in Saigon, refugee camps, and hospitals, and was made by Dr. Henry Mayer, a plastic surgeon from Redwood City, California.

Dr. Frank Ervin of Massachusetts General Hospital, a member of COR's board of directors, stresses the need for raising funds to help bring some of these badly wounded children to this country to receive adequate professional care.

Reservations for the dinner at 6:30 p.m. on the 28th can be made by calling Mrs. James Doane at 729-8542 or Mrs. Albert Boyer at 729-5946.

It is requested that reservations be made no later than March 25.

In 1920 the War Department established the principle of granting shoulder insignia to all units of division size or higher. In exceptional cases a unit smaller than a division is authorized its own patch.

Theatre Group Selects Plays

Two short plays, "The White Liars" and "Black Comedy," have been chosen as this year's first Winchester Summer Community Theatre productions.

The plays will be presented July 18 and 19 in the Winchester High School auditorium. Tryouts are tentatively set for June 16 and 17.

The plays, one serious and one funny, are companion pieces written by Peter Shaffer. In "Black Comedy," a young sculptor, through the good graces of his girl friend's father, is expecting a prospective buyer to visit. To impress them, he "borrows" furniture from the flat of a neighbor.

The comedy revolves around the arrival of the father, the neighbor, an old maid, a repair man who is mistaken for the buyer, and another girl friend. There are parts for five men and three women.

"White Liars" is a new play based on "White Lies," which originally appeared with "Black Comedy." This serious drama is presented before the comedy. Two young men from a group called "The White Liars" visit a British seaside resort.

The play involves a romantic triangle, a girl and a boy who are rivals for the affections of the first boy. There is a cast of two men and one woman.

The plays were selected by the steering committee: Mrs. Robert Magnusen, chairman; Roger Foskett, H. Kimball Archibald, Tillie Sweet, Mrs. Donald Spinney, Stephen W. Funk and Benjamin Hersey of Melrose.

The organization, which is sponsored by the Winchester School Department and the Recreation Department, is open to everyone.

Miss Pamela L. Fairfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert O. Fairfield of 2 Pine Street, has been named to the dean's list at Russell Sage College, Troy, New York. Miss Fairfield, a senior, is majoring in nursing.

Alert To Parents On Water Ways

The Metropolitan District Commission today cautioned parents to keep children away from rising rivers, streams and other water areas as a safety measure.

"The conditions developing from thawing and future run-offs can serve as a lure to attract adventurous youngsters into highly-dangerous water areas during the next few weeks," M.D.C. Commissioner Howard Whitmore Jr. said. "Parents are urged to keep a watchful eye on their children to avoid these hazards."

ACROSS THE COUNTER

Clark Delver asked me a question as I entered the Postoffice. "I've read about the umbrella liability policy. Will you explain it to me?"

"Like the name suggests," I replied, "it is broad protection through exceptionally large limits of liability coverage. Usually, it is sold with a deductible - say $50,000. The umbrella picks up any excess liability above the deductible."

"Do the people who order an umbrella policy have insurance for the first $50,000 limits under another policy?" Clark asked.

"If it is available they may," I answered. "Sometimes it isn't. The market for umbrella-type coverage is limited chiefly to those engaged in high-hazard commercial or professional undertakings."

"Do you think I need it?" Clark asked.

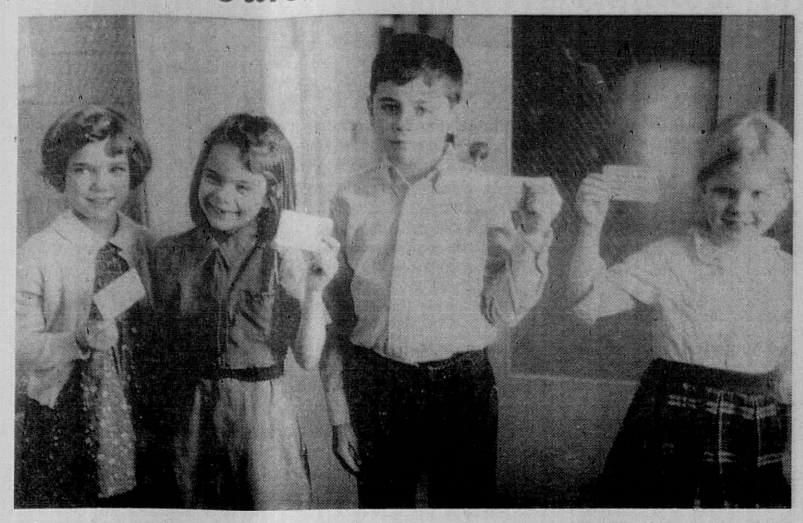

"I doubt it," I replied. "You have quite high liability limits now. I wish everyone were as well protected."

"Thanks for the information," Clark said. "This type of Service is one reason I like for you to handle my insurance."

"May we talk with you about Insurance too?"

Newsletter For Republicans Is Published

Cynthia L. Barone of 1 School Street, Republican State committeewoman for this district, sent out another issue of her Sixth Middlesex District newsletter this week.

Listing the various Republican meetings in this area attended by the State Committee people, Mrs. Barone also mentioned the recent move of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee from 146 Bowdoin Street, Boston, to 73 Tremont Street.

Dr. and Mrs. Barone attended the Inaugural activities in Washington in January and Mrs. Barone noted the "We came away from the capital city with mixed feelings of pride and wistfulness, realizing that we were leaving behind us three of our top vote-getting Republicans...Brooke, Richardson and Volpe."

Both Mrs. Barone and Republican State Committeeman William Barnstead of Arlington voted at a December State Committee meeting to "limit the vote in the executive committee of the State Committee to members of the Committee."

"Only the elected members are directly responsible for the State Committee's actions" said Mrs. Barone, "and, although we all welcome the advice and interest of other Republican officials, at least half of us feel that only members should be able to vote."

Hoping for an exchange of ideas among the City and Town Committee members concerning their proposed relationship to the State Committee, she stated a desire to talk further about the activities and lack of activities of the State Committee at future meetings in Arlington, Medford and Winchester.

Channel 2 Airs Student Revolt

"Diary of a Student Revolution" charts the collision course of University of Connecticut student radicals and their president, Monday, March 24 at 9 p.m. on Channel 2 (repeat Saturday, March 29 8 p.m.).

The confrontation took place just before Christmas. N.E.T. Journal sent film crews to the Connecticut campus to watch Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) protest industrial recruitment on campus and to record the reaction of University President Homer D. Babbidge. NET cameras eye despondent students as the president delivers a radio broadcast denying a moratorium on recruitment and catch the president chatting informally with administrators at the very moment students are being arrested on the other side of the door.

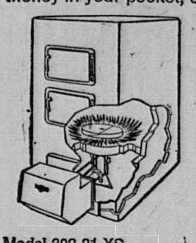

When the strike fails to mobilize general student sympathy the radicals protest instead the suspension of their leader, Richard Savage

Mahoney's Farm Exhibits At Flower Show

PALMS AND PINES is the theme of this exhibit by Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nursery, Cambridge Street, at the New England Garden and Flower Show beginning March 15 at Suffolk Downs. The exhibit, designed by Ormond Hamilton, features tropical foliage plants. (Bill Ryerson photo)

Mahoney's Farm Exhibits At Flower Show

"Palms and Pines," designed by Ormand Hamilton, is the theme of the Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nursery garden at the New England Flower Show starting March 15th at Suffolk Downs.

This garden will be a new departure from the ordinary. In fact, Mahoney's believe this will be a brand new idea for the home owner. The use of southern palms and other showy tropical foliage plants will lend an exciting and exotic new effect to one's patio all summer long.

This garden will feature a modern home with a large patio, free-form pools with many goldfish and three waterfalls. The patio furniture will be brought in from California and be ultra modern in design.

All the palms and most of the flowers will be "containerized" so that they can be changed, moved or store at will. Thus if one prefers a certain flower, such as "mums" (chrysanthemums), he can have them all season long with a small investment.

Mahoney's is growing these blossoms, once only for the autumn season, all year long.

Theodore F. Cook Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore F. Cook Sr. of 10 Mayflower Road, has been named to the dean's list for the fall semester at Trinity College where he is a senior.

Library Has Books In Large Print

Over ten million Americans cannot read books printed in small type. They are not illiterate, or blind, or even necessarily visually handicapped. They are over fifty and their eyes simply aren't what they used to be. As a result, many find reading of standard size print extremely limited, while others have had to give it up altogether.

But something has been done about it, right here in our own community. our library offers many fine books in large type. Mrs. Leila-Jane Roberts, head librarian says it best—"For lifelong readers who have had to forgo the pleasures of good books, large type books offer a miraculous return to a world they love."

Mrs. Roberts went on to comment, "It isn't enough to merely offer books in large type. We feel that every reader deserves the right to exercise his own preference. Since those who need large type can't use the standard catalog, we have prepared a list of all our large type books."

There is no charge for the list. Simply ask for it at the circulation desk. You may know someone who has had to abandon the habit of reading good books. If that person is no longer able to visit a library in person, why not be the good samaritan and pick up the book list for him?

The list reads like a Who's Who of literature past and present and ranges from current best sellers, myster stories and humorous works to the classics, including Shakespeare and Dickens.

Coin Club

The March Meeting of the Middlesex Coin Club will be held on the 27th of March at 8 p.m. at 351 Main Street, Wakefield, at the I.O.O.F. Hall.

Feature topic of the evening will be a set of slides on "Odds and Ends of Coinage" plus the regular business meeting and refreshments.

DO YOUR TEEN-AGERS UNDERSTAND YOU?

Today many teen-agers feel that anyone over the age of 30 simply doesn't know. Rebellion sometimes seems to him to be the only way of life — the only answer.

Irresponsibility and rebellion aren't the only way of life for the teen-ager.

What is important to him as a way of life? Isn't it a deep desire to search for Truth — for meaning in his own life?

This is why young people like the Christian Science Sunday School. They get a chance to think for themselves, and to dig deep for ideas they can prove and use. They find out who they are and why they are here.

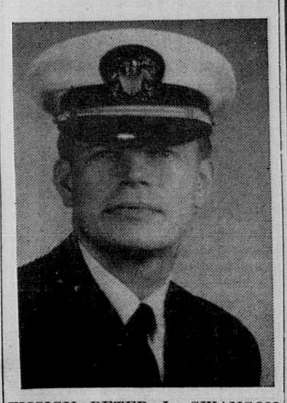

Above all, they discover the solid basis for freedom in obedience to God. This helps them understand you!

Your teen-agers are welcome at our Sunday School, any Sunday morning.

Methodists Accept $14,475 Goal As National Reconciliation Share

"A New Church for a New World!" is a current theme as United Methodists begin moving toward the fulfillment of what they are calling, "our responsibility for the Christian ministry in century twenty."

Methodists all across this land are raising $20,000,000 over a period of four years—a fund to be known as The Fund for Reconciliation. "The Methodist Church will be reaching out in mission to those in need," report local leaders.

"Methodist Bishops and ministers have presented sacrificial gifts and now members are responding. This money will be raised by pledges over and above regular contributions, from every member and congregation in United Methodism."

On March 23 parish homes will be visited here and across the nation. One half of the money raised will remain with the Methodist Conference in Massachusetts for use in meeting emergency social needs. The balance will be distributed through a committee named by the Council of Bishops to help meet situations emerging from the current crisis in the nation.

The money will be used for scholarships and educational loans, day care centers, job training, housing construction and rehabilitation. Not only will it be used in the ghetto, but also to bring peace. For instance, $2,000,000,000 has already been earmarked to be used in Vietnam as soon as peace is negotiated.

The New England Conference of the United Methodist Church has a goal of $1,500,000. The goal for the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church, accepted at the annual meeting Tuesday, March 4, is $14,475. Methodists are pledging amounts equivalent to a month's salary and budgeting this total in weekly or monthly payments over four years.

Fundamentals of skating and hockey will be stressed in the 15 week program which will begin later this month. The group will meet Monday nights from 5 to 6 p.m. at the Belle Isle Skating Club, Bedford.

If this year's program is successful, a figure skating program for girls will be added next year, according to Mr. Spinney.

Instructors will include Ted Kelly of the Winchester High School coaching staff, who captained his University of Massachusetts hockey team, coached at the Cooney Weiland Hockey School, played in the Lewiston-Auburn Twins semi-pro league and was named to All East in Division 11 Small Colleges.

Don Spinney played for the Boston University team that won the ECAC championship in 1960; is coach of the North Shore Pee Wee School; was named to the All East in Division I colleges; played for the Waterville Bruins semi-pro league and the Galt Flyers, Galt, Ontario, and is the president of the North Shore Ice Hockey Officials Association.

Other instructors are John Stableford, a member of the school staff, who captained his Williams College team, and Mike Houghton, a member of the coaching staff.

All the instructors are donating their time to the program.

For further information about the program, contact the Recreation Department, 729-4514.

A's Win; Now Enter Semi-Finals

The Bantam "A" team, winner of the league title, advanced in the league playoffs to the semi-finals next Sunday night as they defeated Stoneham 5-3 last Saturday evening at Hockey Town USA.

Winchester now meets an unnamed opponent at 5:50 p.m. on Sunday night, March 16 at Hockey Town USA.

The Sachems attack was spearheaded by Steve Troiano who had the hat trick. After a scoreless first period, Steve opened the scoring for the Sachems combining with Steve Spang and Dave Frongillo.

With both teams short a man apiece, Stoneham tied it up despite some fine goaltending by Rick Coakley.

The Sachems broke the game wide open late in the second period as they rammed in three straight goals. Steve Troiano scored his second goal of the night putting in Rick Murphy's rebound.

Jim Dale upped the count to 3-1 taking a feed from Chris McCarthy who in turn was sent in by Eddie Pierce. Tom Belden closed out the scoring for the period with a boomer from about 30 feet with Paul McCormack and George Evans picking up assists.

Stoneham caught its second wind late in the game and scored two quick goals to cut the margin to 4-3. With a minute left in the game and Stoneham applying the pressure, the Sachems broke out of their defensive zone and Steve Troiano completed his hat trick as he deflected Rick Murphy's blazer past the sprawling Stoneham goaltender.

Bonspiel Held At Country Club

Seven curling clubs were represented in the sixth annual Winchester Mixed Members Guest Bonspiel on March 8 and 9 at the Winchester Country Club.

The Winchester host couples had guests from Brae Burn, Petersham, Wellesley, Weston, the Canadian Club and one couple who travelled from the Riverside Club in St. John, New Brunswick.

This bonspiel was initiated six years ago at Winchester under the leadership of Brad and Edna Bentley. Many other curling clubs now have organized similar bonspiels.

The matches started at 9 a.m. Saturday and eight-end games were played through the day on a knock-out basis for three events. There was an interruption for a banquet at seven o'clock.

Victorious on Sunday at 2 p.m. final matches were Bill and Helen Purple from Petersham with their hosts Peggy and Dick Pettengill. They defeated Jean and Jim Jefferson whose guests were Karl and Jean Adams from the Weston Country Club.

In the second event Sally and Bud Chandler from Brae Burn with hosts Edna and Brad Bentley prevailed over Art and Eileen Bird whose guests were Jim and Mary MacLean from New Brunswick.

In the third event Bud Gerould and Jean Roundey with Dick and Estelle Sullivan from Brae Burn defeated Adele and Stan Johnson from Brae Burn with hosts Bus and Fran McNeill.

A new award, the Bentley pin, was presented to each one on the winning rink, and to the Bentleys who were honored for all their past efforts.

Junior Curling Wins Five Places In Meet Here

The past weekend found a group of juniors from all over New England curling at the Winchester Country Club.

The group included teams from Darien and Norfolk, Connecticut, Nashua, New Hampshire, Weston and Petersham as well as five Winchester teams.

In this point bonspiel where the victors of each match received 10 points and a point was awarded for each of the eight ends won by both teams, the Winchester teams swept the first five places.

Winchester I swept through its three matches winning all of their matches easily. Out of the possible 54 points, they received 49 which gave them first place and the Little Cup.

In their last game against the same Nashua team that had won their bonspiel two weeks earlier, the home team swept to an easy 16 to 2 victory. The champions included: Carolyn Roundey, lead; Peter Shean, two; Sue Wilcox, vice-skip; Deannie Hakanson, skip.

Winchester II, meanwhile, had an easy time with the visiting teams. In its first match against the defending champions, Petersham, they routed the team, 15 to 4. After defeating the team from Weston, Petersham met defeat in their last game against Winchester V.

By finishing with a total of 35 points, the veteran rink ended up fourth. Winchester II included: Karen Deininger, lead; Jay McGoldrick, two; Jane Wilcox, vice-skip; Gary Stillman, skip.

Winchester III also made a strong showing. By winning two out of their three matches, they finished fifth. Among the victims was a strong team from Norfolk which they defeated 10 to 3. Winchester III consisted of : Jane Downes, lead; Hank Clark, two; Heather Barlowe, vice-skip; Peter Blanchard, skip.

Winchester IV won all three of their matches with a total of 46 points which awarded them second place and the Barlowe Bowl. In their last match against Weston, they had to rally from a five rock deficit in the last end to win the match 10 to 8. This team was made up of: Marnie MacKenzie, lead; Tom Garrity, two; Linda Spencer, vice-skip; Tyrus Gerould, skip.

Winchester V also won all five of their games to finish third and win the Chase Vase with a total of 43 points. All three of their matches were cliffhangers which were not decided until the last ends. Team V consisted of: Mayan Wilcox lead; Scott Carlile, two; Pamela Speers, vice-skip; Willy Speers, skip.

Also, the home club supplied two curlers for two of the visiting teams. Liz MacKenzie curled admirably for Norfolk while Mary Saulnier played for Nashua.

Appearing for Winchester in their last junior bonspiel were: skip, Gary Stillman; vice-skips; Jane and Sue Wilcox; leads, Carolyn Roundy and Karen Deininger.

Duplicate Bridge Club

The Hevey's Pharmacy Challenge Bowl was won by Nancy Atkinson and Paul Sanderson in the Mixed Pairs Championship held Wednesday, March 5th, by the Club. There were sixteen tables playing in a very close race, with many good games bunched together at the finish. Carl Galante who won the event last year with a matched-up-at-the-door partnership came close to repeating the performance this year. Playing with Dolly Pasquale for the first time, he placed a fine third out of the thirty-two contending pairs.

Above average players were:

Nancy Atkinson and Paul Sanderson	134
Gay Schreiber and Guy Mingolelli	129½
Dolly Pasquale and Carl Galante	129
Mr. and Mrs. Richard Smith	128
Donna Redpath and Stephen Haseltine	124½
Prudy Horne and Edward Mansfield	124½
Lena Collins and Jim Ashley	123½
Barbara Shea and Anthony Ferdinand	122½
Joyce Wolfe and Robert Haskell	121
Ruth Hagan and Clarence Woodward	118½
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richardson	118
Fredna Perkins and Jock Olmsted	116½
Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Root	114½
Mr. and Mrs. William Duryea	111
Margaret Jackson and Edmund Joyce	110½

Treasurer Ralph Atkinson took on an additional chore to his usual collection when he directed Section B whose partnerships didn't qualify for the "mixed" label. North-South Alan Leland and Clayton Clancy won for the second week in a row with Anne Galpin and Madalyn Walworth first East-West.

North-South

Alan Leland and Clayton Clancy	46
Eric Kula and Sheldon Stern	37½
Leo and Frank Gonsalves	37

East-West

Anne Galpin and Madalyn Walworth	34½
Charles Lynch and Matt Mulkern	31
Rose Hickey and Lillian Sheridan	30

Don Dalrymple spins a tale of woe and retribution in the hand-of-the-week department.

"It was a cold night in spades last week, in the Mixed Pairs championship. Take board 18, for instance. (I don't want it—I've HAD it!)

You and your partner sit meekly by, while the opponents bid all around you. Seated west at your left is one of the better players of the female variety who, for the moment, shall remain nameless. The moment is up. Her initials are J. W. As dealer, not vulnerable, she bids one spade. Her partner gives her a vote of confidence, with 2 spades. She now bids 3 diamonds, and hears 3 hearts from partner. She finds this intriguing, and now asks for aces, with 4 N T. The 5 club reply is bad news, and she now bids 5 diamonds. At this point, R. H. sitting east has reached the muttering stage, and mutters: "What in the world" (approximately) "kind of bidding is this? 5NT" And all pass.

Now!—would you care to ponder what happened to the nice spade fit? Or, for short: Who has all the spades? If it were your lead as north, and you were looking at A K 8 of spades, would you toy with the idea of pushing the king, for a quick peek at the situation? Here's the whole thing:

NORTH
♠ A K 8
♥ 9 5 4
♦ 8 6 5 4
♣ 9 5 2

WEST	EAST
♠ Q	♠ 10 7 6 4
♥ A K 8	♥ Q J 7 6
♦ A K J 10 9 7 3	♦ 2
♣ Q 8	♣ K J 7 3

SOUTH
♠ J 9 5 3 2
♥ 10 3 2
♦ Q
♣ A 10 6 4

See what happens if the spade king is led. Partner will happily play the 5 for a come-on signal. When the queen drops, it doesn't take a genius to figure where the 3 and 2 must be. And if partner doesn't have the J 9 over dummy's 10, he'd be out of his head to play the 5 on the first round. So you'd play out the spades for the first 5 tricks, and probably cash the club ace for a four trick set before the unhappy declarer can get started. But it's a cold night, and partner leads fourth highest diamond. After watching 7 diamonds and 4 hearts go by, you win the last two acers. You'll never see a bigger, fatter, colder, ZERO. Have you been psyched lately?

Or take board 1. Your left-hand opponent opens with one spade. Partner doubles, and the next one passes. Now you're looking at S-8, 6, 5; H-10, 8, 7, 3; D-Q,10, 8, 5 and C-8, 5. Can you find more than 2 points in this glop? What do you do? How wrong do you want to be? Partner has ORDERED you to bid. To pass is to become the loneliest guy in town. Do you bid 1 NT and hope it may be taken as a desperation bid? Or, if you do this, is partner going to take it to mean that you have a spade stopper and a few points, and boost you who knows where? Some think that the quickest way to cool off an exuberant partner in a spot like this is to bid 2 of a minor suit, when you know he's hoping to hear the other major. This hapless one bid the NT, with misgivings which proved to be well founded. He was boosted to 3, forthwith. But see what happens. This time it's the opposition who don't care to start the spades. Here's why:

NORTH
♠ Q 9
♥ A K 9 2
♦ A K 6
♣ K 10 7 6

WEST	EAST
♠ K J 10 7 3 2	♠ A 4
♥ Q J	♥ 6 5 4
♦ 4	♦ J 9 7 3 2
♣ A 4 3 2	♣ Q J 9

SOUTH
♠ 8 6 5
♥ 10 8 7 3
♦ Q 10 8 5
♣ 8 5

As the least of all evils, the H-Q was led by West. Now you can have all kinds of fun. There's no reason to be bashful with the first trick, so you take, and try the diamonds with the A and K. The singleton shows on the second round, so you have a free finesse for the jack. After the fourth diamond you get back to the hearts, for you can pretty well bet where the jack must be, from the opening lead. Sure enough! So you take the fourth heart trick in your own hand, and now lead low toward the club king. West is still dreaming of a spade lead from dummy, and holds back on the club ace. So you get your ninth trick, for a score fat enough to wipe out that other horror. Unfortunately, the people who handled the spades so well on the other hand have long since departed.

Winchester Youth Hockey Bruins Win Championship

For the second time in three years, Coach Bob Murray has led his team to the Winchester Youth Hockey championship. This year it was the Bruins as they whipped the Black Hawks 4-2 on the final day of the season.

For the Black Hawks coach, Jay O'Leary, it was a hard loss to take after making a great comeback to bring the championship down to the final game of the season.

After the game the coaches and league officials voted O'Leary as "Coach of the Year" for the superb job he did during the past season.

Kevin O'Neil put the Black Hawks on the scoreboard first as he tucked it behind goalie Denis O'Donnell on a perfect pass from Mike Seigfreidt.

The Bruins came roaring back as Phil O'Connell beat Rich Maggio with a drive from close in. Doug Parkhill's fine playmaking set up the goal for the Bruins.

Once again the fine all around playing of Phil O'Connell had a hand in the Bruins second goal as he set up defenseman Bill Gannon and the Bruins were off to the races.

Frongillo Scores Winner

The Bruins kept the pressure on the Black Hawks throughout the final period and with fine forechecking set up their third goal and also proved to be the winner.

Dave Frongillo picked up a loose puck in front of the net and flipped a backhander past the surprised O'Donnell and the Bruins had a 3-1 lead. Left-winger Joey Penta and defenseman Bobby Gill picked up assists on what was the Bruins biggest goal of the year.

Bill Gannon scored the Bruins fourth goal unassisted and the Black Hawks closed out the scoring with Mark Seigfreidt also scoring unassisted.

Congratulations are in order for Coach Bobby Murray and his team for a well deserved championship. The Bruins played fine agressive hockey all year and also showed great team spirit and unselfish play.

Coaches Romp 7-3

In the only other game of the day, the annual Coaches and Bantam "A" game turned out with the Bantams on the short end of the score 7-3.

The coaches attack was led by Sandy Milley who potted four of the coaches' seven goals.

Brian McCormack, a dangerous man from within the blue line, scored two goals while Teddy Cammon had the other score for the coaches.

Bevan O'Callaghan and Joe Keating each picked up two assists while Jay O'Leary and Ted Cammon had one apiece.

Rick Murphy deflected Steve Spang's shot from the point for the first Bantam's goal while Jimmy Dale and Paul Whitney had the other scores, both unassisted.

The Bantams goalies Ricky Coakley and Jim Grenier were outstanding in the nets for the Bantams in a losing cause. Referees Jim Beck and Billy Harris handled the first half of the game and Rich Maggio and Denis O'Donnell did the second. At times they found it difficult to keep up with the fast skating pace set by the Coaches.

Award Night

The annaul Winchester Youth Hockey awards night will be held this coming Friday night March 14 at 7:00 p.m. at the Washington School. Trophies to the championship teams, the Flyers and the Bruins, will be awarded plus many other individual trophies

All players in the leagues and their parents are urged to come. A colored film of the 1968 Stanley Cup playoffs will be shown and refreshments will be served.

Hockey Play Finds Usual Cast With Few Upsets

John F. Parrell

The quarter-final rounds of the Eastern Mass. Hockey Tournament started Saturday, and with few exceptions the favorites have come through with flying colors. Of the eight teams usually in the qualifying spots mentioned last week, only Walpole missed out this year, and Auburn is now classed in the western sectional playoffs.

Of the other six, Arlington, Melrose, Needham, Norwood, and Marblehead are still in contention, with Malden Catholic the sole casualty as it fell before Andover 3-2.

But the end of the road is in sight for at least two of these before the semi-finals since the first two meet each other and the last two are also paired. Then the winners of these games must face each other in the lower-half semi-final unless one of the capable dark horses from Malden, B. C. High, Hingham or Brookline authors an upset. Each of this quartet has potential, and it would seem that if there is to be any real drastic upset it is most apt to come in this bracket.

The upper half listing of Archbishop Williams, Dedham and Swampscott as opponents for the Ftorek-paced Bay State champions is a good tough group, but the lower half is beyond all imagination. Besides the four members of the regular big six, Malden is undefeated Metropolitan League champion, Brookline is the winner of the Greater Boston League, B. C. High took the Boston City crown, and Hingham was South Shore League runner-up.

Any of these can provide tough opposition and might provide such stern competition as to make the lower-bracket winner very capable of giving Needham a good battle in the finals.

The lower-half winners are playing tonight at the Garden, and the semi-finals will also be held there Saturday afternoon starting at 1. The final will be on the same ice next Monday starting at 7:30.

Hockey Team Takes Season Finale With Wild 2-1 Win Over Wakefield

The Sachem hockey players wound up the 1968-69 campaign by edging Wakefield 2-1 in one of the wildest games in the history of the Middlesex League. Before the final whistle had sounded a total of 16 puck chasers from both teams had been exiled for the duration of the contest.

The Winchester offense which has been stymied all season by injuries and periods of lacakadaisical play, finally clicked to perfection and it is a shame that the boys could not have operated it for the entire 36 minutes. Had they been able to it is a certainty that they would have run up their highest goal total of the season.

The local sextet was off to a flying start with the passing accurate and the skating fast but after the game was only minutes old the entire Wakefield bench rushed onto the ice looking for trouble.

The referees cleared the surface but did not make it clear that they would not tolerate such actions. The Kelleymen kept up their fast attack and it was rewarded when Rich Shanahan netted the puck with the assist going to Tom Kivnan.

Refs Clear Ice

Joe Campo pushed Winchester into a two goal lead with a very flashy solo goal after 2:47 of the second period as play was continually at the Wakefield end of the rink.

At this point things began to get rough and before long nearly every player on the ice was in some sort of affray. Now the referees did what they should have done in the first period—they took action. Every boy who was playing for both teams was ejected and when play resumed it was mostly the reserves who were playing for both teams.

The third period was also fast and rough and four more skaters got the heave ho for the duration. Out of the melee John Riley finally succeeded in scoring for Wakefield with Banks assisting at 6:56. This ended the scoring as skeleton squads played the final moments of the season.

The playing of these games at such a late date was a ridiculous anticlimax to the season. Melrose who is busily engaged in playing in the tournament was forced to play two games in the league as well as one in the title play. The coaches met over the week end and set next year's schedule to conclude on February 25.

It is hoped that some change may be made in the playing surface since it is a long trip for everybody to the Lynn rink and also no Friday or Saturday night dates are available. This makes it necessary to have late afternoon and evening mid-week games which are not desirable from the point of view of either players or spectators. Good ice time is available at nearby Billerica but it is up to the league officials to consider such a change.

The Sachems finished eighth in the nine team league but had fewer goals scored against them than anybody except for champion Melrose and runnerup Stoneham. They averaged 1.5 goals per game and allowed the opposition a mere 2.5. This is very good hockey which is sadly not noticeable in the team standing.

The final standing:

Melrose	14	1	0	23	81	18
Stoneham	11	3	1	23	62	33
Belmont	9	5	1	19	46	39
Reading	7	6	2	16	45	41
Concord	6	6	3	15	48	45
Wakefield	5	9	1	11	42	53
Lexington	4	9	2	10	37	49
Winchester	3	9	3	9	22	38
Watertown	2	13	1	5	16	74

Little League Managers To Meet

On the evening of Wednesday, March 19, all senior league, major league and minor league managers for Little League will meet in the Unitarian Church Hall at 8 p.m. for the annual managers conference.

Chairman of the meeting will be Winchester Little League Commissioner James R. Stewart Jr.

This session will be a basis for operations of Little League teams. During the two hour meeting, the managers will have the opportunity to meet their 1969 rival managers and discuss rules and regulations in conformance with Little League Headquarters directives.

In addition, local cooperative efforts will be outlined, and the managers will conduct a question and answer program so that, once the season starts on April 26th, there will be few unanswered problems to confront both new and established leaders.

It is anticipated that the league presidents will be there to field some of the questions that will come up, and the umpires-in-chief will be able to square away new changes in playing rules.

Commissioner Stewart will outline the purposes of the "Leaders Responsibilities" directive that was mailed to all managers, recently.

The managers will be briefed on the results of the Board of Directors stipulations regarding this year's operation of the draft, including the new team stocking procedures which were voted in last week. The latter regulations will be of great interest not only to the 1968 managers who are returning, but also to the managers of the six new teams which will make their debut in the forthcoming season. The stocking plan includes professional-type player protection and placing of the new teams in the draft lists.

All managers are also reminded that the 1969 Little League Application blanks are now available at the Winchester Sport Shop and the Winchester Hobby Shop, but the deadline for applications being returned to these same locations is 5 p.m. on March 22nd.

Whether a boy was on a team last year or not, he still must fill out and return an application blank, including his father's and mother's signatures to be eligible to play in 1969.

Letters are posted in every school announcing the availability of the applications, but each manager should check to see that each of his returning players is registered before the deadline.

Catholic Memorial Looms As Tech A Winner

John F. Parrell

The tall, talented and smooth-working quintet from Catholic Memorial appears to be an almost certain winner of Class A in the Tech Tourney, which concludes this week at Boston Garden with semi-finals tomorrow night and the finals Saturday.

Coach Ronnie Perry's boys have swept through 17 regular-season games and annexed the Catholic Conference crown, then three more victories for the New England Catholic title. In their first-round game they bested Waltham to advance to the quarter-finals of the Tech.

None of the other seven teams left in competition has the size, man power or finesse to cope with Memorial, but overconfidence or staleness can take their toll. The champions-apparent were none to impressive against the Watch City team and any further letdown might bring an upset. But with two very dangerous teams, Durfee and Boston English falling before Medford and Lynn English the only real threats have been eliminated.

Archbishop Williams played well to beat North Quincy and thus perpetrate the jinx which has followed the capable South Shore boys for many years. Brockton rallied to top Malden in a contest which saw them fought to a standstill for three periods which ended 36-36 but finished well to win.

Other qualifiers include Boston Tech and Somerville and Rindge Tech.

If things run true to form the pairings tomorrow night should find Boston Tech facing Rindge Tech and Memorial facing Brockton unless the old Somerville experience prevails to bring about a meeting of the brother coaches, Ronnie and Walter Perry. But unless all signs fail the championship diadem should rest after Saturday night's game on the team from West Roxbury.

Lexington Handicap

Lexington, undefeated through 17 games and winner of the Middlesex League with height, depth, rebounding and shooting, has been picked for many weeks to run away with Class B honors and is still the best bet.

However, their game Monday night pointed up the handicap of drawing a first round bye. Without action for over 10 days, they were stale when they downed Swampscott 56-47 in a game not impressive on either side.

Looking to tomorrow night, the Minutemen will be faced with an extremely capable coach in Fred Herget, whose Braintree teams are almost perpetual challengers for the title.

The south Shore Club lacks the height which Lexington possesses, but makes up with clever ball handling and alert defense. These might prove sufficient if Lexington does not rise above Monday night's game.

1969 Pee Wee Champs

POSING IN VICTORY are the Winchester Flyers, 1969 Pee Wee League hockey champions. Kneeling, left to right, are Tom Romeo and Dave Pettee. Seated are Chip Hartnett, Mark Milley capt.), Will Paglia (capt.), Jack Pantaleo and Bob Coppins. Standing are Steve Coogan, Bud Rav, Jim Campbell, Ron Cappozoli, Chris Carzo and Chris Gill. In the rear are coaches Will Paglia and Bill Coppins. Missing when the picture was taken is Peter Haley.

The Winchester Flyers, 1969 Pee Wee champions were led to the championship by co-captains Mark Milley and Will Paglia who won best defenseman and most valuable player awards respectively.

Other significant contributions were made by hard skating forwards Jack Pantaleo and Tom Romeo, both good scorers.

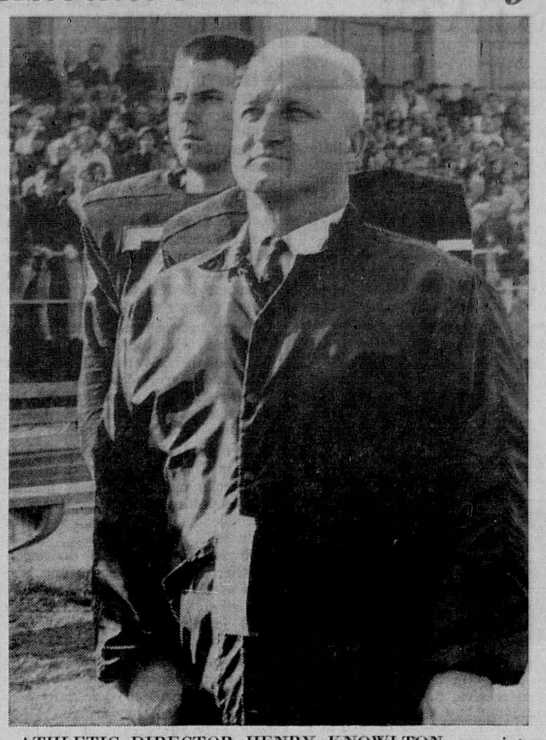

The Flyers improved considerably over the course of the season and stressed position hockey and passing.

Dave Pettee with his key goals, Chip Hartnett with his fine spirit and the improved play of Bob Coppins and Bud Rau gave the Flyers the depth they needed for the championship.

The defens ecorp was strenghtened by the dependable pair of Chris Gill and Peter Haley.

By the end of the season considerable improvements and contributions were made to the Flyers success by Chris Carzo, Ron Cappozoli, Jim Campbell and Steve Coogan.

Another Honor For Henny

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR HENRY KNOWLTON goes into the Massachusetts High School Football Coaches Association Hall of Fame Saturday, along with four other area coaches. A WHS grad himself, Henny coached the Sachems from 1940-66, winning 204, tying 17 and losing 72. Here he stands at attention for the National Anthem before a game. (Ryerson photo)

Gymnasts Third In League

The Winchester gymnasts ran into a streak of bad luck after winning their first three meets.

The Sachems came very close in several meets such as North Reading, where they lost 75.30 to 72.25. Wakefield was another close and exciting contest where the gymnasts lost by eighty-five hundredths of a point. The score was 87.20 to 88.05. This was the highest score that the gym team achieved this year.

Coach Albright attributes the losing season, (3-6) to the loss of two state champions, Dick Marvin, who moved last year, and Mark Harrington, with a bad back. The seniors leaving this year will be John and Jim Farley and Dick Blaisdell.

On March 6, Winchester hosted the Middlesex League championship meet in the WHS gym. Lexington placed first, Wakefield second, and Winchester third.

Lexington won a trophy for winning the most meets in the league. Lexington also won a trophy for getting the most points in the championship meet.

The Sachems, although having a bad season this year, are already looking towards a winning season next year.

The members of this year's team are:

John Farley (capt.)
Jim Farley
Dick Blaisdell

Statistics Tell Of Hoopsters' 10-8 Season

Coach Vandy French's basketball squad, led by Tom Workman, compiled a final record of ten wins against eight losses.

On the home court the Sachems won seven while losing only three. The three losses were of seven points or under.

Seniors Captain Tom Workman, Peter Knight, Jack Papadinis, Tom Flaherty, and Dave Cavanaugh did a fine job of leading their teammates.

The Sachems averaged 63.2 points per game while holding the opponents to 61 points.

The final game totals are:

Gerry Hills On Squash Team At Dartmouth

Senior Gerry Hills of 34 Cabot Street Winchester has just completed a winning season with the Dartmouth College varsity squash team.

Gerry, though, has seen action on two fronts this winter after beginning the season as a reserve goalie with the Dartmouth hockey squad.

Gerry played in three games before the Christmas vacation for the hockey Indians and had a 3.33 goals against average.

After the holiday break, though, he returned to the squash courts where he gave a boost to the Indian fortunes as the number five and four player. He had a 7-4 overall record in matches and was 27-15 in individual games won.

Gerry is the son of a former Dartmouth tennis player, Arthur Hills. His younger brother, Mike, posted a 3-5 record with the Dartmouth freshman squash team this season.

Mass CPA's Define Losses Which Count As Deductions

(This is the final article in a series prepared by the Massachusetts Society of CPAs on money-saving "tips" in the preparation of the 1040 Federal Individual Income Tax Return.)

Did you work for more than one employer in 1968? If so, it is possible that more than $343.20 in social security (FICA) tax was withheld from your wages, and you are entitled to deduct the excess from any income tax you may owe or ask for a refund.

There are other deductions and exclusions which individual taxpayers frequently overlook in figuring their tax. Here, according to Robert Boyer, CPA, president of the Massachusetts Society of CPAs, are some of the more common ones:

Dividends—You can deduct up to $100 in dividends received in 1968 on stocks owned in most domestic companies and corporations. If you file a joint return, you and your wife can each deduct up to $100 for a total $200 deduction. Neither of you can claim any portion of the deduction not used by the other, however. If you receive $180 in dividends and your wife $60, you can deduct only $160.

Capital Gains—Short-term capital gains (profit on sale of stocks and other property) are fully taxed, just as ordinary income. However, only 50 percent of net long-term gains are taxed.

The stock or other property must have been held for more than six calendar months for the profit to be treated as a long-term capital gain. Don't count the day of purchase but include the day of sale in determining whether it was held for more than six calendar months.

Profit on a stock bought on April 30, 1968 and sold on October 31, is a short-term captial gain. It is a long-term capital gain, however, if the selling date was November 1.

Sick Pay (during absences from work due to illness or injury)—If your employer paid 75 percent or less of your weekly salary, and you were hospitalized for at least one day during the period of absence, up to $75 of each weekly payment during the first thirty days of absence is excludable from your total income in figuring your tax. If you weren't hospitalized, the exclusion starts with the second week's payment.

Payments during the first thirty days amounting to more than 75 percent of your regular weekly salary cannot be excluded Payments during absences lasting longer than thirty days are excludable up to $100 a week after the first thirty days, regardless of whether the 75 percent or less rule has been met.

Interest on state and municipal bonds is tax exempt, so do not include it in your return. You must, however report interest received on bank accounts, deposits with savings and loan associations, credit unions, etc

If you own United States Savings or War Bonds, the increase in value each year can be reported as taxable interest if you choose. If you cashed bonds in 1968 on which you did not report interest in previous years, the increase above purchase price should be reported as taxable interest income on your return this year.

Remember that if you were married on or before December 31, the Internal Revenue Service says you were married for the entire year and are entitled to file a joint return wtih your wife. On the other hand, if you were divorced or legally separated on or before December 31, you are considered single for the entire year and must file a separate return.

A child born as late as December 31 entitles you to a full $600 dependency deduction for the entire year.

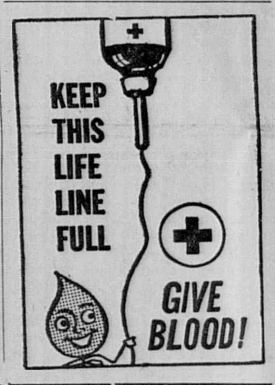

The Internal Revenue service says that more than 90 percent of the errors made in the preparation of individual returns can be easily avoided. Be sure your name is spelled correctly and that you give the right address and social security or employer identification number. Don't forget to attach your employer's W-2 withholding form and to sign and date your return.

Check your arithmetic carefully and be sure to use the right tax table in figuring your tax.

And don't wait until the last minute. By preparing your return well before the April 15 deadline, you can give yourself a chance to check your work carefully at your leisure It will also give you time to consult your Internal Revenue office, a CPA or other qualified tax authority about any questions which may arise about the correctness of your return.

(Again this year the Massachusetts Society of CPAs will sponsor its DIAL A TAX EXPERT program. On week nights up through March 28, anyone may telephone questions on his personal income tax to a society-operated center in Boston, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Watch the daily papers for other details, including telephone numbers.)

Choking Claims 1200 Lives

Twelve hundred persons choked to death in 1968 on foreign objects lodging in their throats, the American Red Cross warns.

Small children and wearers of dentures are especially prone to this kind of fatal accident.

Some 700 of the victims were under five years of age and 300 were over 45, John T. Goetz, eastern area director of Red Cross safety programs has said, adding that many of the latter were men and women who wore dentures.

In its first aid courses the Red Cross gives special emphasis to the prevention of choking accidents.

Mr. Goetz explained that there is danger with young children since infants do not get all their baby teeth until they are two years old and the chewing habit is not firmly established until they are four.

"Small children will put practically anything in their mouths, as every mother knows. They have a tendency to swallow automatically; therefore, they will try to swallow an inedible object instead of spitting it out, as an adult would," he said.

Children often inhale foreign objects into the air passages. These must be promptly removed before they cause respiratory problems or even death, he added.

Mr. Goetz suggested these percautions to help prevent choking accidents among children:

Children under four should not be given nuts, raw fruits, or raw vegetables. These foods require grinding action of molars.

Foreign objects that an infant could put in its mouth should be kept out of reach.

Older children must be prevented from putting small objects in a baby's mouth.

Keep safety pins closed—they constitute less of a hazard if swallowed accidentally.

Buy infants only sturdy toys, without small parts that might become detached and swallowed.

Never stimulate a child to laugh or cry when he has food in his mouth. Fatal choking might result.

When choking accidents occur, consult a physician immediately, even if the symptoms, such as coughing, subside. If natural breathing stops, start artificial respiration by the mouth-to-mouth method at once.

Mr. Goetz offered these safety suggestions for adults, especially denture wearers:

Bones are the foreign bodies which most commonly affect denture wearers. Extra precautions should be taken to remove these from such prepared dishes as chicken sandwiches, salads, or soup. Careful chewing habits should be cultivated.

When dentures are needed, they should be used and proper fitting maintained. Painful chewing can cause mastication to be incomplete.

Denture wearers should chew their food approximately twice as long as they did when they had their natural teeth, to aid digestion and prevent swallowing of incompletely chewed food.

Loose or cracked dentures can themselves become foreign objects in the mouth as the result of blows, falls, excitements or chewing sticky foods.

Do not hold pins, nails or similar objects in the mouth—you may swallow them accidentally. Also, children may imitate you with serious or fatal results.

Any person who has swallowed or choked on a foreign object and has not been able to cough it up should consult a physician. It is a serious mistake to wait for other symptoms before calling a doctor.

IRS Announces Assistance Hours

District Director William E. Williams announced today that continuing daily (Monday through Friday) through March 31, 1969, taxpayer assistance will be rendered in the Boston Office located at the John F. Kennedy Building, Government Center.

On the dates indicated, Internal Revenue Service personnel will be available from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. for assistance to all taxpayers who call at the office in the preparation of their Federal income tax returns.

Mr. Williams urges all taxpayers in need of assistance to complete as much of their return as possible before calling at the office.

Taxpayers desiring telephone assistance may call 223-3441 any time from 8.30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on the dates indicated.

Opening dates for the month of April will be announced at a later date.

Snow Aids Plants

With the recent snow storms, many homeowners worry about protecting their favorite trees and shrubs.

To save outdoor shrubs until spring, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, presently planning its 98th annual Garden and Flower Show March 15-23, at Suffolk Downs, offers the following tips to homeowners.

When branches are weighted down by heavy snow and ice, evergreens and shrubs should be brushed with a broom, working carefully to protect the brittle limbs.

In instanses where damage has already occurred, broken limbs should be pruned and painted with protective substance. A supporting splint may be applied to a branch sagging under the weight of ice that cannot be removed.

Avoid the use of salt on walks immediately adjacent to evergreens, shrubs and perennial gardens. The salt builds up in the soil around the roots and may kill or damage the plant.

While the snow might do damage, Carlton B. Lees, executive director of the society, points out that it does have its benefits to gardens.

"Snow can be a blessing for plants, serving as a humid blanket, controlling temperature and reducing de-hydration from wind," Mr. Lees said.

WILLIAM R. CAMPBELL

Prizes Taxable

Massachusetts taxpayers who were lucky winners in lotteries, sweepstakes, raffles or give-away shows should report the fair market value of the prize on federal income tax returns, William E. Williams, district director of Internal Revenue for Massachusetts, says.

If the prize is an item of merchandise its fair market value should be reported. Generally, the fair market value is what the item would cost if the taxpayer were to purchase it at a retail store.

Mr. Williams said salesmen who win prizes or receive awards in company sales or promotion contests are also subject to tax on the value of the prize. Such gifts would include vacation trips to resort areas, shares of stock or merchandise.

Awards received by employees for contributions to company suggestion plans are also taxable and should be reported as income on returns.

Prizes received in recognition of past achievements in religious, charitable, scientific, educational, artistic, literary or civic fields, without action on the recipient's part are not taxable.

For more detailed information order Publicaton 525, "Taxable Income and Nontaxable Income," from the District Director, Internal Revenue Service, J.F.K. Federal Building, Boston, Massachusetts 02203.

'69 Assessment On B&M Travel To Skyrocket

Projecting a plan which could add up to $1.15 to Winchester's estimated tax rate, the MBTA Advisory Board voted last week to retain the rail service it now runs on the Boston and Maine tracks.

The vote represented both a reassurance and a threat.

It reassured Winchester that one of its best assets—its top rail service—would be retained. (Alternate plans called for partial or complete bus service instead.) And it threatened the Town with an assessment of over 13 times that estimated last spring—or with an MBTA rail tab of $229,712 rather than $17,128.

'Crisis'

Assessments would come in the form of deductions from Cherry Sheet returns, already adjusted down to the point where in its report out last week the Finance Committee termed the Town faced with "a very grave problem, one that is near the point of crisis."

Winchester has two persons representing it on MBTA planning areas:

—Representative Harrison Chadwick, also the Town's Moderator, has served on the MBTA Recess Commission and on the task force set up by Mayor Kevin White created to study three possible plans relating to commuter railroad service submitted by the MBTA Authority, and —Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr., just elected to a second term on the Board of Selectmen, who has been the town's official representative on the MBTA Advisory Board and is a member of its executive committee.

Both have been involved in the hard headed talk and planning which has been a part of the study of how the area would pay the huge annual deficit incurred by the rail commuting service.

'69 Meeting Adjourned 'Til Tonight

Town Meeting Votes Option On Marycliff

The 1969 session of the Winchester Town Meeting was adjourned after about 30 minutes a week ago tonight. It reconvenes this evening at 7:45 in the WHS auditorium.

The meeting was first challenged by Arthur Hewis who called it illegal because, although according to Town By-Law the warrants were in the Post Office on time, according to the State's General Laws they were not in the hands of voters in time.

It was adjourned, however, on the motion of the Selectmen, who felt that since the Finance Committee reports had not been received, it should not continue until elected members and citizens had time to study them.

The Special Town Meeting which preceded the regular session voted to adopt a Marycliff Acquisition Committee consisting of the Permanent Building Committee and five other persons, and to take a 90 day option to buy the school at $850,000.

There is another special warrant set for tonight: a one-article conservation request.

April 11 New Date For RR Underpass

The temporary 59-hour halt of through trains announced last week to be set to start tomorrow night at 6 p.m. has been postponed until Friday, April 11.

The Secondary School Building Committee reports that everything is ready to go. The galvanized iron underpass frame is ready to be set in the railroad overpass banking.

Delay has been caused by the fact that the Boston and Maine engineers were called to two other emergency areas and had to cancel their Winchester date.

Present schedule: Friday, April 11, 6 p.m. through passengers will be bussed from Winchester station to Winchester Highlands as announced before, vice versa going north to south. Monday, April 14 at 5 a.m. train traffic will resume.

During the halt, the tracks will be lifted just north of the Skillings by-pass; the earth removed; the tunnel set in and the earth and tracks then replaced.

Result: pedestrian tunnel to connect the new WHS with the play fields area.

Dr. Chalmers To Preach Here On Sunday

Dr. Allan Knight Chalmers will preach at the 11 a.m. service in the Methodist Church Sunday to keynote the drive for the Fund for Reconciliation.

Dr. Chalmers has given leadership in racial justice through the NAACP since the Scottsboro Case. In retirement in Kennebunkport, Maine, he continues to serve on the board of trustees of a number of colleges; as curator of the Martin Luther King Jr. papers at Boston University; and as the first Protestant appointed to the Faculty of St. Thomas College in Biddeford, Maine.

Sunday afternoon some 50 visitors, going in teams of two, will call at the homes of Methodist members and friends to receive pledges over a four-year period. Their goal is $14,475.

Some Methodists are pledging a week's salary each year for the four-year period. Parishioners are urged to remain home this Sunday afternoon to receive calls from the visitors.

Dr. Chalmers is one of this country's outstanding preachers. He served as pastor of the Broadway Tabernacle Congregational Church in New York City for 18 years and as professor of preaching and applied Christianity at Boston University School of Theology for 12 years. Among his students was Martin Luther King Jr.

His topic Sunday will be "The Passion of Christ's Spirit."

Quasi Reprieve For Austin Prep; St. Mary's, Imac To Sign For '69

The announced closing of the Austin Preparatory School was qualified yesterday when its board of trustees announced that a lay board was ready to go to work to save part of the program.

Between 40 and 50 local boys are attending the Reading school, run by Augustinian priests who announced its June closing on Monday.

Yesterday's statement implied that school buildings would still go up for sale, whatever the curriculum outcome. The tuition is expected to increase substantially.

Meanwhile St. Mary's school announced April 7 as its registration date for 1969. It enrolls about 325 from grade one (child must be six by December 31) through eight. It asks parents bring birth and vaccination certificates.

Registration for the Immaculate Conception School is expected to be announced soon.

Dual Sessions Resume Monday; Extension Days Still In Doubt

Single sessions will end tomorrow in all elementary schools, Dr. Donald A. Klemer, superintendent of schools, announced Wednesday.

Students will return to regular sessions on Monday, March 24. The schedule will be 8:30 to 11:45 a.m., and 1 to 3:15 p.m.

The school administration is still unable to announce whether or not there will be any make-up days added to the elementary school calendar due to the storms.

An application is before the State Commissioner of Education to waive the two days' loss of school by which Winchester's elementary grades will be under the legal number.

The secondary schools are not involved in any possible extension.

Conservation To Ask For Two Parcels

The Conservation Commission, Stephen A. Moore, chairman, has four articles in the regular Town Meeting warrant and in the warrant for the special session called for tonight.

It will move postponement of articles 16 and 17, both land acquisition articles.

It will ask appropriations for land acquisition under article 15, regular warrant, and under article 1 of the special warrant.

Its report to the Selectmen and Town Meeting members follows, defining its requests, for which the total probable cost to the Town is estimated at $12,650:

"The Conservation Commission has continued during the past year, with the development of a natural resource plan for Winchester, as an essential part of the commission's program for the development, preservation, and utilization of these resources.

The Natural Resource Inventory of Winchester has been completed, and distributed (at no cost to the town), and the second phase of the planning program is in progress. This program includes long range financial plans, acquisition and development priorities, and detailed utilization analysis and plans.

"Acquisition of two parcels of land for conservation purpose will be asked for at this year's town meeting.

"Both parcels are a part of an integrated plan for a green belt west of Cambridge Street. This green belt, reaching from the Lexington border to the Woburn border, encompasses Smith Pond, the feeder stream for the pond, a part of the Turkey Ridge area, and Sucker Brook.

"Article 15 of the regular town meeting is for a parcel of 10.5 acres beween High Street Extension and the Lexington border. This parcel will give the town access to more than 100 acres of Lexington conservation land, and will contain and preserve the feeder stream for the Smith Pond.

Special Session Votes Study Group On Marycliff

The March 13 Special Town Meeting was opened with a prayer by the Reverend Dr. Robert A. Storer of the Unitarian Church, whose resignation had been announced in the Star of that morning.

Moderator Harrison Chadwick noted it would likely be Dr. Storer's last time before the Meeting, spoke of Dr Storer's many contributions to the life of the community and said, "We are richer to have had you here, Bob."

Committee Of 10

The Moderator then went right into the motion of the only article listed under the Special Town Meeting warrant: It asked the voters to form a Marycliff Academy Acquisition study Committee to consist of the Permanent Building Committee plus

Regular Session Aborted Due To Late Report

The abortive regular session of the Town Meeting appeared to be going to get underway at about 8:45 Thursday night, immediately following the Special Town Meeting.

Moderator Chadwick opened by noting that he had examined the constable's returns and found them in order.

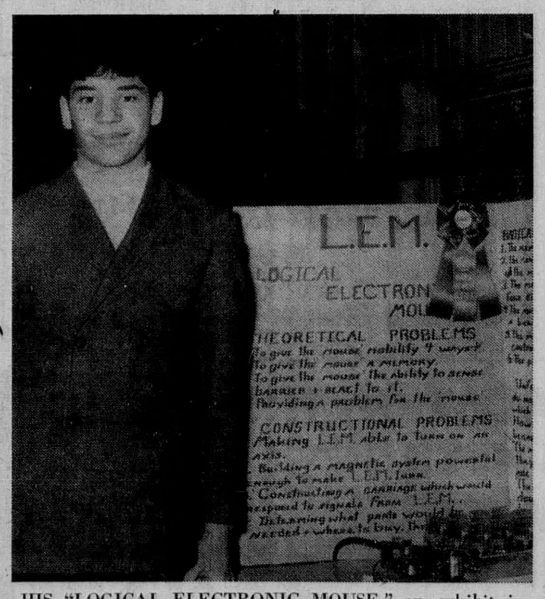

Arthur Hewis asked from the back of the room that he read the returns.

The Moderator complied, noting, over the signature of Constable Joseph J. Derro on February 20, that the printed copies of the warrant had been "delivered to the Winchester Post Office on February 18."

Mr. Hewis then stated that the warrants were not delivered until February 27.

Polarized light, oil pollution, biochemistry and a "logical electronic mouse" (computer applications), were among top exhibits at McCall Junior High School's annual science fair held Friday.

The McCall Fair for 1969 included 69 projects by student experimenters.

Following afternoon judging, parents and friends were invited to study the students' efforts.

Projects in this Fair are undertaken on a purely voluntary basis, and students choose their own subjects. They included those in the physical and natural sciences and mathematics.

Exhibitors explained activities necessary to carrying the project from the birth of an idea through day-by-day research, to conclusion.

First prize winners were 7th grader Jeff Parsons for a Polarized Light display; two 8th graders in a tie, David Kent for his project on Oil Pollution, and Paul Palmer who explained Biochemistry; and William Henriques, a ninth grader whose complicated project bore the title of L.E.M., A Logical Electronic Mouse (Computer Applications).

Questions For CONCERN

CONCERN, Winchester's Committee on New Concepts of Educational and Therapeutic Needs, is currently answering under this heading questions mailed to its mailbox, Winchester Post Office Box 293 (signed or anonymous); or questions put to any one of its members.

Today's question is: "What is the most harmful drug?"

Sophomores at WHS who are participating in the Student Council Drug Program are given the following explanation, according to Peter Knight, president of the senior class and member of CONCERN;

"This is a fairly common question among teenagers and is in fact also a rather foolish one. It is almost like asking what is more painful, breaking an arm or breaking a leg. Of course both are very painful and the degree of pain is irrelevant. All drugs are harmful, but do their damage in many ways.

"Marijuana does not seem to do any physical damage. The greatest harm in taking marijuana, and many will greatly repudiate this, is that at some stage, or in some relationship with a friend, a marijuana user is urged to go on to higher drugs. Once he is persuaded onto these drugs, the physical harm will result.

"The addicting drugs such as opium, heroin and morphine, also do not do the vast physical destruction that LSD and Speed do.

"The addicting drugs do most of their harm in destroying the life of the user as he is forced to live each day for his next fix. Many would argue that this physical dependence is more harmful than the physical deterioration of other drugs because the heroin addict cannot carry on a normal life whereas an "acid head" could possibly hold a job. This argument though, seems to be as irrelavant as the pain question.

"When you ask about physical damage, the most harmful drug is not LSD as most would think, but is rather methydrine, more commonly know as "speed." Speed is a stimulant that speeds up your whole metabolism. Your heart beats faster, your lungs take in air more rapidly, your mind thinks faster, and in general your whole body is made to function faster.

"Speed is especially harmful to people with heart conditions as this speeding up can easily cause heart attacks. Speed also does damage to the kidneys, lungs, and brain as well as the heart. In general, "speed" causes a slow deterioration of all the body organs and the user will eventually die. In fact with repeated use, the speed abuser will not live for more than 5 years!"

CONCERN again urges citizens to view a teen-oriented look at the drug problem by watching the series of programs being presented by WGBH-TV entitled "Drugs, Use and Abuse."

The first of the half hour student programs will be shown on Monday, March 24 at 2 p.m. on channel 2. It will be repeated on Tuesday at 10 a.m., Channel 2 and 7:30 p.m. Channel 44; Wednesday at 2 p.m., Channel 2: Thursday at 9 a.m., Channel 2 and 7:30 p.m., Channel 44: and Friday at 8:15 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. on Channel 2.

Coach 'Henny' Knowlton Enters Hall Of Fame

COACH-ATHLETIC DIRECTOR HENRY KNOWLTON, right, Saturday honored with the Mass. High School Coaches Association Hall of Fame award, is shown at Harvard's Briggs Cage ceremonies with Principal W. Howard Niblock, who made the presentation.

The statistics of his coaching record came out with the announcement last week that Winchester's Henry Knowlton was about to enter the High School Football Coaches' Association Hall of Fame.

This week the things said about the home-grown Winchester coach, now athletic director, fill out the picture.

"In this day when the importance of character seems to have diminished, and it is a hard commodity to find in the market, Henry is a man of character. I am one of these fellows that happens to believe in models for young people, in people who not only state their convictions but live them. Henry is this kind of man."

Dr. W. Howard Niblock, Winchester High School principal, thus honored his faculty member at Harvard's Briggs Cage Saturday morning during the presentation ceremonies which brought the energetic athlete the award for outstanding service to high school football.

Henny is always in the Star office to tell the story about players, coaches . . others. This time others have trouped in to say nice things about Henny.

SAVING.

The habit that grows on you.

Regular saving is a very interest-ing habit. And smart people don't try to cure it. They just add a few dollars to their regular savings account, regularly. At the same time, we add steady, generous dividends. So why don't we get together? As you can see, a regular savings account is very rewarding.

Rotarians Hear Dr. Alpert Speak On Poison Prevention

Dr. Joel Alpert, executive secretary of the Boston Poison Information Center, was the guest speaker at the Rotary Luncheon meeting on Thursday, March 13.

In the course of his speech Dr. Alpert, who lives here at 6 Partridge Lane, told the group that the Poison Information Center receives approximately 20,000 emergency calls a year.

A small portion of the cost involved is being picked up by State and Boston City funds, he said, and the four hospitals in Boston who staff the information center are presently underwriting the great majority of the expense involved.

He said there is presently a Senate bill number 940 under consideration which would have the State provide the money to operate a sufficient number of information centers throughout Massachusetts to do the necessary job in aiding people in Posion Information.

He also mentioned the fact that Boston Poison Information Center has been active in a number of Poison Prevention programs.

Dr. Alpert reminded Rotarians that Poison Prevention week is March 16-22. A ten-minute question and answer period concluded his presentation.

THE MAY S.A.T.'s DO REVIEW COURSES REALLY HELP?

Most assuredly, review courses help those students who have no reading problem. For these students our intensive review courses will provide total familiarity with the format of S.A.T. examinations, practice in taking this type of test, and develop sound examination techniques which will allow the student to work in a relaxed manner and enable him to score to the best of his ability.

All phases of the verbal part of the S.A.T. and the mathematics sections are covered. A mathematics placement test is given in order to find the weaknesses of each student.

All Classes Limited to 8 Students

VERBAL PSAT SCORES UNDER "500"

82% of the students who have received a verbal score below 500 are having some difficulty with their reading. For these students we provide a course in developmental reading which will not only improve immediate SAT scores, but establish a firm foundation for further scholastic accomplishment both at the high school and college level.

Cost Of The Ties

On a May day in 1835 everyone in town lined the bright, new rail tracks to see the first train pull into Winchester from Boston. Since then the railroad has been a large factor in the economic life of the town and since then it has been taken for granted.

"In the beginning it was thought of as a means of transporting freight only," says Chapman's "History of Winchester," curiously connecting early rail ownership philosophy with the current thinking which has threatened the service over the past few years.

In most recent years we have had the service by virtue of the support of the State and the Metropolitan Boston Transportation Authority. But even so, all but those closely interested still look the other way. They take the town's rail service for granted.

It will be hard to continue this thinking if, as voted by the MBTA Advisory Board Friday, the rail commuter support plan is adopted the local assessment for which could cost Winchester $229,712 a year—or about $629 a day for its share of the estimated commuter deficit.

Boston is no longer taking it for granted. Tired of the assessment formula which has had it carrying 50% of the pay load for railroads when about 13% of the passengers are Bostonians, it is putting up a stiff fight to push it off onto the suburbs.

The State, which has been paying 90 percent of the cost, said last July in so many words, "count us out."

"We have had a bargain," says Representative Chadwick, acknowledging our good luck up till now. "The burden has been shifted from the cities to the towns" says MBTA Board member Sherman Saltmarsh, in substantive agreement.

Both Winchester MBTA planning associates are hopeful that the Legislature will modify the assessment formula somewhat to lighten the burden on the towns. The new formula is based 75% on Federal Census commuter count and 25% on riders boarding express stations. It would send Woburn a bill for about $175,000 and Melrose one for $364,600—or roughly a $6 tab on its tax rate. It would cut Boston from nearly $2 million down to $457,000. The Boston Globe says bluntly of it, "The new formula is a fair one. The Legislature should approve the new plan and place the financial burden where it belongs, in the suburbs."

That the cost and importance of our vital ties to the inner city come into focus this year is symbolic of many other things. To maintain it will cost us dear. To let it die would cost us dear. Face-up time is here.

Editorial Comments

When President Nixon was about to take over the White House, Time magazine's cover story had this paragraph: "After studying the evolution of Cabinets from George Washington's first appointees onward, Political Scientist Richard F. Fenno Jr. wrote: 'The Cabinet is the show window of the Administration, and a favorable reception for the group will be an asset the President can use to augment his own public image.'" Professor Fenno is a native and WHS graduate now teaching at the University of Rochester. He has authored a book entitled, "The President's Cabinet." When contacted as suggested by one of his classmates here, he answered the Star that he was not yet ready to comment on the new Cabinet. We hope to hear from him sometime on this subject.

Further tying Winchester to high governmental positions is a communiciation received this week from Mrs. Dorothy Lawson McCall, granddaughter-in-law to Winchester's Governor Sam McCall and mother of Oregon's Governor Tom McCall. Mrs. McCall first answered our query about writing us a few Winchester recollections by saying she is at work on a book in which many will be included—"The Copper King's Daughter." The copper king, of course was Winchester's Thomas W. Lawson. She included a clip from an Oregon paper announcing that her youngest son, Samuel Walker McCall, professor of political science at Bakersfield College in California, is currently teaching a course on "The New American President" examining the office of the Presidency and the newly-elected man in office.

A follow-up on our note of last week relating to the tie vote in Precinct 3 is that newcomer Robert Danley is the new Town Meeting member, not by virtue of vote, but by virtue of the gracious withdrawal of Cemetery Commissioner Lowell Smith, who responded to young Mr. Danley's interest and desire for involvement.

* * *

Again going back to last week, we would note that in order to include Dudley Kimball's letter, we had to shorten it by three paragraphs. And relating it to Mr. Borggaard's communication this week, it seems appropriate to note that Mr. Kimball had said, "Special committees appointed for particular objectives are on the wane;" and, "the formation of permanent committees has been a great help in restoring confidence even in such controversial matters as school buildings." For our money, the Marycliff Acquisition Committee appointed at the Special Town Meeting was well designed. The Permanent Building Committee is its basis, and a member of the Elementary School Building Committee has already been named to the new group. The additional members add perspective and breadth of view — something important to have before, not after, the fact.

* * *

For what was apparently a sum of reasons, the Finance Committee report was not received in the Winchester Post Office until 10:30 a.m. the day of the Town Meeting (not the day before as stated last week). It was this fact, and not the alleged lateness of the Meeting warrant which prompted the Selectmen to adjourn the Town Meeting for a week. In its report, the Committee gives its breakdown and reasoning for a recommended $100,000 cut in tthe School budget. It makes simple reading in black and white—so simple that one wonders if the reasoning may not be oversimple. It will be important to hear both sides of this issue.

Starred by the Star:

Public Works Council: We Already Have It

Editor of the Star:

It was with much interest that I read this last paragraph in the editorial in the Star of March 13th under the title, DPW: Facing the Hard Facts?

"Unless some more telling arguments are presented against what appears to be a logical restructuring in the name of better government, practical centralization and less expenditure, we would hope to see Winchester accept the cold hard facts of growth and go for the change, albeit reluctantly."

This all sounds good and was thought so in March 1947 when an Article was voted at that Town Meeting to establish a Public Works Council to hold regular meetings in January, April, July and October.

According to the Article, "Its function shall be the coordination for the use of apparatus, equipment and labor by the several town departments in construction, repair and maintenance of town and public works, and the collective purchasing of materials and supplies therefor, in such manner as it shall determine most advantageous and economical. It shall make a report in writing annually in season for printing with the reports of town officers."

At one time the Council did hold meetings but not in late years. In fact some of our Selectmen apparently knew nothing of the Council as no meetings have been recorded since 1958.

However, the Highway, Water and Sewer, Parks and Cemetery Departments have been cooperating in the use of men and equipment when needed without extra cost to the Town which would inevitably result if Winchester hired a DPW executive and staff.

Winchester has become the type of town it has due to the interest its citizens have shown by serving on the various town boards, giving freely of their time and talents. If certain of these boards are abolished as recommended by the Town Government Committee and the operation of these departments turned over to the Selectmen with a new DPW executive in charge an additional secretary will be needed, office space and sooner or later an assistant, as it would be unrealistic to expect one man to oversee all of our town services with only the help of a part-time board. How, then, will the town save money, as suggested by the Town Government Committee in their report?

Another paragraph in this same editorial states, "The Town is growing by leaps and bounds. Its services and budgets increase rapidly month by month. So far, it has had a history of good return for the money." If this is so, let's keep it that way by continuing to take advantage of the "unpaid talents" supplied by 13 elected unpaid board members and not get into a new department with an executive and staff which will certainly grow in size and cost.

Winter Worry, Spring Hope

The birch trees on my whitened lawn
Bow low beneath the snow
Each slender bole a chalk-line, drawn
To form a perfect bow.

I watch their weary fibers strain
To free that crippling weight
And pray when Spring comes round again
My graceful trees be straight.

Too Fast For Mr. Borggaard

Editor of the Star:

I found myself distinctly in the minority—all alone, in fact—after my negative vote on the Marycliff issue last Thursday night. This kind of loneliness doesn't bother me too much; I have been alone before and shall be again before I die, I expect. However, if you will bear with me I will try to explain why I voted as I did.

First, let me say that my instincts tell me that we should buy the Marycliff property or any other similar property, if and when we need it and it becomes available on the market. I am all for it, if and when it can be clearly demonstrated, (1) that we do have a need for it, either now or in the future, (2) that it is suitable, and, (3) that it is a good bargain. Here, by a "good bargain" I mean the absolute rock-bottom price that the property in question would fetch in the open market. For these reasons, and no others, should we buy it.

I came to the meeting Thursday night prepared to listen and to learn. In view of the amount of money involved—thousands, at least, perhaps a million or more, in the end, I expected to hear a really lengthy and comprehensive discussion of the matter under consideration, pro and con; discussion as to the value, the probable need for renovation, alteration, and so on; feasibility that the property could be used as it is right now to relieve the pressure of overattendance at other schools, etc., etc.

I wanted to be satisfied on these matters, and I was not prepared for the cut and dried, razzle-dazzle presentation that the matter was given. Unfortunately, I cannot think that fast; my questions went unanswered and I was far from satisfied. "When in doubt, do nothing" —well, that's what I did! Here are some of my reasons:

(1) We accepted an option to buy at the "asking price," without an appraisal having been conducted on our behalf, and for our protection. How do we know that we got the best price possible? Are we qualified to judge such matters? We set it up, in fact, so that the appraisal is to be made for us after we have become committed. Why? I am not convinced we needed to have hurried so!

(2) We by-passed our regularly constituted elementary school building committee, whose job it is to investigate such matters for us and to advise us as to their opinions and conclusions after due consideration of all the facts; and we set up in their stead a special, cumbersome, jerry-built, temporary committee whose sole function is to handle this one job and this one job alone. Why? What is so special about this one job?

(3) I agree that we should pay a fair price for this very excellent property if we do buy it. But how is a fair price to be determined, everything considered? How much is a second-hand school house, 25-years-old, worth today in the open market? We hear talk in Town Meetings frequently to the effect that any school building that is 30 years old is obsolete and in need of replacement. The people who make these statements are usually those who are connected with the education business itself, in one way or another, and could be presumed to know what they are talking about—so, if we believe them, then how much are these school buildings actually worth? I think it is a legitimate question!

(4) What about all that beautiful land—how much is that worth? Is it worth a dollar a foot? Would that be a fair price? $43,280.00 per acre? $411,160.00 for those 9 and one half acres of side-hill land. Would this be a fair price? More? Less? I do not know, I am merely asking—surely, some one should ask!

(5) How much for the buildings? They are school buildings; obviously, they cannot be used for any other purpose. This raises the question, who needs school buildings in Winchester, Mass., other than Winchester, Mass., itself? If the answer is, nobody, then that factor, the factor of an extremely limited market, should be reflected in the purchase price!

(6) "Well," I hear the question asked, "What if a real estate operator buys it, and develops it for residential purposes?" I answer, simply, that this prospect is, indeed, possible; but in my humble opinion, improbable. In the first place, he would have to buy the buildings with the land in order to get the land. After having bought them they would be of no use to him whatsoever; in fact, he would find them to be an extremely expensive liability. He would have to demolish them, break up the foundations, fill in the cellars, and then haul away the excess rubble. He would then be obligated to put in streets, sewers, curbings, utilities, landscaping and grading, and all the other costly things that go with large scale developing today. All of these things would tend to make the venture extremely expensive and hazardous, in my opinion.

Now, most people, I am sure, can think all of these things out in a matter of seconds—or at least, in a half hour or so; but I just cannot think that fast, so I could not go along with them. I am still far from convinced that we did the right thing by acting so hastily; I think we could have saved ourselves some money—quite a bit of money, in fact—had we been willing to wait and to dicker a little before we committed ourselves. (Of course we can still forfeit our $2,500 "binder" and start all over again, if that should prove to be to our advantage.)

Yours very truly,
Clarence S. Borggaard

'Off My Feet'

Editor of the Star:

At the Town Meeting on Thursday night, Harrison Chadwick spoke some words that brought the townspeople present to their feet. Well, it took me "off my feet."

I couldn't think of a word to say as a way of thanking the good people of Winchester for their warm recognition of my presence here these past 19 years.

I wish to say now that Winchester has been my home, my good home, and to paraphrase William Cowper I will say: "With all her faults I love her still."

I regret leaving our town, but I look forward to the time when I will be back in this area again.

Gratefully,
Robert A. Storer, D.D.

League Guide Much Appreciated

Editor of the Star:

I want to take this opportunity to thank the League of Women Voters for the very informative booklet entitled "Guide to Town Meeting Members," which was printed and published as a public service by this very civic minded group and made available to every town meeting member at the March 13th Town Meeting.

Speaking for myself, and I am sure for all other Town Meeting members, I know that it will be of great assistance as we partake in the actions of town meeting.

Sincerely,
Henry C. Heitz Jr.

Who Would Run The Show?

Editor of the Star:

Last week the Star published an article—"Mass. Taxpayers Stand Against State Pay Raises," which quoted Frank Zeo's statements on a pay raise for State Employees.

First of all, Who does Mr. Zeo's organization represent? How many taxpaying citizens reading this article belong to "his" organization? Or is it an organization backed by big business? I would like to know the facts about this, myself.

Mr. Zeo referred to the $88 million pay boast for State employees as wasteful. Does he forget that we State workers also have to pay taxes—that in the last two years the cost of living has risen almost 10 percent?

It's been several years now, since we've received our last raise, and when we did get our last raise we were no where near to a competitive salary with private industry. In the meantime, while everyone else was getting a salary increase, we were left behind.

Our neighbors to the South (Connecticut) got a sizeable adjustment in salary last year and this year they're up for another 30 percent raise. They are at least close to private industry.

As for fringe benefits, now, almost every employer offers benefits equal to or better than Massachusetts'.

Let's look at some departments. A Junior Civil Engineer (D.P.W.) with a B.S. degree starts with a salary of approximately $7,300 per year, with a 9 percent increase it would still be less than $8,000. Is that equal to private industry?

How about the State Police, the "cream of the crop." Everyone knows what they have to go through. (But then again, no policeman is really paid enough.) Or how about the people working in our mental institutions, they're not even in the ball park. Those are just a few.

Everyone read about the "whooping" raises our Governor advised for administrative and Department heads. What was said about that? What is good for the goose is good for the gander. We are only "career employees."

I know after reading the above paragraphs some will probably say "well, if you're not happy, leave." All well and good. But, just think, if every State employee took that statement for what it is worth, who would run the show?

I know you can't take it with you, but I would like to see it before I leave.

Generous

Editor of the Star:

I wish to express my thanks to those in Precinct III who voted for me as Town Meeting Member in the recent town elections. But I would like particularly to thank Mr. Lowell R. Smith for the generous manner in which he assured my election.

When Mr. Smith felt assured that I would conscientiously work to fulfill the obligations of being a Town Meeting Member, he withdrew, saying as he did so that he thought I would be able to give the Town fruitful service more years than he. I sincerely hope Mr. Smith's willingness to accede to someone a bit younger than himself will be recognized and appreciated by the people of Winchester.

Respectfully yours,
Robert A. Danley

POST OFFICE procedure on delivery of official Town mail has been queried in the past weeks. This year's Town Meeting warrant was at the Post Office February 18 to be mailed at the third class rate. It was reported still there February 21. By February 27 some areas still had not received their warrants. The photo at left was taken Monday or Tuesday, February 24 or 25, when mail did not go out due to snow conditions. The question of sending the warrants first class is under discussion. BOOK REVIEW

NEW AND SELECTED POEMS

by Jean Garrigue

It is most difficult to try and write about poems. Maybe not so much after the poet is dead and has become a legend like Dylan Thomas. While a poet's still alive, we're not quite sure he has fully arrived except perhaps for Robert Frost or Robert Lowell or Denise Levertov.

Yet it is becoming more and more fashionable for critical and literary studies of poets to follow, if not hot on the heels of their published works, at least lukewarm. Such a serious study might be done for the poetry of Jean Garrigue, and of her latest volume, "New and Selected Poems."

We can't tease our mind into a professional critical or philosophical overlook. But her felicity with language and turn of phrase make her poems delightful, and very human. Here is a selection called "The Beginning," which is part of a longer poem:

You
Came drifting up to me
As a cat will seek a new home
When a summer master's left.
And I was charmed by that,
I did not ponder riddles, I esteemed
The surfaced play, the light
Inconsequential thing
And wished to be a matchfire for a moth.

If she can put a bit of magic into commonplace things, she can also evoke an air of mystery and suspense as she does in "A Dream:"

In that deep sleep I knew not
Of what I dreamed or why
Until a waking tempted me
Along rare heights to go
Into a tent of cloud or snow
Not unlike a sailing silk,
A secret thing on shuttling element
Adrift and of an eastern stamp.
All else was bird-still, cold and white
Beneath an undiscovered moon
That yet gave out a stealth of light
A mist rose to with giddy turn . . .

Fierce memory that is Co-genitor with dream
Did you speak out to me,
Another thing from another world . . .

A poem is like a picture: it's worth a thousand words, and some of that may be caught here in the beginning of "Rain Song:"

My sad-bad rain that falls
In lisp and dibble-dabble
On the porch and under stairs . . .

or in the beginning of "Of a Day and Hares:"

Durer's brown hares were in a cage
With their long soft ears laid flat,
Their oblong eyes closed, in some feigned sleep,
Only their whiskers alive
It the perpetual tremor of very fine things . . .

An in this poem she poses a question:

If we would not lose time, what would we be?
That which no doubt we are.
But does it alter? Perhaps.
If between being and doing there were not a gulf.
The animals for whom we have too much respect of a sentimental variety
Supposedly dwell in the mindless flow. Is being mindless purity?

So abstractions and ideas can tease a poet's mind, and the full meaning of a poem teases the reader's as well. When is a poet using words as symbols? Is it true in a poem, "The Brook," which begins:

The brook contains its landing under water.
There each leaf above is thus Engrossed by shadow under
Nor there the stone can sunder
Filaments that make the structure . . .

Her poetry has an immediacy, a quality that gets through and adds a new dimension to our existence. She gives us a hint of those unheard melodies that are sweeter, deeper, even whimsical, and very sane indeed.

1963 Report On D.P.W. Recalled By Mr. Rotondi

In 1963 Eugene B. Rotondi, presently a Town Meeting Member from Precinct 1, chaired a five-man committee entitled the "Public Works Study Committee," which reported in to the annual Meeting of that year.

The Committee report did "not (at this time) recommend favorable action on the adoption of a board of public works as set forth in section (the General Laws)."

It included, however, a report of "positive convictions" on the subject. In addition it asked for central maintenance for all town vehicles; more forceful supervision of available manpower; and better cooperation between all departments among other things.

Mr. Rotondi dissented from his group's report and submitted a minority report to the Town. He has available for study copies of both reports.

Want DPW Board

Mr. Rotondi's report was (and still is) clearly in favor of a Board of Public Works due to its "greater efficiency...leading to increased value at minimum costs."

He pointed, in 1963, to lack of cooperation between departments at some times and noted that "A Board of Public Works will not call for the elimination of any personnel now employed in key positions of departments involved."

His report also attacked the "excessive overtime" he contended existed in the departments and envisaged the engineering for the Town to be encompassed in the DPW (which the 1969 request does not).

Mr. Rotondi is still in favor of a DPW. He expects to speak on Town Meeting floor on the subject. He does not agree that the Selectmen should make up an advisory board for this department but holds to a separate DPW board structure

Mr. Saraco Speaks At VNA Meeting

Michael D. Saraco, director of the Winchester Board of Health spoke to the Visiting Nurse Association at the Monthly Board meeting in the Unitarian Church on Friday, March 14th.

Mr. Saraco is secretary of the executive board of the Massachusetts Health Officers Association and is currently serving as a member of the State Advisory Committee on Public and Environmental Health Courses of Community Colleges throughout the state.

Health education and services go hand in hand, Mr. Saraco said. Cooperation between all health agencies both public supported and volunteer is necessary for public health education. Through this pluralistic approach, we can achieve our long range goals, he added.

Mr. Saraco brought to the Visiting Nurse Association news of current public health legislation, concerning medicaid being taken out of Welfare and transferred into Public Health. Regardless of the outcome of this bill, determination of eligibility still would rest on the Welfare Department. There would be no effect on our local Board of Health.

The greatest problem, Mr. Saraco noted, would be methods of payments, therefore, the state plans to contract payments out to a large Health Insurance Company that has advanced computerized methods of payment.

Mosquito Control

Locally, Mr. Saraco described the mosquito control program. This year Winchester is embarking on a larvacide program, which will involve spraying town owned areas that are likely to be breeding spots for mosquitoes. He asked public cooperation in April, May and June in eliminating stagnant areas where larvae may be found.

Mr. Saraco also said the incinerator would be out of action for 18 weeks. Every effort will be made to enable residents to dump into the incinerator and rubbish will be collected from there and spread into sanitary landfill during this period.

No outdoor burning will be allowed as Winchester is a member of the Metropolitan Air Pollution Control District.

Mrs. Charles L. Moore, president of the Visiting Nurse Association, presided over the meeting. A report of other committees preceded Mr. Saraco's speech. It was noted that a letter of thanks went to En Ka for their donation to the visiting Nurses, which was used for furnishings in the Visiting Nurse office on Fairmount Street.

Record as a Gentleman

One of the nicest tributes comes from former arch rival Walter White, who concurrently coached the Woburn teams.

"Your record as a football coach is probably the best in the state, but beside that your record as a gentleman is even greater. A good many coaches and athletic directors of today wouldn't be where they are now without your guidance and words of wisdom."

And the Woburn Times Bob Varey—"It couldn't happen to a nicer guy."

The Times goes on to credit Henny with much of the success Winchester has had in all sports in the last two decades, and to remind of the feeder programs he set up reaching down into elementary schools and of how "his generosity more or less backfired on him" as he allowed others to copy his system and eventually to catch up with the Sachems.

Top Team

A lot of well known local people played on the 1927 team captained by Henny or with him in earlier years—Fire Chief Frank Amico, his brother Arka, Officer Bill Callahan, Bill Lynch, Nick Fitzgerald, Pete Cause, Herb Nelson and Angie Ghirardini, just to mention a few.

The coach who notched 204 wins, 72 losses and 17 ties in 26 years of coaching went on to captain the team at Springfield College after he was graduated from WHS.

He has turned out many outstanding college players who have made their mark on gridirons all over the country—none rated higher than Navy's Heisman Cup winner, Joe Bellino. Four of his teams were undefeated.

The ceremonies Saturday were sandwiched into a busy two-day football clinic for area coaches. Winchester's staff was there in force.

The honor their director was awarded was one shared by the whole town. (B.L.P.)

Conservation

Total Cost (excluding taxes), $26,000.

Probable Fed. and State Reimbursement, $19,350.

Probable Cost to Town, $6,650.

This area is considered by the Conservation Commission to have the highest priority.

"Article 1 of the Special Town Meeting on March 20 is for a parcel of 5 acres on Sucker Brook, between Ridge Street and Cambridge Street on the Woburn border.

Total Cost (excluding taxes), $20,000.

Probable Fed. and State Reimbursement, $14,000.

Probable Cost to Town, $6,000.

"This area is an important segment of the proposed Sucker Brook green belt, extending from the proposed Vinson-Owen expansion site to the Woburn line. Sucker Brook rises in a bog area just north of Olde Lyme Road, flows down a steep slope where a small waterfall occurs during the spring, past a birch grove, and through a swamp in a small valley on the Woburn line.

"A dam in Woburn could create a pond of about 7 acres in this area, suitable for fishing and skating, a waterfowl area, and a focal point for a picnic area. The land on the Woburn side is included in the Woburn Master Plan as a conservation area.

"This parcel is now up for sale (since January—too late for the regular Annual Town Meeting), and the price has been agreed upon with the owner. An access easement is included.

Indefinite Postponement

"Article 16 and 17 will be indifinitely postponed, since agreement could not be reached with the owners.

"Two federal programs are available, each paying 50% of the cost of acquisition and legal costs. The state program is for 50% of the non-federal share of the acquisition cost. The maximum total which can be obtained is 75% of the acquisition cost, plus 50% of the legal costs.

"The acquisition costs include any court settlement above and beyond the appraised value. These programs leave the town with control of the use of the land. The Conservation Commission has been notified that reimbursements totaling $8,450 have been approved for a previous $11,000 land purchase. Part of this amount has been received."

Vocational Head To Be Chosen This Week

Four candidates will be tested and rated on March 22 to select a director for the Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School now under construction in Wakefield to serve Winchester and 11 other communities.

The Division of Vocational Education of the State Department of Education will conduct the written examination from 10 a.m. to noon at Lynnfield High School.

At 1:30 p.m. the same day, two representatives of the state agency and three representatives of the Regional School Committee will comprise a rating board for an oral examination of the candidates.

The four candidates will then face a final interview before the entire Committee, including Captain J. Edward Sharkey, USN (Ret.), Winchester's newly elected representative. Superintendent of Schools Dr. Donald A. Klemer has also been invited to participate in the final screening of the candidates, along with the other area superintendents.

Only one of the candidates is from Massachusetts, while the others are from Pennsylvania, Delaware and Vermont. These four, whose names have not been revealed by the Committee, were screened from an original list of more than 50 applicants for the post from across the country.

Although the Committee will settle on its top choice after the day-long examinations on March 22, a formal vote won't be taken until the annual organizational meeting of the School Board on April 1 at Malden High School.

At the last regular meeting of the Regional Board, held March 13 in Malden, the Committee voted unanimously to reduce the 1969 operating budget by $139,500 for a new total operating budget figure of $421,730.58. This action was the result of an announced delay of the school opening and represents reductions in salary and other accounts since the hiring date of personnel was also postponed from July 1 to September 1.

Originally scheduled to open in September, 1969, the opening date has been delayed until January, 1970.

For the past two years the State has paid 90% of the B and M deficit subsidy and the cities and towns 10%.

Bargain No More

"We've had a very great bargain for the last couple of years due to the State subsidy, and this will not come again," said Representative Chadwick, reminding that "The good thing is that the rail plan has a chance to prevail."

Mr. Chadwick doesn't expect that the Legislature will accept the drastically revised assessment formula.

He believes the final assessment to Winchester will be "more than double but less than quadruple the prior $17,128." and that Boston will win its fight to cut its share way down, but not to quite as much as it appeared to have in the vote last week.

Looks To Legislature

Mr. Saltmarsh thinks we'll be paying "at least four or five times what we have before."

"I think it's going to come down to a system wherein the operating costs will be born by the sum of the communities and the debt service picked up by the State."

"I'm hopeful we'll have far more success with the Legislature than with the Advisory Board...the burden has now shifted from the major cities to the suburbs—but it's still unfair, the pendulum should swing back a little more the other way... We must have something more equitable," said Mr. Saltmarsh.

Hot Meeting

The meeting Friday was as heated as the MBTA Advisory Board has seen, and it has seen some heat.

Boston, which has carried 50% of the rail assessment, led the push to give it to the Towns that have the service. It was backed by the other core cities and towns. On paper they were very successful.

Before the group were three plans: A, for a minimum capital investment program to retain commuter railroad service; B, a substitute bus service completely to replace the trains and, C, a maximum capital investment program to keep the trains.

Mr. Chadwick and Mr. Saltmarsh joined with Wakefield's executive secretary to the Selectmen, John McCarthy, to offer a motion asking that, under A, the present formula for assessing the cities and towns be retained until a complete study or review could be made (by the Legislature).

Cambridge City Manager James Sullivan then countered with a substitute motion asking, in fact, that nothing be done.

Mr. Saltmarsh rose to challenge the "do nothing" move and call it irresponsible. Since the MBTA Advisory Board had last spring been explicitly told by the Legislature that it must do something

He also said the Legislature is better equipped than the Board to research the problem.

The Cambridge motion was withdrawn. But the Board next voted down the Wakefield-Winchester motion. It then went on to vote the so-called Plan A plan.

State subsidy ends for Boston and Maine rail service in July. Mr. Chadwick reports his Recess Commission already at work trying to find an assessment formula more acceptable to all towns and cities involved. (B.L.P.)

Spec. Session

a member to be appointed by the Moderator and one by each of the following boards: Selectmen, School Committee, Finance Committee, Planning Board. The motion also asked appropriation of $2,500 for a 90-day option.

John Dolan, retiring School Committee member, came to the podium microphone.

He reviewed the availability of Maryclff to the Town, noting that a day before the official notice of the school's closing, a "representative" of Maryclff contacted the School administration.

Subsequently, he said, the school authorities together with other board representatives viewed the school and took every step possible to convey the high interest of the Town in the proposition.

Asking $850,000

Asking price is $850,000, Mr. Dolan reported, and this price is that which has been the basis for discussion, he told one questioner.

Selectmen's Chairman Charles Doucette Jr. reported his Board unanimously behind the night's motion, as did Chairman Barbara Walsh of the School Committee, and Robert Grenzebach speaking for the Finance Committee.

Earle Littleton, speaking for the Elementary School Building Committee spoke its support.

He added that he was, however, "disturbed by the procedure" to be followed from the time the option is taken and the purchase or possible purchase.

"We ask that in addition to study and option that additional monies (be included) for an architect to see what would have to be done."

He added that he would have to go on record with "tender sensibilities showing" since the framers of the motion do not appear to "have confidence in the ESBC."

(At all previous public interboard discussions of the possible Marycliff acquisition, Mr. Littleton has been the one public figure who has publicly questioned the wisdom of such a purchase on the basis of the economics of buying a 30-year-old school.)

Could Be Modified

Pressed by a questioner, Mr. Dolan allowed that the "discussed" price could be modified if the Town Meeting saw fit to do it. (The questioner had said, "If the property should be worth $750,000.)

Realtor Richard Murphy pressed on the same issue and got from Mr. Dolan a statement that it is "not a take-it-or-leave-it reality."

In answer to High School Building Committee Chairman Arthur Dunbar, Mr. Dolan averred that the Acquisition Committee would have no authority to negotiate as a real estate agent.

Mr. Dunbar followed this up by asking questions aimed at "Making sure there is really enough money (in the motion) to do it" properly.

Mr. Dolan answered that monies for architectural studies previously appropriated were already at use, and Mr. Littleton told the Members that Architect Frank Crimp had already spent some time making studies of Marycliff.

The meeting voted affirmative with one nay. This forced a standing vote and Clarence Borggaard got a hand when he stood as the only negative vote; 143 voted yes.

Jeremiah McCarron moved immediate adjournment of the special meeting.

Reg. Session

'Illegal'

"This Meeting is illegal. It should stand in adjournment until the matter is clarified."

The Moderator turned to Town Counsel, Leonard Mullen, who reported the situation had arisen before and that the Town by-laws state the Selectmen "shall mail the warrant seven days before."

"They were there on the 18th. In my opinion the Selectmen have complied with the by-laws."

Mr. Hewis asked to speak.

Selectman John Sullivan rose to object, asking a point of order at having a non Town Meeting Member (Mr. Hewis) speak.

The Moderator denied the objection, ruling that as no motion was before the Meeting, a voting member of the Town could speak.

Mr. Hewis came to the front of the auditorium and told the Meeting that no matter what the by-laws say, the General Laws of the State dictate that a warrant by Selectmen "should be delivered" seven days before (the Meeting).

By-laws may designate ways of delivery, he went on, pointing out that some Towns use a public posting or other ways to comply.

Going on to speak of the Post Office, he said, "Why the 6,900 pieces of mail lay on the floor... somebody ought to see,...somebody goofed," he said.

Adjourned

Mr. Doucette rose next, and without making reference to the issue of the legality of the Meeting, said his board felt that the Meeting should be adjourned to allow for the Members to study the Finance Committee reports, not available to that day or just before.

The moderator's original motion relative to consecutive Monday and Thursday sessions was then amended to include omission of Monday night, March 17, and the meeting adjourned for the night at 9:10.

Glee Club From Indiana To Appear

The Wabash College Glee Club, from Crawfordsville, Indiana, will sing in Chidley Hall, First Congregational Church on Wednesday evening, April 2 at 8:30 p.m.

Consisting of 40 male singers, the Wabash Glee Club won international fame during a seven-nation tour of Europe in 1963. A second European tour in 1967 included visits to Great Britian, France, Germany, Italy, Austria, Belgium and Luxemburg.

The Glee Club also was invited to sing at the New York World's Fair in September 1964.

In recent years the Glee Club has made numerous tours throughout the Midwest, singing before audiences in Illinois, Ohio, Missouri, and, of course, Indiana. In alternate years the Wabash group also takes a spring vacation tour. In 1967, this included performances before alumni audiences in Washington D.C., New York City and Boston.

By popular demand, the Glee Club repertoire has remained rather constant down through generations of Wabash students. It ranges from spirituals down through ballads and pop songs to a wide selection of early century religious numbers.

Derivatives: Blood Is Used

If blood isn't used in 21 days, it is broken down for other blood products.

There are four important derivatives. One, called AHF, can stop the otherwise uncontrollable bleeding in hemophilia—another reason for you to give blood if you never have.

First-time donors could make the difference between having a supply of blood for such uses. Telephone the Red Cross chapter today (729-2300) to make an appointment to give blood—March 31 at the Winchester Unitarian Church.

"Set your affection on things above, not on things on the earth." This is the Golden Text of the Bible Lesson-Sermon to be heard at Christian Science churches this Sunday. The subject is "Matter."
Passages from the denominational textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, will include the following: "To ascertain our progress, we must learn where our affections are placed and whom we acknowledge and obey as God. If divine Love is becoming nearer, dearer, and more real to us, matter is then submitting to Spirit. The objects we pursue and the spirit we manifest reveal our standpoint, and show what we are winning."

Multiple Listing Notes Sales Rise In Past Year

The Multiple Listing Service of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board established an all-time record sales volume during 1968 according to Gordon Thompson, chairman of the Service's District I, of which Winchester is a part.

"The total dollar volume of sales during the 12 month period ending December 31, 1968 was $27,708,105. This figure represents a 49.2 percent increase over the 1967 figure of $18,572,039. By contrast, the 1966 figure was $12.3 million."

The dollar volume resulted from the sale of 1,174 homes in Boston and its 56 surrounding cities and towns, or 306 more homes sold through MLS than last year. The average price of a home sold through MLS last year was $23,601, as compared to the $21,396 figure for the corresponding period in 1967 reported Mr. Thompson.

The district chairman pointed out that the increased average sales price does not, of itself, necessarily reflect a rising market.

"What is indicative, however, is that more and more higher priced homes are being sold through MLS, another factor signifying public acceptance of the many advantages offered by MLS."

Approximately 200 offices in the Greater Boston area offer multiple listings to their clients.

The Boston Board's Multiple Listing Service is currently in the process of arranging for the installation of Realtron, a nationwide computer.

"Through the use of the computer, an MLS office will be able to uncover, within five seconds, all of the homes in a given area which fit a prospect's wishes," Mr. Thompson avers.

State Council Supports Project In Shakespeare

The council of the arts and humanities of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has announced its support of an educational project to promote student interest in the performing arts.

The Council, through a contract with the North Shore Community Arts Foundation, will encourage high school pupils in specified Greater Boston school systems to attend live performances of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew," starring John Cullum, at the North Shore Music-Theatre in Beverly.

The popular Shakespearean comedy will be staged this May by the North Shore Community Arts Foundation as its seventh annual Shakespeare program for students at the North Shore Music-Theatre.

The non-profit Arts Foundation will present morning and afternoon performances of "Shrew" May 5-24.

Special lecture programs will be provided by the North Shore Community Arts Foundation to familiarize students with the play and to prepare them for the experience of a live theatrical performance.

While the Foundation's Shakespeare Program is designed primarily for school audiences, the general public may attend the production at the Music-Theatre in Beverly.

Further information on the Shakespeare program for students is available from the North Shore Community Arts Foundation, Box 62, Beverly.

Committee Meets To Plan Program For Health Aides

A new Homemaker-Home Health Aide Committee, organized by United Community Services of Metropolitan Boston (USC) and headed by Mrs. Alfred E. Fernald of 76 Church Street, held its second meeting Wednesday, March 19, at the Melrose Red Cross Chapter building.

This committee has been organized to develop a proposal for the introduction of Homemaker-Home Health Aide services in eight communities now without these services.

Communities in this planning effort include Melrose, Stoneham, Winchester, Woburn, Wakefield, Burlington, Reading and North Reading.

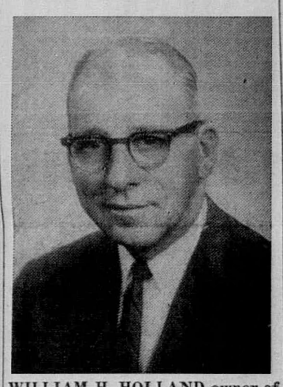

Through the efforts of the USC North Central Area Planning Division, headed by Oliver T. Bergstrom of 19 Sheffield Road, plans have resulted in the formation of this new committee.

The Homemaker-Home Health Aide Committee is currently discussing issues involved in establishing a new non-profit service such as sponsorship, administrative guidelines, services to be offered, finances and staffing, including recruitment, training and supervision of homemakers-home health aides.

The service, when established, will provide trained and supervised women who will perform certain housekeeping duties and personal care services in homes where the mother is ill or where an ill individual cannot adequately care for himself.

The homemaker-home health aide does light housework, cares for children and, under the supervision of the home health agency, gives simple personal care to the patient.

Committee members include Miss Gloria Pearson and Mrs. Donald McLean of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association and Mrs. Margaret Moore of the Winchester Hospital.

WILLIAM H. HOLLAND owner of Bullen Real Estate, Realtors, 17 Waterfield Road, has been elected to the board of directors of the Eastern Middlesex Board of Realtors Inc. He recently completed a course by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers on Real Estate Office Management held at the Framingham Motor Inn. The Eastern Middlesex Board is comprised of realtors in the towns of Reading, Stoneham, Melrose, Wakefield, North Reading, Woburn and Wilmington. Bullen Realtors are active members of the Greater Boston and Eastern Middlesex Multiple Listing Services.

Bunny Parade Greets Spring In Waltham On Sunday

Spring fever takes over in Waltham this Sunday (March 23) as as the Grover Cronin Original Easter Bunny Parade gets off to a flying start at 3:00 p.m. New faces and old favorites seek to give everyone's spirit a lift.

The fun will begin as the Bunny 'copter, piloted by Rex Trailer of WBZ-TV, lands with his passenger Bunny at the Reece Corporation, Waltham.

Bozo the Clown of WHDH-TV will extend a hearty 'hello' to the distinguished Bunny. Other TV personalities joining to greet the young ones will be Willie Whistle of Channel 38 and Mr. Bunker Hill of Channel 56.

The Easter Bunny will then jump on his flower-laden float to highlight the traditional parade. Strike up the band and the festive formation begins its exciting journey, followed by storybook characters, marching drill teams, clowns, and stunt men.

From the Reece Corporation, the parade will progress to Prospect Street, down Main to Elm, and around the corner to Grover Cronin on Moody Street.

Look for Goldilocks and the Three Bears, Little Red Riding Hood and the Big Bad Wolf, and Cinderella with her Prince Charming. One can spot Alice in Wonderland, the Queen of Hearts, Little Boy Blue, Donald Duck, Goofy, Pluto, and Flower the Skunk. Mickey Mouse will drive by in his psychedelic car!

Stuntmen and clowns will go to all lengths to amuse and bemuse. And Zippy the TV chimp will be sure to mimic the spectators. Also on hand will be Hill Billies and Yogi the Bear, with cheery greetings for all.

Leading the parade will be the Waltham High School Band. Winchester's Immaculate Conception Drum and Bugle Corps and Drill Team will be among 14 other marching units.

The club's annual food sale to benefit the Philanthropy Fund will be held before and after the program.

Girl Scouts To Hold Rally

The Mistick Side Girl Scout Council will hold a Juliette Low Rally for Junior Girl Scouts on March 22, at the Somerville High School from 9:30 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

Four representatives from every Junior troop throughout the Council will attend in uniform.

Marion Roberts with her accordion will teach folk dancing and Sally Bridges with her ukelele will lead a sing out. Many of the troops have made international flags and they will be presented to the council at this time.

The Juliette Low World Friendship Fund contributions will be collected. Neighborhood rallies for Brownie, Junior, Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts will be held in most of the communities.

When the Mistick Side Girl Scouts give to the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund they are finding one way to carry out the fourth Girl Scout Law: "A Girl Scout is a friend to all and a sister to every other Girl Scout."

As Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scouts, said, "International Friendship begins in your home or community, when you first know and respect people of many nationalities, faiths, and races—whose languages, sustoms, beliefs, clothes, foods may differ from yours."

Mistick Side Girl Scout Council is a member of the United Community Services and receives funds from the Massachusetts Bay United Fund.

The race for first place gets tighter, as the second place Alley Kats took a 3-1 decision over the Deadwoods.

Anna Pierce of the Kats had the morning's high series of 280. The Kats pulled to within 3 points of the first place Candoliers, who lost 3-1 to the Yellow Birds.

To make the race even tighter, the high flying Hillbillies just won't give up! They've spent most of the season in the cellar, but the past few weeks have really come to life. They defeated the Impossible Dreams 4-0 to move to third place, only 5 and one half points out of first place.

Maria Dulchinos, Ann Redmond, Adele Metrick and Pat DiSilva have really been bowling up a storm for the Hillbillies.

Betty Morgan wouldn't be one to sit back and let someone take over the lead for first place. Therefore, Betty bowled a 123 and a three string total of 315 to bring herself, once again, into first place.

In the meantime, Joan Gorrasi feels she still has a chance also. She's not very far behind and a few more strings similar to the 122 she bowled March 12 will help.

Other high bowlers this week were Emily Farioli 118 and Emma Provinzano 115.

Girl Scout Diary

On Sunday, March 9, Girl Scout Sunday was observed in the Immaculate Conception Parish by Brownie, Junior, and Cadette troops from the Immaculate Conception, Noonan, and Lynch schools.

Approximately 185 Scouts and their mothers attended 10 a.m. Mass, and afterward were served coffee, juice and pastries in the school hall.

Yellow roses for the tables were made by Junior Troop 492 under the leadership of Mrs. Alfred Landry.

Susan Landry, Beth Halloran, Carol McElhenney, and Kathy Noble, Troop 492, served as ushers at the Mass.

The Girl Scout Birthday, March 12, was celebrated by all registered adults at an International Dinner held at the Methodist Church.

The menu, which included dishes from France, China, Hawaii, Canada, and Sweden, was perpared by Cadette Troop 506, McCall Junior High, supervised by Mrs. Kenneth Donaghey, and served by Cadette Troop 510, Lynch Junior High.

A flag ceremony was followed by a sing session, both conducted by Senior Girl Scouts of Troop 444.

A short plea for conservation in Winchester was presented by Mrs. Nolan Jones.

Congratulations to Senior Scout Sally Hayden, Troop 544, who has been selected first by Mistick Side Council, then by Region 1, to participate in the Creative Arts Conference in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania this summer.

While living at Moore College of Art for five days, Sally will have the opportunity to delve into the art form of her choice under the guidance of faculty members of local art schools. There will also be opportunities to hear the music of the Philadelphia Orchestera, and for drama at the Playhouse in the Park and the Theatre of the Living Arts.

Awards Night Closes Hockey Season

Before an overflow crowd of more than 300 people at the Washington School, Winchester Youth Hockey closed out another successful season.

Director Bill Cruwys opened the night with a talk to the boys and their parents. He pointed out when this first began there were around 60 boys. It has now grown to over 170 playing in the system.

He also stressed that although athletics are an important part of youth activity, school work comes first and every boy should do his utmost to keep his grades on a high level.

A film of the 1968 Stanley Cup Finals between the Montreal Canadiens and St. Louis Blues was shown.

The first awards of the night were given to the two Championship teams from both rinks. The Flyers in the small rink were coached by Bill Coppins and Bill Paglia.

The coaches presented individual trophies to their players. Coach Bob Murray of the Bruins, winners in the big rink, received congratulations from Director Cruwys and then awarded his trophies to his team.

Winchester Youth Hockey had four teams this year in outside competition, and they came out with two championship teams. The Pee Wee "A" team coached by Jim Murphy went undefeated, winning their division, while the Bantam "A" team coached by Nick Troiano won their individual league and are still engaged in the playoffs.

Both coaches presented thir players with trophies as mementoes of this occasion.

Coach Murphy presented the most valuable player award to defenseman Kevin Pierce while Winger Mark Siegfriedt received the most improved.

Director Cruwys called on all the coaches and referees in both the small and large rink and presented them with mementoes and thanked them for all the help the past season.

The last trophy to be presented was the Herb Wood Memorial Trophy presented to the boy who has done the most for Youth Hockey during his time with the association. This year co-winners were Jim Beck and Billy Harris. Both Beck and Harris are sophomores in high school and played varsity hockey last year.

Before breaking up the awards night, Director Cruwys introduced Bill Kimball who is chairman of the Town Rink Committee. Mr. Kimball spoke briefly on the need for a rink in the town. This will come up in the Town Meeting.

He urged all parents who are interested in hockey to contact their town meeting precinct members and urge them to vote for this endeavor.

The article is not for the rink but only for the appropriation to study the feasibility of a rink.

With a Town rink, more boys could get into this fast growing program and more time could be acquired for the boys. This would not only benefit the hockey buffs, but also find time for public skating.

Band music will be featured Saturday, March 29 when the Barrington, Rhode Island, High School band joins the Winchester High School band in an Exchange Band Concert.

Included among the selections will be music by Henry Mancini, highlights from "Camelot," and Lady of Spain, in addition to the march music traditional to this type of instrumental group.

The weekend visit by the Barrington band will begin the 28th with social activities and overnight accommodations provided by members of the Winchester band.

Winchester will take its band members to Barrington where they will perform with them during the week of April 11 and 12.

Cadets From St. Eulalia's Down Glenwood

St. Eulalia's Cadets beat Glenwood School of Malden in quarter finals of the Eastern Massachusetts pre-teen basketball tournament at Somerville High School.

Tim Porter starred with 13 points and controlled both offensive and defensive backboards.

Mike Heffernan played an outstanding floor game and contributed 11 points.

Tom Deshler and Mike Luzzo, who played very little during the year, did a fine job when forced into action when Wayne Dennis was fouled out.

The boys from Winchester play again at Somerville High School Sunday, March 23 in the semi-finals.

Pee Wees Down Chelmsford

The Winchester Pee Wee B hockey team shook itself from a two week slump to upset Chelmsford 2-1 this past Sunday.

Chelmsford opened the scoring in the first period on a disputed goal with players lying all around the goal-mouth.

Winchester came back to tie it just before the period ended when Steve Murphy won a face-off, getting the puck to Will Paglia who skated in and caught the inside of the post with his shot.

The first line put Winchester in front to stay early in the second period when Steve Murphy and Allyn Stillman were stymied on short range shots by the Chelmsford goalie, but Will Paglia was there to pick up the rebound and flip it home.

After this, neither team was able to score although Winchester had many shots on goal.

Pete Frongillo was strong in the nets when called upon to come up with the save to stay ahead, but the defense was outstanding in allowing very few shots on net.

Leading the defense corps were Tom Allyn, Kevin Pronski, Mark Milley, Charley Deroo, Dan Whitney, Phil Neergaard, Mike Donnelly and Kevin Julian.

The second line of Kevin O'Neil, Frank Ryan and Mike Jeannette along with third liners Larry O'Grady, Jay Frongillo and Dave Putnam kept the Chelmsford defense busy all night. Next week's opponent is Westford at 4 p.m. in Bedford.

Elected '70 Captains

GOALIE FRED CAMMON AND CENTER JAY O'LEARY have just been elected to head the Sachem stickmen through their '69-'70 season. Both have been outstanding this year. The two also are neighbors and started out in hockey together in the Winchester Youth Hockey program. They played together on the championship C.Y.O. hockey team three years ago. Both have held the same positions throughout their ice careers.

Hockey Form Prevails As Needham Bests Melrose For Crown

by John F. Parrell

Needham, paced by redoubtable Robbie Ftorek raced past Middlesex League titlist, Melrose and handed the Raiders a 6-3 defeat in the final game of the Eastern State Hockey Tournament played Monday at the Garden.

The winners, seeded number one, topped the jaunty Melrose skaters of Henry Hughes, who were seeded second, in spite of some serious injuries which cost them the services of some of their better players.

This year's tourney, like most of its 25 predecessors, was won the hard way after playing five pressure packed games against top notch opposition. There were few upsets except for the first round exit of Malden Catholic, the second round departure of Norwood and the quarter final defeat of Marblehead.

Other than these games, form prevailed and the smaller schools or those playing in slower leagues fell out of competition early.

History shows that the big seven Melrose, Arlington, Needham, Norwood, Malden Catholic, Marblehead and Walpole have provided 40 out of 54 finalists through the years.

As the games won by Melrose became more or less of a single period team as they scored four times in the middle period to best Malden 4-1, and then took their semi-final by popping three into the strings in the same period to upend Brookline.

In each instance they applied terrific pressure both offensively and defensively. But when they met Needham they were unable to operate in such overpowering fashion and the John Chambers coached crew took down the honors.

Ftorek

The story of the game can be summed up in one word FTOREK. The whirling dervish scored only two goals and assisted in four more to pace the winning attack. Robbie stands only 5 feet seven inches and weighs only 135 pounds but he certainly showed that he is entitled to the sobriquet "the Esposito of the schoolboys."

He led all schoolboy scorers for the regular season with 33 goals and 41 assists while centering for Steve Dagdigian, 29 goals and 23 assists and Rich Hasenfus 18 goals and 26 assists. This makes a grand total of 80 goals and 90 assists. Add to this 20 more goals with 24 assists in the tourney and you have an astounding total of 100 goals and 114 assists for a total of 214 points.

Some idea of the magnitude of this juggernaut can be gained by noting that over the regular season the Winchester offense came to a net total of 22 goals.

This is not pointed out to discredit the local puck chasers, but rather to show what is being accomplished in communities where high powered hockey programs start in about the fifth grade and bring the boys up for varsity competition with at least four years of experience in playing in organized games, and the unequal conditions under which the Sachems and other teams play.

Remember, Ftorek is only a junior and Dagdigian a sophomore. How can anybody say "Wait until next year" with Needham having such experience returning to the ice wars? If you haven't seen these superstars you have one more chance when they face off with Auburn for the State title on Saturday.

YMCA Announces Golf Classes

Two classes are scheduled, the first from 6:00 to 7:00 p.m. and the second from 7:00 to 8:00 p.m. Each will meet for 5 consecutive weeks.

To register or for information, call or visit the North Suburban Y.M.C.A., 553 Main Street, Woburn, 935-3270.

Catholic Memorial Wins "A" Title; Lexington Upset

John F. Parrell

Coach Ronnie Perry's rangy and gifted basketeers from Catholic Memorial swept by all opposition the Tech Tourney to walk off with honors in ClassA.

This result was a foregone conclusion from the first game of the season as they romped through 26 games picking up the Catholic Conference, New England Catholic, and now the Tech crown without ever being really pressed.

Waltham made a game of it for a half, and Rindge spurted in the final, but with 6 foot 7 inch Fran Costello controlling the boards and popping in plenty of points they were never really threatened. The final tally was Memorial 63, Rindge 53.

Lexington Goes Down

Class B was something else again as Coach Ronnie Massimino's tall Lexington club which completely dominated the Middlesex League stumbled and fell in the semi-final before Braintree of the Bay State League. As pointed out last week, the long layoff between the end of the season as a result of a first round bye took the edge off the seemingly invincible Minutemen.

They were ragged in their victory over Swampscott and never regained their top form as Coach Fred Herget switched his defenses and strangled their vaunted offense to a mere 40 points. At the same time his boys took advantage of Lexington defensive lapses to put 45 points through the hoop for a well earned victory.

The South Shore crew then trimmed Hyde Park 63-59 for the championship. This marked Braintree's tenth straight year in the Tech, their fifth final in 10 years and their first championship over this span.

Class C and D championships went to Holy Family of New Bedford and Ipswich, each by a single point.

The boys of Jack Nobrega came from behind at the very end to smash North Andover's unbeaten slate and upset the predictions of most basketball buffs. They accomplished this by checking the overpowering offense of the losers and by making good on a respectable percentage of the few shots that they took.

Undefeated Dover-Sherborn met a tartar in the early rounds and so the Class D final featured Ipswich and Acton-Boxboro. Their game was perhaps one of the finest ever played by schoolboys at the Garden.

Never more than two or three points apart the Ipswich team came from behind with only seven seconds to go to deadlock the count in regulation time. The first overtime period also ended with a knotted count and behind three points Acton-Boxboro rallied just before the final whistle to tally a hoop and just miss by one point as Ipswich won its first title in its hoop history.

This week sees the final action of the basketball season as various class hoopsters from Western Massachusetts invade the Garden for the fifth annual State Interscholastic Tournament.

Although many regard this as anticlimactic and a poor substitute for the old New England Tourney there should be some interesting contests. The Tech champions in all classes will represent thsi section along with Class A runnerup Rindge Tech and Class D finalist Acton-Boxboro.

Springfield Commerce, South Hadley, St. John's of Shrewsbury, St. Bernard's of Fitchburg, St. Stephen's of Worcester and Williamstown will strive to bring back the honors to the western sector of the state.

It will be interesting to watch the performance of Peter Bain of South Hadley who has tallied a career total of 1970 points and who hopes to surpass the 2,000 point mark which has been passed only by Ron Teixeira in this state's basketball history. He has his work cut out for him since he must face Memorial's rock ribbed defensive array in the opening round.

Winchester Big League Will Start Season June 9

by James R. Stewart Jr.

At a meeting held over the week-end at the home of President Charlie Koch, managers of the Winchester Big League formulated plans to open their baseball season on June 9th at Manchester Field.

Big League is the new concept of advanced baseball for Winchester young men from the ages of 16 through 18, started last year as an experimental program. The response was so great, and the calibre of baseball played so outstanding that 1969 will see a continuance of the four teams in two months of active competition.

Following in the wake of the end of the Winchester High School baseball season and graduation, the Cardinals, under the managment of Hal Mullen will attempt to retain their first year championship against the Pirates of Joe Keating, Bob Haggerty's Twins and new manager George Tello's Tigers.

This year promises to be a real donnybrook right to the end of the schedule. There will be a fair number of returnees from last year's squads, but, with one year added to the experience and growth of many players, and the influx of graduates from 1968 Senior League teams, the Cardinals will be put to the test of hanging on to their title.

According o President Koch, tryouts will be held on Manchester Field on May 10th and 11th, at a time to be announced later. From these two sessions, teams will be filled out to their maximum of 15 players during a "draft" to be held the night of May 11th.

Applications are in the process of being printed and will be in the hands of Bill Colella and the Winchester High School baseball coaching staff for distribution around April 11th. Signed Applications will have to be at the Winchester Sport Shop not later than Saturday, May 3rd for players to be considered.

The Big League baseball program is sponsored by Little League, but has advanced rules and regulations, more nearly paralleling those of College baseball.

In cooperation with Winchester High School's baseball program, there will be no conflict with the High School practices and games. In addition, many more young men will get the opportunity to show how well they can play the game, and many will find that it is a stepping stone to varsity play in the years to come.

Games will be played on Manchester and McDonald fields during the week, Monday through Thursday so that men who have weekend jobs will be able to participate.

Junior Curlers Go To Wayland

Winchester Country Club sent two rinks of junior curlers to curl in a "friendly" at the new curling facility, Broomstones in Wayland.

The Winchester teenagers attended a luncheon arranged for them by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kuypers of Weston, whose son, Steve, recently skipped a team in the Winchester Junior Bonspiel at the Winchester Country Club on March 1st and 2nd.

Both Winchester rinks won their matches and were as follows:

Skip, Peter Shean, Vice-Skip, Heather Barlow, Second, Jay McGoldrick and Lead, Linda Spencer.

And rink number 2, Skip, Scott Carlisle, Vice-Skip, Pam Speers, Second, Kit Adams, and Lead, Mayan Wilcox.

Sachem Hoopsters Show Faculty How To Play

The annual basketball game between the students of Winchester High and the faculty was held Friday evening at the gymnasium. Although various scores were presented by both sides it appears from the most reliable sources that the undergraduates were the victors.

The action was fast and furious, rugged at times as shots were taken from all over the court which never would be taken in a formal game. Some of the instructional staff surprised their pupils with their speed, agility and ball handling. Although a few of the elders were a little stiff in spots the game must be judged as a complete success.

This was the verdict of Jim Mallon, president of the Student Council, whose coffers were enriched to the tune of several hundred dollars. A large crowd, greater than at most regular season home hoop games was on hand to enjoy the action and cheer the efforts of both of the contending teams.

Social Security Makes Changes In Benefits

John E. Lonergan Jr., Social Security district manager in Cambridge, announced that many people who first became eligible for Social Security benefits under the 1967 amendments to the law have already lost one month's back benefit payment and stand to lose more if they don't apply for these benefits before April 1, 1969.

If a person applies for benefits after the month he first becomes eligible, he may receive the back benefits for up to twelve months before the month of his application. The new types of benefits were first payable for the month of February 1968.

To be entitled to all back payments, a claimant must have applied no later than February 28, 1969, Mr. Lonergan explained. "If a person files in March, he will have lost only one month's back benefit payment; but for each additional month's delay, he will lose an additional month's payment," he said.

Comments From Grave Markers

Side Trips by Leo Bonfanti

The inscriptions on some of the early tombstones are fine examples of New England humor. Unfortunately, too many of these are no longer legible, having fallen victim to the abrasive action of centuries of wind and sand, while others, sad to say, have been destroyed by unthinking vandals.

Over the years, I have collected a large number of these inscriptions, many of them sent me by readers who wished to share their finds with others.

This one has a lilt vaguely reminiscent of a Gilbert and Sullivan libretto:

"Here lie the bones of Richard Lawton
Whose death, alas, was strangely brought on.
Trying one day his corns to mow off,
The razor slipped and cut his toe off.
His toe, or rather, what it grew to,
An inflammation quickly flew to
Which took alas, to mortifying
And was the cause of Richard's dying."

And this one was discovered by a reader in a cemetery in Maine:

"Here lies the body of John Mound.
Lost at sea and never found."

One of the peripheral benefits of playing duplicate is the fun of sitting in at the local club wherever you go. The following hand was played on the patio of the Virgin Isle Hilton.

NORTH
♠ J 9 3
♥ Q 9 6 5 3
♦ A
♣ A K J 9

WEST
♠ 8
♥ J 7 4
♦ 9 8 4 3
♣ Q 8 7 6 4

EAST
♠ K 10 7 6 4
♥ 10 8
♦ K 10 7 2
♣ 5 3

SOUTH
♠ A Q 5 2
♥ A K 2
♦ Q J 6 5
♣ 10 2

In rubber bridge this hand would probably be played in hearts, at either the four or six level. But no trumps count more at duplicate, so South finds himself with a six no trump contract to make.

The opening lead of the club eight presents the first problem to declarer. Is the eight the top of nothing or top of a sequence under the Queen? In any event the Queen must take a trick if it is in the East hand, so the nine is played from the board, and South's ten of clubs wins. Now looking over his hand and the dummy, South decides that if five heart tricks can be developed, then six no trump can be made by a spade finesse, and there may be a chance for that precious overtrick as things develop.

The King of hearts brings one heart from each defender, and the Ace then drops two more hearts, thus establishing the heart suit. The two of clubs is played and covered by the Queen, and the Ace wins in dummy. A small spade is then led toward the Queen which holds.

Now South stops and thinks again. If the King of diamonds is also in the East hand, poor East can be squeezed and seven no trump can be made. A heart to the Queen drops the Jack, after which dummy plays two hearts, the Ace of diamonds and the King of clubs which leaves the following:

♥
♣ J

WEST
♦ 9
♣ 7 6

EAST
♠ K 10
♥
♦ K

SOUTH
♠ A 5

When the Jack of clubs is led from North, East is squeezed. If East plays the King of diamonds then South throws the small spade and wins the last two tricks with the Ace of spades and Queen of diamonds. The other choice for East is to discard the ten of spades. South then throws the Queen of diamonds and plays a small spade from the dummy, taking the King of spades with the Ace and wins the last trick with the Jack of spades.

Editor's Note: Even though on the first perusal of hand and dummy you cannot visualize a squeeze play, if as the play evolves you keep trying to picture the hidden hands, often the light dawns and you can garner that satisfying extra trick, smiling serenely as if you'd plotted the whole sequence of events from the start.

Air Force Looks For More Nurses

The United States Air Forces has announced that nurses are urgently needed to serve with the USAF Nurse Corps and is appealing for registered nurses to look into the nurse program, according to Sgt Phil Winsor, greater Boston area nurse procurement specialist whose office is located at 521 Main Street, Malden.

The shortage of nurses is critical at this time, the Sgt pointed out, because of the requirement to provide for the recently expanded Air Force. Officials estimate that 700 additional nurses are needed by July, 1969.

Volunteer nurses who are accepted will be given their base of choice in the United States or overseas.

Accepted nurses will be commissioned as officers in grades ranging from 2nd Lt. to Capt. depending on their educational background and experience.

Starting pay ranges from $7,000 to $10,000 per year. Additional benefits include; thirty days annual vacation with pay, world wide free travel opportunities, $300.00 uniform allowance, free duty uniforms and laundry service for them, and excellent opportunities for specialized nurse training and for baccalaureate and masters degree programs.

Sgt. Winsor stated that contrary to popular belief, when an applicant initiates the paperwork involved in a nurse application the applicant is not obligated to the Air Force in any way. The applicant is only applying for a position in the Air Force Nurse Corps. Four weeks after the application is forwarded to Headquarters, USAF the applicant will be notified by mail that he/she has been selected or non-selected. Applicants that are accepted are given fifteen days time in which to decide for themselves if they want to accept the two year appointment.

Interested nurses who would like to discuss the Air Force Nurse Program in detail are urged to contact Sgt. Winsor at 322-6570 to make arrangements for an appointment with a representative from the Dept. of the Air Force Nurse procurement branch.

Retirees May Work

John E. Lonergan Jr., district manager of the Social Security Office in Cambridge, has explaned retired persons may earn up to $1,680 a year without losing any social security benefits.

Even though a person earns considerably more than $1,680, he may still draw some benefits.

Mr. Lonergan explained that the $1,680 limitation is combined with a sliding scale provision. Here's how it works: If a person is working regularly and does not earn more than $1,680 a year in wages, no benefits will be withheld, and he will receive all of his social security benefits each month. Should he earn more than $1,680 a year, $1 will be withheld from his retirement benefits for each $2 earned between $1,680 and $2,880.

If he earns more than $2,880, $1 will be deducted from his benefits for each $1 he earns over $2,880. Regardless of how much the person earns in a year, he will receive his full social security check for any month in which he does not earn more than $140 in wages, or perform substantial services as a self-employed person.

Benefit payments will be paid for any month in which the person is age 72 or over, no matter how much he earns after reaching age 72.

Mr. Lonergan emphasized that earnings as a retired worker may affect his own and his dependent's rights to benefits, but if he receives payments as a dependent or survivor, his earnings will affect only his own benefit and not those of other members of his family.

Earnings to be Counted?

Mr. Lonergan explained that earnings from work of any kind must be counted, whether or not the work is covered by social security. Total wages and all net earnings from self-employment must be added together in figuring earnings for the year.

Homer's Fried Chicken Opens Here

Opening ceremonies for the newest Homer's Fried Chicken and Seafood Restaurant were held yesterday noon at the free-standing unit at 797 Main Street.

Participants in the ribbon-cutting ceremonies included Harry Winokur, chairman of the Homer's franchise board; Richard First and William Beaver, franchisees, and Winchester community leaders.

Mr. First and Mr. Beaver also announced that Philip Bartlett, experienced food man who has worked with many similar chains, will be manager of Homer's in Winchester.

A Navy veteran, Mr. Bartlett is married and has two children, Diane, 4, and Philip, 1.

Prior to becoming a franchisee of Homer's, Mr. First, a Mason, served two years in the Army Medical Corps and then entered the finance business. Mr. Beaver, a veteran of the Korean war, served in the Signal Corps. Before becoming associated with Homer's, he was a manufacturer's representative.

Homer's Fried Chicken is the newest division of Mister Donut, the largest international donut and coffee chain in the world. Mister Donut spent more than two years testing experimenting and developing Homer's recipes for chicken and seafood before launching this new, successful venture.

Homer's is licensed to serve from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

The menu features U.S.D.A. Grade A chickens, varied with seafood, and is available in portions of all sizes from individual servings to family-size buckets. Crisp potato puffs, cole slaw and hot buttered rolls are the added accompaniments to the dinners.

Served in barn-type boxes, Homer's dinners are easy to carry for convenient take-out service. Eat-in facilities are also available in the attractive Homer's surroundings decorated to resemble a picturesque New England farmhouse.

Unitarian Choir To Present Lenten Program

The fourth pre-service Lenten choral program will be given this Sunday in the chancel of the Winchester Unitarian Church.

Under the direction of Mary Ranton Witham, with John W. Baldwin assisting, the choir will sing from the Mass in B Minor by Bach.

Soloists are Estelle McNeely, soprano; Barbara Wood, alto; William Jeffrey, tenor; and Sidney C. Blanchard Jr., baritone.

The Downs Memorial Carillon will be played by Linda W. Nichols.

Cancer Crusade Is Launched At Dinner

Governor Francis W. Sargent introduced A. Theodore Lyman Jr., Massachusetts Cancer Crusade Chairman at the S. S. Peter Stuyvesant at Anthony's Pier 4 recently.

The 1969 Crusade was launched at a dinner there attended by over 400 volunteers and guests.

Mr. Lyman noted that his father, Arthur T. Lyman, was the first President of the Massachusetts Division in 1945. "He saw a job to be done at that time and unfortunately, it wasn't done soon enough ...he fell victim to lung cancer in November of last year."

The Crusade Chairman urged the volunteers to exceed the goal of $1,500,000 so that the Society can carry many research projects for another year as well as starting new projects. He noted that many of the projects established by the Society which would ordinarily be taken over and funded by the Federal Government would not be this year because of drastic cuts in the Federal Research Budget.

Miss Virginia Graham, star of stage, radio and televison, and 1969 National Cancer Crusade Chairman, was a featured speaker at the dinner.

One of the 1,500,000 cured cancer victims, Miss Graham visited patients at the Boston University Medical Center prior to the dedication of the American Cancer Society Boston University Medical Center Betatron.

The Betatron was made possible by a grant of one half million dollars from the American Cancer Society.

Mission Guild To Sponsor Lenten Program

The fourth and final study program sponsored by the Mission Union Guild during the Lenten period will be held on Thursday, March 27th at 10:00 am. in the Palmer Room of the First Congregational Church.

Coffee will be served preceding the program in the Tucker Room.

The subject for the morning will be "Mission in the Nuclear Age." A short film "The Hat" will be shown and dealing with the church's role in disarmament. Mrs. John F. Reno will lead the discussion.

Devotions will be led by the Guild's president, Mrs. Walter Farrell Jr. Babysitting is available. Women from all churches are invited to attend

Flood Threat Abates For Now

Just 361 days after the Town suffered one of the three worst floods in its history, householders and Town departments went to work to battle rising waters all over town on Tuesday.

The flood peaked at mid-afternoon and a sigh of relief was heard from the Woburn line along the Aberjona to the Mystic lakes as the rains stopped.

"It was a very real, good sized flood," said Water Department superintendent William P. Conlon, whose men worked around the night taking care of the emergency. The 1.19 inch rainfall was heavily augmented by the snow runoff, he said.

Mr. Conlon is disturbed about the lack of cooperation of home owners on the hills who remove their sewer drainout cap in order to empty their cellars. "This is against the law and there is a strict penalty," he said. "The surcharged sewer pipes cannot handle this extra load and the result is back-up into many homes."

Shore Road was still blocked off yesterday just north of the Skillings By-Pass. Tuesday it was flooding fast toward the center but neither here nor at Cross Street underpass was it ever closed. When the waters reached the Mt. Vernon Street bridge, the river was just under its ceiling. Just below this it came up to the graded but not yet seeded Mill Pond island before receding.

The aqueducts under the new WHS playfield got a good testing. At 3 p.m. there were about 6 inches to spare between water level and top of the three 7-foot pipes.

Floooding was first reported from the low Rangeley area which had been having high waters all week. A Rangeley family evacuated in late morning when water began pouring into its cellar "like a waterfall."

To try and alleviate this and other areas, Chief Francis Amico asked the MDC at mid-morning to open the sluice gates at the foot of the Mystic Lake.

His men answered some 18 flooded cellar calls on Tuesday.

As in last year's flooding, trouble erupted quickly at the foot of Johnson Road near the juncture of New Meadows, and Water Department men went on duty there about 9 Tuesday morning to let the heavy water flow out.

All officials are hoping that snows will have a chance to thaw more before the next rainfall.

Social Studies Report Heard By School Comm.

Snow days, dress codes and the social studies program all came up for discussion at the School Committee meeting Tuesday night at McCall Junior High School.

Superintendent of Schools Donald A. Klemer told the Committee no decision has been reached as yet by the office of the Commissioner of Education on Winchester's application for a waiver of the 180-day requirement for elementary school students.

The recent storms caused students in the elementary grades to miss eight days of school and the secondary schools to miss six. Six day were originally allowed in the school calendar, however.

Dr. Klemer told the Committee 58 communities in Massachusetts are requesting waivers.

The Committee was also informed that the target date for releasing the bids for the new high school is set for April 15.

WHS Student Council President James Mallon told the Committee about the narcotics education program begun in the High School by the Student Council Sub-Committee on Drug Abuse in connection with CONCERN. The School Committee voted to allow the program to be extended to the junior high schools.

Heart Assoc. Honors Go To Dr. Elzinga

Dr. Marshall Elzinga of 22 Seneca Road, is one of 77 scientists in the nation, six of them from Massachusetts, to be named an established continued investigator by the American Heart Association.

At Boston's Retina Foundation Dr. Elzinga is doing research "directed to understanding the molecular basis for muscle contraction"—specifically, how the various building blocks (amino acids) fit into the protein structure of actin and myosin, key proteins in this contraction.

Dr. Elzinga spoke on his project in late February, while in Los Angeles for a meeting of the Biophysical Society. He is a research associate in the department of muscle research at the Foundation. He is also a research fellow in the department of neuropathology at Harvard Medical School.

Moderator Chadwick Gives Perspective

Moderator (and State Representative) Harrison Chadwick opened the 1969 sessions of the Town Meeting with a short discourse which brought him immediate and full applause.

In the best traditions of the New England moderators, he appeared to be putting the weight of his office toward maintaining moderation among the Town's representatives, who are, he pointed up, caught this year in the middle between the need to be fair and constructive with personnel services and programs, and the so-called taxpayers' revolt.

"I am convinced that the democratic form of government is not easy or automatic," he told the 111 present a week ago tonight.

"It is evident," he said, "that the mood and direction of the country is changing."

Many of the people in the country have come to feel that programs designed to correct social ills have failed to produce results and that the government is spending too much of their money.

"I think people are asking us to pause and re-assess the proliferation of programs."

He pointed to California's change in direction largely through its own efforts; but he felt Massachusetts to be "on the fence."

"We are left to our own direction in Town Meeting," he said, averring that the people's attitude has gotten through to Beacon Hill, but that decisions have not yet been made to give direction to the citizens' requests.

Emphasizing his conviction of the importance of making local government as efficient as possible, the moderator reminded "We've been through a period of very free spending," and that on the other hand, some persons now want governmental representatives to do nothing.

"We must level off and meet the demands of the public.

"Inflation is a factor we can't overcome . . . We all hope the Federal Government will bring inflation under control . . . But inflation is with us, so in trying to carry out the will (of the people), we are dealing with an unknown.

"Then," he concluded, "we are in a difficult position and we must do our very best. Then I think the people must understand that we have exercised our best judgement in spite of the unknown factors which are beyond our control."

Questions For CONCERN

CONCERN, Winchester's Committee on New Concepts of Educational and Therapeutic Needs, is currently answering under this heading questions mailed to its mailbox, Winchester Post Office Box 293 (signed or anonymous); or questions put to any one of its members.

Today's question is: "Why are there so many "kids" on the Winchester Concern Committee?"

Joseph Knight, representative from Winchester Council for Community Action and current chairman of CONCERN, answers the question this way:

"Perhaps a better question would be, 'Why are there so many adults on the Committee?'

"The problem of misuse of drugs by younger people seems to happen for six or seven different reasons which I will not go into here. However, these reasons are best understood by younger people, and we are finding that younger people (and this includes

Two Sessions Down, Town Meeting Ready For Schools Tonight

Snow Budget To Be $351,159; Schools, Assessors Delayed; Computer Off; Conservation On

The 1969 Town Meeting goes into its third regular session tonight. Separate motions Monday asked for a change of schedule to add Saturday meetings, and a change to scratch tonights and next Thursday's meetings. Both were defeated.

The biggest Town services budget voted Monday was that for snow and ice removal, which now reads $351,159 after an amendment Monday to cover the increase due to the record February storms.

In the area of wages, the Town Meeting voted all Personnel Board recommendations which do not include those for the still unsigned Firefighters. They equalized the pay of the Fire and Police Chiefs; questioned the salary maximum for Selectmen's executive secretary; voted a Personnel-recommended new policy to pay for advanced police "improvement" study program.

Last week's Special Meeting voted to buy a parcel of land on the Woburn line for conservation. It also went with the Methods and Procedures Committee's request for more money to rent, instead of buy, the Town's computer.

Session Monday Votes 57 Budgets, Defers Three

Father James A. Garrity of St. Mary's Church opened the second session of the regular Town Meeting at 7:55 p.m. Monday night and was welcomed to Town by Moderator Harrison Chadwick who noted he had come from "our parent municipality."

A motion to amend the scheduling of Town Meetings was next voted down (122 to 44).

School Committeeman John A. Dolan offering the motion in an effort to accelerate the Meeting, asked a vote to add Saturdays to the schedule—"and to meet earlier and on time."

To back up his request he cited several other towns, including Brookline which voted a 22 million budget in three meetings (Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday) and Reading which, after an alltime 1967 record of eight meetings, added Saturdays and went through this year in three.

Robert Winn spoke against the motion, noting the many who must work on Saturdays.

Glen Green Restrictions?

The official acceptance of the gift of Warren F. Witherell of the land between Glen Road and Glen Green (Article 5) was voted unanimously after Conservation Chairman Stephen Moore had said his group felt it should be for general public use and there-

Thurs. Opener Hears Report On Finance

An exchange between Mr. Hewis and Moderator Harrison Chadwick opened the first session of the Town Meeting on March 20.

Chairman of the Finance Committee opened the session's work at 8:30 by reading his Committee's report. It highlighted the gravity of the Town's financial situation vis a vis the State's intent to cut disbursements by about $490,000; pointed out wage settlement increases recommended come to $633,400 more than 1968; asked for a $100,000 cut from the School budget; and pointed to a $6.60 increase on the tax rate.

Mr. Chadwick started to move the motion to accept the report and Mr. Hewis rose to challenge with a protest that the report was not complete.

He was cut off and, after a second attempt, gavelled to his seat.

(Subsequently Mr. Hewis told the Star that his challenge was on the basis that the report omitted that of the Retirement Board and that of the Comptroller.)

The Meeting next voted Article 2, authorizing the Town Treasurer to borrow money and renew interest according to the State General Laws.

Conservation Buys Land At Thursday Special

The special session of Town Meeting which opened the evening a week ago tonight voted an appropriation of $20,000 to purchase about five acres on Sucker Brook, between Ridge Street and Cambridge Street on the Woburn border.

The first reader of the Christian Science Church, Clarence Feldmann, gave the opening prayer to open the session at 8 p.m.

The land, owned by William Maley, was asked as the northernmost parcel of a green belt which the Commission hopes to establish, running from the Lexington line south of Johnson Road, up to this area.

Chairman Stephen A. Moore first outlined his Commission's total requests for the year, two parcels, the gross total for which would be $46,000, not $100,000 as stated by the Finance Committee.

He then said that the area—a ridged, wooded valley, which includes a waterfall and a pond area—was for sale this year at the Town's assessed price - $20,000.

It had been rejected by the 1968 Meeting which had asked for $18,700 to purchase it, but without agreement with the owner.

He noted its assets as a water shed and for flood control. He said that the Town could expect 50% aid from the Federal Government and 25% from the State.

Robert Mulford Pushes Youth Service Bill

Speaking Monday at a State House hearing on a bill to reorganize the State's Youth Service Board, Robert M. Mulford of Pierrepont Road, director of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, told the legislators that the problems of the Division of Youth Service could not be solved under the present structure.

"Hardworking, competent people are handicapped by this very structure and personnel," he said of the current situation.

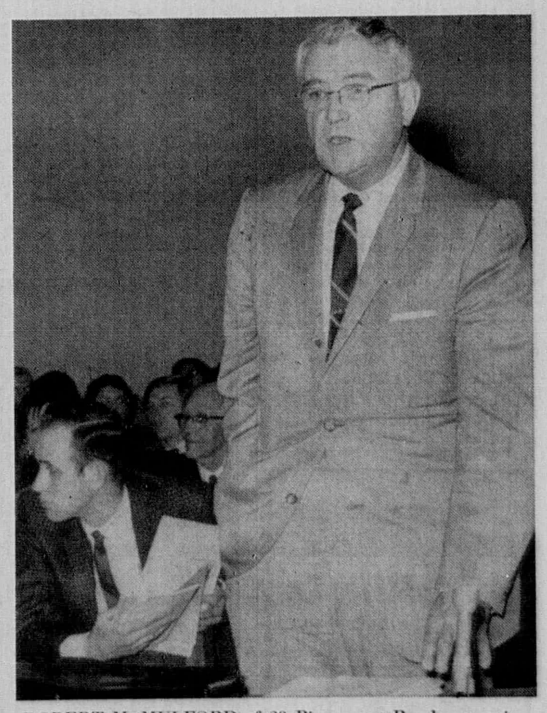

Mr. Mulford, who is also spokesman for the Massachusetts Committee on Children and Youth, cosponsors of the S. 1001 bill with a group of legislators, asked its approval as it offers "flexibility, protection and a total new approach to administrative structure."

The bill calls for a modern rehabilitative program aimed at successful integration of children into the community.

Heard before the Committee on State Administration, the measure calls for the creation of a progressive department of Youth Services with sharp focus on development of effective new programs and approaches in the treatment of delinquents.

Gov. Francis W. Sargent also made his first appearance before a legislative committee this year. He told the Committee that the present Division of Youth Services is a "failure" because it offers youth custody instead of service.

MULFORD of 29 Pierrepont Road, executive secretary of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and a member of the executive committee of the Massachusetts Committee on Children and Youth, represents the MCCY in support of its bill to reorganize the Youth Service Division. He is shown at Monday's State House hearing.

SAVING.
The habit that grows on you.

Regular saving is a very interest-ing habit. And smart people don't try to cure it. They just add a few dollars to their regular savings account, regularly. At the same time, we add steady, generous dividends. So why don't we get together? As you can see, a regular savings account is very rewarding.

Red Cross Blood Collection Next Week

The Red Cross Blood Program in Massachusetts needs 220,000 pints of blood a year.

Some of this is whole blood, which can be kept on hand for 21 days. When that time has passed, the blood is broken down for other blood products. One, gamma globulin, helps fight infectious diseases. Another, serum albumin, is used to control shock and protein deficiency.

If you've never given blood before, you owe it to yourself and your family to offer them protection and meet these needs. Call your Red Cross chapter today to make an appointment to donate blood March 31 at the Winchester Unitarian Church. (729-2300).

The average U.S. Army soldier costs $6,830 to pay and equip for one year; $3,000 for his basic salary, the remainder for equipment, benefits, food, medical care and housing.

Dr. Gibson Talks To Teachers

DR. JOHN S. GIBSON of Winchester and Lincoln-Filene Center for Citizenship and Public Affairs at Tufts University is shown speaking to the elementary school teachers at the released time meeting on inter-group relations held Wednesday, March 19. Panel members who participated in the program were, left to right, Miss Susan Kress, Muraco School; Mrs. Patricia McGonagle, Noonan School; Mrs. Mary De Salvo, Lincoln School; Mrs. Louise Barker, Wyman School; and Mrs. Ruth Folkert of Wyman School. (Lois Carr photo)

Teachers Hear Dr. Gibson

At the released time session Wednesday, March 19, elementary school teachers dealt with the topic of inter-group relations.

The program was organized by the Social Studies Department and was conducted by Dr. John S. Gibson of the Lincoln-Filene Center for Citizenship and Public Affairs of Tufts University.

The afternoon began with a film depicting difficulties encountered by blacks in dealing with whites. The film stimulated questions from the teachers.

Major Morris, a Negro staff member of the Lincoln-Filene Center, accompanied Dr. Gibson and answered some of the questions posed by the teachers. It was his opinion that blacks can understand the white way of life because they live in a nation where TV, radio, books, and everyday life is based on the wants and needs of the white majority.

However, whites appear to know little about and understand less about the black man and his way of life. Learning about getting along with others, and studying and visiting the city and its people were offered as possible solutions.

Dr. Gibson spoke to the teachers stressing the importance of working towards better group relations at the elementary level, rather than at a later time. It is his idea that merely teaching a course about the black man or his history is insufficient.

Dr. Gibson's program includes the development of attitudes and feelings, sensitizing children to their own feelings and to the feelings of others. This training, he said, is essential in elementary school since at the junior and senior high school level youngsters have learned to conceal their feelings and assume the hypocrisy prevalent in the adult world.

The elementary teachers heard a discussion by a panel composed of Winchester teachers who took the inter-group relations course taught by Dr. Gibson. The panel included: Miss May Milliken, director of social sutdies; Miss Susan Kress, Muraco School; Mrs. Patricia Mcgonagle, Noonan School; Mrs. Louise Barker, Wyman School; Mrs. Ruth Folkert, Wyman; and Mrs. Mary De Salvo, Lincoln School.

Chief Derro Speaks At Registry Opening

Police Chief Joseph J. Derro and Board of Selectmen Chairman Charles Doucette attended the dedication of the new Registry of Motor Vehicles Office in Woburn Friday, March 21.

Chief Derro, speaking to the group on behalf of the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police Association of which he is president, said,

"We, of the Chiefs Association, hope that consideration will be given to the possibility of building other branches throughout the State of Massachusetts.

"We all know that the creation of new offices will be of tremendous assistance to the general public and law enforcement agencies in their respective areas.

"Speaking for the Chiefs in this area, the opening of this branch will help to further the close relationship now being held by police and members of the Registry, in this area.

"We, Chiefs and members of our departments, are looking forward to working with Supervisor Michaud and his staff."

Representative Harrison Chadwick and Senator McKenzie, from Burlington, a former Winchester resident, were also present at the opening ceremonies.

Heap Big Beef To Open This Week On Main Street

Heap Big Beef will be the newest addition to dining out in Winchester when the new free-standing unit opens at 791 Main Street during the week of April 1.

Part of Franchise International, Heap Big Beef is a nationwide chain. The Winchester store will be the first in the Greater Boston area with another planned in Woburn.

At the present time there are over 70 Heap Big Beef stores in operation nationally, including one in Worcester.

Although the national stores carry an Indian motif, the New England area shops will have a colonial decor. The restaurant is designed as a fast food service operation primarily for take-out service; however, there is a large dining area seating 68 persons.

The store, owned by the Fast Food Franchise Distributors Inc. of Brookline, will be managed by Joseph H. Nelson of Lynnfield, vice-president of marketing for Fast Food.

George Whitten of Assembled Homes, Winchester, built the restaurant.

President of Fast Food Franchise Distributors Inc. is George Tierney of Bedford. Fast Food is the area distributor for the chain.

The headquarters of Franchise International, chain owners, is in White Plains, New York.

The menu includes the Heap Big Beef roast beef sandwich; baked ham, pastrami and fish sandwiches; french fries; onion rings; soft drinks, and coffee.

Although the emphasis is on roast beef sandwiches, the limited menu may be expanded to include other popular items.

The restaurant's grand opening is planned for later this spring. The restaurant is expected to be open for business this week, however.

Miss Tatarian Is DAR Good Citizen

DAR Names Good Citizen

On Monday, March 17, at the meeting of the Committee of Safety Chapter DAR, Miss Gloria Tatarian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tatarian of 23 Oneida Road, was named the DAR Good Citizen and presented with a pin.

As part of the award, Gloria, along with other Good Citizen girls from the state, attended a special program, historic tour, and luncheon in Boston on Wednesday, March 12.

Gloria, a senior at Winchester High School, was chosen for her scholarship, leadership, and service to the community.

She has been a National Honor Society student, and participated in the following school activities—Red & Black, Year Book, Cheerleaders, Les Troubadours, and director of the Senior Class One-Act Play.

Gloria also has been active in the community as president of her Senior Scout troop and as a Sunday School teacher.

Among her hobbies she favors music, playing both the guitar and piano, skiing and sailing.

The University of New Hampshire is her college choice and she hopes to go into the teaching profession.

Juvenile Reforms Aimed At By 'Monitor' Series

Shocking conditions surrounding children in jails, detention centers and reform schools throughout the country will be highlighted in a new series beginning Monday, March 31, in The Christian Science Monitor.

"Children in Trouble: A National Scandal" has been written by Howare James, a Monitor reporter, whose previous series "Crisis in the Courts" won him a Pulitzer prize. Information about the series is available at the local Christian Science Reading Room, 4 Mt. Vernon Street.

Facts not previously brought to light concerning the inadequacies of juvenile courts and institutions will be poured out in this 15-week series running Mondays in the Monitor.

Experts have told Mr. James that this will be the first truly comprehensive overview of juvenile problems ever published.

Mr. James has discovered that laws are being ignored, few judges are qualified to handle juvenile cases, conditions are sub-standard, and treatment often cruel.

Governor Peterson of Delaware has already pledged corrective action in his state as a result of evidence presented by the Monitor reporter concerning brutal treatment of boys in the state reform school.

The Monitor became involved when its reporter found that the Juvenile courts are in a mess, running on guesswork, and that no other major news media had taken such an interest in the problem.

This major series is in keeping with The Christian Science Monitor's stated purpose: "to injure no man, but to bless all mankind."

It is expected that the expose and the constructive action ideas which the reporter will present, will help to bring healing to a major social ill of our time.

S. O. I. News

The month of April will soon be here and that will bring installations of officers of the Sons of Italy Lodges in the State. The Winchester Degree Team has been very busy every Tuesday evening rehearsing their parts in the ceremony of installation.

As of this writing the first lodge to have its officers installed by the team is the Wilmington Lodge.

The installation is at the Malden Armory on April 5th. The Wilmington Lodge recently purchased eight-and-a-half acres of land with a house on it and they have a committee working on plans for the future growth and development of lodge quarters.

The next lodge to book the Degree Team is the Arlington Lodge, and that will take place at the Winchester quarters on April 12th. The Lynn Lodge will then have the team at the Lynn Lodge on April 26th.

The team will also install the officers of the men and women's lodges of Winchester on Sunday, April 27th.

A joint committee of men and women from each lodge have been meeting regularly to form plans for this year's installation.

The Grand Lodge Convention will be held at the Lake Tarlton Club in New Hampshire on the last weekend in June. The men's lodge will send eight delegates to the convention and we believe that the women's lodge will send four.

The Winchester delegates will be very busy this year with the Grand Lodge elections. They will be voting for a Grand Venerable (two men running for this position) as well as all the other grand officers.

The Winchester Lodge's 12 votes will mean a lot in this year's elections, and they will also be looking for votes to get Brother Bob Fiore re-elected as Grand Trustee.

We were sorry to hear of the death last Friday, March 21st, of Brother Harry Ciarcia. Venerable Bill Fiore and a delegation of officers and members attended the Wake of Brother Ciarcia and expressed the condolences of the Lodge to his wife and his family.

Muraco Class Visits Store In Woburn

March 12 was an exciting day for 100 kindergarten children from the Muraco School. They traveled by bus to the Star Market on Cambridge Street in Woburn where they toured the entire store and saw what happens behind the scenes in a modern supermarket, including the storage and preparation of meats, produce and groceries.

Following the tour, which was directed by Mr. Tarpinian and his staff, the children were treated to milk, cookies and apples donated by the store.

The market also donated all the ingredients needed for the kindergarten gingerbread-boy baking project which followed the next day.

Hello there—

I am your Scandia House True Troll. Please let me tell you what the Scandinavian people believe about me:

An old folk lore says that we trolls live under the hills and mountains in Scandinavia and at midnight the hills and mountains raise up on glowing stilts and all we little trolls come out to play. However, if a human being comes near, or when the day breaks, we all scamper in under the hills and mountains and they close on top of us; but, if any of you humans can catch us before we disappear we will bring you good luck forever!

With trolly greetings,

Los Campaneros Take Their Turn

TAKING THEIR TURN Saturday night at the WHS variety show are Los Companeros, High School Spanish-singing group. (Bob Joyce photo)

Fun Backstage, Onstage, Offstage For Both Participants and Audience

A new chapter in Winchester history was written with the production of "Backstage, Onstage, Offstage" at the Winchester High School Auditorium last Friday and Saturday nights. For the first time a production was staged which represented the efforts of the entire community, including, school heads, faculty, school committee, parents and the senior class at the high school. Those who weren't in the production were, so it seemed, in the audience, a full house on both nights.

The audience was treated to the spectacle of the superintendent of schools, the high school principal, and the various faculty members rubbing noses with the students, and loved every minute of it. Principal Howard Niblock, in a long-haired wig, suffered the ignominy of being ordered off the stage as being too hippy.

For a first-time effort the show was remarkably fast-paced, with the stage crew and the electricians working smoothly to keep the show rolling without a hitch.

The script was written by Jay Sibley and Byrd Herrala, with an assist by husband Cal Herrala. Noreen Connell was the choreographer, Fran Lynch the rehearsal accompanist, and Eleanor Thistlethwaite the director. Mrs. Thistlethwaite modestly admits that the role of director was more titular than actual, since such a huge production needed the assistance of many.

The senior class, which handled the distribution of tickets, did a great job, as attested by the packed house on both nights.

The cast was represented by every department of the high school, including custodians, cafeteria help, in addition to those previously mentioned.

Act I represented the scene backstage. The cast was as follows:

The affair will be held at the Winchester High School Auditorium.

Priscilla C. Woods of 120 Wildwood Street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Leonard Woods, is to be a contestant. Priscilla is a senior at Winchester High School, a member of the Pep Squad and currently is secretary of the Drop-In Center.

Stephanie A. Fiore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Fiore of 9 Churchill Road, has entered. Stephanie is a 1967 graduate of Winchester High School and currently is a senior at Grahm Jr. College in Boston. She was the 1968 runner-up to Ann Deechan, the current Miss Winchester.

Victoria A. Bond, daughter of Mrs. Gloria Hoyt of 60 Lorena Road, is another entry. Victoria is a 1966 graduate of Winchester High School and is currently attending Georgetown University.

John A. Hackett, pageant chairman, indicated that the deadline for entries was April 1, and anyone interested could contact him at 729-7422.

He also announced the Drop-In Center is going to assist the Jaycees in selling tickets in town and noted that one-half of the moderate admission price would be donated to the Drop-In Center, as the Jaycees feel the Drop-In Center is a most worthy organization and deserving of all the support that can be given it.

Chairman Doucette Has The Floor At '69 Meeting

Meeting Musings

Before It Starts

The late Town Meeting warrants, not ready Finance Committee reports and accruing postponement of the 1969 Town Meeting ought to pay off next year. But didn't everyone say that last year? If intelligent voter participation—not just elected representative participation—are to be had, these two requisites are imperative. It didn't work out in 1969. What can be done in 1970?

Formal precinct meetings have died by the way side and lost with them is much full Town Meeting time. Questions such as Manuel Rainha's asking a review of the executive secretary's job duties, and Richard Freeman's on the detail in the police improvement course grading were relevant. But in each case had the facts been publicly discussed ahead, the questioners would have come to the Meeting with their motions formed, not vague questions. Should we go back to precinct meetings—or should we move to effect town-wide hearings divided by large subject—i.e. a meeting each for School budgets, (the only one held this year) Selectmen's articles, Finance Committee, Personnel Board, or some such division? We should do something.

On Meeting Schedules

John Dolan made plenty of good points in pushing for Saturday meetings to be added this year. He was defeated, probably for the reasons raised by Robert Winn: many work on Saturdays. No one made a comment about one part of Mr. Dolan's motion: "at least let's start the meetings earlier and start them on time." Changing in mid-stream is difficult and Saturday may not be the day (although Saturday from 4 to 6 and 8 to 11 or some such could be considered). But, before the sessions are over (and we guess they'd have plenty of time) cannot someone else work out a motion which could be tried out next year? How about Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays (or Thursdays?). There is a sense of business lost when the Meetings drag on. To sacrifice focus, attention and attendance for tradition is silly.

On Taxpayer Attendance

You could count the taxpayers in the balcony on one hand on both nights of the Meeting so far—excepting that attended by students from the City of Revere, come to find out just how exciting town government can be. Many regulars sit on the floor—but more than 25 or 30 haven't turned up yet. One remembers the citizens busting out the seams of the Noonan School at last spring's "tax protest" meeting. Why not come down and speak on the appropriations? That's when we buy things. It's too late when the bills are being made out.

On Moderation

"How many people going to town meetings in New England have accepted as a matter of course the "moderator" who presides . . . without being conscious of the tradition which this word 'moderator' reflects? And yet this moderation, which the moderator is there to maintain, is a quality of utmost importance if democracy is to function. The lack of it was the fatal defect of democracy on the Continent, except in Switzerland." (Carl J. Fiiedrich, "The New Image of the Common Man") Thinking from the larger perspective as well as the crucial present, we would like to compliment Moderator Chadwick on his well considered "remarks" made at the outset of the meeting. They highlighted the fiscal crisis in such a way as to allow a middle ground for the divergent reactions of the representatives. A true case of moderating.

On Computerizing - Does It Mesmerize?

Many acute questions were asked by as many informed members of Methods and Procedures Chairman John Collier about the Town's computer. We waited in vain, however, for the $64 question: why was the decision made to postpone purchase, when this was what the Town Meeting signed up for last year? Perhaps the Committee would like to put this in writing for the Star. Our own lack of background to assess the subject plus the foreign language which is spoken around it deters us from a direct question.

On Steering The Personnel Board

The Town this year loses the services of Robert C. Ericson as Personnel Board Chairman. There are myriad hard working volunteer board members who deserve much credit that no one sends their way. But we choose to point up Mr. Ericson's job as he has steered the Town through some of its most sensitive and trying business in the area of wages and collective bargaining. An unusually conscientious person, the retiring chairman's commitment to working for agreement is held in high esteem. Speaking of the whole Board and of its secretary in this year's Town Report, the Selectmen say, "Let it be known that they have our sincere gratitude for their tireless efforts in behalf of the community."

On Assessing Assessors

Anyone who runs for public office is properly open to close scrutiny by the citizens, especially if that office is that one which pays a salary. Rumblings have been heard throughout the year as to the propriety of Assessor Marshall Pihl continuing to serve in this capacity although he has made his home elsewhere for about eight years. He owns a home here which has been reported empty and not lived in. He is a legal resident, however, as long as he states his intent to return. This in itself, opens the assessor to criticism. In addition to this, it has been said that Mr. Pihl attends very few meetings. Curious, the Star checked records this week to find out. Of 46 regular meetings of the Board Mr. Pihl is recorded as present at all but seven. On January 20 he was injured on his way to attend a meeting and he is still recuperating after his release from the hospital. Mr. Pihl's effort to be a contributing member of the Board certainly cannot be faulted. Whether it is in the best interest of the Town for him to serve while living elsewhere is another question.

Critical Of Marycliff Procedure

Editor of the Star:

I appreciate Mr. Borggaard's explanation about his vote on the Marycliff affair. I would like to hear some 200 explanations for the affirmative vote.

The authors of such an important and rush article had a moral responsibility to set forth both sides of the story in a fair fashion. They had visited the school and had had time to evaluate the problems involved — problems that they should have wanted to be fully debated—answers freely given to the type of question set forth in Mr. Borggaard's letter. I really believe that Town Meeting is fully qualified to ratify or reject an article honestly presented. The sponsors evidently do not think so in this case.

Ostensiby, asking for $2500 for an option is hardly worth fighting about. No old timer doubts that history will repeat itself, and we will soon be asking for $875,000 less possibly a token reduction. There will be a vague estimate as to the cost of adapting a 20-year-old private school to our modern needs and how well it will meet these needs. Fear of a taxpayer revolt may be why they rushed to push the panic button. Obviously the article should not have asked for $2500 to secure an option.

A committee dedicated to Winchester should first have secured an appropriation to hire an independent appraiser who would have nothing to lose if he didn't agree with the preconceived appraisal.

An independent school architect, harder to come by, would evaluate the additional costs involved. This requires money that would be well spent. It was not requested. I am sure "independents" will be found, at no cost to the Town.

I will have no faith in the results. At the right price this purchase may be an acceptable deal. At the asking price it may not be a justifiable compromise of our needs.

Due to the tactics thus far shown by the authors of this article, I place the committee in the category of "special," for which I have no use. We know most of the answers before it starts to work.

I urge the Star to report the "open" meetings required by law of this committee. Town Meeting members will want to know developments so that they will not be asked to ratify a "fait accompli." If they did act contrarily, it might prove a bit awkward. Maybe the committee should request an appropriation to hire a public relations man.

Fire Hazard

Editor of the Star:

I arrived home this past weekend to a new home at 64 Fletcher Street. The joy of the new home was marred only by the burned dwelling at 56 and 58 Fletcher Street.

What troubles me deeply is the fact that the dwelling next door is a tremendous fire hazard to us and to the adjoining neighbors.

Apparently I am not alone in this thinking for, last May approximately one month after the Easter eve holocaust that destroyed 56, 58, and 64 Fletcher Street, the Fire Chief informed my father that if he did not soon take steps to repair or demolish our home he would condemn our property as a fire hazard.

My point is, why has Chief Amico allowed this dwelling at 56 and 58 Fletcher Street to stand without any action having been taken to insist on the demolishing or the rebuilding of this equally dangerous fire hazard?

Sincerely yours,
Walter G. Armstrong, USMC
Cherry Point, N. C.

(Ed. note: Demolition of the two-family house at 56 and 58 Fletcher Street has been anticipated since its acquisition by the Town. Bids for the demolition, are out today.)

How Many Towns?

Editor of the Star:

Special accolades go to the Parent-Faculty-Senior Class production of last Friday and Saturday evenings. It was a glowing and successful example of two generations of varied professions working together and contributing toward a common goal.

How many towns can boast of a high school production with a cast made up of High School principal and superintendent of schools, School Committee members, school janitor, Town Recreation director, and large representation of High School faculty, students, and parents?

Our heartfelt thanks extend to all the adult and student chairmen and over 300 persons young and old who voluntarily gave of their time and effort to produce a fun evening for the town. Our special thanks go to Mrs. Byrd Herrala for creating and bringing to fruition this unique experience.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Robert Millican;

Opposed To Landtaking In Article 30

Editor of the Star:

We enclose for you a copy of the letter sent by us March 21 to Town Meeting Members, relating to Article 30, sections j, k and l.

"The undersigned are the owners of the land mentioned in the above Article. We wish to inform you that we are opposed to the landtaking mentioned in said Article 30 and hope that you will vote 'no' to Article 30 or vote 'yes' to have said Article stricken from the warrant.

"There are no 'concrete' plans as yet for Wyman School reconstruction, and any plans contemplated are not expected to be acted on for several years. While the Article is not explicit as to the boundaries of the square footage involved in each landtaking, the land involved will still be there many years hence, when Wyman School reconstruction might take place.

"Therefore, until more concrete and definite long-range plans are forthcoming from the Elementary School Building Committee, we ask that you vote 'no,' thus allowing us to enjoy our property and the taxpayers of Winchester to be spared another rise in taxes at this time."

Selectmen Ask Demolition Bids

Bids on the demolition of dwellings at 56 Fletcher Street, 484 Washington Street and 84 Washington Street will be opened and read today at the Board of Selectmen's office at 3 p.m.

The property at 56 Fletcher Street was damaged by fire last April and was authorized for purchase by the Board of Selectmen at a November Special Town Meeting.

The dwelling at 484 Washington Street is being removed for possible enlargement of Leonard Field. It was purchased by the Board of Seledtmen after Town Meeting approval in 1967.

Bids on the property at 84 Washington Street, the Cutting House, are being received in order to estimate demolition costs accurately for Article 32 of the 1969 Regular Town Meeting warrant, according to Edward Donnelly, executive secretary of the Board of Selectmen.

Social Studies

Miss May Milliken of the Social Studies Curriculum Council reported to the Committee on the progress made to date by the Council.

Describing the new program, Miss Milliken told the Committee that until the Council was formed in 1966, the social studies program in Winchester was based on recommendations made in 1916.

The program was based on the 1916 assumption that most students do not stay in school through grade 12 and that many drop out after the sixth and eighth grades.

The new program on the elementary school level involves studies of families around the world with exposure to other cultures and economies. For these studies, the Council has developed kits on different countries which circulate among the various schools.

Miss Milliken closed her presentation by telling the Committee, "If you stand still (in curriculum development), you move behind."

The Committee also heard a report from Jim Mallon on the dress code in effect at the High School. Action on the code, however, was tabled for the next meeting of the Committee when it will be discussed and reported.

Youth Service

"Caging children is not the way of enlightening society. Redeeming those of our young who waver today between right and wrong—that must be our service to them," he said.

"I ask this committee's support —that we may begin to serve the youth whom today we fail. That failure is our disgrace. And we can no longer allow it. For if we fail our youth, we fail our future —and finally, we fail ourselves. It is a failure we cannot afford and will not permit."

Mr. Mulford also told the group his interest was more than academic inasmuch as he had been involved in six studies of this program in recent years.

Sgt. Gray

Sgt. Gray is a 1961 graduate of WHS and studied for two years at Boston University before entering the army.

He has been driving a jeep for Company A of the 25th Infantry, stationed at Cu Chi, since the start of his Vietnam service last June.

The sergeant is married and before being drafted was on the staff of a Boston credit company.

BOOK REVIEW

by Katrine C. Laban
Winchester Public Library

RICHER THAN ALL HIS TRIBE

by Nicholas Montsarrat

With lucid detachment, Nicholas Montsarrat gives the U. N. the shellacking of its life in this book. The emerging African nations don't come off a bit well, either. The characters are so well drawn and diverse and their personal concerns so real, that the book does not read like a political diatribe at all. Any bitterness seems to belong to the people involved, not to the author.

The affairs of the island of Pharamaul, an emerging African nation first introduced in The Tribe That Lost Its Head, provides the plot for Richer Than All His Tribe. The book opens on Independence Day, introducing the Earl of Urle (a British leftist), Pharamaul's first Governor-General, and his extraordinary wife, Bobo, as First Lady, with Chief Dinamaula as Prime Minister, ingredients for trouble right there. The Maulas, North and South, are present in profusion, though very few of them have the faintest inkling of what Independence Day can possibly mean. But they revere Dinamaula as their hereditary Chief, and if he accepts the mystery, so will they. Five years before, David Bracken, the Chief Secretary, had had to escort Dinamaula to exile in England. Now all is forgiven and forgotten? Not quite.

An election makes Dinamaula the first President, and of course he must go to the U. N. despite David's discouragement. With him is Lieutenant Paul Jordan, Royal Navy, his principal Aide de Camp. Dinamaula quickly discovers that the big, wealthy nations will bid against each other to curry his favor, and financial aid which Pharamaul can never repay is pressed upon him. He discovers the delights of extravagance and the corruption of power. His comrades among the leaders of other new African nations show him the way to assert himself. He is approached by firms offering him percentages for monopolies and he enjoys the game. At the same time, Paul Jordan meets a lovely young Chinese-American girl, Frances Hoy, a U. N. secretary, and one of the most delightful romances in modern fiction begins.

In Pharamaul all is not well. The South Maulas consider the North non-Maula. The North Maula Chief, Banka, is as conservative as Dinamaula is autocratic. On the President's return from the U. N., Chief Banka forms an opposition party in the legislature. So no railway goes to the north, no money, handed out by the big nations, is forthcoming for its needs. David Bracken tries to advise cooperation and moderation — fruitlessly. Dinamaula has the bit in his teeth, his exile in England is to be revenged, and his humiliation erased by absolute power. He outlaws the opposition, jails any dissidents and has his police kill indiscriminately. The English advisors are all dismissed and leave for home — their careers ruined. Pharamaul becomes a police state with Dinamaula absolute dictator and a mass murder of North Maulas, come in protest at his injustices, provides a shocking climax.

That sudden freedom goes to the head, that injustice breeds revenge, that the segregated, freed, will turn on their oppressors and tht power corrupts, cannot be news. But it is here made flesh in an exceedingly well-written tale.

March 24 Town Meeting

fore under the jurisdiction of the Selectmen and after attorney Austin Broadhurst maintained that by law the use of the land would be restricted.

A vote of thanks to Mr. Witherell was included.

Water Pipes, Business District

Articles 6 and 7 went through with dispatch. Article 6 asked $110,000 for the Water and Sewer Department to continue laying, cleaning and lining water pipes.

Article 7, presented by Planning Board Chairman William Chapman, set up a study committee of nine voters (six to be appointed by the Moderator and one each by the Planning Board, Selectmen and Finance Committee) to study the business climate of the center and make recommendations for improvements in the local shopping district.

60 Budgets

The Meeting next headed into the list of listed 60 budgets.

A requested motion that each budget item be reviewed "in view of the fact that the tax rate (is headed so high)" appeared to get lost in the shuffle.

A motion by Kenneth Donaghey asking substitution of Wednesday for Thursday this week and next (Bruins game this week, Holy Thursday next) was next voted down.

Thirty-seven budgets were voted without discussion.

Opening discussion on the Selectmen's budget was Arthur Hewis who asked an amendment reducing it by $4,000 in the personnel services item of the executive secretary's salary.

Averring his respect for the present secretary, Mr. Hewis stated his belief that the positions of Town Clerk, Treasurer, director of Public Health and Police and Fire Departments chiefs demand as much responsibility and attention to detail as that of the executive secretary.

His amendment was defeated by voice.

Selectmen are required by law to tax the Town for property, Chairman Charles Doucette told Mr. Donaghey in answer to a question on the Selectmen's rental budget.

Query On Assessors

The budget of the Assessors, having been deferred in the first go-round, was deferred for a second time in the evening when it evolved that no assessor was present.

New salaries for Assessors, to start April 1, are $3,710 for the chairman, $2,700 for the two other members.

Mrs. Doris Emmons asked if all the assessors are full time; and, after some questioning by William Ryerson and Otto Schaefer, it appeared the Meeting wished to know more about the attendance of all three assessors before voting the budget.

A 108 to 31 vote deferred it a second time.

Planning Board; Dogs

Before a vote of the $10,850 Planning Board budget, Mr. Chapman answered a question of former Finance Committee Chairman Richard Dexter about unexpended 1968 monies and also told him that the '69 appropriation would be enough to "finish up the zoning requirements."

Before voting the $2,600 for the services of a dog officer, Mr. Doucette told Henry Heitz that the increase over the 1968 request for $1,181 was due to the fact the Town was without a dog officer for several months last year.

Fire Department

The Selectmen amended the Fire Department budget in personnel service raising this to $422,986, reflecting the cost of 58 extra tours of duty resulting from the heavy snows.

They noted, when questioned before the accepting vote that the present budget reflects salaries for Firefighters presently in effect.

More Trees?

The Forestry budget, on the other hand ($39,529) reflected a decrease in personal services due to the storms—time of Forestry personnel being charged to the snow and ice budget during these days.

This budget was not accepted until after discussion and rejection of a motion by Mr. Freeman asking the plan to remove 200 trees and plant only 100 be put in balance and extra monies be appropriated to plant more trees.

Health; Sewer; Sanitation

Right after the voting of the Building budget, John Bradley raised a question to the Board of Health relative to planning for Leonard Pool facilities so as to keep them open to accommodate bathers as long as bathing is allowed in the interest of water cleanliness.

Newly elected Board chairman, Vartkes K. Karaian, said the Health Board would consider the suggestion. The $34,034 asked was voted.

The Sewer budget was amended also to reflect a reduction transfer of appropriation to snow and ice for personnel payments, as was that under Sanitation.

Under the latter, Mrs. Elizabeth Herberich asked if preventive maintenance had been included for the incinerator and was answered that part of it is there.

She then asked for an explanation of the apparent lack of care of the newly planted trees on its site. Chairman Doucette said his Board had to hold itself responsible, and that it hoped for better results under the proposed second shift.

Former Highway superintendent James Wakefield wished to know if the second shift was to have temoprary personnel, and the Selectmen's chairman told him it was that Board's intent to hire temporarily at first until there was a more definite idea of how the second shift would work out.

Thomas G. Callahan, elected to Precinct II just prior to the meeting, called the overtime budget (in 1968 $13,608) "alarming," and asked that all the departments be more prudent.

Highways, Bridges

Members Kenneth Donaghey and Henry Heitz shared concern about the $15,089 earmarked for "other leaves" in the Highway personal services item. Comptroller James Costello explained that this represented a book-keeping device (on its way out) for separating out the sick leaves.

Robert Winn asked the Moderator if, as a Representative he could not aid with a bill to widen the bridge at Swanton Street. He was not given much encouragement.

Snow and Ice: Add $152,434 For February '69

Mr. Doucette broke down for the Members the substantial increases to be amended into the Winchester's 1969 snow and ice budget due to the record snows of last month.

—Permanent personal services to go from an anticipated $20,000 to $24,035;

—temporary help from $17,000 to $46,063;

—equipment upped to $23,600 instead of $8,000;

—other expenses (including contracting of outside trucks and men) up to $184,500 over previously looked to $115,415.

Reflecting the February storms in this budget is a total increase of $152,434. (from which gets subtracted $22,400 credits to oter departments personnel budgets).

At this point Mrs. Mary Pronski moved to adjourn. Her motion appeared, however, to be overlooked; and instead the Moderator recognized Mrs. Barbara Walsh, chairman of the School Committee, who asked to postpone the School budget until Thursday night.

The school athletic budget of $52,766 was passed.

Small Bright Spot

The budget for the Regional Vocational School had been prepublished at $39,455. Captain J. Edward Sharkey, U.S.N. (Ret.) the newly elected Regional School Committee member from Winchester, rose to say that due to the delay in the opening of the school, the Winchester share should come down to nearer $27,000. This budget was also delayed until tonight's meeting to give Capt. Sharkey time to make this figure firm.

Park Outlays

Total pre-published Park Department (also including "Playgrounds Recreation" items) for 1969 is $56,730, also amended.

Chairman Albert A. MacDonnell was called to the podium by Mrs. Herberich who asked for a detailed report on the Mill Pond improvement expenditures.

Under questioning Mr. MacDonnell told the Members that $900 has been alloted for a wood-frame duck-feeding station downhill from the Library on the Mill Pond; that no fencing (other than that at the feeder for safety was planned; that the Mill Pond island is completed excepting for planned "ground planting;" that the Park Board is still in charge of the grounds of the schools; that planned is resurfacing of basketball courts at McDonald Ginn and West Side Fields; retaining wall work at Leonard Field and cement block field houses at McDonald and West Side Fields.

He also answered questioners to say that his department is responsible for turning on the well pumps at Leonard Field Pool; that children's play equipment has been put on McDonald Field; and that "we maintain" the Manchester Field tennis courts but that his Department waited School Department requests for such things.

Mr. Schaefer suggested an architect help on "all structures of this kind" (he was referring to the field houses) and wanted to know if the Town had one.

The Park budget was the last voted of the evening. Jeremiah McCarron adjourned the meeting at 11:05.

CONCERN

some not officially on CONCERN), are not only more willing and able to help with this problem than are most adults, but they are more successful at it.

"As you may know, it is the younger, rather than the older members of the Committee, who have been responsible for the student-to-student program in the schools; for maintaining a library shelf which is useful to readers of all ages; for getting first-hand information about the psychiatric and medical facilities and help available; for helping neighboring towns with their problems, etc.

"I salute both the older and younger members of the Committee, and I invite any person of any age, who may have lost faith in the ability of the two generations to communicate with each other, to attend one of our meetings in McCall Jr. High lounge on the third Wednesday of each month at 7:45 p.m."

CONCERN again reminds citizens of the WGBH series being presented, entitled "Drugs: Use and Abuse."

This week's program, the second of four student presentations, will be aired on Monday, March 31, at 2 p.m. on Channel 2; Tuesday at 10 a.m. Channel 2, and 7:30 p.m. Channel 44; Wednesday at 2 p.m. Channel 2; Thursday at 9 a.m. Channel 2, and 7:30 p.m. Channel 44; and Friday at 8:15 a.m. Channel 2, and 2:15 p.m. Channel 2.

March 20 Town Meeting

Lease, Not Buy

Chairman John Collier came to the podium next to present the appropriation request for the Methods and Procedure Committee: $55,000.

"We have decided we'll be better off leasing it another year... We want to see it a little longer," said Mr. Collier, in indirect acknowledgement that the planned 1969 purchase of the Honeywell 110 computer would not be requested, but that the Town was instead being asked to fund a second year's lease.

"Data processing has had a good year," he said,...Essentially all of the objectives have been realized."

He recounted that it has processed the real estate bills, census, water billing; that it is about to do the payroll and in the fall will start on the school attendance, work maintenances and accounts payable.

"The year has not been without problems," he allowed, noting (installation) costs came to $3,800 more than anticipated and supplies also cost more, then saying that it had also saved money and was about $3,000 ahead of its budget.

"The cooperation of all Town boards has been tremendous," he concluded.

The Finance Committee and the Selectmen rose to ask favorable action.

"Has it saved any more relative to new positions?" asked Ralph Beattie. "Yes, in one position which hasn't been refilled and in the sense that two persons have been transferred out of the Comptroller's office.

Clarence Feldmann queried if the second year's rental would come off the purchase price as did the first. Mr. Collier replied that 80% of the first year cost and 60% of the second could be deducted.

Wait And See

"We still think it's wise to wait and see. We can't say positively that it's a good decision (to buy) yet," he added.

Rental would be $33,600 and the data programming manager $14,900, Mr. Collier said as part of his answer to Clarence Borggaard's request for a budget breakdown.

Mrs. Elizabeth Herberich asked for specifics on how the computer saves.

Mr. Collier said that one position otherwise needed in the Assessor's office had been precluded; that the School budget was down $9,948 due to its use; and that one large bookkeeping machine in the Comptroller's office would have had to be replaced if not for the Honeywell.

George Barbaro asked the "reasonable" life of a computer. Mr. Collier answered eight to 10 years for its physical life, but indefinite on its "technological" life.

Richard Freeman wanted its "utilization factor;" and whether or not there were plans for time-sharing (i.e. revenue) with other towns and or to use it within the school curriculum.

Mr. Collier said utilization was relatively low, somewhere between 50 and 60%; that there were overtures from three towns for use, but that as to time sharing it "would not lend itself" (to this as the term is understood in the industry); and that he hoped the schools would use it for training—that this could be done with their having a full day-time shift and the Town scheduling evening time.

He then answered James Lane by saying that the computer budget would be in a regular budget next year and told another questioner that an outright purchase of the Honeywell on April 30 would cost the Town about $90,000.

Vote Lease

At this point Mr. Hewis rose to question and the Moderator said, "The chair has seated Mr. Hewis and has no intention of recognizing him until after the recess." Mr. Hewis sat down.

The computer budget was voted with no discussion.

Mr. Ericson Reports

Personnel Board Chairman Robert C. Ericson, who concluded his presentation by announcing his resignation as chairman and the election of Nelson M. Bell to succeed him, rose next to present the report on Town wages and to report a total wage appropriation of $127,000.

Alexander J. Fay, Samuel J. Reid and Ralph V. Wilhelm have worked with the chairman and Mr. Bell to reach agreements with municipal employees this year.

A unanimous vote of the Meeting came first on a motion to ask the Personnel Board report be completed annually on or before 30 days before the annual Town Meeting—setting a firm deadline for bargaining units.

In introductory remarks, Mr. Ericson reminded that the most important responsibility of his advisory board is to be independent and fair to employees and taxpayers alike.

The Board had attempted to keep the unorganized employees —such as the police and Library workers—in a wage scale consistent with the pattern of those organized.

Their overall aim was to keep Winchester wages in a median spot in the list of towns to which it traditionally compares itself, he said. This had been accomplished, he felt.

Subject Of Firefighters Precluded

"The law clearly places the task of achieving agreement on the bargaining table and not in Town Meeting," said the Personnel chairman putting to rest any ideas that discussion of the unresolved wage contract with the Firefighters would erupt on the floor of the Meeting.

"Negotiations continue...there is some agreement...(the issues) are confidential and detailed," he added.

Mr. Ericson reported to the Members, however, that if there is no agreement after a reasonable time has elapsed, either side may petition the State Board for mediation.

Executive Secretary Salary

Right after a short recess, Manuel Rainha, keeping the meeting on the subject of personal services, queried the Selectmen as to the definition of the job of executive secretary to the Board of Selectmen, an item in the Personnel report which put the maximum salary for this job at $16,753.

Selectmen's Chairman Charles Doucette reviewed: The 1967 Town Meeting voted the position at $12,000, but few were interested at that price; the 1968 Meeting, therefore raised it to $15,000; the present secretary was then hired at $14,000.

"He is the Board's chief administrator," Mr. Doucette said, describing as his duties his research and reports to the Board at all meetings; consultation with Town officers; representation before other Boards and State Legislature and responsibility for minor complaints which before he came were all on the agenda.

Ralph Atkinson asked if the Board had delegated any of its authority to the executive secretary and was answered, "no."

Robert Winn noted the gratitude of Precinct 6 to Edward Donnelly, the present incumbent of the office, relative to action on the Cross Street overpass.

Food Service Worker

Mr. Hewis next challenged the Personnel Board's wages for food service workers in the school cafeteria, calling them "the lowest rated in Town" and noting the lack of political power of this group.

He stated he thought they were alloted $1.65 an hour, but was corrected by School Committeeman Richard Schroeder who noted them to be the second highest paid of 12 comparable communities and Mr. Ericson, who said the lowest rating is $2.01 and the maximum $2.99, for managers.

Fire Chief Equalized

Mr. Ericson next called attention to the rise in rates of pay to off-duty policemen appearing in court.

Mr. Doucette, then spoke for the Selectmen and asked Personnel amendment to revise the salary for the Fire Chief from the recommended $13,000 to $13,375, or the same as to be paid the Police Chief.

Mr. Ericson, noting the sensitivity of the situation and his Board's "respect for the Selectmen's position," said Personnel "does not oppose the amendment."

Ormond Hessler said the same thing for the Finance Committee.

Mrs. Herberich tried for an official comment as to whether or not an inference could be drawn about "the other uniformed members" (of the Fire Department), but was cut off. Henry Heitz, pointing to the animosity which he felt had developed between the departments (since the 1968 granting of higher wages to the police than to the firefighters) said the Town should correct past mistakes and vote for a change.

A voice vote approved the amendment and equalized the pay of the chiefs.

Academic Discussion

The last discussion of the evening ensued after a presentation by Chairman Ericson of a new "police improvement" study program of advanced education, initiating a policy to encourage full-time members of the Department to participate in degree programs at the college level.

"Police today need to know huquoted from Fortune Magazine. man behavior," the chairman "They are in real trouble when they can't deal with people."

"The Town must grow its own college-trained personnel (for police work)," he continued on his own, pointing to available programs close by at the North Shore College and Northeastern.

The discussion evolved when Mr. Freeman queried who would aprpove the courses and noted that industry pay after their completion. His thought was added to by David Ashton, who wondered if the listed "D or 70% or better" equated with "satisfactory completion of a course" was valid.

Earle Littleton wanted to have the Town pay for courses "as long as the student remains in good standing." Austin Broadhurst came up with the wording for an amendment to read, "upon completion of a course in a manner meeting the degree requirements of the institution."

This last was voted as an amendment.

Richard Freeman also questioned the change to four weeks vacation after 15 years service for all employees and was told this was a part of negotiations and could not be touched.

The meeting was adjourned at 11:15 p.m.

Lunchtime For Officials

AT HOMER'S FRIED CHICKEN grand opening last week Wednesday, Selectman and local businessman Edmund Williams, center, did ribbon-cutting honors. Joining him at the noontime ceremony were, from the left, Police Chief Joseph J. Derro, Richard First, of Homer's, Fire Chief Francis Amico and William Beaver of Homer's. In the rear is Abe Curewitz, secretary of the Business and Professional Association. The ceremony turned into a lunch hour at the new chicken and seafood eat-in and take-out center, a franchise of Mr. Donut. (Kelley photo)

Special

The Board of Selectmen and the Finance Committee stated their approval of the article.

Hewis Only Objector

Arthur Hewis asked, from the non-Meeting Members area, what strings, if any, would accrue from Federal or State aid.

Mr. Moore answered that aid from either source dictates opening the land to the use of all persons.

Ralph Atkinson asked whether acceptance of State or Federal aid as a conservation site would preclude its use for any other purpose and Mr. Moore said, in fact, yes, but that a change could be tsked for through the Legislature. He could, hesaid, foresee none as the contours of the land limited its use severely.

Mr. Hewis rose to say that if the acquisition was not a good idea at less money, it was not one now.

Clarence Borggaard asked did the Town know whether the Federal Government would allow the State Legislature to make a change away from conservation use. Mr. Moore reiterated that he felt it had other use, and added the probability that the Federal government would accept a substitution of other conservation land in its stead.

The question was called, voted unanimously.

The special meeting was adjourned.

School Administrators Talk On Budget Planning

Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Donald A. Klemer and Assistant Superintendent William F. Clark addressed the general meeting of the Winchester League of Women Voters an Wednesday, March 19. Their topics included the budget, school population and Marycliff.

Dr. Klemer discussed highlights of the budget and elaborated upon five-year plans prepared by department heads throughout the system.

These plans outline the directions in which the curricula should change and grow. He announced the intention to make these long range plans available to residents through publication in a series in the monthly newsletter, "Footnotes on Education."

Assistant Superintendent Clark addressed himself to space needs as detailed by the Snow population study and more recently by consultant-demographer, Dr. William Nash, and indicated ultimate needs for 7,500 seats in the school system.

Mr. Clark explained that if Marycliff Academy is purchased it will not obviate the need for further school construction. "We'll buy ourselves a little breathing space, a little time," according to Mr. Clark.

In the discussion which followed, the School Department Administrators heard many viewpoints from the assembled members. Some suggested that the "breathing space" which the Marycliff acquisition would provide could be used to reassess the wishes of the town.

For example, several questions arose regarding putting modern additions on fifty-year old school buildings. Some of those present suggested that additions could be put on the newest existing facilities where land is available—namely, Muraco, Vinson-Owen, and Lynch. It was hypothesized that savings could be realized by construcion on fewer and better sites

Other patterns of change for the town were suggested in the discussion including a lessening of resistance to bussing for grades four through six. Neighborhood schools and lunches at home for the upper elementary grades were suggested to be of diminishing importance to a large group of mothers. Evidence of the feeling appeared in the strong drive for a school lunch program, according to many present at the meeting.

Named to the dean's list at Boston College for the second semester were Brian Parrell, Kevin Wiseman, Robert Callahan, Frank Giacalone, Robert Depaulo, Ronald MacDonald, John McKenna, Robert Giamattei, Maureen Mallon, Maureen McKenna, Cheryl Fuccillo Rita Gramzow, Bernard Tuttle and Martin Feeney.

Methodists Top Fund Drive Goal

The bell was rung by everyone at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church when the goal of $14,475. was reached at about 4:45 Sunday afternoon. Twenty-six teams of visitors had made their own pledges and had begun their assigned calls at about 2.

Soon after the goal was reached, it became apparent that it would be exceeded. By 6 p.m. it was already oversubscribed by $2,000, with many calls yet to be completed.

The Fund for Reconciliation is a nation-wide effort by members of the United Methodist Church to raise $20 million over a four-year period. These funds are to be used especially in black/white reconciliation.

Within Massachusetts, the goal was $1,500,000. Each United Methodist Church was asked to accept a fair-share goal. And that goal for Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church was $14,475.

To Be Used in State

Half of the money raised will be used by the United Methodists within the state. Its use will be overseen by a committee of laymen and clergy in consultation with other Catholic and Protestant laymen and officials. The other half will be used at a national level by a similar committee of United Methodists.

$700,000 has been earmarked for a Commission on Religion and Race to deal with the remaining practice of racism within the structures of the United Methodist Church. $2,000,000 will be used for reconciliation and rehabilitation immediately following the negotiation of peace in Vietnam. $1,500,000 will fund the United Methodist Voluntary Service to enable young men and women to serve on a subsistance basis in areas of acute need in ghettos and in rural slums.

Other local and national projects will include scholarships and educational loans, day care centers, job training, business and home ownership loans, and support of community workers.

Serving on te local committees of Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church were: Walter Gattis, general chairman; Marion Chase, secretary; George and Blanche Needham, visitor recruitment; Lee Osburn, visitor training; and Dolores Broyles, promotion.

$20,000 Is Fund Goal For Scholarship Foundation

In launching the Winchester Scholarship Foundation's annual drive, Fund Chairman George I. Saulnier notes this is the 24th year in which the Foundation will have assisted Winchester youth in meeting the cost of further education.

To date, the Foundation has aided 479 students by awarding grants-in-aid totaling $202,435.

This year's goal of $20,000 is in response to increased need. Costs of higher education have nearly tripled in the last 23 years, enrollment at the high school is at an all-time high and fewer funds are available to middle income students than previously.

The Foundation relies heavily on annual contributions to provide the funds needed to assist able graduates of the High School in filling the gap between other financial resources and the actual cost of schools they will attend.

Residents and various charitable organizations are being contacted now for contributions which may be sent in care of Charles W. Butler, at the Winchester Trust Company.

John Henry Van Dyke will be in charge of soliciting Winchester's merchants.

Town To Discontinue Tree-Spraying On Private Property

Letters have been sent by Tree Warden Robert G. O'Brien notifying property owners that the general tree spraying program provided by the Town Forestry Department on private properties will be discontinued this year.

The letter states:

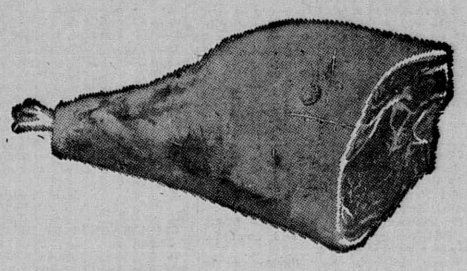

"It has been decided by the Board of Selectmen to discontinue the general tree spraying program provided by the Town Forestry Department on private properties.

"This decision was based on the fact that some several weeks of the entire Forestry Department plus outside contractors was spent on this spray program which serviced so few residents.

"It was therefore decided that it would be to the best interest of the entire town if this time and money were focused on Town trees which are in need of extensive care.

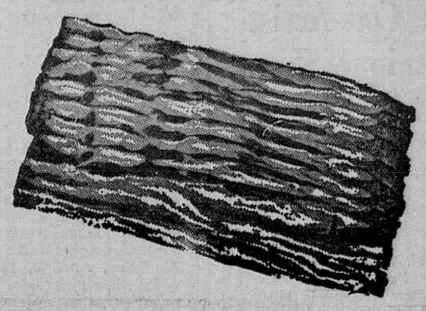

"Therefore, if you wish to have this type of spraying performed in the future, it is recommended that you make other arrangements with some private contractor."

MAKING A FOURTH BIRTHDAY something of an international event is Patricia Isbel Meyer of 145 Cambridge Street, who is posed to strike her Venezuelan-type pinata with a palo. "Patibel" was born in Caracas and returns there often, as her mother, Mrs. Edwin A. Meyer, is a public relations consultant with offices in Boston and Caracas. The original pinata was made of clay. But more and more, even in South America, other materials are substituted. Patibel's shared with her by 20 other children, was a cardboard and paper Snow White house, complete with the Seven Dwarfs and a cake inside. (Kelley photo)

New Motor Vehicles Office Is Opened In Woburn

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Richard E. McLaughlin has announced the opening of a new Registry Branch Office located at the Montvale Exit from Route 93 in Woburn.

Formal dedication ceremonies were conducted at the new Registry on Friday, March 21, at 10:30 a.m. with many state and municipal officials present.

"The new Woburn Branch Office will provide greatly improved service to residents in the entire Northeastern Middlesex County area and is another major step forward in the Registry of Motor Vehicles expansion program," said the Registrar.

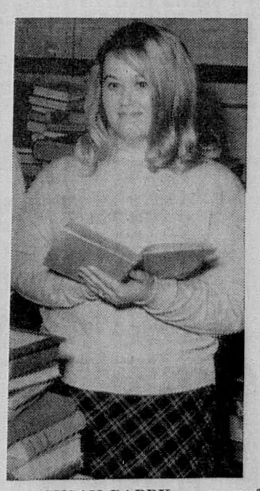

Other communities now in the Registry's Woburn District are Bedford, Burlington, Lexington, Lincoln, Reading, Stoneham, Wilmington, and Winchester. Citizens in these communities are urged to make full use of facilities provided by the new Woburn Office.

"Supervising Hearings Officer Charles V. Michaud and his staff will be available for regular Registry business immediately following the dedication," said Registrar McLaughlin.

Homefronters Elect Officers

A meeting of the Winchester Homefronters, the organization which sends Christmas boxes to Winchester's service men and women, was held at the library on March 18th.

Two hundred and sixty boxes were sent last Christmas according to Mrs. Bradford Bentley, Christmas project chairman.

The many enthusiastic letters received (which are on file in the library) bear witness to the worth of the project. Not only are the varied contents of the boxes much appreciated, but the knowledge that the old home town remembered seems to mean a great deal.

A new idea tried for the first time this year was the enclosure of a small present for a native child in each serviceman's box; the men were apparently delighted with this thoughtful item

The following slate of officers was read and approved for 1969:

To Attend Convention

The Burlington Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses are making preliminary plans to attend a three-day training program in Sudbury April 11-13.

Twenty delegates from the Winchester area will be attending the convention, it was announced Sunday.

The assembly, which will convene at the Lincoln-Sudbury High School on Concord Road, beginning at 6:45 p.m., Friday, April 11, will highlight the theme, "Make Wise Use of the Remaining Time," based on the bible text of I Corinthians 7:29.

The main feature of the assembly will be Sunday at 3 p.m., when Harry A. Fetzik, district supervisor of Jehovah's Witnesses in New England, delivers the public lecture, "Law and Order—When and How?".

All sessions are open to the public.

Cape Cod Artist Technique Shown For Silk-Screen

A demonstration of silk-screen printing will be the program presented by the Winchester Art Association at its next regular meeting to be held Tuesday, April 1, at 7:45 p.m. at the Winchester Public Library, it was announced by President R. N. Watts.

Gordon Brooks of Orleans will be the speaker. Mr. Brooks is the originator of a successful line of greeting cards called "Gay Dog Cards."

He designs and produces his cards personally. He now concentrates primarily on producing Christmas cards, and on drawing cartoons for the Cape Codder.

Mr. Brooks also has two cartoon books on the market and is regularly represented in "Yankee" magazine with cartoons.

During the winter, Mr. Brooks also teaches in the local Adult Education program.

Following graduation from Clark University in Worcester, Mr. Brooks attended the School of Practical Art in Boston, and has a commercial art background.

The artist, in presenting his demonstration, will give a brief synopsis of the history of silk-screen printing. He will show the tusche and glue method of stencil making, and the cut-film process illustrating how colors may be overprinted.

Mr. Brooks will display his own cards to show the finished product and will answer any questions.

Essay Contest Rules Announced

The Trustees of the Winchester Public Library are once again sponsoring an Edgar J. Rich Essay Competition.

Prizes are $75, $50, and $25 and the social studies department of the high school is cooperating in distributing information on the rules for the essay.

By the terms of the will of Edgar J. Rich, a Library trustee for many years, one of the uses of the income from the Trust Fund he bequeathed was "to provide for prizes for the best essays on Lincoln and Lee written by pupils of the Winchester High School."

The trustees have interpreted these instructions to include any topic relating to the Civil War period of American history since in his will he stated that "by the study of the lives of these two great Americans, there may come a better understanding between the North and the South."

The essays are due at the librarian's office by Wednesday, April 30. They will be judged on the evidence of research, the organization of materials, and originality of expression. They are to be between 1500 and 3000 words long.

Work on this phase of American history prepared for high school classwork can be adapted to this purpose, thereby extending eligibility to those seniors who took American history in the junior year as well as present students of the subject.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

"Say John," Boyd Foxley said on the phone, "come over to see me. I need to talk with you." Boyd was quite a promoter so I had no idea what he wanted. He preferred to be vague on the phone — just as he had always been when I tried to approach him about a complete insurance program.

"John," Boyd said in his booming voice. "I'm running a million-dollar operation with two bits worth of insurance."

Although I know this was a slight exaggeration, I wanted to say: "That's what I've been trying to tell you (but I didn't)."

"I'm in a lot of ventures," Boyd added, "and they're scattered and complex. I don't know what all the insurance risks are, as I've never had it studied. But a friend of mine — another promoter—just took a $100,000 loss on the chin, and I don't want to be caught by a punch like that."

"That's reasonable," I said. "May I survey your operations and review your existing coverages?"

Boyd tossed a bundle of policies to me across his desk. "I've probably committed every insurance sin," he said, "but see to it, I sin no more!"

Unitarian Players To Open With WMHA Benefit

"Gold in the Hills" or, "The Dead Sister's Secret," is the spring choice for the Unitarian Players who will open their stand at Metcalf Hall, Unitarian Church, with a benefit performance Thursday night, April 10, for the Winchester branch of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Association.

Sidney Poitier has received some of the highest accolades as an actor for his portrayal of Homer Smith in this film. Poitier plays the part with vitality and a fine sense of the human comedy delineating a character whom one admires as a human being.

Cooperative Nursery School Announces Expansion Plans

The new Winchester Unitarian Society's Cooperative Nursery School announces its plans to continue and expand for next year. The school, which opened last October with one group of 15 three and four-year-olds meeting twice a week, has already added a second class which started in February.

Next year in addition there will be an optional third day available, so that half of the total enrollment, primarily the four year olds, can attend three days instead of two.

The school is a parent-cooperative. One professional teacher is hired as teacher-director, and she is assisted each day in class by two mothers. The Unitarian Church has donated two well-equipped and spacious Church School classrooms and an outdoor play area to the school.

The program is aimed at giving the child a happy first school experience—an easy separation from parents, a friendly warm atmosphere wherein he can play with children of his own age, learn to share with them, and develop his own self-esteem and self-confidence.

Ther is no formal instruction, but there are ample materials for him to examine and explore, animals to observe, and always an adult to answer his questions or lend a hand with a "project."

The W.U.S.C. School also believes in exposing the child to the wonders of the world around him and to this end, it hires, from time to time, professionals who specialize in pre-school art, music, dance, drama, and science, to come to the school as guest teachers. Field trips are also considered valuable: for example, to the woods, the fire station, or the Museum of Science.

"The success of this new venture depended heavily on the quality of its first teacher-director. The school is most fortunate to have Mrs. Mary Jane Anderson, of Winslow Road, wife of Harvard Education Professor Robert H. Anderson," say its sponsors. "Her many years of teaching experience with young children and her talents as a professional musician are among her excellent qualifications." Mrs. Anderson has a B.S. in child study from Tufts University's Eliot-Pearson Department of Child Study.

The W.U.S.C. Nursery School was founded in 1968 by a group of mothers from the Unitarian Church. They included Mrs. William R. Schwenk, president, Mrs. Lee McGuire, vice president, Mrs. Joseph Gray, secretary, Mrs. R. Warren Breckenridge, treasurer, Mrs. James Doane, membership chairman, and Mrs. James V. Detore Jr., publicity.

It was conceived as filling a need for a nursery school which met fewer than five times a week at lower cost than existing schools serving Winchester three and four year olds. It is completely nonsectarian in program and in membership, though children of Unitarian families have priority on the waiting list. All interested parents are welcome to apply for their child's enrollment.

Waiting lists are long for next year and it is not too early to apply for the year 1970-71. For further information, please call or write Mrs. Doane, 38 Fells Road, Winchester, 729-8542.

Tax Guides Are Available At Library

Some local residents may not realize that Prentice-Hall's valuable program "Federal Tax Guide" is available for reference use at the Winchester Public Library, according to Mrs. Leila-Jane Roberts, librarian.

There are also several handbooks available on the preparation of income tax returns, including copies in the Business Reference section of the J. K. Lasser's 1969 edition of "Your Income Tax" and several Commerce Clearing House handbooks on different forms of tax information

The "Federal Tax Guide" covers federal income tax law and includes summaries of estate, gift and excise tax law Editorial explanations of tax law with definitions and the effects of its rules are given in the program. The explanations are illustrated by examples and by references to decisions and rulings on individual cases.

The program is kept up to date with weekly reporting new or revised regulations, important rulings and cases. When Congress is in session, these revisions contain reports on the programs of pending tax legislation.

Licenses Only At Evening Registry Hours

Motor Vehicles Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin has announced only drivers' license renewals and associated license matters will be processed on Saturday mornings and on Monday evenings beginning on Saturday, March 22. No vehicle registratios will be processed during those hours.

"The response to Saturday morning openings and Monday evening hours by motor vehicle drivers and owners has been so overwhelming that we have been forced to restrict the types of business to be transacted because of lack of funds to hire additional personnel," Registrar McLaughlin said.

The extra hours are now manned by regular personnel who receive only time off during regular hours for this duty. "To increase the number of personnel for Saturday and Monday extra hours," the Registrar said, "would seriously deplete the regular daytime staff and interfere with the efficient and orderly conduct of business for the vast majority of motor vehicle owners and operators."

The following offices are open on Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon: Boston, Brockton, Lowell, Lynn, New Bedford, Pittsfield, Springfield and Worcester All Registry offices are open Monday evenings from 5 to 8 p.m.

Mr. Trelewicz Is Awarded MIT Fellowship

Denis B. Trelewicz of 200 Swanton Street has been named a recipient of an Alfred P. Sloan fellowship at the Sloan School of Management of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

DENIS B. TRELEWICZ

Mr. Trelewicz, who received his bachelor's degree from New York University and his master's degree from Northeastern University, is associated with AVCO, Wilmington, as staff director of Business Planning and Information, Government Products Group.

He is one of 50 successful candidates for the fellowships whose names were announced by Dr. Peter P. Gil, associate dean for executive programs.

"This year we have chosen from among the largest number of applications we have ever received" Dr. Gil said, "and the new 1969-70 class promises to be a diverse group of exceptional talent, with a wide range of managerial experience to draw upon within both private and public areas of responsibility."

The new class will bring the total number of Sloan Fellows who have gone through the program to more than 800, since its inception in 1931.

Formerly only business and industry supplied candidates—and profited from their return to key positions, after the intensive one-year mid-career program—but now increasing numbers of Sloan Fellows are appointed from other fields.

Large Response To School Fair At Muraco

Muraco School children prepared units of study for the Educational Fair held on Thursday, March 20.

Projects were done in all academic areas, not exclusively science, in order to encourage greater participation. The projects were supervised and evaluated by the classroom teacher and a successful project could add to a students subject grade but no prize or spirit of competition was involved.

Over 500 parents visited the classrooms between 7:30 and 9 p.m. to see the displays of over 400 students. The children stayed with their projects to answer questions of the visitors. Kindergarten, 1st and 2nd graders did class projects, 3rd and 4th graders did 2-man-team projects and 5th and 6th graders did individual projects.

The Muraco School administration and staff guaranteed through preparation of students, teachers and parents by supplying learning aids for all.

For students—A detailed 9-page "Pupil Specialty Guide Book" was available. It presented suggestions for organizing the project, locating resource materials and presenting a report to classmates.

For teachers—A list of criteria for evaluating Educational Fair projects was given to each teacher. Each also received a list of specific activities to be used periodically to keep track of the students' progress.

For parents—Announcement of the Fair was accompanied by a list of revealing questions which visitors could use to determine the depth of the child's understanding of his project.

Unitarian Group To Present Melodrama

Dr. Robert A. Storer will direct the Unitarian Players in their Spring production "Gold in the Hills or Her Dead Sister's Secret," a melodrama in three acts.

In addition to the Friday and Saturday evening performances, April 11th and 12th, the Players will give a benefit performance for the Mental Health Association on Thursday, April 10th and a family and student performance on Sunday, April 13th.

Bob Magnusen will set the scene as the Speaker of the Prologue.

John MacLellan, a veteran melodrama player, will portray Farmer Hiram Stanley. His two daughters, Nellie and Barbara will be played by Mary Klug and Beverly Spinney and their housekeeper by Charlotte Hill.

John Dalton (Jim Dorsey) will pit a hero's honor against the wiles of Richard Murgatroyd (Frank Thayer) and his Shadow Slade (Jim Bonnell). Constable Jenkins (John White) enters the Scene and "the plot thickens."

Included in the bowery scene will be Ken Astill, Steve Brown, Gene Pollard, Shirley Puffer, Vincent Minichiello, Don Spinney, Craig Nickerson, Betty Vallee, and Ann Carrigan. Also featured in this scene will be Cecil Prest, Doris Bryant, and Pat Stewart as the "Uptown Swells."

Michael Carrigan and Peter Spinney will play young Tommy Harrison on alternate performance evenings. "Professor" Ken Garland will accompany the Bowery boys and girls at the piano.

The curtain will go up at 8:30 p.m. on all performances evenings except Sunday (7:00 p.m.).

Tickets for the Friday and Saturday performances may be reserved by calling Grace White, 729-0287. Tickets for the Sunday evening show will be sold at the door.

MIKE MURRAY, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Murray of 39 Nathaniel Road, scored three goals and four assists for a total of seven points in the recently completed season of the University of Massachusetts varsity hockey team. Mike, a sophomore, was co-captain of the Winchester High School varsity hockey team in 1967.

Pee Wees Beat Westford 14-1

The Winchester Pee Wee B hockey team completed a successful week-end Sunday with a 14-1 romp over Westford after having tied Wakefield 3-3 in a make-up game Saturday.

The Wakefield game was a particularly satisfying one as Wakefield had beaten the locals twice by 5-1 scores earlier.

In the earlier games Wakefield had pulled away in the last period after 1-1 ties, but in this game Winchester came back from a 3-1 deficit to tie the game in the last period and almost won at the finish.

Winchester scored first within ten seconds of the start when Boo McKenzie flipped in a rebound rebound after Allyn Stillman and Will Paglia's shots were stopped.

After falling behind 3-1 in the second period Winchester rallied to make it 3-2 when Dave Putnam sent Larry O'Grady into the zone for a shot that Jay Frongillo deflected past the goalie.

The locals tied the game in the third period when Frank Ryan's forechecking stole the puck in the Wakefield end. Frank moved around behind the net and fed a perfect pass to Kevin O'Neill in front. Kevin took his time and put it home.

Late in the game Dave Putnam sent Larry O'Grady in all alone and his hard shot just missed the corner for what would have been the game winner.

Goalie Pete Frongillo made some fine glove saves earlier in the game which kept Winchester in the game. The improving defense came up with another solid game.

In Sunday's game Westford scored first but after Winchester got untracked on Dave Putnam's goal at the ten minute mark the heat was on. Davie, had a five goal performance to lead the attack. Will Paglia had a hat-trick in this contest.

Other point scorers were Allyn Stillman with a goal and three assists, Larry O'Grady with two goals and an assist, Frank Ryan two goals and an assist, Kevin O'Neill a goal and two assists and and Charley Deroo with two assists.

Also getting assists were Pete Frongillo, taking a vacation from the goal, Kevin Julian, Phil Neergaard, Mark Milley, Mike Jeannette, Kevin Pronski, Tom Allyn and Boo McKenzie.

Next week's game with Bedford at 6 p.m. is the season's finale.

The Army's unique helicopter, the "Flying Crane," has recovered more than 400 downed aircraft in Vietnam, the recovered craft having a total value of more than $221 million.

Up And Over!

UP AND OVER the horse goes Leslie Wilson with an assist from Christine O'Connor. This and other exercises will be demonstrated at Lynch Junior High School in the Girls' Gym Exhibition Friday evening, March 28, at 7:30 p.m. Parents and friends are invited to watch the girls do folk dances, tumbling, a mass exercise and play volleyball. Miss Mary Boghian, physical education teacher, has spent considerable time working with the girls perfecting the techniques to be presented to the public. (Lois Carr photo)

State Tourneys Run To Form With Wins For Memorial, N'dham

Before the start of the winter sports season Catholic Memorial of West Roxbury was an almost unanimous selection to carry off all basketball honors.

Now, 29 games later the result is official as Coach Ronnie Perry's quintet recorded victories in every contest and was never even threatened until the very last minute of the very last game with Springfield Commerce for the state championship. However a basket by freshman King Gaskins with only three seconds remaining was needed to sew up this essential final victory.

The champions of Western Massachusetts were the best team that Memorial met all season and they were the only ones who could cope with Memorial's fast break, even outrunning the speedy Knights.

This forced a change in Coach Perry's strategy and relegated the dangerous Bill Raynor to the single role of playmaker rather than an offensive demon who had scored up to 35 points in some games. This left the bulk of the offense up to six foot seven Fran Costello and he played his usual steady game to account for nearly half of the winning total of 52 points.

However, in spite of the dogged Commerce defense and the blunting of their vaunted scoring power Memorial took a 40-34 lead into the final period. The winners continued to show the way until well past the midpoint of the period with the count favoring the West Roxbury team 50-41.

Then almost like a bolt of lightning the Springfield team struck back as Aycox, Spinks and Mack hit successive hoops to make it 50-47. The word from the coach of Memorial was to stall by weaving and passing without shooting to kill the clock. This backfired as Spinks stole the ball and went in for a layup and a 50-49 count.

He was fouled almost immediately and missed the shot only to have Gene Veasley grab the ball and now Commerce stalled for what should have been the last shot. But Mack saw an opening with 11 seconds to play and fired a jumper to put his team in front by 51-50.

With the clock ticking off their apparent doom Memorial took the ball in and by Coach Perry's orders took a time out to discuss the situation. The play was to feed the ball to Bill Raynor and he was to drive down the court with an eye open for a possible setup of Fran Costello or else to drive through and try to score himself. But Spinks was in the way and blocked every move of Raynor to get through and so the latter passed off in desperation to the only open man, freshman King Gaskins who was playing with a cracked little finger. The latter wound up and let the shot fly immediately from 22 feet out and it swished through for an ending that gave Catholic Memorial the State championship 52-51 as pendemonium broke loose The finalists were the two best teams that the writer has seen in action this season and richly deserved their success.

Not to be outdone Ipswich conquered St. Stephen's of Worcester for the State small school crown winning by 65-64 in overtime. Reuben Britt who has been the bellwether for the North Shore team all season hit from the right of the key with 42 seconds of overtime left, and his team mate Tom Stamatakos preserved the narrow margin as he stole the ball with only three seconds left to snuff out the final charge of St. Stephens and send the Worcester team down to defeat.

Needham Proves Greatness

Needham which has made a shambles out of all opposition this year proved its right to be the State hockey champion by besting defending champion Auburn by 3-0.

They were pre-season choices, and seeded number one in the Eastern Hockey Tournament. In spite of continual pressure by all opposition they skated through a difficult schedule and lost only a single game.

In the tournament they were well nigh invincible. And with Robbie Ftorek showing the way, they capped their championship showing by besting a very fine Melrose team 6-3. This brought them into Saturday's finale with Auburn.

It was much the same as it has been all season as Robbie Ftorek led with two goals and an assist to upend the defending titalists. The game was only 50 seconds old when he flipped a pass to Rich Hasnfus and the Needham captain slid the puck across to Tom Parlato who drove it past Cantwell for the first tally. About three minutes later, Ftorek smashed through the Auburn defense, faked the goalie out of position and lifted the disc over his prostrate form to give Needham a 2-0 margin.

Auburn applied very strong pressure using three forward lines in the second period and trapping Needham in its own defensive zone several times but simply couldn't get the puck past Bill Trafidlo who played brilliantly in front of the Rockets' cage. The final tally was another picture play by Ftorek as he once again faked the defense and goalie with a carbon copy of his first period goal for the final marker, which gave Needham sole possession of the State hockey diadem by 3-0.

In spite of Ftorek's stellar play it was an outstanding team effort which won Needham its fourth State tournament. It would almost be safe to hazard a guess that they will win their fifth next year with Ftorek, Dagdigian, and Parlato returning as well as a host of experienced first line reserves, not to mention the graduates of their excellent freshman and junior league teams.

The Garnet's fell from third to sixth position on March 19. This is due to the strong bowling of the Cameo's and Sandy Borsini's 111 string. Of course we all know that being in sixth place only by pinfall is not all bad.

It isn't surprising to see the Jade's still in first place. This week they had the team high single of 455.

The Pearls have moved into fourth place this week. Jane MacIsaac helped this move by bowling a 309. The team high three of 1316 was also bowled by the Pearls.

Junior Curlers Win Bonspiel At Petersham

Winchester Country Club junior curlers, skip, Dean Hakanson, vice-skip, Heather Barlow, second, Peter Shean and lead, Pam Speers won the Warner Trophy and first place pins against tough competition this past weekend in the Petersham Teenage Bonspiel.

After defeating top rinks from Schenectady and Norfolk on Saturday, they curled against Bruce Henry's experienced rink from Nashua, New Hampshire at noon on Sunday, defeating him in a very exciting match.

Since the Bonspiel was run on the point system, the three wins put Dean Hakanson's rink into the finals with the highest point total, and after only 20 minutes rest, they faced the second Winchester rink, who had won their match at 8 a.m. Sunday and had the second highest point total.

Despite weary muscles, excellent curling had the spectators in the "warm room" on the edge of their seats for the next two hours with Dean Hakanson, Heather Barlow, Peter Shean and Pam Speers winning the match 10-6.

Winchester No. 2, Ty Gerould, Jane Wilcox, Kit Adams and Carolyn Roundey as runner-up in the finals won the second event.

Wreck The 'Tech'— Is This The Answer? No!!— But Something Must Be Done

John F. Parrell

"The last Tech Tournament game will be played the night that somebody gets killed as a result of the roughhouse tactics of the spectators," mutter the more pessimistic among school basketball coaches, officials, players and fans. And it is true that the situation is going from bad to worse with each passing year and if such a tragedy is to be avoided some quick and definite action must be taken.

To give full credit to those responsible for the running of the "Tech" from its originator and only director Henry McCarthy Sr. down through the lowest member of the Boston Garden staff, it is fair to point out that every possible precaution is being taken. This includes special details of police, a large contingent of plain clothesmen and detectives and a very efficient walkie-talkie system.

But in spite of all these, rowdyism is growing more rampant, injuries to spectators are on the increase, and vandalism inside and outside the Garden is assuming astounding proportions.

Happened Before

It is not necessary to point out the beating of a Somerville player. Such things have happened before and will continue. It could just as well be a band player, a cheer leader or your son or daughter. The trouble seekers don't pick out their victims in advance—anybody who happens to be in their way will do be he old or young.

It was too bad that Somerville lost young Endicott, but Joe Adams of Durfee got a much more serious beating many years ago. Then it was said that something had to be done but it wasn't.

Encouraged by the lack of success of coping with such menaces every hoodlum in Greater Boston who has nothing better to do finds his way to the tourney and waits for the slightest excuse to vent his tndencies toward mayhem.

They carry all the traditional weapons such as knives, bottles, garrison belts and pieces of brass or steel augmented on occasion by blackjacks, clubs etc.

Even the slightest provocation will galvanize them into action, as happened in the Lynn English-Boston Tech game this year. A crowd of rabid Lynn rooters gathered in back of the basket started chanting "We're number one" at a crowd of Tech students and hangers-on in the balcony. Moments later a mob of the latter raced down the stairs into the stadium section and down over the wall near the organ to rush into combat action.

Police tried hard to keep them back but like Attila's Huns they pressed through and started a dozen fights. It looked like a real brawl for several minutes until Coach Joe Murphy of Tech took a time out and his big center Ollie Wise came down in front of the mob and said, "All you Tech guys, get back into your seats." The group dropped the conflict and followed his order. The player had succeeded where regular authorities were having their hands full.

Dangerous Damage

Another facet of mob activity is that of tearing up fixtures in the lavatories and smashing of plate glass windows and fluorescent lights. Then there is the ripping down of light fixtures and fire extinguishers and throwing them down flights of stairs in the faces of the upcoming crowd. There is no thought of how they will land or on whom, its just nice, clean fun (???)

At this point it must be pointed out that in the games there is seldom even the slightest hint of violence or punch throwing. The boys are there to play basketball and although the action is tense and often rugged it does not approach even the mildest of the extra-curricular skirmishes in the stands, on the ramps or on the roads to and from the Garden.

The coaches and officials keep the games well in hand and the players are almost always outstanding examples of good sportsmanship.

Now that these facts have been made clear let us approach the real issue—what is to be done? This has been thrashed out pro and con in informal discussions, at coaches meetings at officials' gatherings, at meetings of the Secondary School Headmasters' Association and on street corners. There have been many suggestions ranging from the complete elimination of the "Tech," down through playing it in college gymnasiums, to doing nothing about it.

The last course is impossible in a sane society and the first might be extreme, so what can and should be done?

Decentralization

One of the leaders of the decentralization and or elimination of the "Tech" is Melrose coach John Killilea. Some years ago as the president of the Basketball Coaches Association he presented certain proposals to the governing body of all schoolboy sports, the Headmasters Association, formally the Massachusetts Secondary School Principal's Association. But to date there has been no positive action.

It is hoped that this situation will be taken up in the immediate future so that something tangible can be done before the coming of another "Tech." The Garden officials must know well in advance in order to properly reserve the dates for the annual event.

It is also in order to point out at this point that the competing schools realize very little financial gain, the bulk of the profit going to the Headmasters' Association for their other athletic awards and scholarship funds, both commendable uses.

The preliminary games in the Class C and Class D tourney are usually played in various neutral high school gymnasiums and there has hardly ever been anything in the way of undesirable happenings. Maybe the same could be done in the Class A and Class B with a game such as Somerville and Durfee to be carded at Quincy or a Braintree and Concord clash at Malden.

This might work with the host school having its staff to supervise the action but one faculty manager asks with fair reasoning "Who wants those outside gangs tearing up his city and stores?" Of course this might be resolved by special police details and by strictly limiting ticket sales to legitimate students to be passed upon by the contending school officials at the gate.

Coach Killilea favors having all the larger preliminaries at the local college gymnasiums with only one game to be played at each. For example Malden and Brockton would play at Brandeis or Winchester and Newburyport at Boston State College. The only games to be played on the Garden floor in either instance would be the semi-finals or even better only the finals.

He is also a disciple of the move toward a state wide open tournament in two classes with which he had good experience while coaching his championship team at Oldtown in the Pine Tree State. Such open tournaments are favored by many coaches in all sports including football. However, such arrangements require careful planning lest they develop into something less than desirable as was the case when the New England tourneys in hockey and basketball went down the drain.

Cut The Roster?

Other suggestions include raising of the qualifying quota to 75% to reduce the number of teams eligible and the consequent number of preliminary games before the quarter-finals. As an antidote for some of the dubious officiating it is thought that coaches of each league should vote on their choice of the two best qualified whistle tooters in the circuit, and that no official be allowed to work in any game in which there might be a conflict of interests or home town leaning.

Another matter which some coaches favor is the strict limiting of high school eligibility to three years of sports. In other words no freshman could be used unless they were to forego a year of eligibility later. They point to Lee of Lexington and Gaskins of the Catholic Memorial champions who will be around three more years while many other schools have their ninth graders (freshman) playing junior high school basketball. The extra year renders the competent player to be the equal of the average college freshman when he is a senior.

Still another suggestion is increased faculty supervision with men teachers being paid to sit in sections with the students. A ratio of at least one teacher to 20 or 25 is advocated with pay from this strenous extra-curricular activity to come out of the gate receipts. As added insurance it is suggested that leaders in other sports, student council members etc., be asked to assist in keeping things in order.

All these things are pointed out to show that people are thinking about the sorry situation facing the "Tech."

Nobody wants to condemn it as a fixture unless some adequate substitute in the form of a well organized open tournament is worked out.

But time is going by, and immediate action is necessary if the gloomy prognostications outlined at the start of this article are to be avoided.

Please, coaches, faculty managers, officials and especially headmasters let's get things moving. Sports are essential but are they really and truly of such importance as to cause rioting, physical injury or disability and possibly even death?

The time for constructive action is NOW.

Little League Makes Appeal For Coaches

The 1969 Winchester Little League season is fast approaching, and Commissioner James R. Stewart Jr. has issued an urgent appeal for men to supervise the baseball activities of several Minor League Teams.

According to the Commissioner several men who had full intentions of being managers suddenly found their jobs changed, forcing them to give up the opportunity to work with the youngsters, 9 through 12, whom they had counted on guiding through the two months of May and June.

The prime requisite for a Minor League manager is his interest in boys, says Mr. Stewart.

This is particularly true of fathers who have boys who are or intend to play baseball, this spring. A passable knowledge of baseball is important, but the ability to interpret the rule book to youngsters is more important. The teams play once or twice a week, and have practices scheduled for sharpening up the play.

Games are played from 6 p.m. until about 8 p.m. on Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, and practices are scheduled on Fridays and week-ends, with each team getting at least one practice session scheduled each week.

At the present moment, the Badgers, the Beans and the Greyhounds are without a manager. Fathers of boys who were on these teams last year and who do not anticipate their son being selected for a Major League team would do well to call George Tello at 729-0884 or Joe Julian at 729-2987 and volunteer their services to make sure their son will get the advantages of playing regulation baseball, this year.

With close to 800 Winchester boys playing organized baseball in 1969, many fathers and mothers are needed to insure proper supervision and two months of fun for their children.

"If you, as a parent, can spare a couple of hours a week for your son, please call George or Joe at once—you will be glad you did," says Mr. Stewart.

David Williams Receives Award For Hockey

David Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walworth B. Williams of 15 Ledgewood Road, has been chosen the most improved player on the 1968-69 Colby College varsity hockey squad.

David played on the sophomore line for Coach Richie Green.

He scored nine goals and made 11 assists during the 21-game schedule, which included a play-off berth in the Division II ECAC championships.

The White Mules dropped the contest to American International College, a team which went on to win the title.

A sociology major at Colby, David prepared for college at Belmont Hill School.

PETER DesMEULES, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DesMeules of 378 Main Street, finished the varsity hockey season at Lehigh University with a record of 10 goals and 12 assists. The team captured the Middle Atlantic league title with seven victories in eight league games.

Little League Tryouts Postponed By Snow, Mud

In spite of the gradual thaw and melting of the snow, the Little League tryouts will be postponed a week rather than playing in mud and snow. Ginn Field and West Side Field still have a thick snow cover over most of the playing surface, and Shore Road shows mud and snow.

Henry Petrillo, player agent chairman and Senior American League player agent, decided to postpone all tryouts one week.

According to the revised schedule, the Major and Minor Leagues will stage their first day of tryouts on April 5, with the second sessions to be held on April 12.

As before, Precincts 1, 3 and 5 (American League) will convene starting at 9 a.m. at West Side Field. Boys from Precincts 2, 4 and 6 (National League) will start their batting and fielding at 9 a.m. on Girn Field. From 9 to 12 noon, on both days, in both Leagues, boys 9 and 10 years will report and display their talents. From 1:30 to 4 p.m., the 11 and 12-year olds will have the fields for their practices.

Fathers of the candidates are urged to come with their sons for all of these tryouts. Whether or not a boy was on a team last year, he still must show up for at least one of the tryout sessions to retain his team status.

In the Senior League, tryouts will be held at Shore Road Field on April 5 and 12, also. The times are the same — 9 a.m. to 12 noon, and 1:30 to 4 p.m. — as the Major-Minor Leaguers; but, in the case of the Seniors, all last year's team members and new candidates will report to participate in both sessions, both days, regardless of whether they are 13, 14 or 15 years old.

Player agents and managers will be on the fields on the days specified, as will the vice presidents of the Leagues to answer any questions players and parents may have. Boys participating should bring their own gloves and wear sneakers and long trousers. It is suggested that each also wear a jacket. All bats, balls, batting helmets and bases will be brought to the tryout fields by the League vice presidents, as well as any other equipment deemed necessary by the player agents.

All practice fields will conduct the identical practice procedure so that each boy will get the opportunity to display his abilities on an equal basis before the team managers.

With the change in schedule for the tryouts, the draft selections now will take place shortly after the second tryouts, April 12, and those boys selected for the various teams will be notified not later than April 14. For those not selected for Major or Minor League teams, the CAP League is expected to start its season on or about May 17.

Navy Accepts 17-Year-Olds

The Navy recently has made available openings for enlistment of 17-year-old young men, according to Commander W. H. Elder, Commanding Officer Navy Recruiting Boston.

The Navy, however, encourages all young men who are presently in school to complete their education and graduate prior to their processing and ultimate enlistment.

For complete details on this or any Navy Program, see the local Navy Recruiter at City Hall, Salem Street in Medford.

Duplicate Bridge Club

On Wednesday, March 19th, after the scores were added up for Section A's eleven tables, that devastating duo, Jim Bradley and Bob Fiske, were first again North-South, with Fredna Perkins and Bob Haskell in top spot East-West.

North-South

James Bradley and Robert Fiske	144
Ellen Schofield and Guy Mingolelli	135½
Gerald Barrett and Stephen Haseltine	115
Adeline Duryea and John Reardon	113½
Addie Mingolelli and Ralph Atkinson	112½
Ida Finlay and Lena Collins	111

East-West

Fredna Perkins and Robert Haskell	139½
Ruby White and Polly Wheelock	128
William Duryea and Clarence Woodward	117
Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Cade	116
Anne Galpin and Madelyn Walworth	112

The cards in Section B were unusual and difficult, but Peggy and Paul Sanderson weathered them handily to win North-South while Don Howard and Tom Barry were first East-West.

North-South

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sanderson	90½
Stephen Root and David Littleton	87½
Martha Joslin and Edward Sullivan	87
Norman Houlding and Lawrence Hayes	78½
Stephan Chiotellis and Charles Richardson	73½

East-West

Don Howard and Tom Barry	108½
R. Globus and S. Oston	106
Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lynch	94
Prudence Horne and Lee Salani	83½

The following hand from the recent Continentwide Charity Game was a real thrill. South was the dealer with East-West vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ A J 4 3 2
♥ Q J 9 7 6 3
♣ 5 2

WEST	EAST
♠ Q 9 8 5	♠ 7
♥ 4 2	♥
♦ A 6 3 2	♦ K Q J 10 7 4
♣ 10 7 6	♣ K Q J 9 8 4

SOUTH
♠ K 10 6
♥ A K 10 8 5
♦ 9 8 5
♣ A 3

After these Charity Games, printed sheets are passed out with analyses of the hands by a committee of experts. Their comments on this one were:

"Freak hands produce strange auctions, and we hesitate to predict how this hand will develop after South opens one heart and West passes. An unusual jump by North to four diamonds, showing a diamond singleton or void and enough for four hearts, works well on this deal, for even if East competes South will judge that the hands fit well and might carry on to slam if pushed there. Even at unfavorable vulnerability, East-West have an excellent save -200 at six diamonds, -500 at 7 diamonds. Since not many North-Souths will get to six hearts, those East-Wests that save at seven diamonds should find they have a good score. East's bidding will undoubtedly reveal a two-suiter and if South buys the contract at 5 hearts, he should have no difficulty in locating the Queen of spades and bring in the suit for thirteen tricks and a score of plus 510."

Editor's Note: It's always fascinating to play an evening of bridge and then read what the experts would have done. You invariably pick up some points in bidding or play. For once we agreed with them. Sitting East-West, we bid the unusual no trump by East asking for the best minor and then carried on in diamonds up to the seven diamond sacrifice, after North-South had bid six hearts, for an excellent score. Two East-Wests were doubled at six diamonds for a better score.

Wash Cars Warns AAA

Leaving winter's grime on automobiles this spring is not only unsightly but it's also a costly mistake, the American Automobile Association cautioned all motorists today.

According to James W. Vasbinder, Emergency Road Service manager for AAA's Massachusetts Division: "The salts and chemical compounds which work so well in clearing our highways of snow and ice can be harmful to metal and chrome. The car's appearance and trade-in value can deteriorate fast when pitting and rust appear.

"We strongly urge motorists to start their spring cleaning early," Vasbinder continued. "Cars need a thorough cleaning, especially if there's been a lot of driving in snow and wet. Highways were heavily salted this winter to aid in snow and ice removal."

The Triple-A official suggested four spring cleaning tips:

1. Wash entire outside of car with soap and water and pay special attention to chrome surfaces.
2. Be certain to hose off underside of car, particularly fenders and bumpers where deposits accumulate.
3. Wash rust spots thoroughly, then sand and touch up with paint when dry.
4. As an added protection, follow up the car wash with a good waxing.

We carry the Bausch and Lomb reading glasses, magna bars and pocket magnifiers. At the Winchester Star.
